Portable Plunges Exempt

SWIM-POOL FENCE LAW FULL OF HOLES

By BILL DUNCAN

Gaping loopholes in California's fencing law for swimming pools exist in most Southland cities, preventing policing agencies from properly enforcing the safeguards, particularly as they apply to portable pools.

The loopholes were discovered when The Independent, Press-Telegram began an investigation after the drowning of three small children in portable swimming pools in two separate backyard tragedies two days apart. The I, P-T probe was on the question of whether the plastic plunges are included under the swimming-pool-fencing law.

Ironically, in both cases the deaths occured despite legal fencing.

Since January of this year, 11 children, the oldest seven years, have drowned in backyard swimming pools—mostly in conventional pools. Of these, five children scaled a neighbor's fence during the neighbor's absence to gain access to the pool.

However, portable swimming pools—the plastic-lined-tank types—are exempt from the fencing law in the unincorporated area of Los Angeles County and in 13 Long Beach-area municipalities. In other cities having laws governing portable pools, policing agencies say the ordinance is "almost unenforceable."

Reason?

No building permit is needed for installation of these pools and building departments have no way of knowing in what backyard the pools are to be set up.

Specifically, the fence law was enacted in 1957 to protect toddlers from falling into open, unprotected swimming pools. The law came about when the pools became as popular at tract homes as at mansions.

It was written as an amendment to the Kathy Fiscus Law, legislation spawned after the golden-haired San Marino three-year-old fell into an abandoned oil well in 1949 and died before rescuers could reach her.

Most cities, including Long Beach, have written a proviso requiring fencing for any body of water more than 18 inches deep. Orange County's ordinance for its unincorporated territory specifies 24 inches of water.

One building-department official commented:

"There must be hundreds of these pools set up in backyards all over Southern California. Most would not be legally fenced and building departments do not have the staff to adequately police the do-it-yourself installations. We could hardly justify our men peeking into everybody's backyard."

A spokesman for the Fullerton building department said the city simply doesn't class the portable pools as swimming pools because they are regarded as only temporary installations.

William A. Jensen, Los Angeles County building superintendent said, "There is nothing specific in our ordinance about portable pools. Since these pools require no permits we felt we would have a harder time enforcing the fencing law. The law, itself, is designed to prevent tots from tumbling into a ground-level pool. The portables are about 3½ feet above the ground and give that added protection."

The Los Angeles County Building Department has contracts to serve 28 incorporated areas in the county. Among these are Lakewood, Bellflower, Norwalk, Paramount, Artesia, Dairy Valley, Hawaiian Gardens, La Mirada, Santa Fe Springs, Lomita, Rolling Hills and Rolling Hills Estates.

Most cities have fencing ordinances, similar to the Long Beach ordinance, which requires a 5-foot, 6-inch minimum height fence with self-closing and locking hardware installed on all gates. The hardware cannot be installed lower than 4 feet, 6 inches above the ground.

The locking devices lead to another loophole in the fencing law. Under the law, owners are allowed to use a portion of existing buildings as part of the fence.

Thant Sees Russ in Walkout

Report K Threat on Penalty for Nonpayment

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Top sources reported Saturday Premier Khrushchev told Secretary General U Thant the Soviet Union will walk out of the General Assembly and perhaps quit the United Nations altogether if its vote is taken away for nonpayment of bills.

These sources said Thant, deeply worried, will discuss this threatened break-up of the world organization with President Johnson when he flies to Washington for a scheduled appointment Thursday.

Thant has just returned from a trip to Moscow where he appealed to the Kremlin not to let the U.N. go broke through failure to pay up.

* * * *

HE TOLD newsmen there, after a long talk with Khrushchev, that he saw no change in the Soviet stand.

The United States insists that the Soviet Union lose its vote in the Assembly unless it pays some of its back dues before the assembly convenes Nov. 1.

The U.N. charter says that any country two years behind in U.N. dues "shall have no vote" in the assembly.

The Soviet Union has refused to pay its assessments for Congo and Middle East peacekeeping costs and, if these are counted along with its regular budget assessments, it is two years behind.

The Americans say these costs must be counted because they are binding on all members. The Russians say they are not because they were not assessed by the Security Council.

* * * *

THE SOVIET UNION walked out of the Security Council in 1950 to protest the continued representation of Nationalist China there. The absence of the Kremlin's veto-wielding delegate permitted the U.N. to set up its Korean operation which would otherwise have been stopped. The Soviet Union later returned to the council.

RANGER EXPERTS AT WHITE HOUSE

LBJ Told Man Can Make Lunar Landing in 1960s

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson hailed Saturday the Ranger 7 triumph in closeup photography of the moon and said that in space this nation "has achieved fully the leadership we have sought for free men."

He called the Ranger exploit a "historic extension of man's knowledge" and tied it into a plea for peaceful scientific progress.

The President also assented to scientists' reports that the Ranger feat confirms the feasibility of manned moon landings, it is hoped within the 1960s.

* * * *

AT A WHITE HOUSE briefing in which some of Ranger's pictures of the lunar surface were examined and explained, Johnson received—and obviously accepted—assurances that:

—There are many lunar areas on which manned landings appear possible.

—The Apollo spacecraft design meets the requirement for such landings.

The President was advised also that the Ranger success fires new hope that the late President Kennedy's goal of a manned lunar landing in this decade can be achieved.

"Are you hopeful that you can stay on schedule?" Johnson asked.

"I am hopeful," replied Homer E. Newell, associate administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

* * * *

"THE RANGER photographs," Newell said, "provide reassurance that the design range in the LEM (the lunar excursion module, that part of the Apollo spacecraft in which two crew members will leave the mother ship and descend to the moon) is sufficient to take into account the landing difficulties that will be encountered."

Newell and Ranger Chief William H. Pickering, director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif., showed Johnson and White House staff members, on a screen, enlargements of the striking Ranger moon pictures.

Some of the pictures were pockmarked with numbers of craters, to a much

TOO CLEAR FOR LBJ!

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson Saturday looked at a clear, detailed picture of a lunar "sea," taken from a distance of about 100 miles, and wondered aloud:

"There is not any likelihood, is there, that any of these UPI and AP boys will get cameras like that after my boat?"

The President, with a laugh, was referring to photographs taken of him with telescopic lenses in Texas recently when he was boating during a weekend holiday. The photos showed him with a fairly noticeable bay window.

Candidate's Press Aide Cancels Talk

By ANDY PARK

Acting like publicity-shy Greta Garbo, the Republican presidential nominee sneaked into Orange County Saturday under security wraps that veteran newsmen were comparing with Nikita Khruschev's Southern California visit in 1959.

On the third day of a California vacation "with complete privacy," Arizona's U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater thwarted newsmen at almost every turn from the exclusive Bohemian Grove campsite in Northern California to Newport Beach's Balboa Bay Club where he checked in at 6:04 p.m.

LEAVING Santa Rosa Airport in a private Convair twin-engine airplane at 3:30 p.m., the senator and four aides flew into Orange County Airport at 5:37 p.m. and taxied to the west end of the runway, a quarter of a mile from several score newsmen waiting for him.

Amid the howls of television and newspaper reporters — many of whom have followed the senator since he left Washington Thursday — the Republican standard-bearer stepped from his plane at 5:43 p.m.

RFK Backers Reported Flooding LBJ With Pleas

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) — Neighbors, friends and supporters of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy have launched a telegram and telephone drive designed to urge President Johnson to reconsider the attorney general as a running mate, informed sources here said Saturday.

A Kennedy aide said the attorney general was "aware" of the campaign in his behalf but made it clear that Kennedy "was absolutely taking no part" in the drive.

In Washington, sources said President Johnson, who earlier this week ruled Kennedy out as a vice presidential candidate, asked the attorney general to play a major role in the 1964 election campaign.

Such an assignment could mean service as the President's personal campaign manager. Kennedy was campaign manager in 1960 for his brother, the late President John F. Kennedy.

The reports from Hyannis Port and Washington came as Kennedy met at the family compound here with Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman and Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver.

Kennedy was understood to be reconsidering requests from New York supporters that he run for the Senate seat now held by Republican Kenneth B. Keating. He once rejected this proposal.

Informed sources said some 200 telegrams had been sent Saturday from the Western Union office in nearby Hyannis.

A spokesman said most of the telegrams were sent directly to the White House.

The Kennedy aide said the attorney general had received a barrage of telephone calls and telegrams Saturday from supporters expressing their anger at the manner in which President Johnson eliminated him as a Democratic vice presidential candidate. The supporters were described as "solid Democrats."

The callers, backers of the attorney general and the late President John F. Kennedy, reportedly asked the attorney general what their next move should be.

Informed sources here said Kennedy declined to comment on the incoming calls or the outgoing calls and telegrams that were being sent in his behalf. Kennedy spent most of the day relaxing with his family, an aide said.

Sources said telephone calls were being made to key Democratic leaders in other states asking them to urge the President to reconsider his position.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Daily News reported Saturday night in a copyrighted article that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller "has no present intention" of joining Sens. Kenneth B. Keating and Jacob K. Javits of New York in disavowing the national Republican ticket.

The Daily News article, by James Desmond, said that although Rockefeller "still has deep misgivings" about the Republican platform on civil rights, "extremism" and aid to education, he "feels he can function most effectively within the regular structure of the Republican Party."

Oil Talks Still on at Deadline

Three major oil firms were still negotiating with union leaders at midnight Saturday to avert a walkout at local plants set for that hour.

Earlier Saturday Mobil Oil concluded negotiations at its Torrance refinery with a bargaining committee of Mobil Unit, Local 1-547, Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union.

Mobil spokesman Edward Fulham said the committee accepted the company's offer of 2% wage increase, increased vacations and other fringe benefits.

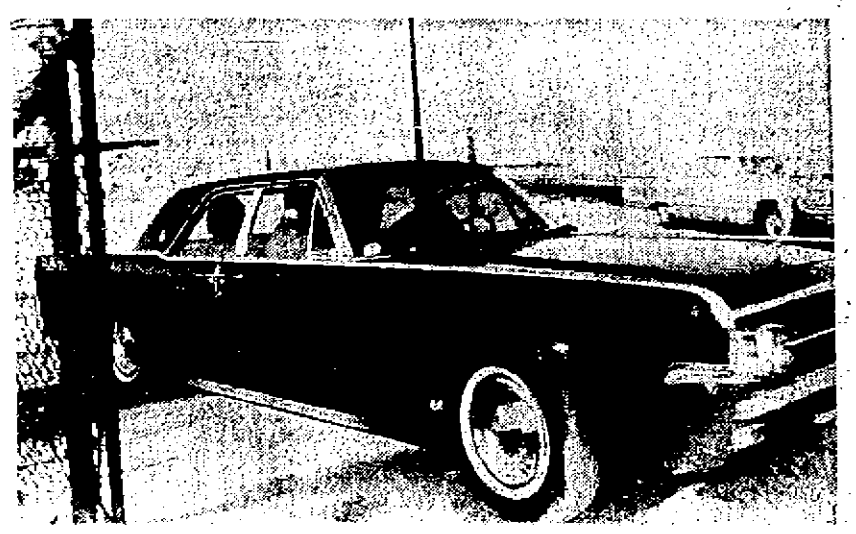

Still negotiating with the union were Texas Co., Shell and Richfield. Union Oil Co. settled Friday and Tidewater Oil has no meetings scheduled until Monday.

On May 25 Mobil and the union signed a contract covering various working conditions and management-labor relations at the Torrance refinery. That contract will remain in effect until February 1966, Fulham said.

Student Loans Extension OKd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Saturday approved a three-year extension and broadening of the government's program to provide loans for college students.

With only a handful of senators on the floor, the Senate extended by voice vote the National Defense Education Act through 1968.

L.A.C. Says:

Don't Care How-- If They Profit

Financial immorality does not seem to bother some people whether it be in government or union leadership. Conviction of Jimmy Hoffa of using union funds for his own benefit may mean a change in the leadership of the Teamsters Union. But that is doubtful unless Hoffa actually goes to jail. This largest union in the nation has consistently chosen as its leaders men who have been guilty of such actions. Dave Beck grew to be a millionaire manipulating the funds —and was consistently re-elected as president. It was only when he went to jail for income tax evasion that his assistant, Jimmy Hoffa, took over.

We may be critical of the attitude of union members who continue to re-elect such men as their leader. But the fact is, these leaders have gained great benefits for the membership through strikes and nationwide control of this vital transportation system. It is an example of how people—not only union members—overlook dishonest acts of their leaders if it means benefits for themselves—or if it fits into their political philosophy.

Such an example is shown by the way many people close their minds and eyes to the immorality of the Bobby Baker case—and to the way the Johnson fortune has been achieved through the actions of agencies over which Johnson—and Baker—had great influence. These facts are simply ignored by the Johnson partisans, because they are so dedicated to his support. Their attitude seems to be—what's the difference—he is our man.

In the Hoffa trial, it was charged he made improper loans from the Teamsters pension fund of over $20 million—and that Hoffa and his aides got $1.7 million for themselves as commissions and other charges. Hoffa insists the loans will all be repaid with a big profit—so why is anyone concerned over it all. A few months before he was convicted of jury tampering in a trial involving other use of union funds. But regardless of the years of this type of information—and the union being expelled from the AFL-CIO—the membership has re-elected him.

This disregarding of morals by the people is one of our greatest dangers. A few years ago several officers of the Chrysler Company were removed from office because it was charged they had given Chrysler contracts to outside companies in which they had interests. Sherman Adams was quickly removed from his office as assistant to President Eisenhower when it was shown he accepted gifts from a man for whom he performed political favors. But the Bobby Baker case is swept under the carpet and the Johnson TV monopoly which his family still owns, is ignored by those who should demand that all the facts be disclosed and punishment be provided for any acts of profiting from their political power.

Many people are weary of having these issues discussed. They seem to take them for granted and as not a serious matter. But we may be sure such immorality would be quickly criticized if it was applied to Senator Goldwater. It seems natural that partisans overlook such acts by their favorites. But it is evidence of a decaying morality in unions or political parties to be complacent over such issues.

The liberal Democrats—and so-called liberal Republicans—may not like these issues to be a part of the campaign. But it will be a test of the fundamental standards of the American people. If they approve of such acts by leaders they support—then they encourage all those in power to improperly profit from their positions. They should ask themselves—would I approve of such actions by the head of a corporation in which I have my money invested? If the answer is no, then they should apply it to men they elect to public office or as leaders of their unions.—L.A.C.

ENGLE'S WIDOW CONSOLED

Mrs. Clair Engle (left) is embraced by unidentified friend as she arrives at Ft. Myer, Va. chapel to attend memorial service for her husband, Sen. Clair Engle, who died Thursday. President and Mrs. Johnson were among mourners.

Engle 'Comes Home' to Red Bluff

RED BLUFF, Calif. — The body of Clair Engle arrived Saturday afternoon in his home city of Red Bluff where the late Democratic Senator began his political career as district attorney of Tehama County 30 years ago.

The body was flown to Chico, Calif., from Washington, where a 20-minute memorial service was held Saturday morning with leading political figures, including President and Mrs. Johnson, in attendance.

The body of Engle, who died Thursday of a brain tumor, will lie in state beginning today at about 11 a.m. in the Tehama Courthouse.

A graveside service has been scheduled for Monday at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Doyle Porter of the Red Bluff First Methodist Church officiating.

At the conclusion of the memorial service in the small Ft. Myer chapel, Mrs. Johnson stepped across the aisle and kissed and embraced Mrs. Lucretia Engle, widow of the late Senator.

Also attending were about half the members of the Senate, Chief Justice Earl Warren and Pierre Salinger, the Democratic nominee for Engle's seat. Salinger is expected to be named by Gov. Edmund G. Brown to fill out Engle's term.

Salinger also plans to accompany a 15-man congressional delegation which will fly to the funeral. Sen. Thomas Kuchel, R-Calif., has been designated chairman of the funeral committee.

The other members are Sens. Alan J. Bible and Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev.; Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex.; E. L. Bartlett, D-Alaska; Frank E. Moss, D-Utah; Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio; Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho, and Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii.

Reps. Chet Holifield, George P. Miller and Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif.; Patrick Minor Martin, R-Calif., and John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz.

The committee plans to fly nonstop from Andrews Air Force Base near Washington today to the Chico Airport.

ANYONE SEE A 10-TON PINK HALF-TRACK HERE?

Long Beach police Saturday searched and searched for a pink, World War II armored half-track which had been reported missing.

Patrolman Kenneth D. Johnson said he asked in gas stations and restaurants up and down Pacific Coast Highway for the missing giant.

Finally, he said, someone reported seeing it go by but confounded matters by saying it was being driven by four men wearing red fezes.

The 10-ton armored troop carrier, belonging to D.S. Michelson Enterprises, was bound for a promotional stunt in the World's Teen Fair in Costa Mesa when it broke down in Long Beach about noon.

The four fez-wearing chaps, it later turned out, were connected with the event, accidentally discovered the stalled behemoth, started it, and drove it out to the fairgrounds before notifying the owner, who was frantically seeking spare parts.

New Hazard Posed by Portable Pools

have self-closing, self locking devices. In the death of two of the latest drowning victims, the children entered the fenced areas through unlocked garage doors.

How safe is a fenced pool?

It is the concensus of most building-department and police agencies that the fencing law is only safeguard for children too young to climb.

How much protection does a fenced pool give the owner against lawsuits in cases of drowning?

It is an edge with most juries, but doesn't immunize the owner from civil liability, legal experts say.

Much depends on the negligence involved on the part of the owner. It is hard to show that a five-year-old had a malicious intent to trespass by climbing a fence to immerse himself in the cooling waters of a swimming pool, a Long Beach Bar Association official said.

British Seek Oil Under North Sea

LONDON (UPI)—Britain is looking for an undersea Texas on its doorstep.

It hopes oil and natural gas lie beneath the grey, windswept water of the North Sea, for centuries one of its main fishing grounds.

Now the sea booms with the sound of explosive charges, set off by survey ships which measure the shock waves to find out what is under the water. They are searching for domes of spongy rock, the type which might contain oil or gas.

"If an equivalent to Texas is found under the North Sea we can all look forward to another advance in our national prosperity," says Minister of Power Frederick J. Erroll.

HIS MINISTRY has just finished receiving applications for concessions to explore and produce oil and gas in the British-controlled section of the North Sea. About 35 have been submitted, some from consortiums including American companies. The successful bids for licenses will be announced in September or October.

Britain is the second largest consumer of oil in the Western world after the United States and uses more than 61 million tons a year. It all has to be imported except for the fraction produced at home. 100,000 tons a year from wells in Nottinghamshire and Lincolnshire.

The two home fields of natural gas as Eskdale on the English northwest coast and at Cousland in Scotland can fulfill only the needs of their communities.

A major oil strike in the North Sea would ease Britain's dependence on the Middle East.

50-FOOT MOON CRATERS SHOWN FROM 25 MILES AWAY

greater degree than earlier pictures taken with earth-based telescopes would have indicated.

A group of the worst pock-marks appeared along the features that had been described, in telescope studies of the moon, as rays extending from the huge Copernicus crater.

"Apparently landing missions should avoid these rays," Newell said, "but there is ample area for Apollo landings."

Newell said the pictures indicate that in a given maria or dry-ocean-bed-like area, 1% of the sector would be unsatisfactory for landings and 99% would be "more satisfactory as a possible landing area."

In an apparent effort to answer those who criticize administration plans to push ahead with the manned landings, Johnson commented that "these pictures are very exciting," but asked whether the answer to larger scientific questions must not await a manned landing.

"Yes," Newell said. "Many questions cannot be solved until man gets on the moon, selects materials, analyzes them and brings them back to earth."

* * * *

"THE PAYOFF, then, is in the manned landing, and bringing back what you find?" Johnson asked.

"That is correct."

"Is it desirable to do this as soon as we can? If we are going to do it, we should do it as quickly as possible? There is little doubht about the desirability of this?"

"Not in my mind," Newell said.

Johnson asked what the result would be should he and Congress decide that "we have had enough and it is a little too difficult for our country." What would happen, he wanted to know, if "we sit back in our rocking chairs and let the rest of the world go by?"

"We would be backing down from a real challenge," Newell said.

"So what?" Johnson countered. "What would we lose?"

Newell said America then would forfeit the leadership that had made her great.

* * * *

"CAN WE BE first in the world if we are second in space?" Johnson asked.

"I don't think we can," Pickering said.

"We can not," Newell agreed.

Johnson asked if the NASA officials feel the United States should maintain the present pace of the lunar program.

"There is no indication in any of the pictures that would say we should slow down," Newell replied.

"If I were to conclude, if budget (bureau) should conclude, Congress conclude, the American people conclude that the effect of slowing down the space program would be the saving of a few millions of dollars, would that be penny wise and pound foolish?" Johnson asked.

Pickering said the program is an investment needed not only now but as a long-term investment for the future.

TIRED BUT CAN'T QUIT

Ranger 7 Scientists Shun Rest for Study

PASADENA (AP)—Jet Propulsion Laboratory scientists took a second look Saturday at the historic Ranger 7 photos of the moon—pictures they hope may unlock centuries-old

But one big question seems to be settled: the future of the scientists and engineers much criticized in the past for six consecutive failures in the $200-million Ranger program.

Lucky Number 7 streaked to the moon in what JPL experts jubilantly called a "textbook" operation and snapped television pictures all the way to its climatic crash early Friday against the moon's Sea of Clouds.

AND THE photos it took, released here Friday night and shown to President Johnson in the White House Saturday, were spectacularly successful.

JPL scientists planned to take a day off, after almost a week of little or no sleep while tracking and guiding Ranger to the lunar landing. But they couldn't resist returning to the big Pasadena facility Saturday for further study and analysis of Ranger's 4,316 pictures, some shot from as close as 1,000 feet from the surface of the moon.

Spokesmen said there would be no further pictures of the moon released from the laboratory over the weekend. No time was set for possible release of additional views this week. So far, only 10 of Ranger's pictures have been released.

* * * *

ONE SHOT showed a pock-marked ridge astronauts would have to avoid on a lunar landing. But mostly, the pictures showed a flat plain pock-marked here and there with craters of varying sizes.

The photos indicated that some seem to have been made when big chunks of rock landed in the moon's dusty surface, possibly fragments of giant meteorites which carved their own bigger craters farther away.

Goldwater Eludes Southland Press

and embraced his wife, Peggy, who had been waiting for him all week at the Balboa Bay Club.

* * * *

SPOTTING an Independent, Press-Telegram reporter rushing toward him from a six-foot barbed-wire fence and an I, P-T photographer running toward a "secret" gate at the southwest end of the airport, Goldwater quickly ushered his wife into the back seat of a radio-equipped Lincoln Continental and began speeding toward the exit.

Hunched down in the back seat of the car, the GOP nominee continued to look straight ahead as his car, escorted by two Newport Beach police detective cars, sped through the gate. Only I, P-T photographer Curtis Johnson was there to record the scene.

* * * *

THE SENATOR'S dash to his Balboa Bay Club retreat capped a day of frustration and confusion for newsmen who had tried since dawn to catch a glimpse of him.

The senator eluded newsmen early Saturday as he left the Bohemian Club near Monte Rio where he had been the overnight guest of Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, U.S.A. (Ret.).

Goldwater's traveling press aide, Ed Nellor, had advised newsmen that he (Nellor) would hold a press briefing at the Newporter Inn in Newport Beach at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, but they arrived only to find it canceled.

Traveling by aircraft, auto and chartered buses, the newsmen arrived in Southern California only to discover that rooms reserved for them at the Balboa Bay Club had been canceled on orders of Goldwater's staff.

* * * *

"WE WERE told that the senator would refuse to stay at the club if newsmen or cameras were present," a wire service reporter said.

Goldwater's Convair flew from Santa Rosa Airport directly to Orange County Airport, according to a flight plan filed with the Federal Aviation Agency.

Mrs. Goldwater and two married daughters arrived at the airport 30 minutes before the plane. They drove to a secluded spot near the airport fire station to await his arrival. When two I, P-T newsmen discovered them, they were driven to the far end of the runway by Newport Beach detectives who then ordered the area cordoned off by private security guards.

* * * *

HOWEVER, as the senator's plane taxied up to the waiting cars, an I, P-T reporter scaled a fence and ran toward him as a photographer secreted himself near the exit gate at the corner of the airfield.

Goldwater drove into the Balboa Bay Club grounds and went directly to his second-floor suite—already equipped with a vertical ham radio antenna—at the south end of the exclusive club.

Identifying themselves as "guests of a member," the two I, P-T men went after him.

The ruse worked to gain entrance to the grounds but not to the Goldwater apartment.

* * * *

IN WHAT club members described as "fantastic" security arrangements, Goldwater's retreat was protected by detectives from the Costa Mesa and Newport Beach police departments and extra private patrolmen circulating throughout the club.

Dressed in swimming attire, as busboys and in business dress, guards with walkie-talkies swarmed among the guests and guarded Goldwater's door.

Mrs. Dorothy Yardley, public relations director of the club, was forbidden even to tell telephoning newsmen any details of the inside of the facility.

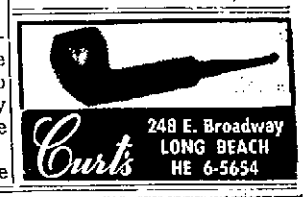

The I, P-T men were stopped seven times by detectives who demanded identification. Producing valid out-of-state driver's licenses, the newsmen were allowed to continue to circulate.

* * * *

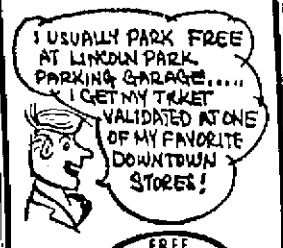

BUT WHEN photographer Johnson began taking pictures of the guards and the Goldwater apartment, seven detectives cornered him against a fence at the end of the parking lot.

Under the impression that Johnson was a "curious guest," the guards asked him to refrain from taking more photographs. A check with club headquarters by radio

SHORE PATROL AIDS CITY FORCE

Navy Police Protect Seamen

By BILL HAZLETT

Up and down the street the word goes out . . .

This is payday weekend . . . the white-hats are in Long Beach.

Neon lights along the Pike flash a little brighter . . . Jukeboxes in a hundred bars blare a little louder . . .

The con men, card sharks, fast-buck artists and good-time girls edge in for the kill . . .

And the city's "second" police force swings into action.

Working in cooperation with the Long Beach Police Department, the Navy's Shore Patrol unit actually functions as a military carbon copy of its civilian counterpart.

Like the civilian police department, the Shore Patrol has its own patrolmen, detectives, paddy wagons, booking desk and cellblock.

Navy Lt. C. E. Waldrop, 40-year-old veteran of 23 years service, serves as "chief" for this 130-man "second" police force.

LT. C. E. WALDROP HEADS CITY'S "SECOND POLICE FORCE," THE NAVY'S SHORE PATROL UNIT

"I guess this is more like the sheriff's job than the police chief's, because we cover all of Los Angeles County," Lt. Waldrop said.

In addition to the 104 arm-banded men who work the 24-hour patrols, the unit has a dozen Marine Corps military policemen, two plain-clothes apprehension teams to deal with deserters and absentees, and a small administrative staff to handle paperwork.

"Actually, this is a pretty small police force to handle an area this big, with a military population of about 56,000, but we get good cooperation from the local police, which makes our job a whole lot easier," Lt. Waldrop said.

Almost every weekend between 12,000 and 15,000 members of this military population swarm into Long Beach and surrounding communities . . . or overflow into Los Angeles . . . looking for fun, or "something to do."

"We'll average 9,000 military visitors at the Hollywood USO just about any weekend of the year," Lt. Waldrop said. A small Shore Patrol substation has been set up in Los Angeles to handle any problems which develop.

And, problems do develop.

"Our booking desk usually handles between 35 and 50 men a night on a busy weekend, and sometimes even more.

"Most of the time these men are youngsters who've had a little too much to drink, and need a place to square away.

"But, sometimes they're booked for more serious offenses such as auto theft, assault, desertion or larceny," Lt. Waldrop explained.

"Once in a while," he added, "we get a little heat (complaints) from citizens who don't like the way a patrol checks passes or searches a prisoner, then we have to explain.

"Sometimes its hard to show people that the Shore Patrol has a dual function. The patrolmen are out there to protect the military man, as well as to keep peace in the community.

"This often means we've got to protect a man . . . especially one who's had too much to drink . . . from himself.

"These youngsters are a long way from home, and sometimes they get depressed. That can lead to trouble, so the patrolmen check them to be sure they aren't carrying any hidden weapons.

"One slipped by a while back . . . had a razor blade in the sole of his shoe . . . slashed his wrist in the brig.

"We just don't want that to happen," Lt. Waldrop explained.

The Shore Patrol's second-biggest problem is auto theft.

"Most of these young fellows don't stop to realize they're committing a felony which could land them behind bars for a long time.

"They see a car with the keys in it, and the next thing you know they've stolen it.

"Often they just take he car for a joyride, or to get back to the base before their liberty runs out," the Shore Patrol chief said.

Besides patrol duties, Lt. Waldrop's outfit handles other law enforcement chores, such as tavern inspection, and the investigation of rackets or crimes in which military personnel are victims.

"We keep a close check on some of these bars and taverns to see that they meet certain sanitary requirements, and that they aren't gypping the serviceman.

"If violations become flagrant, or too many complaints are lodged, we can request certain places to be posted off limits to military personnel," Lt. Waldrop said.

In addition, the Shore Patrol maintains close liaison with the Long Beach Police Department.

One of the unit's senior petty officers is assigned to ride specialized patrol beats in the city's police cruisers. The walking patrol works closely with the police department's zone patrol units.

"I'd say that we get better cooperation and liaison from the Long Beach Police Department than any city in the United States," Lt. Waldrop said.

Long Beach is a good liberty town. Ask any sailor, leatherneck, or airman . . . any place in the world . . . and he'll tell you the same thing. But, just in case the liberty gets a bit out of hand, there's a "second" police force standing by . . . just in case.

Mexico Food Up

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Food prices in Mexico have gone up 36.4% since 1955, says a report of the Organization of American States. This compares with rises of 10.2% in the United States and 2% in Venezuela for the same period.

PUT OUT TO PASTURE

Famed Funeral Horse Retires

FT. MYER, Va. (UPI)—"Big Boy," the gentle old horse which led President John F. Kennedy's funeral cortege up the sloped drives of Arlington National Cemetery last November, has retired.

Ailing from kidney trouble, a weak back and his age—18—Big Boy was retired last June from the Army caisson section at Ft. Myer, Va. and put out to pasture.

Assigned to the section from an old cavalry unit in Oklahoma, Big Boy had escorted the caskets of more than 2,400 military officers in the past 12 years.

"He knew how to pull a funeral better than the men who rode him," Warrant Officer John McKinney, caisson section leader, said. "He knows every bend and dip in the road."

* * * *

DRAPED IN A BLACK BLANET, black saddle and bridle, Big Boy led processions for such historic figures as Gen. George C. Marshall and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. He was a natural choice for the lead horse, trainers said, because of his size and beauty. As chief of the traditional seven-horse escort, he always wore an English saddle. The others followed in regular cavalry saddles.

"It a good thing we could use him as the single mount, because he had a violent hatred for the harness—he'd just have no part of it," said Sgt. Ballard, chief of section for the black horses

Big Boy was always popular with the caisson trainers because of his gentle disposition. Although the object of much teasing, he had a skill that is missing in the section today. "There's really no one to take his place," Ballard said. "He was so well trained, you could put his feet in one spot and he wouldn't move until he was told to. He set his own distance and when it was time to stop or turn, he did it without being told."

LONDON (UPI) — Communist China is expected to detonate a crude nuclear device before the end of the year, diplomatic reports indicated Saturday.

Qualified informants said the explosion will be designed to boost Red China's prestige as a coming nuclear power. They said Chinese scientists have not yet been able to develop a sophisticated nuclear device to rival those of the United States and the Soviet Union.

It may be 10 years or more before Peking can produce nuclear weapons of any consequence and far longer before it develops the vehicles to wage atomic war without the assistance of the Soviet Union. Russian aid seems out of the question at this time because of the Sino-Soviet ideological dispute.

Soviet technicians who once helped China in the nuclear field have long since pulled out. According to official Peking charges, the Soviets have reneged on an earlier agreement to supply Communist China with a sample of a nuclear bomb.

Informed sources said China has perserved in nuclear research in spite of the Soviet withdrawal. Communist diplomats claim the Chinese "stole" some Soviet atomic secrets at the height of the era of cooperation and friendship between Peking and Moscow when Soviet experts worked in China and Chinese scientists were trained in Russia.

China's nuclear program was reportedly slowed in the past two years by a serious economic crisis and the stoppage of Soviet assistance. But sources said Peking is now pushing the nuclear program forcefully.

Prestige considerations appear to be the major motivating force. Possession of an atomic bomb, no matter how primitive, would give China a leg up in its drive to extend its influence in Asia and Africa and at the same time strengthen Peking's hand in the mounting conflict with the Soviets.

Lorne Green's Friend Provides Bet Bonanza

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lorne Green, the papa on the "Bonanza" television series, has a friend who really is a friend.

"I nicknamed him 'The Genius' after he picked the exact order of finish—every horse—the day before the Kentucky Derby.

"A few weeks ago, he called me up and said he wanted to make a few bets for me, but first wanted my permission. I gave it in one-tenth of a second.

"He didn't even tell me the horses, the tracks or the races—not even the amount bet.

"But the other night he came to town and handed me $1,260 in winnings.

"Is that or is that not a friend?"

Adenauer Ill

BONN, Germany (AP)—Former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is ill with a light cold, members of his family said Saturday. Adenauer, 88, canceled a speaking engagement before a church group today, but members of his household stressed there was no need for concern.

Singapore Chief Has Tough Fight

Threatened From the Far Right

By TONY ESCODA

SINGAPORE (AP) — Singapore's premier Lee Kuan Yew, a tough political battler, is facing what could be the biggest fight of his career.

At stake is his rule over this island city, the commercial center of young Malaysia. It has long been a hotbed of leftist agitation and a prime target for Southeast Asia's reds.

Elected by a landslide in 1959, Lee has beaten back opposition from the extreme left — occasionally jailing top pro-Communist politicians —while pushing a moderately Socialist program aimed at stabilizing Singapore.

This time, Lee says, the threat comes from the far right.

* * * *

HE BLAMES Malay "extremists" for the recent savage racial clashes between Malays and Chinese, and warns this may be just the beginning.

Unless "we read the danger signals and put our house in order," the premier states, "Malaysia may never be the same again."

Those close to the premier's thinking paint an even more gloomy picture: An "ungovernable" Singapore . . . and the breakup of Malaysia.

Lee has accused ultra-nationalist Malays in Kuala Lumpur, the federal capital, of outdoing hostile Indonesia in efforts to "set Malaysian against Malaysian on the basis of race."

Without naming names, Lee has made it plain he means some of the leading figures in the United Malay National Organization (UMNO). This is the key faction in Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman's ruling Alliance Party.

* * * *

UMNO OFFICIALS have charged Lee's government with discriminating against Singapore's Malay minority. Only days before the rioting erupted, they formed an "action committee" which they said was designed to safeguard Malay interests here.

A showdown on the race issue between Lee and Rahman seems likely.

The premier has served notice he would like to see Rahman muzzle ultranationalists in UMNO, as a starter.

The next step, Lee says, should be to "start integrating positively and consciously."

Lee's statements, coming on top of the racial riots, point up the divisive factors at work in 10-months-old Malaysia, with its population of 4.2 million Chinese, 4 million Malays and a mixture of Indians, Pakistanis and Eurasians.

* * * *

THE CHINESE complain they are being forced into the role of second-class citizens by special guarantees and privileges for Malays in government, education and business.

Lee and his supporters insist free competition should be the guiding spirit in Malaysia.

The Malays, on the other hand, are obviously fearful of eventual domination by the hard-driving, ambitious Chinese, symbolized by 40-year-old Lee and his militant People's Action Party.

In Singapore Chinese outnumber Malays 5-1 and control the island state's government and entrepot trade. Many Malays claim to see the handwriting on the wall.

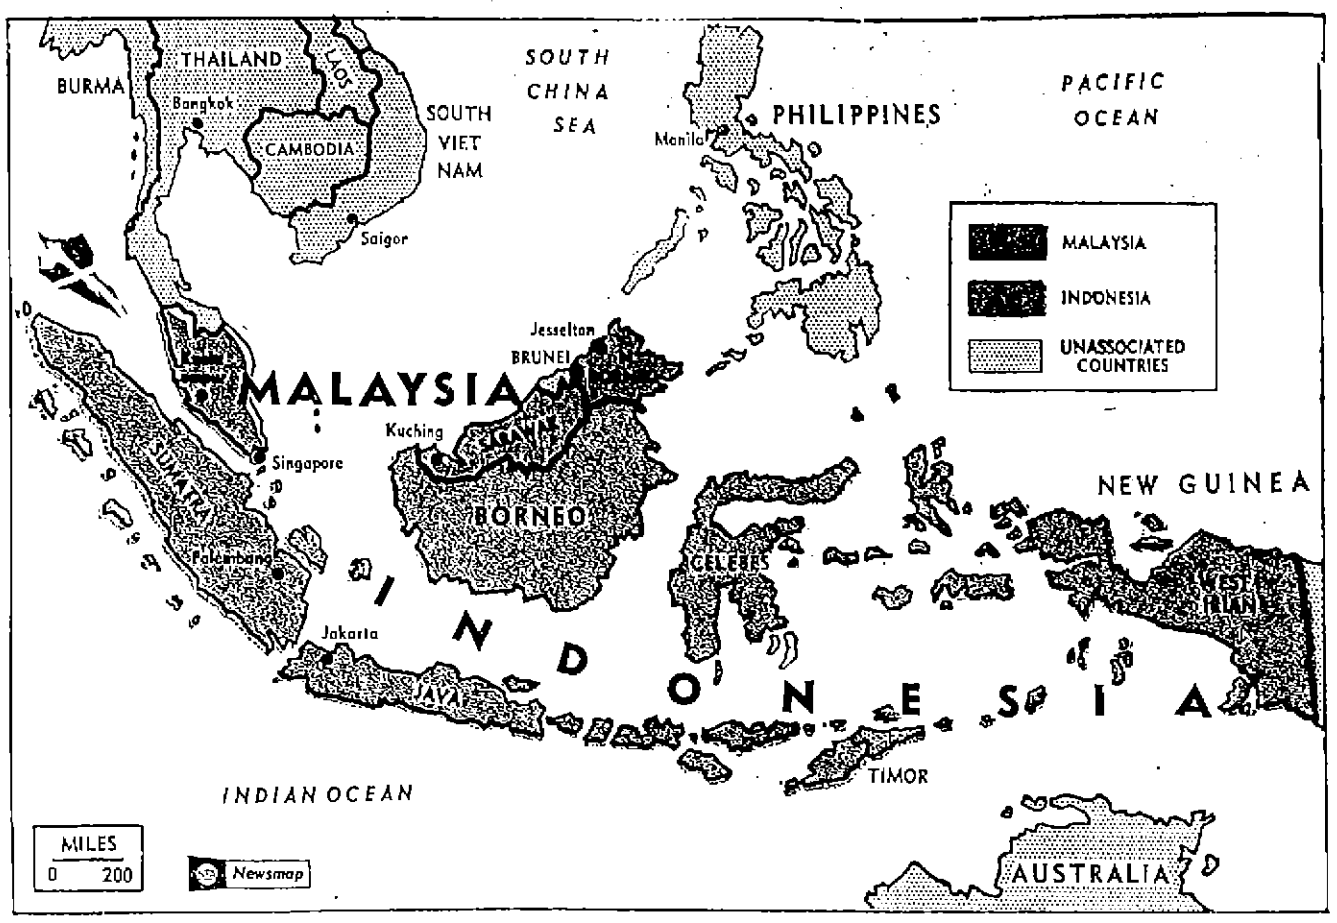

Lee is a brilliant, Cambridge-educated lawyer who combined a touch of intellectual arrogance with a sure feel of the masses. He and his party have political plans that stretch into the Malayan heartland of Malaysia.

* * * *

WITH SINGAPORE'S stability again thrown in doubt by the racial outburst, Lee could be facing an uphill struggle.

Powerful Malay circles in Kuala Lumpur have begun calling for a change in Singapore's government. But political analysts here point out that Lee, with continued support of his people, holds a trump card which Malaysia's leaders cannot ignore.

If he goes, Singapore may go with him — and Malaysia, too.

MALAYSIA WITH its 10 million citizens—a baby among nations, born Sept. 16, 1963—faces the peril of war with sprawling Indonesia, population nearly 100 million. Made up of the former British territories of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and North Borneo, Malaysia is viewed by Indonesia's President Sukarno as an attempt by the British to perpetuate their Southeast Asia interests. Further clouding the situation, rioting engaged in by Malayans and Chinese in Singapore added racial disharmony to the woes of the new nation. This map pinpoints the area involved with Singapore as the commercial center of the young country.

U.S. Trying to Utilize Atom in Desalinization

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Interior Department and the Atomic Energy Commission will join in a study to speed up research on the use of nuclear energy in water desalting processes, according to Interior Secretary Stewart Udall.

Udall's statement was in a letter, released today, to Budget Director Kermit Gordon, who was ordered recently by President Johnson to begin an expanded program in desalting research.

"To date our country had had little or no experience in coupling dual-purpose desalting and generating facilities to either conventional or nuclear power sources," Udall said, adding that the Soviet Union "may be moving more quickly than the United States" in this field.

* * * *

UDALL SAID the joint task force will be expected to recommend whether or not it will be advisable to construct a pilot nuclear desalting plant before attempting any large-scale desalting projects by already established means.

Before a final report is delivered Sept. 11, Udall said, the task force also will look into developing techniques for converting sea water economically for small markets and "for improving the quality of brackish water for inland uses."

LIFELESS ZONE IN MID-PACIFIC

Scripps to Explore Sea Desert

By LOU JOBST
Marine Editor

LA JOLLA — Scientists set out Saturday to explore a vast desert wasteland they have found in the midst of the teeming Pacific Ocean.

The lifeless zone, called a faunal boundary, is a puzzle to oceanographers who say it begins in a sea that teems with myriad forms of marine life as if one were to suddenly step from a South American rain forest into the middle of the Mojave Desert.

The Scripps Institution of Oceanography study of this desert sea will take at least three months and will include an attempt to fix the boundaries of the lifeless zone. The scientific task force, code name Ursa Major, is being headed by John A. McGowan, 40, a researcher in the field of marine invertebrates and a man very familiar with the Pacific.

* * * *

THE 90-DAY STUDY will be made aboard the 180-foot research ship, Alexander Agassiz, and will be made in three legs. The first will take the ship west into the Pacific to a point above the Hawaiian Islands and then north to Kodiak Island, arriving there Aug. 18; the second will retrace the northward journey of the first leg southward to Hawaii, putting into Honolulu Sept. 2. The third leg will be a direct trip to San Diego.

The expedition will cross the sub-Arctic Convergence and the North Pacific Drift, two well-known ocean current systems.

During the trip the Agassiz will tow biological sample nets and take water samples every 20 to 80 miles. Data will be submitted to computers at the close of the expedition.

The expedition was named Ursa Major which is Latin for Great Bear, the northern constellation the Agassiz will use for navigational sightings and position fixes.

The faunal boundary, a major feature of the biology of the Pacific, has never before been studied in detail.

* * * *

AT THE SAME TIME, Scripps has announced plans to build a new base for its fleet of seven research ships.

The new home base will be located on a six-acre site the institution leases from the Navy on nearby Point Loma. Construction, which will include the dredging of a deep-water berthing area, will begin in a few weeks and will be completed by next spring.

The facility will include six buildings and a 300-foot floating dock.

At present Scripps' ships are docked at the Navy Electronic Laboratory and in San Diego Bay. Support facilities are located as much as 10 miles from the present docking areas.

Guard Fighters to Vie for Trophy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force Association said nine Air National Guard F89J fighter groups will take part in the annual Ricks trophy competition at Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla., Aug. 23 to 29.

Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson, chief of the National Guard Bureau, said each group will enter two planes and two crews in the competition.

They are the 115th Fighter Group, Madison, Wis.; 119th, Fargo, N. D.; 148th, Duluth, Minn., 101st, Bangor, Maine; 158th, Burlington, Vt.; 132nd, Des Moines, Iowa; 141st, Spokane, Wash.; 142nd, Portland, Ore., and 120th, Great Falls, Mont.

Winning crews will be guests at the Air Force Association annual convention here to receive the trophy.

Big 3 Automakers to Offer Proposals to Union Aug. 11

DETROIT (UPI) — The automotive Big Three plan to place economic offers on the bargaining table on or about Aug. 12 in new contract talks with the United Auto Workers of America, a reliable source said Saturday.

The source said that the automakers planned to make their economic offer "10 days earlier than in 1961."

In the 1961 round of negotiations, the Big Three economic packages were put on the bargaining table Aug. 22. The contract finally was signed with General Motors Sept. 6.

* * * *

NEGOTIATIONS to hammer out a new three-year contract for more than 500,000 workers at GM, Ford and Chrysler have slowed down as each side waited for the other to make the next move.

"They control the timing," Douglas Fraser, director of the UAW's Chrysler department, said. "We have to wait for them to make their offer before we can grab the ball and run with it."

Fraser, and other UAW executives said they expected the companies' economic offers to come about two weeks before the Aug. 31 termination date.

Leonard Woodcock, UAW GM department director, said that he "hopes they don't wait as long as Aug. 22, as they did three years ago. "That's just not enough time," Woodcock hinted.

Ken Bannon, head of the union's Ford department, echoed the sentiments of Fraser and Woodcock. Bannon said there was not enough time to settle both national and plant-level problems during the 1961 round of negotiations and as a result, Ford was hit by a nationwide strike.

* * * *

WOODCOCK said that negotiations were in a traditionally slack period and it was not surprising that little progress had been made.

He said that during last week's talks he noticed "slight movement by the company" but not enough to indicate any real progress.

Manton M. Cummins, Ford's chief negotiator, said, "we're in the hard process of collective bargaining. We're about the same place we were last time."

"You have to sit down and discuss the demands to see what they really want and get some realism into the proposals," Cummins said. He added that it was hard to determine at this stage what the union's main objective was.

"Apparently they are serious about early retirement, but now everything is of top priority," Cummins said.

10-DAY PAGEANT OPENS WEDNESDAY

L.B. Readies Big Welcome for 24 World Beauties

By BOB SANDERS

The first big contingent — 24 strong — of 1964 International Beauty Pageant lovelies will arrive here Wednesday to herald the official opening of the 10-day pageant.

The main body of bodies, including four United States states' girls, are scheduled to arrive at Los Angeles International Airport aboard United Flight No. 15 from New York at 8:30 p.m.

Immediately after their arrival they will be hurried into waiting cars, driven by volunteers from the Long Beach firemen's union, Fire Fighters' Local 372, for the trip to Long Beach.

* * * *

THEY ARE expected to arrive at their IBC home-away-from-home at the Lafayette Hotel about 9:30 when a gala, movie-premiere type of welcome has been planned.

While giant searchlights fan the night sky, Mayor Edwin W. Wade, pageant officials, the inevitable press representative and other civic dignitaries will extend official greetings to the latest load of beauty.

Marvin Marker's Long Beach Concent Band, in full dress uniforms, will play a special concert for the arriving beauties.

The foreign contestants include: Misses Greece (Maria Schinaraki), Israel (Daphne Chisholm), Luxembourg (Jeanny Hubert), Spain (Lucia Pilar Herrera), Holland (Renske van de Berg), Belgium (Elaine Stockman), Wales (Pamela Martin), Scotland (Dorothy Smallman), France (Brigitte Pradel), Sweden (Birgitta Alverjung), Norway (Inger Sande), Finland (Maila Ostring), Iceland (Elisabeth Ottosdottir), South Africa (Lorraine Mason), Denmark (Alice Andersen), Austria (Erika Augustin), and Germany (Monika Brugger).

Contestants from England, Liberia and Turkey, as well as New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts are expected to arrive on the same flight but IBC officials here do not have their names yet.

With the exception of six contestants scheduled to arrive later in the evening, the 24 girls will complete the roster of IBC beauties for this year's contest. According to the latest count by IBC officials there will be 45 foreign beauties and 35 United States lovelies in this year's extravaganza.

* * * *

FIRST event of the contest will be the beauty parade Sunday at 1 p.m. from Alamitos Avenue to Ocean Boulevard.

First performance of the new show will be held with the preliminaries of the Miss American Beauty Pageant Monday night.

A different version of the show will be presented each of the succeeding competition nights, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday. No performance is scheduled for Thursday in order that the nationwide NBC live television show, scheduled for Friday, may be rehearsed.

The pageant closes Saturday night with the coronation ball for the new International Beauty queen.

GIRL-WATHCING is a pastime for most American males, but for Steven Papich (seated at left), director of the forthcoming Miss International Beauty Contest it's all in a day's work. The 38-year-old choreographer, who has danced or worked in 100 movies, prefers to work with larger numbers of dancers because "working with a few scares me."

IT MIGHT SCARE WALTER MITTY, BUT—

When Papich Yells, 55 Girls Jump

By MARY NEISWENDER

He's the only guy in the world who can shout "jump" —and 55 dolls jump.

It's a dream for a husband—a paradise for a bachelor —and almost unbelievable for either.

But for Steven Papich, 38-year-old actor, dancer, choreographer and director of the International Beauty Congress pageant, it's all in a day's work.

* * * *

And for him, the more dolls that jump the happier he is.

"It'd scare the hell out of me to have to work with only a few dancers."

Son of an Illinois coal miner, Papich, however, is scared of little else.

He is the only practicing Roman Catholic to be inducted into the voodoo cult.

It was on a visit to Haiti and in order to do the Haitians a favor and "return the Haitian soil to their African homeland, I had to become one of their priests."

Only reason they asked him, says the dark-haired dancer, is that "they found out I was going to Africa right from Haiti."

* * * *

"Chickens were slaughtered, a goat was sacrificed—it was the whole bit," he says.

Papich, who entered show business after a three-year tour of duty with the U.S. Navy, began dancing in the Katherine Dunham School along with the then unknowns, Eartha Kitt and Marlon Brando. He toured the world with the troupe until a 1953 call from Hollywood.

"I started by dancing in 'Stars and Stripes Forever'—the life story of Sousa," he says, "and from that, for the next six years I danced or worked in 100 movies and choreographed 17 pictures."

His movies included "The Robe," "Seven Year Itch," "The Egyptian" and "The Silver Chalice."

* * * *

HE SWITCHED jobs—but not cities—when he moved from the movie lots to Hollywood Bowl.

He had been the Bowl's choreographer for five years when IBC Producer Wayne Dallard, then producing the spectacular "California Story" tapped him.

Born of Yugoslav parents—who still live in St. David, Ill.—Papich since his meteoric rise in show business has traveled the world around several times.

* * * *

I'VE BEEN to the fabled city of Timbuctoo . . .

"I've had dinner in Paris with Gen. De Gaulle . . .

"I've been an honoree at the Arabic Feast of Ramadan . . .

"I've traveled hundreds of thousands of miles around the world, and though it may sound corny—there's no place like home."

To him, home is the stage, the fanfare and the dolls.

State GOP in Harmony on Platform

By JIM McCAULEY
I. P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO — The Republican State Convention bid for harmony Saturday night by adopting a watered-down civil rights plank.

In an echo of San Francisco, the state GOP conclave faced its toughest scrap over the wording of the platform on civil rights. But in a day of growing GOP togetherness, rival party factions embraced a compromise.

Solution to the hassle came by throwing out the language from the 1962 platform which had come out for support of laws for compulsory integration.

* * * *

THE PLATFORM committee recommended a 1964-model platform which stressed voluntary rather than compulsory desegregation. Proposed language for the new platform said:

"It encourages individuals to eliminate segregated housing practices."

The GOP move toward harmony began several days ago.

At that time, State Senate Minority Leader John F. McCarthy had vowed to introduce a broad plank that would have been offensive to realtors and others who say property rights are periled by modern civil rights legislation.

McCarthy originally wanted the plank to say: "The party goes on record supporting all existing federal, state and local statutes controlling discrimination in places of accomodation, employment and housing."

* * * *

BUT GOP leaders skirted a showdown on a tough civil rights plank when the platform committee ruled that no plank could be accepted which related directly to a ballot proposition such as the Rumford Act repealer.

McCarthy softened his plank after a number of Rumford Act foes bristled.

And in a subcommittee hearing, it was obvious that the overflow gallery opposed a tough civil rights plank. Anti-civil rights speeches drew thunderous applause.

McCarthy and others who battled for a tougher civil rights approach drew only silence from the gallery.

* * * *

LONG BEACH Realtor Reg F. Dupuy, 44th Assembly District nominee, helped scuttle McCarthy's plan for a strong civil rights plank.

"There is nothing wrong with people wanting to live by themselves as they prefer to do in Chinatown. There's been no compulsory segregation for years. And there should be no compulsory integration," said Dupuy.

The voluntary civil rights plank also "reaffirmed Republican dedication to the elimination in California of discrimination based on race, creed, national origin or sex."

The platform committee, urging "that the protection of our freedom requires that the budget be balanced, waste in government be eliminated and taxes be reduced, also recommended adoption of these planks:

Finance—Opposed withholding tax, deplored "six years ox extravagance, lashed reliance on bond financing and urged less of a drain on property taxpayers.

Law enforcement—Accused Democrats of "chronic overprotection of criminal elements, saying it "seriously has handicapped the ability of law-enforcement officials to protect the public."

Internal security—Insisted that subversives be denied use of public buildings.

Welfare—Deplored recent expansion of welfare programs. Pledged efforts to institute more local control and declared that financially able persons have a moral responsibility to contribute to support of family members.

Agriculture—Opposed end to importation of Mexican laborers.

Government organization—Opposed reapportionment of the Senate, calling it an "insidious" court decision. Also called for purity of elections, reform in California's state inheritance-tax-appraiser system and retention of voters' constitutional literacy requirements.

Republican leaders generally beat down any proposals that varied radically from the tenor of recent platforms.

6 Bodies Recovered in Crash

Divers Saturday afternoon recovered the bodies of six men who perished in the crash of a private plane in the ocean off Los Angeles International Airport.

Two bodies were found outside the sunken plane which spun into the ocean after taking off shortly after midnight. Divers from the Los Angeles County's underwater recovery team found the wreck in 159 feet of water.

The victims were identified as M. P. Moeser, Chula Vista, the pilot; John Lauc, Los Angeles, general manager of Oceanic Sales Corp.; Carl Merry Jr., Los Angeles; Siegfriedo Ruiz, Whittier; Joe W. Cranic, San Diego, vice president of Ocean Garden Products, owner of the plane; and Jack B. Schmidt, San Diego.

* * * *

THE PLANE, a Cessna 310, was on a flight to San Diego's Lindbergh Field, where it is based.

The divers hooked a salvage line from the craft to a Navy minesweeper which, spokesmen said, was not powerful enough to pull it to the surface. Coast Guard officials said they will send a rescue ship to the scene today to bring the plane into Terminal Island.

Federal Aviation Agency investigators will inspect the wreckage to determine the cause of the crash.

Grecian Beauty Crowned Miss Universe in Miami

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—An exotic brown-haired beauty from Athens, Greece, Kiriaki Tsopei, won the Miss Universe beauty crown Saturday night.

She nosed out the British entry, Brenda Blackler of London, who was named first runner-up and placed in position to assume the title if the Greek winner is unable to carry out her responsibilities.

Ronit Rinat, a dark blonde with blue-gray eyes from Israel, was third. Siv Marta Aberg of Sweden, the tallest girl in the finals at 5-10, was fourth. Lana Yi Yu of the Republic of China was fifth.

A Miami Beach convention hall crowd of 6,800 watched the 15 finalists parade in evening dresses and bathing suits past the judges and up and down red cloth-covered ramps reaching out into the audience.

For Miss Tsopei, the march before a national television audience led to the triumph of a lifetime and a dream-world reign as queen of international beauties.

Probably, for some others, it led to professional contracts as models or actresses. For the rest of the finalists, and the 85 others eliminated in earlier round, it terminated in disappointment and heartbreak.

Miss Tsopei accepted the Miss Universe crown from the retiring queen, Ieda Maria Vargas of Brazil. She also received a $7,500 cash award, a $10,000 personal appearance contract and a rich wardrobe.

The Grecian lovely has the imposing measurements of 36-22-36, in spite of the fact that she eats potatoes three times a day. She explained that "You don't get fat on Greek potatoes." She is a model by occupation.

KIRIAKI TSOPEI
Dream Comes True

Jeanne Venables, California entry in the Miss USA contest, decided earlier this week, was voted "Miss Amity" by other girls in the Miss Universe pageant. Her award was for friendship, personal popularity and international understanding.

At the start of Saturday night's competition, winding up a grueling two weeks of preparation and rehearsal, entries from the United States and four South American nations—Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Venezuela — were eliminated.

This left 10 girls. Those losing out in the final judging were Maria Amelia Ramirez of Argentina, Sirpa Wallenius of Finland, Edith Noel of France, Emanuela Stramana of Italy and Jorunn Nystedt of Norway.

AT NEVADA U.

Horseshoeing Class Is Overcrowded

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Do students at the University of Nevada know something that the auto industry doesn't?

The university announced it scheduled a second class in horseshoeing Aug. 3-7 because the first one this summer was filled to capacity.

Penguin Thefts Laid to Millionaire Set

CHESSINGTON, England (UPI) — Zoo director Harry Snazzle said some eccentric millionaire may have masterminded the theft of four penguins.

"We chased a young man in a black track suit near the penguins' quarters some weeks ago," Snazzle said. "There are plenty of rich people with biggish gardens with ponds who might think it nice to have some."

Goldwater Evades Press Corps

Informed the police that they could not confiscate Johnson's film "unless he is a newsman."

In all the checks and questions, the detectives never asked that one question: "Are you a newsman?"

For a "tip," a club employe revealed that "the word is" that Goldwater would stay in his room until today.

* * * *

"I KNOW he plans a boat trip and some swimming," the employe said. "But I don't know much else . . . and don't tell anybody I told you."

Meanwhile, other newsmen cooled their heels a mile away at the Newporter Inn while Goldwater aide Nellor explained, "He just wants to be alone, I guess."

"Is he running for the presidency or from it?" an embittered newsman asked Nellor.

"Right now he's just vacationing," the aide explained.

THE ONLY statement from Goldwater during the day came through Nellor in reply to a comment from former President Harry Truman that "the damn fool" nominated by the GOP had put foreign policy into the political campaign.

Nellor quoted Goldwater as replying:

"In 1948 the Democrats nominated a damn fool at their convention and he turned out to be a pretty good President."

ON INDONESIAN SQUARE RIGGER

A Taste of the Dying Art of True Seamanship

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief, I-PT Washington Bureau

ABOARD THE INDONESIAN SQUARE-RIGGER "DEWA RUTJI"—The wind shifts and heads us. The bosun's pipe sounds and the Indonesian midshipmen clamber up the ratlines with agility and confidence.

They perch themselves precariously on the yard-arms and start to manhandle the sails. The heavy canvas doesn't come easily. The boys brace their feet against the rope which hangs from the yard and arch their brown bodies across the wooden beam as they struggle to furl the writhing sail.

RIDDER

The sun is setting to starboard as we move on engine southward down Chesapeake Bay. The ship and its crew are a long way from home. Several months ago the "Dewa Rutji" left its home port of Surabaya, Indonesia, to participate in Operation Sail, that gathering of square-rigged ships from all over the world which was a part of the New York World's Fair program. From Sweden and Denmark and Chile and Portugal and Indonesia and other countries they had come to make what was probably the last great assemblage of square-rigged sailing ships ever to be seen on this globe. They don't build them like that anymore and in this age of space who wants a sailing ship anyway?

* * * *

SO IN JULY when the parade of ships had ended, they dispersed and started the long voyage home. The "Dewa Rutji," a barkentine, sailed from New York to Annapolis and its crew spent a couple of days in this nation's capital. Most of the crew are midshipmen in the Indonesian Naval Academy and an alert, attractive group they are. They visited Washington, saw the sights, laughed and played and like sailors from time immemorial focussed their attention upon pretty girls.

But the time of play had ended and the ship had started the first leg of its voyage back to Indonesia. It was sailing from Annapolis to Norfolk and this reporter had been invited to sail along. It seemed like a good way to forget for a few hours the Republicans and the Democrats and the hurly-burly of American politics and thus it turned out. The east and west shores of the Chesapeake were always in view, but the every-day world seemed far, far away as the three-masted vessel made her way southward.

Until the wind had headed us, it was old-fashioned marlinspike seamanship. The boys had grunted in unison as eight of ten of them hauled on the halyards to raise the sails; they had chanted something as they tugged the sheets to trim the sails; they climbed and shinnied up the lines with eye-popping speed and sureness.

On a square-rigger, it's team-play all the way. The ropes and lines are too heavy for one man to handle; the sails too cumbersome and too strong for a single individual. They climb up there 100 or 120 feet above the deck, eight or nine of them on a yard, and fight the canvas in. It is slow, pain-staking, and exhausting work. They cling desperately to the spar as it takes them an hour or so to get the top gallant snugly furled; they scurry down the ratlines to the mainsail and takes another hour before they have it subdued. The broken tip of the foremast, a casualty of an Indian Ocean storm, shows silently though eloquently that sailing on the vessel isn't always like gliding down the Chesapeake Bay.

* * * *

THE TWO BOYS at the helm keep their eyes fixed on the compasses. The upsweep of the deck prevents them from seeing ahead and they take their instructions from the navigator in the chart-house or from the officer on the midship conning tower or from the look-out posted high in the crow's nest.

A fore-and-aft sail gets caught as they try to lower it. A cheerful young midshipman takes a bosun's chair, lowers himself from the top of the mainmast and with the help of a marlinspike frees the canvas.

The inexpert observer has several thrills as the boy carries out this job, but the lad seems unperturbed.

It is seamanship of the highest order. The sails are furled and the motor is reluctantly turned on. The schedule calls for this ship to arrive at Norfolk at a certain time and in these busy modern days, a schedule must be kept. So the barkentine turns itself into a powerboat and moves slowly down the bay, but the passenger thinks back on that brief sail and is glad that in the latter half of the 20th Century he has had an opportunity to experience first-hand the joy of sailing on that almost defunct species of boat—the square-rigger.

15 Venezuelan Mayors Arriving

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mayors of 15 Venezuelan cities will fly here from New Orleans today for a month of study at the University of Southern California school of public administration.

The civic leaders will study the major problems they face in their own cities—housing, sanitation, city planning, land use, finance and budgeting.

The program is jointly sponsored by the Agency for International Development of the U. S. State Department and the Creole Petroleum Corp., of Caracas, Venezuela.

DALLAS (UPI) — Barber David Schrock refuses to give businessmen a crew cut to provide relief from summer heat unless the customers bring a note of permission from their wives.

Astronaut Cooper, Flying Housewife Win Air Trophies

NEW YORK (UPI)—Astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper Saturday became the first U.S. spaceman named to receive the Harmon International Aviation Trophy for his manned 22-orbit space flight last year.

He was joined by Santa Monica, Calif., housewife Betty Miller in receiving the 1964 Harmon awards. Mrs. Miller was honored for her solo flight from Oakland, Calif., to Sidney, Australia. Both the Cooper flight and Mrs. Miller's trip occurred in May, 1963.

Air Force Maj. Fitzhugh L. Fulton Jr., a leading test pilot, was named for the 1963 Harmon Trophy. On a Strategic Air Command (SAC) mission on Sept. 14, 1962, he piloted a B58 Hustler bomber "beyond its designed performance and set two world altitude and pay load records previously held by the Soviet Union," the awards committee said.

No aviatrix award for 1963 was issued.

The Harmon Trophy winners for 1963 were held up because of the assassination of President Kennedy.

President Johnson will present the winners with the trophies at White House ceremonies on Sept. 16.

The Harmon trophies have been issued since 1926 to persons named the outstanding aviator, aviatrix and aeronaut—a pilot of a lighter-than-air craft.

No aeronaut winner was declared for 1964. The 1963 Harmon Trophy recipient is Mrs. Nina Boesman, a balloonist of The Hague, The Netherlands. On Aug. 24, 1962, she took off in a free balloon from Murren, Switzerland, and crossed the high Alps directly above the famed Eiger Peak 13,036 feet above sea level to Gorduno, Switzerland.

L.B. Red Cross Bank to Collect Blood for Boy's Heart Surgery

The Long Beach Red Cross blood bank will collect 20 pints of blood Monday afternoon for direct use in heart surgery Tuesday morning on a 3-year-old boy at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital in Los Angeles.

"This marks the first local collection of blood for direct use in a heart machine," announced Ike Sukman, chairman of Long Beach Red Cross Chapter.

"Decentralization of recruitment and collection of blood for open heart surgery from the Regional Blood Center of Los Angeles-Orange counties at 1130 S. Vermont Ave., the largest bood bank in the world, will be introduced with Monday's collection," he stated.

* * * *

RECRUITMENT of donors for the new Long Beach open-heart surgery blood program was introduced last week. Under direction of Mrs. Katherine Ziller, supervisor of blood recruitment from the Regional Center, a team of selected youths from the Long Beach Red Cross Student Council telephoned from a file of 5,000 former local blood donors. Mrs. Mary DeLone, vice chairman of Long Beach Red Cross Volunteer Services, was appointed as chairman of the new recruitment program for heart surgery donors, which will function weekly.

The 20 pints of blood to be donated Monday will be delivered that evening to the hospital, where technicians will prepare it for early Tuesday surgery. This blood must be drawn the night before surgery for use in a machine which acts as lung and heart for the patient while the surgeons may work in safety for as long as four hours.

"A record of 15,019 pints of blood for 937 open-heart surgeries was drawn at the Regional Center last year," said Sukman. "Long Beach Red Cross was selected as an assistant permanent center to make possible the enlargement of this phase of the expanding blood program."

German VTO Plane Passes Sound Barrier

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — West Germany's revolutionary vertical takeoff plane passed the speed of sound in a test flight, its developers reported Friday.

The two-jet VJ101 achieves its vertical raise by tilting its jets downward and then goes into forward flight by swinging them up to a horizontal position. It is being developed by the West German aviation firms of Boelkow, Heinkel and Messerschmitt.

476-lb. Shark Caught; British Record Set

FALMOUTH, England (UPI) —The Shark Angling Club of Great Britain confirmed that William Rogers, 23, set a British record by landing a 476-pounder on the first shark fishing trip of his life.

French Fire Rocket from Iceland Base

PARIS (AP) — A French Dragon rocket was successfully fired to an altitude of 275 miles Saturday from a base in Iceland, the National Center of Space Research announced.

Officials said the rocket, fired in cooperation with Icelandic scientists, carried instruments to measure the direction of travel of particles from the Van Allen radiation belt. The flight lasted 11 minutes.

Renewal Agency to Get Help

The Long Beach Apartment House Association will work with the city's Redevelopment Agency to help arrange a referral system to relocate families and persons when the West Long Beach redevelopment project is implemented in the near future.

President Arnold B. Berg of the apartment group said Friday in a letter to Director James H. Brubaker of the Redevelopment Agency that directors of the association had voted cooperation.

"The association is interested in this program of civic importance and will cooperate in an effort to help establish a referral system to relocate families and persons will will be affected," Berg said.

* * * *

"OUR association, in response to your invitation, will be pleased to have designated officials meet with you at a mutually convenient time and place to discuss the matter in more detail."

Brubaker, in a letter to Berg, had pointed out that the "execution" phase of the West Long Beach project will be started within the next few weeks.

Part of this phase will be the relocation of residents in the West Long Beach area as property is acquired for the project.

The director said the agency is hoping to assist residents in finding suitable living quarters within their means.

Registering Scheduled at LBCC

Pre-registration for fall semester day classes will continue throughout the month of August at the Long Beach City College Business and Technology campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., and the Liberal Arts campus, 4901 E. Carson St.

New students planning to enroll for seven or more units must file a formal application, residence statement and transcripts of high school and any college work in addition to taking the matriculation tests before registration.

* * * *

COLLEGE ABILITY tests for the new day students at both campuses are scheduled in the Liberal Arts campus library on Aug. 5 (1-5 p.m.), Aug. 11 (6-10 p.m.), Aug. 17 (8 a.m. to noon) and from 6-10 p.m. on Aug. 20, 24 and 27. Appointments to take the tests must be made in advance at the Carson Street campus counseling office.

According to Dr. Albert S. Derian, dean of admissions and guidance services at City College, "Many fall semester classes are already filled. New students are urged to complete all pre-enrollment procedures as soon as possible." Application forms are available in the admission office on either campus.

Advance registration for evening classes begins Sept. 1, and the fall semester opens Sept. 14.

Russia Asks Ceylon to Refuel Its Planes

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — The Soviet Union has asked Ceylon to refuel Russian planes flown to Indonesia under a military aid pact.

A reliable source said Ceylon, which has commonwealth links with Indonesia's bitter foe, the Federation of Malaysia, may refuse on grounds that this would violate its neutral policy. Ceylon used these grounds to refuse to let ships of the U. S. 7th Fleet enter its waters.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

LBJ Narrows V.P. Field; Barry Seeks Unity

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

President Johnson made official last week what most political experts long had guessed. He will not tap Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, brother of the late President, as his choice for vice president in the Nov. 3 election.

Nor will he choose any other member of his cabinet or subcabinet confidantes such as United Nations Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson.

The President spelled this out Thursday in a public declaration, saying merely that he considered it "inadvisable" to recommend any member of his official family to the Aug. 24 Democratic National Convention.

* * * *

WHEN political pundits leaped upon this as a strictly stop-Kennedy maneuver, White House officials rushed into the breach. They said the President had ruled out Kennedy and other cabinet members because he did not want to break up what he regards as an efficient team. Johnson himself wanted it known that his bombshell dictum was not a lack of confidence in Kennedy or others eliminated from the vice presidential "eligibles," but rather a confirmation of confidence.

There has been powerful back-stage maneuvering to put the young head of the Kennedy clan on the presidential ticket—a drive that had been expected to boom uproariously at the convention.

White House sources said speculation had reached the point where the President felt it was neither fair nor honest to let it continue. Observers pointed out, however, that Johnson is a political realist.

* * * *

THEY SAID he knows that Kennedy is highly unpopular in the South for his pro-civil rights activities; that Southern Democratic leaders had made it clear that the chief executive could have hard sailing against GOP nominee Barry Goldwater if Kennedy were on the Democratic ticket.

Johnson's action, which now becomes official convention policy, sharply narrowed the field of vice presidential prospects. Immediately given top billing were Minnesota's two senators, Hubert H. Humphrey, a Protestant, and Eugene McCarthy, a Catholic.

Kennedy issued a statement pledging Johnson his support and calling on his own followers and those of his late brother to do likewise.

* * * *

BOTH THE Republican and Democratic hierarchies began clearing the decks for the election campaign which may—or may not—include head-to-head television debate between Goldwater and Johnson.

Goldwater organized his strategy team. He also announced a party "summit" meeting at Hershey, Pa., Aug. 12, to try and heal deep party wounds inflicted before and during the Republican National Convention. Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, who was his most outspoken rival, will be host.

But party harmony may continue to elude Goldwater. Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, self-styled moderate who broke with the Arizonan's conservative principles, said he was "holding in abeyance" a final decision whether to support Goldwater, but that in any event he would not compromise his own principles. Scott is among a moderate Senate bloc finding it hard to buy Goldwater's political philosophy.

With Johnson's benediction, the Democrats chose Sen. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island, one of their ace orators, to keynote their convention. Speaker John W. McCormack, Mass., will be permanent chairman.

* * * *

THE PRESIDENT shunted aside for the present a Goldwater offer to debate him on campaign issues over a nationwide television hookup. White House Press Secretary George Reedy said the matter would not be considered until the campaign formally begins. Reedy tossed back at Goldwater prior statements by the senator that he regarded it as "dangerous" for a President to subject himself to public debate.

Preliminary word on the Democratic platform was that, unlike the Republican platform, it would denounce political extremism, whether of the right or left, and may mention by name the John Birch Society, the Ku Klux Klan, and the Communist Party.

GOP vice presidential candidate William E. Miller said meanwhile that the Goldwater ticket would not reject support from any quarter so long as Goldwater's principles were not compromised.

* * * *

PLATFORM hearings will be held in Washington Aug. 17, 18, and 19 to avoid interference with efforts of Democratic leaders to wind up the 88th Congress before the convention.

In other news spheres, the United States vaulted ahead of Russia in space exploration. Ranger 7 "space eye," rocketed from Cape Kennedy, took thousands of close-up television pictures of the light side of the moon as it scored a bulls eye landing on the lunar body.

Described as "a magnificent achievement" by the President; the historic triumph gave American scientists photographic information they must know before attempting to land Apollo astronauts on the moon.

* * * *

THE SUCCESS came after years of frustrating failure. Russia took the only other pictures of the moon from 37,000 miles away with Lunik 3 in 1959. Ranger 7 carried six TV cameras which transmitted more than 4,000 pictures across a quarter of a million miles—the last only two-tenths of a second before impact.

In New York City, Negro leaders of the nation's big four civil rights groups held a summit meeting and urged American Negroes to forego further racial rights demonstrations until after the election. The implication was that the white back-lash would swing votes to Goldwater though the leaders had praise for both Republicans and Democrats who supported the Civil Rights Bill.

They accused the GOP nominee of injecting racism into the campaign and appealed to all Negroes to work for his defeat. A joint statement read by Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of NAACP, said "the senator himself maintains that civil rights matters should be left to the states—clear enough language for any Negro American."

A second statement strongly denounced recent rioting and looting by Negroes in Harlem, Brooklyn and Rochester and rejected the support of "extremist groups such as Communists." But other Negro leaders served notice they would not abide by any such moratorium.

Goldwater headquarters had no immediate reaction. The senator flew to the West Coast for a rest.

President Johnson said he agreed with those who advocate "registration in lieu of demonstration." He appealed to all citizens to give the civil rights law as well as local ordinances against disorder or individual brutality a chance to work.

The political mood continued to be reflected in Congress. The House overwhelmingly passed a bill to increase Social Security benefits to 20 million oldsters. Omitted was Johnson's plan for medical care for the aged.

The Senate unanimously passed and returned to the House a $46.8 billion defense appropriation after overriding Republican charges that the administration was holding down military spending in a play for election votes.

The President praised the nuclear test-ban treaty with Russia. He declared that if the year-old pact ended tomorrow, the United States would be "safer and stronger than ever before."

EXECUTIVE JOB SEARCH
In today's dynamic economy, many executives in the $10,000 to $50,000 per year salary range are currently evaluating their present position in relation to outside growth opportunities. Some will decide to take the plunge ... resign ... and actively jump into the job market. Some will decide to "wait and see" ... hope a promotion comes along ... and stay on in their present employment. Others will discreetly (and confidentially) explore possibilities ... make a decision ... and take advantage of the opportunities available.
As professional Executive Career Managers, we specialize in the latter. Taking the plunge can adversely effect one's bargaining power ... and to "wait and see" may take years. The initiation of positive and aggressive steps is indicated. Individuals interested in increased responsibilities, growth potential, and higher pay will investigate our services ... and will progress accordingly! For years, executives from coast-to-coast have followed these positive and productive concepts and have secured job offers (or promotions) ranging from $10,000 to $100,000 per year.
To correlate our services to your needs, call for a preliminary interview. An appointment will be set in complete confidence and without cost or obligation. Not an employment agency or resume writing house ... more than an executive search firm ... we are an unusual organization, unique in the field and dedicated to the merchandising of qualified and motivated individuals. No resumes, please—we sell people, not paper!

Costs Climb 400 Percent in Hospitals

CHICAGO (UPI)—The cost of caring for the average patient increased more than four times since World War II, the American Hospital Association reported Saturday.

In 1946, the AHA said, it cost a hospital $9.39 per day to care for the average patient. Last year the figure was $38.91, the AHA found in a survey reported in its 1964 guide issue of "Hospitals."

The AHA said labor costs in hospitals have increased 545% since World War II. In 1946, the AHA said, the average hospital needed 148 employes to care for every 100 patients. Last year the average ratio was 241 employes to 100 patients.

The average cost to the patient of a week-long hospital stay was $85 in 1946 and $298 last year.

Hospital Funds OKd by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed and sent to the White House Saturday an administration "must" bill authorizing $1,362,500,000 for an expanded five-year program of federal aid for hospital construction and rehabilitation.

The bulk of the money authorized would be in the form of grants, the remainder in loans.

The bill authorizes total federal outlays totaling $252.5 million in the current 1965 fiscal year which started July 1, compared to $220 million for the previous year. It also authorized $265 million for fiscal 1966, $275 million for fiscal 1967 and $285 million in each of fiscal 1968 and 1969.

* * * *

FOR THE FIRST time, the program makes specific provision for use of some of the money for renovation and modernization of hospitals and other health facilities.

The Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee in a report commending the bill gave this explanation of its terms:

It authorizes $680 million over the five years for hospital-health center construction, $160 million for modernization - rehabilitation, but would permit transfer of $530 million of the construction funds to the rehabilitation-modernization program if needed.

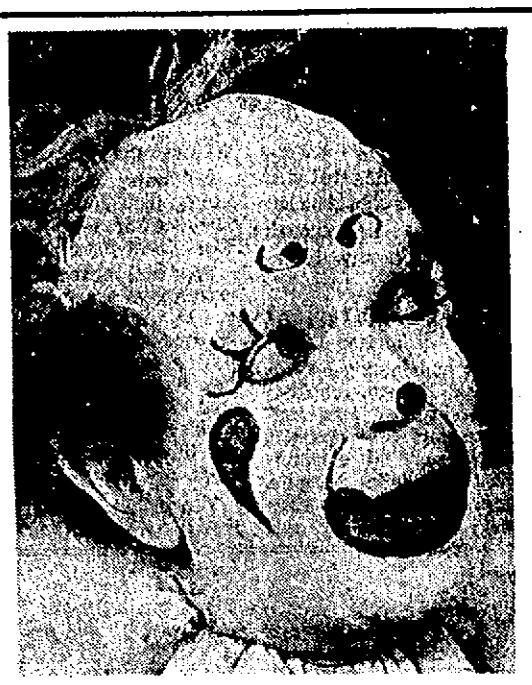

Alternatively, it would allow $70 million of the rehabilitation funds to be switched to new construction.

It also authorizes:

—$50 million for construction of nursing homes and chronic disease hospitals; $100 million for construction of diagnostic or treatment centers; and $50 million for construction of rehabilitation facilities, over the five years of the program.

—$2.5 million the first year and $5 million for each of the next four years of grants for area-wide facility planning, and permits states to use 2% of their allotments up to $50,000 a year to improve and strengthen state administration of construction programs. There provisions would require 50-50 matching of the federal funds by the states.

The program, originally launched in 1946, is known as the Hill-Burton Act. The bill expanding and extending it won voice vote approval, without dissent, from the handful of senators present.

BOBBY KAY . . . Understands

Blind 'See' Show as Clown Helps

By WILLIAM JONES

Laughter is in the heart of children, not their eyes.

And so for the past five years, the hearts of blind children have feasted on the fun of circus clown Bobby Kay.

"They all want to try on my size-14 shoes," Bobby laughs, "and touch my red-tipped nose."

The 56-year-old clown, who will appear in the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus when it opens for a four-day run Aug. 6 in the Long Beach Arena, said his interest in the blind goes back to his youth.

"I was about 6 or 7 back home in Pennsylvania and our neighbor was a blind man," Bobby recalled. "My brothers and I would take him to the movies and I would describe to him what was going on."

He learned then "not to pity, but understand the blind."

Five years ago, Bobby's interest led to the invitation of 15 blind children to the circus. Last year, the number swelled to 300 as guests of the "Greatest Show on Earth."

"I walk among them, sometimes using a hand megaphone, describing the scene before them. When I describe a man up in the air, their little heads go up.

"The blind can feel the color I describe. Yellow's bright, blue and green are cool and red is hot."

In between time, Bobby works as technical adviser or actor in motion pictures.

He has appeared in the films "Greatest Show on Earth," "The Big Circus," and the "Flying Fontaines."

In the water throwing scene of "Jumbo," Bobby doubled for Doris Day and it was he who had the dubious honor of receiving—full on—the bucket of water thrown by Martha Raye.

In his 40 years with the circus, Bobby said that "without being corny, my greatest reward has been to see the good quality in people.

"If you have some talent and you give of it, you get back the benefits. If you try to make somebody else's day better, it rubs off on you!"

Weather Blocks Air Search for Pair in Mexico

DUARTE, Calif. (UPI)—Bad weather over the central and southern sections of Baja California, Mexico, Saturday curtailed virtually all flying activities in the search for two missing Southern California teen-agers.

A spokesman for the Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Team, which has been coordinating the search for Steven Bunch, 17, Canoga Park, and Dean Slaght, 19, Santa Susana, said the tentative plans were to call back searching planes unless new leads were discovered today.

The pair left Canoga Park June 2 in a pickup truck for the 850-mile trip along the rugged Baja California peninsula La Paz, near the southern tip, collecting cactis. Although they did not return as scheduled on July 5 they were seen with their truck as late as July 14.

INTERRUPTED BY APPLAUSE

Production of 'HMS Pinafore' Wins Audience's Enthusiasm

By RACHEL MORTON

It has been said that appreciation for the operettas of Gilbert and Sullivan requires a cultivated taste as so much of the humor is typically English. But when Henri Scanlon and Gilbert and Sullivan "get together" one needs no prior education.

The performance of "HMS Pinafore" in Long Beach City College auditorium Friday night won the audience from the rise of the curtain to its final fall. Spontaneous applause broke in upon the action frequently and folks came away whistling the well-known tunes. That is success.

* * * *

SCANLON is a genius at stage production, but still greater is his uncanny good judgment in selecting singers for the cast. Himself a singer of repute, he spent his early years touring the country as a "lead" in Gilbert and Sullivan productions. This accounts largely for the magnificent performance, which will be repeated Aug. 7 and 8. I came away with the feeling that there should be a repertory theater in Long Beach for Gilbert and Sullivan productions, with Scanlon at the head—giving perhaps four performances yearly.

One of the most glorious voices hereabouts is that of Lyn Carole, who sang the part of Josephine. Her voice soared in thrilling high tones—round, rich and powerful. It caressed the ear in sheer vocal beauty throughout its extensive range. She is an actress of great charm and whether in comedy or in the love scenes she made the part live.

* * * *

WHO COULD imagine a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta without Arthur Carah? His very entrance as Sir Joseph Porter was mirth-provoking. His subtle characterizations are right out of the D'oyly Carte traditions. His impersonation was by way of suggestion rather than heavy dramatics and that is the highest art. He was enthusiastically applauded.

The great surprise of the evening was Larry Laraway as Ralph Rackstraw. Heretofore he has been heard in nondescript roles which have hindered rather than helped him. But on Friday night he displayed a tenor voice of great beauty—full of a warm tenderness. His ringing high A-flats were brilliant. In looks and in acting he was persuasive and ingratiating.

* * * *

SILVIO BARTO gave a splendid performance as Captain Corcoran. His baritone voice was heard to splendid advantage in the solo, "Fair Moon to Thee I Sing." He, too, entered into the spirit of the comedy with sly humor and his comic scenes with Buttercup were choice.

A real comedienne was Ruth Anne Lorenzen as little Buttercup. She looked and acted the part to perfection. Another beautiful voice was that of Charles Raitch Jr. as Dick Deadeye. Its ringing bass quality shone in the number, "I've Important Information."

The audience roared with laughter when he blew his nose loudly in the midst of the stealthy, tiptoeing scene. He combined comedy and villainy admirably.

Millicent Treadwell was a very beautiful Cousin Hebe and Jo Pat Williams as the Boatswain commanded attention as a vivid and personable actor.

* * * *

THE MUSICAL direction was under the watchful eye of Robert Carlson. Charles A. Ruetschi at the piano was an orchestra in himself. He gave invaluable support to the singers as well as life to the music. He had a big share in the success of the operetta. There was also an organ accompaniment played by J. DeWitt Schwab.

VISITS L.B. VA HOSPITAL

Woman Surgeon Is Paraplegic

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

Dr. Mary Verghese of Vellore, India, is a surgeon who operates from a wheelchair.

A paraplegic since 1954 as a result of an automobile accident, Dr. Verghese, 39, specializes in surgery of the hands and feet of leprosy victims.

Now she has broadened her interests to include the care of persons like herself: spinal-cord injury victims.

* * * *

SHE HAS JUST concluded a 10-day visit to Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, where she observed American treatment techniques at the spinal-cord injury service.

Dr. Roy H. Nyquist, chief of the service's physical medicine and rehabilitation section, says Dr. Verghese begins her prayers with the words, "Take my hands."

"She asks that God will direct her hands in her work," Dr. Nyquist said.

The words, "Take My Hands," are also the title of Dr. Verghese's biography, published last year.

Dr. Verghese came to the United States earlier this year to take oral examinations in Detroit for board certification in the medical specialty of physical medicine and rehabilitation. She took her written examination for specialization in 1962 at Chicago's VA Research Hospital.

Currently she is head of the new department of physical medicine and rehabilitation at Christian Medical College and Hospital, Vellore, Ind. The city is about 80 miles east of the seaport of Madras.

* * * *

"DR. VERGHESE has undergone several formidable operations since her accident," Dr. Nyquist says. "She well knows what the spinal-cord patient goes through."

She attended the Royal Perth Hospital, Perth, Australia, in 1957 for both treatment and training in spinal-cord treatment and rehabilitation. Two years later she was both patient and physician-in-training at Dr. Howard Rusk's Institute of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation in New York City.

Dr. Verghese, before returning to Vellore, will visit Warm Springs, Ga., Canada, England and France.

FORBIDDEN TO HITCHHIKE

Southland Teens Bike 3,000 Miles to Fair

Two Southland teen-agers are resting this weekend after a 3,000-mile bicycle ride they took because their parents didn't want them to hitchhike.

Peter Philpott, 18, of 1020 Orr and Day Road, Santa Fe Springs, and Rick Grimm, 17, of 11402 Crossdale, Norwalk, arrived in Wolcott, Conn., Friday after a 31-day trip to see the New York World's Fair.

Grimm said he took the trip because he wanted to see Michelangelo's Pieta, on exhibit at the fair.

The boys had planned to hitchhike, but their parents wouldn't let them. So they bought bicycles.

Cyprus Airport Sabotage Story Found in Error

NICOSIA, Cypress (AP)—U.N. Cyprus headquarters said Saturday night its claim that a Cyprus airfield had been sabotaged was mistaken.

What happened was that a Famagusta airport contractor had driven iron spikes into the runway in connection with resurfacing work and forgotten to inform the U.N., a spokesman said.

The spikes were discovered by a British army pilot as he was about to land early Saturday in a U.N. mail plane. He landed at another strip.

A report was made to the U.N. headquarters here and a spokesman immediately dubbed the incident "sabotage," adding that a serious accident might have resulted.

Hard of Hearing!

It is now possible for many who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss.

So many have told us, we have tried everything and we are so discouraged that we hesitate to try anything else. Many who have tried this new and proven method are overjoyed. Just like magic in certain cases, they are able to hear without their hearing aid after the very first treatment.

The treatment is simple and painless, and takes about 45 minutes. If the hearing loss is due to a nerve condition, a special treatment is given. If the loss is due to catarrh a different treatment is given.

If you have a hearing loss no matter how slight or how bad, it may be helped. Why not find out?

We are one of the busiest offices in Southern California, so if we cannot help you, be assured that we will not take your case.

The total charge is $5.00 for the first treatment and the examination. And if you see no improvement from the first treatment, you are under no obligation to return. Assure your appointment by calling GA 6-6166 or GA 6-6167, 2067 Atlantic Ave., L.B. Dr. H. L. Hutchings, D.C., director.

5-ALARM FIRE IN PAINT PLANT

Detroit firemen fight a five-alarm fire which followed an explosion at the Ditzler Color Division of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. The plant was gutted, with damage estimated upwards of $1 million. Nobody was injured seriously, though several persons were cut by flying glass.

Spectacular Blast, Fire Gut Detroit Glass Plant Building

DETROIT (AP) — An explosion and fire ripped through a paint factory in northwest Detroit Saturday, causing damage estimated at more than $1 million and spreading broken glass over a 20-block area.

Fire Chief Glenn Thom, who made the damage estimate, said all of the six or seven men working in the Detzler Color Division of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. building escaped without injury. Several persons were reported cut by flying glass.

Thom said the blast apparently occurred in a mixing room, where "there is always a great potential for explosions." A small fire was reported continuing in the basement of the building. Firemen sprayed foam on the burning linseed oil and resin.

Earlier, a five-alarm fire sent a column of smoke towering hundreds of feet in the air and attracted thousands of spectators. The explosion was heard for miles, and glass was reported shattered great distances from the plant.

One woman, Mrs. Alzaie Hardy of Detroit, was reported cut by flying glass more than a mile from the scene.

One building in the paint company complex was severely damaged, as the blast tore huge chunks from the concrete, brick and steel structure and hurled them many feet. Other buildings in the area were reported damaged —with broken windows and scorched and twisted ventilators.

A nearby resident, Jerry Richman, said the explosion knocked down his wife and two children in their home, and knocked his dog off the porch.

Two lab assistants, Arne Lehto, 54, and Vince Gordon, 36, both of Detroit, said they were almost knocked from their feet by the explosion, which occurred about 200 yards from where they were working.

Lehto said they "pulled the fire alarm and ran for our lives. As we left the building glass, paint drums, bricks and everything was flying. We're lucky to be alive."

5 Planes Join Reeves Search

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Five aircraft and a 500-man search party combed the rugged Tennessee hills Saturday for a missing plane believed piloted by country music star "Gentleman Jim" Reeves, a former member of the tragedy-plagued "Grand Ole Opry."

Reeves and his piano accompanist, Dean Manuel, were believed traveling from Batesville, Ark., at Nashville when their plane disappeared from radar screens during a thunderstorm.

The area where the plane vanished is situated south of Nashville and is known as "Old Baldy." It is dotted with sharp hill peaks, and woods are so thick in places that it is almost impassable on foot.

Reeves cut many hit records, including "He'll Have To Go," and "Four Walls," both of which sold over a million copies.

Another French Mine Survivor

CHAMPAGNOLE, France, Sunday (UPI)—Scratching sounds from a new section of the collapsed Mount Rival Chalk Mine electrified rescuers late Saturday and they immediately began drilling toward what they hoped was another survivor.

Fourteen men were imprisoned 223 feet underground six days ago in a vast cave-in. Nine of them have reported through microphones that they are alive, and tapping sounds have been heard from another section where two more men are believed trapped.

National Assembly Deputy Jacques Duhamel said the scratches were distinctly different from the tappings. Rescuers began drilling horizontally toward the location while two vertical probes began from above the mine.

The rescue contingent was saddened by the death Saturday of a worker who was struck by a rubber-metal coupling which fell 30 feet.

He died en route to a hospital.

6 Navajo Flood Victims Found

CHINLE, Ariz. (AP)—Six bodies were recovered and workers were searching Saturday for three other persons reported missing after a flash flood in this northeast Arizona community on the Navajo reservation.

Paul Krause, bureau of Indian affairs sub-agency superintendent, said the dead were in a car that dropped off a bridge, which had been torn apart by a 20-foot wall of water that roared down normally dry Nazlini Wash Thursday night during a storm.

He said four of the dead were members of the Peter Bitsui family—Jerry, 12, Lydia, 14, Delphine, 15 and Zelma, 16 or 17. Bitsui was missing. A fifth body was identified as that of William Bizardi, 21. The sixth victim, a man, had not been identified. All were Navajos, Krause said.

Saigon Bomb Wounds 5 Yanks

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Five U.S. servicemen and 15 Vietnamese were wounded, some of them seriously, when a terrorist's heavy bomb blasted a Saigon bar to rubble Saturday night.

One of the Americans and three of the Vietnamese were critically wounded.

Viet Reds in Bold Raid

VINH LOC, Viet Nam (AP)—A battalion of Communist Viet Cong guerrillas attacked this village only four miles west of Saigon Saturday, in a daring assault which followed several days of distributing leaflets warning they would strike.

Casualties were light and the Viet Cong abandoned the fight at daybreak. But the attack was significant because of its proximity to the capital. A Viet Cong battalion usually numbers about 500.

Harlem Speaker Attacks Whites

NEW YORK (AP)—A crowd of 400 persons at a Black Nationalist rally in the heart of Harlem cheered Saturday night when a speaker said "We have to stop white people from exploiting black people."

Some two dozen policemen stood by to prevent any outbreak of violence like that which shook the area two weeks ago. The Negro ghetto has been calm for more than a week.

Girl Lost 16 Hours Uninjured

KINGS CANYON NATIONAL PARK (UPI) — Eight-year-old Cindy Howe, who said she became lost while chasing a deer, was found alive and well Saturday after an intensive 16-hour search by an 80-man team.

"I'm feeling fine," she told her mother by radio telephone following her rescue. She was scratched but otherwise unharmed.

Cindy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Howe of Granada Hills, was found in rugged Redwood Canyon at 7:45 a.m. by John Etlanakai, one of 50 sailors from Lemoore Naval Air Station who joined the search.

* * * *

SHE TOLD rescuers she saw a deer while she and her 10-year-old brother, Stephen, were on a short hike Friday and decided to catch it. She soon lost her way and began wandering about the rough, near-wilderness area in search of the rest of her family.

At dusk, she fell asleep, apparently about two miles west of where she became lost. The temperature in the area, at an elevation of 7,200 feet, fell to 45 degrees during the night and Cindy, who was wearing a light summer dress, said she was cold.

At dawn, she began wandering again and gradually worked her way downhill to where Etlanakai found her.

BRASS HATS HAVE BEEN MEETING 18 YEARS

Military Committee at U.N. Does Nothing

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Military Staff Committee, a unique group in the United Nations, held its 500th meeting the other day.

The committee has met every two weeks for 18 years, but has not even considered any matter of substance since 1947. The meetings are all secret.

This group is the only body in the world where generals and admirals of the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and Nationalist China sit down together at regular intervals.

It is the only military organ specifically provided for in the U.N. Chapter, but it has never had any part in directing the U.N. military operations, including those in Korea, the Middle East, the Congo and Cyprus.

Despite the fact that it does nothing, there has never been a proposal from any of its five members or from United Nations officials that the sessions be dropped.

The committee was set up in 1946 in accordance with Article 46 of the charter, which called for a creation of such a group to establish an international military force and to assist the Security Council in military matters.

The charter specifies that the committee be made up of the chiefs of staff of the five big powers or their representatives. The chiefs of staffs have never actually served on the committee, but it has had numerous big-name admirals and generals as members. These include such U.S. figures as Air Force Gen. George C. Kenney and Army Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

At present, Britain is the only one of the five powers which has no military representative attached permanently to its U.N. delegation.

85,000 Flee Pakistan to India in Month

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — More than 85,000 refugees from East Pakistan were counted crossing into India during July as one of history's great migrations continued unchecked.

A government spokesman said today the July inflow brought to 591,900 the number of East Pakistani refugees known to have entered the northeast Indian states of West Bengal, Assam and Tripura since the beginning of the year.

CARE Will Provide India Children Meals

NEW YORK (UPI)—CARE has announced the signing of an agreement to provide a meal a day to the 200,000 school children of Calcutta, the scene of food riots for the past two weeks.

The program will start in September, as soon as shipments of surplus United States wheat can reach India.

It will bring to 7 million the number of Indian children receiving food at school from CARE. This represents 15 per cent of India's elementary school population.

PRETENDED TO BE HELPING KING ALBERT

Germans Carried Belgium's Colors in 1914 Invasion

By FRED CHEVAL

GEMMERICH, Belgium (AP)—

It was a fresh sunny morning on Aug. 4, 1914 when a company of German cavalry trotted through this border village in the green foothills of the Ardennes Mountains.

The first campaign of World War I had opened.

The Uhlans, despite their spiked German helmets, were flying Belgium's black, yellow and gold from their steel-headed, 12-foot lances.

Said the war manual of the German General Staff:

"The wearing of enemy uniforms and the use of enemy or neutral flags or insignia with the aim of deception are declared permissible."

Antoine Reynders is 75 now and still lives in Gemmenich. He remembers what the Uhlans looked like, and the strong smell of new leather from their belts and straps and saddles.

* * * *

"WE WERE not expecting them," he recalls, "but we didn't believe them either when they handed out tracts saying King Albert of Belgium had asked their help to fight the French."

Nor had the king who just 25 hours earlier had turned down a German ultimatum, taken command of the Belgian army and ordered the bridges over the Meuse River to be blown up.

The following evening, Britain sent Germany an ultimatum of its own: Get out of Belgium or we fight. Theobald von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German chancellor, was angry with the British ambassador who delivered it. He accused Britain of going to war "all for just a word—'neutrality'—just for a scrap of paper."

The scrap of paper—a description that echoed around the world — was Belgium's peace treaty with Holland, signed 75 years before and guaranteed by all the great European powers, Prussia as well as Britain.

"Belgium is an independent state, perpetually neutral," the treaty said.

* * * *

BRITAIN was bound to defend this neutrality and it did, though it was not pure indignation that drove Britain to fight. A successful campaign by the Germans would have put them in possession of the Belgian and French ports on the English Channel, an hour's steaming from the British coast.

Germany had been building up its navy to challenge Britain's. German command of the channel ports would have laid Britain wide open to invasion.

Bad German behavior in Belgium, diligently publized and often exaggerated by propagandists, added every day to the strong feeling aroused by the invasion.

The German troops had a neurotic fear of snipers. They also resented Belgian military resistance as a kind of affront, feeling that the Belgians should not have interfered with passage through their country to attack France.

Antoine Reynders remembers the "Death Head Hussars" — their insignia was a skull and crossbones —who came to Gemmenich two days after the war started.

* * * *

"THEY KNEW the troops before them had met with strong resistance at Liege," he remembers "Gentleness and charm were gone."

During the first month of the war at least 5,200 Belgain civilians were executed and more than 25,000 buildings destroyed mostly by fire.

What brought world indignation to a climax was the destruction of Louvain, a university town, where German anger turned against bricks, books and art treasures.

The Germans razed Louvain, including the library of which nothing was left but ashes. They killed 218 people, including 20 women and 11 children.

The world reaction was one of horror, and the Germans felt moved to reply. The emperor explained that what his army had done in Belgium was the "result of the criminal and barbarous action of the Belgians." A group of world-renowned Germans issued a denial that German troops had brutally destroyed Louvain. They were not believed.

* * * *

LESS THAN a week after the destruction of Louvain, the British, French and Russian governments signed a pact barring a separate peace. Belgium had clarified the issues.

King Albert carefully conserved his limited resources of men. He refused to have them join the Allied offensives and sent them forward only in the final, victorious drive of 1918. Belgium lost about 40,000 men in the war, but its percentage of loss was low compared to the major belligerents.

When it ended, Belgium was awarded 382 square miles of territory that had been held by Germany—the cantons of Eupen, Malmedy and Moresnet, not far from Gemmenich.

Alan Bails Himself Out of Nightmares

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Alan Golan is looking forward to sleeping better, without nocturnal phone calls for the first time in months.

He went to court as Allan Z. Goldberg and obtained permission to change his name.

A man called Allan Goldberg is a bail bondsman and is frequently called upon at odd hour to post bond for persons under arrest—but callers frequently mixed up the phone numbers.

L.A. to N.Y. Air Rights for Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Informed U.S. sources said the United States has offered Japan rights for its airline to fly from Los Angeles to New York on condition that U.S. carriers be permitted to fly from Tokyo to Osaka.

The U.S. offer, made during a two-hour conference Wednesday with Japanese negotiators, did not include the right for Japan Air Lines to fly beyond New York to Europe as requested, the sources said. This was somewhat disappointing to Japanese negotiators.

The Japanese embassy would not confirm the American offer.

Japan has sought revisions of the 1951 U.S.-Japan air treaty, which it contends has unequal provisions.

Japan presently has the right to fly to Honolulu, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle. Japan has not used the Seattle port of entry.

Brochures Offer L.B. Information

By GEORGE WEEKS

Newcomers who want to know something about Long Beach no longer will have to travel from office to office when they stop at City Hall for a few basic facts.

Just off the press is a folder-type brochure titled "Long Beach, California's International City—Its People and Government." It answers many of the questions most commonly asked, often by new residents, occasionally by visitors and frequently by elementary school pupils visiting the seat of city government.

Copies are ready for free distribution in the mayor's and city clerk's offices as long as the supply of 5,000 lasts. If necessary more will be printed, according to City Manager John R. Mansell.

TWO OF HIS AIDES, Harry Fulton and Leo Greene, assembled the information in the first handy publication of its kind issued by the city in many years.

For prospective voters in city elections, there is a map showing the boundaries of the nine councilmanic districts, with an insert identifying the councilman in each.

A section of historical background goes back to the early 16th century when, just 50 years after Columbus discovered America, Cabrillo and his crew of explorers anchored off the present site of Long Beach.

SOME LONG-TIME RESIDENTS, not to mention newcomers, may find out for the first time that Cabrillo named the area Bahia de los Fumos (Bay of the Smokes) from the happenstance that native Indians were burning grass and brush ashore in one of their rabbit drives.

Reinforcing the Long Beach claim to international character are the facts that its first great land owner was Manuel Nieto, holder of a vast grant dating to 1784, and its first real estate operator and subdivider was William Erwin Willmore, an Englishman who arrived in 1880.

If it's statistical data the public is seeking, some examples from the brochure are:

Long Beach location, Lat. 33 degrees 46 minutes N.; Long., 118 degrees 11 minutes W.

Beach Combing

With Malcolm Epley

IT'S A SORT of cartoon smorgasbord that our editorial artist, Dick Wallmeyer, produces for each Sunday's editorial page. (See today's B-2). Under the title, "The World's Week," Dick presents four or five cartoon commentaries on big events of the closed week—an exercise in brain toil and drawing board work which, you can be sure, consumes his every Friday.

I mention this because Wallmeyer's career as an editorial cartoonist began right here and is blossoming nicely, and I think our readers ought to know a little more about it. Wallmeyer cartoons from our editorial page are being reprinted around the country, and now and then in national publications, and if any of our readers are missing them, they should start taking a look.

FOR YEARS—all the years before Wallmeyer — we got virtually all of our cartoons through the syndicates. They were the work of top-flight men, but in the nature of things they followed by several days the news events to which they applied, and seldom if ever touched on regional or local subjects. And they seldom coincided in subject matter with editorial comment, produced here on a daily basis.

Then a couple of years ago we signed on Wallmeyer, who had studied graphic arts in Chicago, showed us some work that proved his skill, and was clerking in a store in the area pending the time he could get a post in the field of his choice.

So now we have, on virtually a daily basis, a staff-produced cartoon that is timely, often touches on the same subject as printed matter on the page, and can cover the field from world to local topics.

We still use Vaughn Shoemaker and other nationally syndicated cartoons a couple of times a week, and we think it all works out into nice balance for a feature which, the surveys show, is one of the chief attention-getters in a paper.

CARTOONING requires not only skillful pen work but an ability to produce ideas. Wallmeyer, I've noticed, spends about as much time reading and thinking as drawing, and we do considerable conferring on cartoon ideas, too.

Let's trace the history of Friday's cartoon (see cut) on the death of Sen. Engle, which drew a lot of praise.

In the morning I told Dick we were going to produce an editorial on Engle's sad case. It was a sombre subject for a cartoon, and that made it unusually difficult, with the customary humorous twist definitely out.

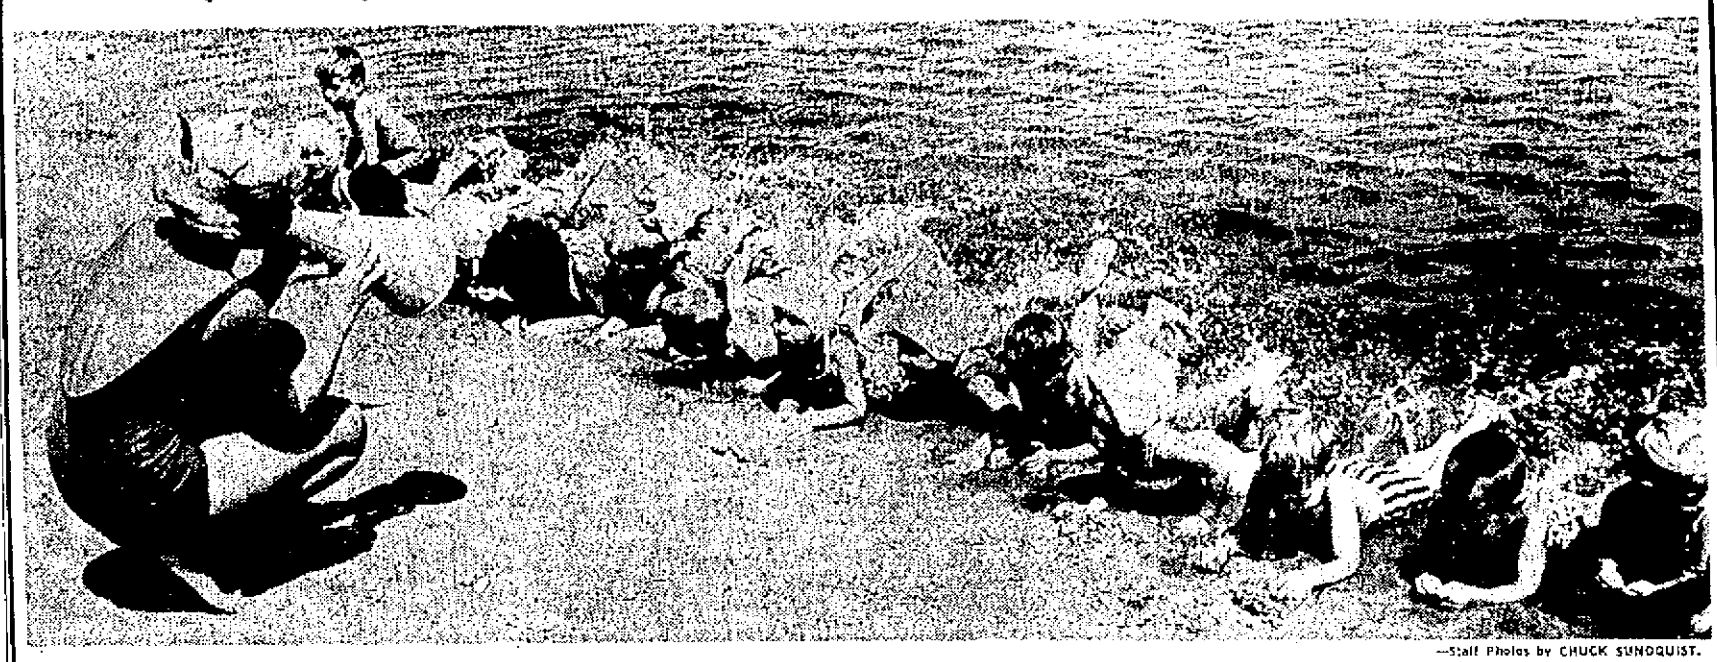

We tried to think of some trait of Engle's that would serve cartoon treatment. If he had been a cattleman, for instance, there could be the chaps hung up on the barn wall, or the empty saddle. Clair was a lawyer, and his legislative specialty was water, and neither suggested a suitable cartoon line.

THE idea of the book symbolizing 30 years of dedicated public service was thrown into the discussion and with that, Wallmeyer retired to his cubby hole and his drawing board.

It's his custom to bring a rough sketch on copy paper into the editorial sanctum before he starts a final draft.

On some days he may bring in several. After a while he came in with a penciled sketch combining the book and empty Senate chair ideas, all hands agreed that it met the objective, and Wallmeyer left us to produce his drawing while here we started on the editorial. Cartoon and editorial together presented a timely eulogy. Possible because we had a cartoonist right here to work with us.

Girl, 19, Can Teach Any Kid to Swim

—Staff Photos by CHUCK SUNDQUIST.

TINY TOT SWIM CLASS AT COLORADO LAGOON . . . Gets Water-Splashing Leg Exercise

She's a gorgeous, blue-eyed blonde with cute dimples.

She fills a bathing suit so well that the beach-garment manufacturers should rush to cheer.

She's 5-5 and is 19 years old and is not engaged.

But she's going steady with 200 kids five days a week, and there isn't one of those 200 who doesn't love her.

Those kids, by the way, range in age from 2 to 13. Each one is a prospective candidate for a swimming certificate—some of the 4,000-plus that will be presented by the Long Beach Recreation Department at the end of this summer.

(Oh yes, the girl! She is Lauren McCulloch, as outdoorish as the ocean, the mountains, the streams and lakes. She is one of several swimming instructors hired by the Recreation Department each summer to instruct, free of charge, the youngsters of this sprawling city.)

titles at Long Beach City College in the last two years that I hesitate to enumerate those here, is a most unusual girl.

She could be dating as often as she wished, but instead, she chooses to cast her lot with those who train boys and girls. In fact, that's going to be her immediate goal when she finishes three years of work at the University of Southern California.

She hopes to start teaching deaf children at the end of her USC term. Why? Because she has a nephew who was born deaf. She has gone with him often to a clinic and has become interested in helping such handicapped youngsters.

★ ★ ★ ★

LAUREN INSTRUCTS at the Colorado Lagoon under the supervision of Alban Reid, who himself, has a most interesting background. He has been chief instructor at the Lagoon for 16 years. He is vice principal of Miramonte Elementary School in Los Angeles, but chooses this type of work for his summers.

Others working under him at the Lagoon are Mike Smith and Chuck Morris.

Lauren is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. McCulloch of Lakewood. She rode the prize-winning Long Beach float in the 1964 New Year Day parade as a princess from Long Beach City College.

Appropriately enough, her mother, then Peggy Schuck, rode the first float ever entered by the City of San Marino in 1928.

She has an older sister, Lynne, now married, and a younger brother, Rick, who hopes to be on the Lakewood High School swimming team next fall. Lauren, always modest, takes no credit for teaching Rick how to swim.

SHE STARTED swimming when she was 9 and in three years became interested in synchronized swimming, the art of water ballet. It was in that field that she won most of her trophies, all in the amateur field.

She teaches two classes daily at the Lagoon, 10 to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. There are the tiny tots class (2 to 5 in age), beginners (6 to 8), intermediate (7 to 10) and swimmers (10 to 13). If she'd just announce a class for male adults 20 through 50, there probably would be a stampede to the Lagoon.

The entire aquatic program is under the direction of Walter J. (Skip) Skibicki, who maintains an office at the Lagoon and whose enthusiasm for water sports rubs off on all who work with him.

Skip says that the aquatic program, which embraces swimming and sailing, started in 1929. Since that time, he estimates, 140,000 youngsters have learned how to swim there. In those 35 years 4 million persons have taken part in the aquatic program.

There is no charge for swimming instruction at any of the city's nine locations, but at school pools there is a 25-cent charge for use of the facility.

In addition to Colorado Lagoon, there are two locations in Alamitos Bay, Bay Shore, 14 54th Place, where Bob Cotter, Terry Gillis and Anita Hancock teach, and 59th Place, where Christine Steele teaches.

Other instruction points and their instructors are as follows:

City College pool, Bill Nicholson, Toni Glasco, Gay Van Wey and Christine Steels; Jordan High, Elaine Danaher, Ronald Harvey, Doug Taylor and

Indians May Get the Country Back

By KEN KNIGHT

Victor Roebuck, a full-blooded Choctaw Indian, does not think of himself as a symbol—but he is.

A high lineman, and a good one, Roebuck, of 13371 Golden West St., Westminster, represents the hopes of 65,000 Indians living in California, that the United States will keep a promise it made 76 years ago.

Roebuck also is a symbol of a fast approaching agrarian revolution that will rival anything that has occurred in Europe or South America, he says.

On Feb. 8, 1887, the U.S. Government set up the Indian Land Allotment Act permitting each Indian to claim up to 160 acres of vacant government land — but the Bureau of Land Management has never recognized the Indian's rights under the act, Roebuck says.

"The Bureau of Land Management has been ordered by the courts to take 'appropriate action' regarding the claims for land in Oklahoma" explains Amos A. Hopkins-Dukes, a Kiowa, executive secretary of TILRA and holder of Indian Land Claim No. 1.

With 15 million acres of land available in California and approximately 10,000 Indians in Orange County alone, it is inevitable many claims will be filed for the land.

Joseph R. Robedeaux, of 13061 Williamette St., Westminster, and his family of three have filed claims with the land office in Riverside for possession of one square mile of land, inside the Palm Springs city limits, which is used as a picnic ground.

There isn't any government-owned vacant land in Orange County, but there are 25,716 acres in Los Angeles County, seven million in San Bernardino county and 14-million acres in Riverside County. Only four of California's counties do not have land for which the Indians can file claims.

To file a claim, Indians must prove they are eligible, and their names must be carried on the records kept by the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Claimants must locate the property and properly identify it on the claims filed with the land offices located in either Sacramento or Riverside.

EACH INDIAN man, woman or child, according to the act as interpreted by Hopkins-Dukes, is entitled to a choice of 160 acres of grazing land, 80 acres of farm land or 40 acres of land subject to irrigation.

"The act has been on the books a long time and was only recently uncovered. The government has certainly made no attempt to help the Indians out by letting them know about the act," Hopkins-Dukes said.

"Government officials say that 160 acres is not enough land to do any good, but a family can pool its claims and get enough land to work.

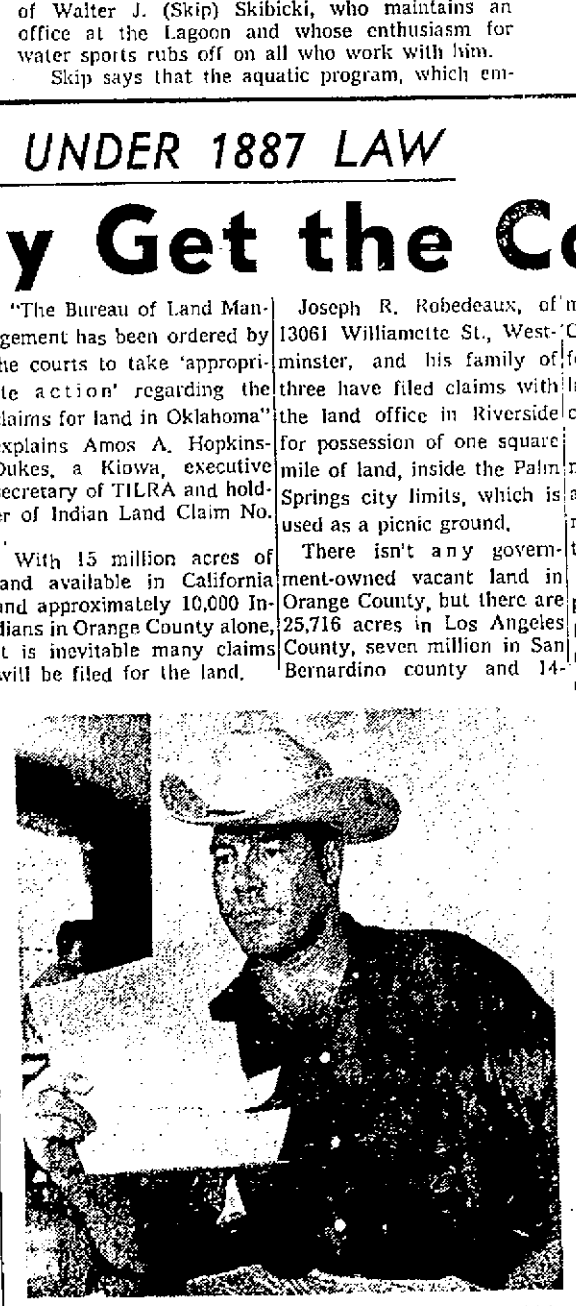

"The property may even be worthless, but to a man who has nothing now anything is something," Hopkins-Dukes continued.

"The Indian is not asking for civil rights. All he wants is his rights by law and what he has coming."

TODAY, there are 770-million acres of government land —15 million in California— that can be claimed by Indians.

The Tribal Indian Land Rights Association (TILRA), intends to see that the government keeps its bargain.

Roebuck is president of the California chapter of the recently-organized TILRA which already is organized in Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and Oklahoma.

A gang of three youths pulled two strong-arm robberies near the Pike early Saturday morning, each time approaching the victim by first asking for a quarter, then assaulting him.

Max L. Livingston, 55, of 822 Magnolia Ave., told police the trio knocked him down then escaped with his wallet containing $120. Lucian W. Marlar, 57, of 1425 E. Ocean Blvd., said he was walking with his wife, Grace, when the thugs struck him and took his wallet and her purse.

Fair Action Outline

ON SCHEDULE for Tuesday's City Council meeting is consideration of City Manager John Mansell's report on proposals for city participation in the financing of the California World's Fair.

By accepting this report in principle the Council will be laying out guide lines for constructive action which, as we see it, is the only way to assure the success of the fair project—an objective we strongly approve.

In general, this action would follow two lines:

1. Strengthen the fair organization to win wider confidence in the Southern California business community. Specifically, this calls for placing a man of pre-eminent capability and reputation in the top executive post of the fair and bringing into the Executive Committee outstanding men of the regional business community.

2. As proof of this confidence, obtain assurance of substantial private financing for the fair construction program. This in turn can be the basis of partial financing by the city through guarantees or other methods.

Such a position by the council would put the next moves squarely up to the fair organization, where they belong. The city should not undertake any further commitments to the fair unless it can accomplish these reasonable objectives.

'Shooting' The Moon

TO MOST of us who can't take a snapshot of visiting relatives without chopping off their heads in the photo or blurring the image with an ill-timed twitch, the idea of taking close-up pictures of the moon's surface with cameras moving at 5,800 miles an hour is pretty dizzying.

But the people in America's lunar exploration program have done it. The Russians, with their Kilroy complex, may claim that they have been there first, but it's not a valid claim. True, they photographed the always-hidden backside of the moon, but the image was no better than that seen of the "bright side" of the moon through telescopes on earth. The picture was taken from 40,000 miles away.

But the cameras aboard Ranger 7 photographed an area of the moon as small as 60 square feet.

There are those who will say, "So what?" But the moon-probe program, long plagued by misfortune and failure, has taken a giant step with Ranger 7. Its mission was vital, because men will some day land on the surface the cameras photographed—and up to now, no one knew just what the surface looked like.

America has done what was possible only in comic strips a few short years ago, paving the way for the accomplishment of even more startling "impossibles."

Encouraging Signs

THERE ARE encouraging signs that the further unification of fund-raising drives in this community, coming this year under the heading of "United Crusade" is producing a most favorable impact on the generosity of contributors.

This is illustrated by an incident in the downtown area the other day, involving an old-time supporter of the previous general campaign to the extent of about $40 a year.

This man sought out one of the officials of the United Crusade and handed him a check for $500.

To the flabbergasted "crusader" he explained that his vastly increased gift was offered in appreciation of the move this year which combined the former United Way and the Red Cross campaigns.

He was one of those who have complained about "too many campaigns" and when something big was done in answer to that complaint, he felt it was his move. He, also, did something big.

United Crusaders are encountering other evidences of enthusiastic acceptance of the new idea. It is to be hoped that this public reaction will tend to encourage other fund campaign sponsors to come into the unified program next year.

While specialized phases of the United Crusade are getting underway now, the general campaign comes later in the year. But now is the time for all citizens to be planning for their participation. Financial planning now will make it easier to give more generously not only in support of many worthy agencies, but in support of a splendid idea.

All Kinds of Green

(Christian Science Monitor)

SO MANY GREENS to see or risk not seeing.

The dewy green of morning beyond the window sill; the demure, preening, tidy green of lawns.

And the now-you-see-it-now-you-don't green, swift as a dragonfly, of a boy's bicycle flashing past the weathered green gate: in insolent green of street corner dandelions near the bus stop; the chic green of city awnings; the hospitable, soothing, saving green of over-populated parks.

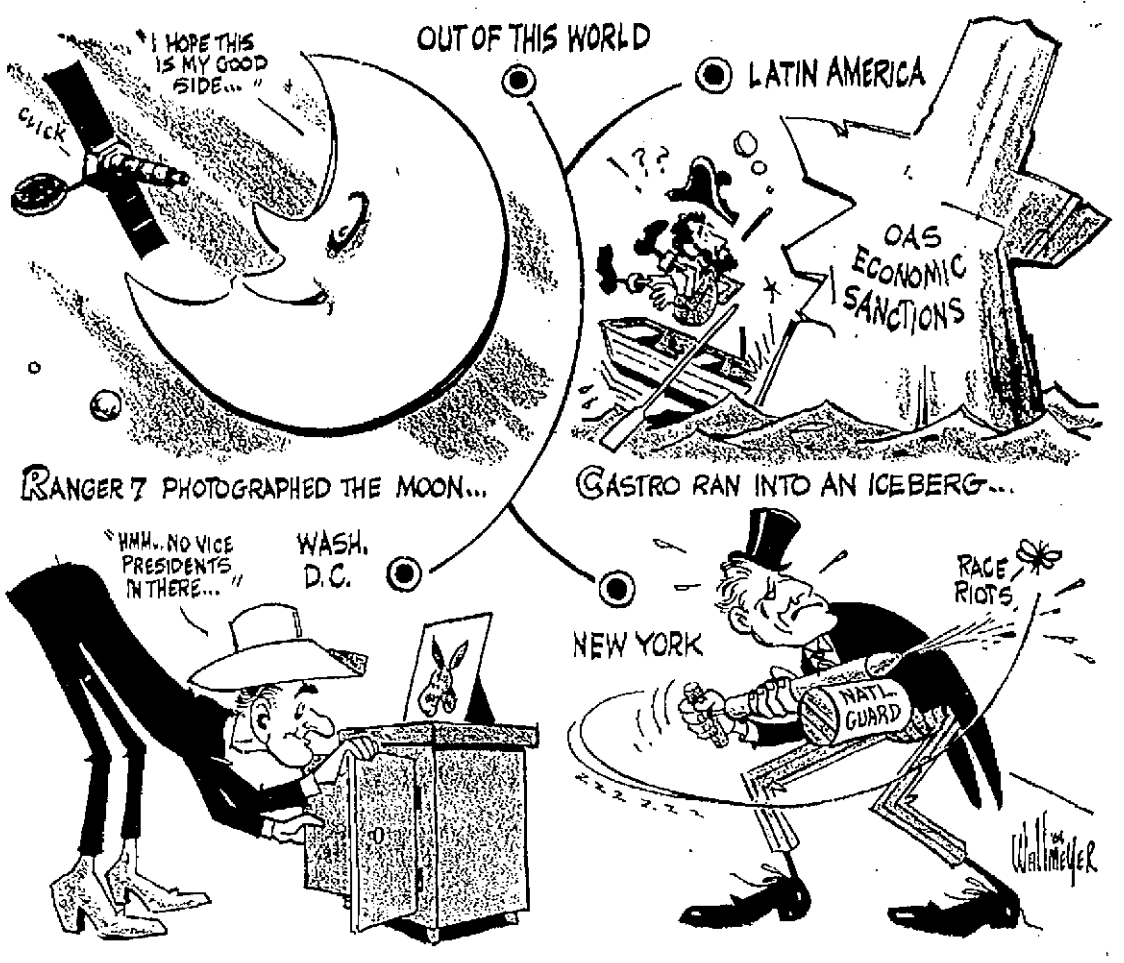

The green fingers (not thumbs) of pine and fir; the gold-dusted green of blossoming cedars; the shiny, dark green of holly hedges in bright sunlight; the soft green of lindens softer still with mists; the dark-red "green" of copper beeches and Norway maples; the blue-green of spruces.

The casual, unkempt, rebellious green of wild meadows; the gleaming green of parklands after rain; the tangy green of mint beside the kitchen door; pale, rococo-green of curly lettuce leaves in a cool pantry; the curious, important green of a clover leaf under a child's scrutiny.

The spearlike, yellowing green of rushes at water's edge; the flashing curving green of fish under the glass of a pool's surface; the gray-green of woody distances; the purple-black green of hillside forests at dusk.

So many greens to make a summer day. And to make our editorial point firm and clear: WE DO approve.

Race 'Truce' Worth Little to LBJ

WASHINGTON — Although the voluntary ban on demonstrations called for by the national leaders of Negro organizations at a conference in New York City on Wednesday is designed to help President Johnson by turning votes away from Senator Goldwater, it is doubtful whether the way chosen to achieve that objective will be as effective as it might have been if the political purpose and motive had not been emphasized.

LAWRENCE

The formal statement of the leaders of the Negro organizations called for "a broad curtailment, if not total moratorium, of all mass marches, mass picketing and mass demonstrations until after election day, next November 3."

Does this mean that the so-called "non-violent" demonstrations, which have so often resulted in violence, will be resumed immediately after election, no matter who wins? Will not "small-scale demonstrations," which some of the leaders said after their conference would be continued during the campaign period, furnish opportunities for the outbreak of violence? So long as there is a spectacular emphasis on race feelings, it may be questioned whether the emotions of the Negro communities will be quieted.

The threat to resume mass demonstrations after the election implies that only by such devices can progress be made even under Democratic administration and a Congress controlled by a Democratic majority of substantial proportions in both Houses. In fact, some Negro leaders have been quoted recently as saying, in effect, it was largely because of the tactics of intimidation exemplified by mass demonstrations that the new civil rights law was passed.

THE STATEMENT issued by the Negro leaders and read by Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, said in part:

"In our view the election contest which is shaping up is a more imperative reason for a moratorium on demonstrations than any local or state condition that has confronted our forces heretofore . . .

"We believe racism has been injected into the campaign by the Goldwater forces. The Senator himself maintains his position that civil rights matters should be left to the states—clear enough language for any Negro American."

When asked whether this statement was a call for the defeat of Goldwater, Mr. Wilkins replied: "I think that's a safe assumption."

A critical view of all this was expressed, however, by various Negro leaders in different parts of the country, many of whom said they would continue to have demonstrations.

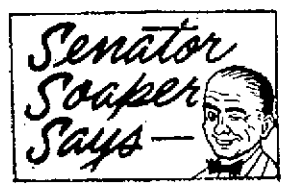

Representative Adam Clayton Powell, Democrat, who is not only a Negro preacher in Harlem but is chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor, said on Thursday, with reference to the statement issued in New York, that "the pronouncement cheapens the civil rights movement by equating it with politics." He said also that "it endangers the future of civil rights and civil rights legislation by making it (civil rights) a Democratic party monopoly." Mr. Powell declared that civil rights should be above partisan politics.

Senator Goldwater has not injected the issue into the campaign. In fact, he made a few days ago a special point of asking for a conference with President Johnson to seek to keep racial issues out of the campaign.

THE BASIC problem of race relations was present long before the Republican National Convention nominated the Arizona Senator. It has been an open political issue ever since the voters in Philadelphia divided on a Negro and white basis in a local election last November. The same kind of race consciousness has been stimulated in various parts of the country by Negro rallies and race demonstrations during the last three years.

The issue in the forthcoming Presidential campaign for many voters will be not whether the Negro shall be given equal rights as provided by certain laws of the federal government and the states, but whether the benefits of those rights shall be sought by lawful and orderly methods or by mob violence that results in looting and bloodshed.

Goldwater May Be Short of Strong Support Candidates

WASHINGTON—Goldwater unity efforts are proceeding successfully with party organizers, but they are unlikely to produce any coattails he can ride in the electoral college race.

FLEESON

In a close contest, strong supporting candidates, especially if they are in big states, can make the difference. They were almost as important as the candidate himself in Harry Truman's 1948 triumph.

The Goldwater problem is, ironically, the circumstance which enabled his dedicated band to nominate him at San Francisco and gain control of the party. It is that Republicans have been a dwindling minority for some time and notably lacking elective officeholders.

Take the Senate. With a Goldwater vacancy to be filled, only eight Republican incumbents are standing for relection this year. The two from pivotal states, Kenneth Keating of New York and Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, and from a swing state, J. Glenn Beall of Maryland, instantly expressed misgivings and will run with a high degree of independence.

Two from widely separated outposts, Winston Prouty of Vermont and Hiram Fong of Hawaii, say they will support the nominee but have deemed it wise to explain that they do not always agree with him. Three others—Roman Hruska of Nebraska, Edwin Mechem of New Mexico and John Williams of Delaware—can live comfortably with Goldwater sentiment, as presumably the nominee's replacement can. The total of their electoral college muscle is still rather slight.

Then there are the governors, with seven of 15 running this fall. Only one, George Romney of Michigan, faces a large electorate, and he is playing it cool.

So is Gov. Chafee of Rhode Island, who doubts if he can get away to the unity summit in August. Again the remainder can live with Sen. Barry Goldwater, but their states carry little weight in the electoral college.

All this, of course, makes it easier to isolate the complainants against Goldwater policy. It also helps the new party leaders persuade the organization men that they have nothing to lose by going along with Goldwater this once.

Republicans will, of course, field candidates against incumbent Democrats, not all of whom in the Senate are strongly situated. But the challengers, whatever doubts they might have, will go along with the ticket, and anyway few of them are established vote-getters.

New York and California are special situations of great importance because they are the biggest states.

New York leaders, including Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, expect formally to endorse the ticket but will allow their candidates maximum independence. They will lavish praise on Keating and on Sen. Jacob Javits, who is not up this year, and remind voters how hard all hands worked for moderation until the final decisions were made.

In California, the Republicans are badly split and their Senate candidate, George Murphy, is given little chance to defeat Democrat Pierre Salinger. Incumbent Sen. Thomas Kuchel, their prize vote-getter, is not up and has not stated his position. The aggressive California Goldwaterites, angered by Kuchel's support of Rockefeller for the nomination, have tried—and failed—to force his hand.

How Would Senate Revision Affect Lawmaking Trends?

(I. P-T Sacramento Bureau)

SACRAMENTO—One primary aspect of the legislative reapportionment controversy has been given only secondary consideration. The key issue: how a revamped Senate might affect the philosophy of future lawmaking.

McCAULEY

Deep-seated differences exist between today's rural-dominated Senate and the urban-run Assembly. Yet, the differences have been shrugged off by an over-concentration on North-South geographical rivalries.

Best tip-off how an urban-dominated Senate might affect the future course of legislation is to compare the recent voting records of the Assembly and the present rural-controlled Senate.

If the Senate is revamped so that its lawmakers are elected on a basis of population, it will be a carbon-copy of today's Assembly. The same urban pressures and philosophies would be likely to prevail — for better or worse.

UNDER THE APPARENT reapportionment philosophy of the U.S. Supreme Court edict, both houses are destined to be under control of urban areas. Both houses should be based on population, according to the court.

What does this mean? A good many capitol observers are flipping through the voter record book to determine how the rural-dominated Senate varied with the Assembly in recent years.

One theory: any bill that was defeated in the Senate but passed in the Assembly in recent years would have much better prospects for passage in a future reapportioned Senate.

HERE IS HOW the philosophies of the two houses varied on key issues in recent years:

TIDELANDS OIL—The Senate passed a bill to strip the Long Beach tidelands trust fund of all oil revenues in 1963. The Assembly beat the bill, then finally helped Long Beach negotiate a compromise settlement in 1964. Reapportionment would probably defeat some Long Beach tidelands foes.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT—The Assembly passed but the Senate defeated a bill for a moratorium on California's death penalty. Reapportionment could hasten legislation to abolish capital punishment.

WITHHOLDING TAX—The Assembly passed but the rural Senate defeated a bill to withhold state income tax from paychecks. Withholding is likely if a revamped urban Senate thinks like the urban Assembly.

PROPERTY TAX EXEMPTIONS — The Assembly generally is more disposed to pass such legislation, the Senate more likely to kill it.

PESTICIDE CONTROL—The Assembly passed a bill to curb and regulate. The farmer-dominated Senate killed it.

CIVIL RIGHTS — The Rumford Fair Housing Act cleared the urban Assembly easily in 1963. The bill was bottled up in Senate Governmental Efficiency Committee, and only was jarred loose after a Capitol sit-in of civil rights supporters. Also, both the White House and governor's office twisted a lot of Senate arms.

BILLBOARD CONTROL—The Assembly has favored in recent years, though the bill was killed in the Senate Transportation Committee.

STATE BUILDINGS — A disproportionate share of state buildings and institutions are in rural areas—especially in Northern California.

The Senate has the image of being more conservative than the Assembly, though it is questionable whether the image is justified on many issues.

FARM-AREA SENATE districts plug hard for expanding state services to agriculture. They tend to resist social-welfare programs in urban areas.

Lobbyists in the past have been more attracted to bankrolling Senate campaigns. They give more to Senators because they face election only once every four years. And there is only a 40-man Senate, compared to an 80-man Assembly. Assemblymen are on the ballot every two years.

The vastness of the 80-man Assembly makes it more difficult for a single lobby to seize control of a key committee. Also, the economy of an urban Assembly district tends to be more diverse—and it isn't as likely that an Assemblyman is beholden to a single lobbyist or interest group.

However, there are more similarities than differences between today's Senate and Assembly. Moderate leaders have dominated both houses. And except on a few issues like the withholding tax and capital punishment, the course of California legislative history probably would have remained the same even if urban areas had equal representation in the Senate.

BUT THERE IS A WHIFF of change in the air. Past Senate colleagues and friends are likely to be election-time rivals in consolidated rural districts. Urban Assemblymen will have new prestige. Many are likely to wind up with Senate seats.

One headache: it'll be difficult to tell the Assembly from the Senate in the years ahead. They will have similar interests, motivations and political bases.

CHATTER

New GOP Status Symbol

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Ex-Cmdr. Lyndon Baines Johnson of the U.S. Naval Reserves may not realize it yet, but he's practically a dead duck politically.

If the Republican convention at San Francisco proved anything at all, it was the obvious fact that you have no business in politics if you didn't serve in the Air Force.

The GOP nominee, Maj. Gen. Barry Goldwater, commands the 9999th Capitol Hill Air Force Reserve Squadron. Two other Republican nominees, Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania and Hawaii's Sen. Hiram Fong, are members of the outfit.

Another GOP nominee, Maine's Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, is a Lt. Colonel in the Women's Air Force Reserves.

And Sen. Peter Dominick, R-Colo., and Rep. Ed Foreman, R-Tex., who played prominent roles in Goldwater's victory, are also members of the 9999th Squadron.

When the Democrats catch on, it may be curtains for Navy man Johnson. Only politically redeeming factor in the President's war record is that he was awarded the Silver Star for heroism in the air over New Guinea.

But hard-core Democratic realists are already talking up Nevada's Sen. Howard Cannon, a brigadier general in the Air Force Reserves.

A NATIONALLY syndicated columnist, attending a private party after the Republican convention, was seated next to a large, dowager-type woman who asked him:

"Aren't you tired of being pushed around for the last 30 years? Won't you be glad to see a man of courage like Barry Goldwater in the White House?"

The columnist looked the lady in the eye. "Madam," he said, "you don't look like you've been pushed around for the last 30 years."

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Rightists Advised: 'Lie Low'

CHICAGO (NEA)—The word is being passed among many of this country's leading arch right-wing organizations:

"If you want to help elect Sen. Barry Goldwater as president, lie low and be quiet."

* * * *

Hargis is indeed embarking on a European tour, and thinks other right-wingers ought to follow his example.

To the political realists in these groups, the case is plain. As the 1964 Republican nominee, their hero Goldwater is well-placed. In the light of all the furor over his "fringe" following, they are anxious not to embarrass him with a tight embrace.

The point was well illustrated in the two-day meeting here of the National Conservative Council, a Virginia-born group which has made third-party noises since its inception at Richmond last February.

In the Conrad Hilton, whose spacious corridors seemed to ache for a major party convention, Goldwater's name was on buttons, paper pennants, bumper strips and delegates' lips.

Yet the whole council effort was bent toward avoiding unseemly sounds that could hurt him. Reporters were barred from some sessions and improperly advised of others. A pro-Goldwater newspaper failed to staff the meeting altogether.

* * * *

ON THE FIRST DAY, the council's executive board whipped through motions supporting the Goldwater-Miller ticket and the GOP 1964 platform. There were only three dissents out of 16 states voting.

By the second morning it was clear the council was burying the third-party idea.

But the executive board's tight-lipped management of council affairs broke down somewhat the second afternoon. Hot-eyed delegates among the 170 from 33 states on hand for full sessions refused to ratify the board's support of the GOP platform and its no-third-party decision.

They rated the platform too liberal, and wanted a third party so candidates for lesser offices could run against "Socialist" Republicans.

The upshot of this nosiy dissent, conducted behind closed doors, was that all resolutions were tabled and the entire conference abruptly adjourned — the action canceling the third day's program.

Dissidents erupted when the doors opened. One glowering man walked about, muttering to anyone who would listen: "I just want to make it clear. These people are not speaking for me."

* * * *

A TANNED Iowa farmer spoke darkly of possible Communist influence at the session: "I think maybe Khrushchev's sword came down in the middle of this room."

Another delegate could see nothing but good, however, in the fact that neat control of the council effort had failed in part. Said he: "This is better than San Francisco. This is real Americanism. You can say anything you like."

A lot was said, and a lot was heard, despite obvious attempts to confuse the press. Most delegates who spoke made it quickly evident. They regard the federal government as an enemy, hardly less menacing than Moscow. The tenor of things could best be judged from the warm applause which greeted a man who was introduced as the representative of the "Republic of Vermont."

Nevertheless, though these curious sounds broke through, the council's managers applied their noise-suppressors effectively at crucial moments. If the far-right's new program is to be "silence for Goldwater," the Chicago meeting helped launch it auspicously.

Should Defense Contractors Own TV?

WASHINGTON—It will be interesting to see whether TV and radio stations owned by the big defense contractors report on the waste of the taxpayers' money by defense contractors.

PEARSON

Some of the most important TV stations in the nation are owned by defense contractors and they have not been famous for rushing to expose the waste and inefficiency of their owners.

The National Broadcasting Company, for instance, is wholly owned by the Radio Corporation of America, which has defense orders totaling close to half a billion dollars a year. Westinghouse, another big defense contractor, owns the maximum number of TV stations permitted by the FCC; while General Electric and the American Aviation Company also go in for TV and radio stations, as well as big defense contracts.

One of the most interesting cases is that of Aerojet, which manufactures the Polaris missile and is owned by General Tire and Rubber, which, in turn, owns powerful radio and TV stations ranging from Washington and Boston to Los Angeles. Rep. Porter Hardy, D-Va., and his Armed Services Subcommittee have just exposed a $205,000 bill handed the American taxpayers by Aerojet for losses on a company cafeteria. The $205,000 is charged up to the cost of the Polaris missile during a 12-month period, 1962-63, despite the fact that an audit showed the cafeteria actually realized a profit of $71,000 in the same period.

"You don't come up with a $71,000 profit on the one hand and then turn around and say, 'No, I'm sorry, we have a $205,000 loss,' " said Rep. Hardy. "There is something funny about that kind of an operation."

"It is no surprise to us, sir," replied Air Force auditor John Mahoney, who checked the books of Aerojet. "We are prefectly aware of this."

"But you didn't say anything to Aerojet about it until after the General Accounting office called your attention to it back in June of this year. How come?" asked the congressman from Virginia. "It doesn't make any difference to you. Is that what you're saying?"

"I'm sorry if I conveyed that feeling," answered Mahoney.

"Well, you sure did," shot back Mr. Hardy.

The General Accounting Office also disclosed that Aerojet had charged the taxpayers $19,000 for hiring "coffee maids" for a few months in 1961. The excuse was that the ladies serving coffee were needed at the Aerospace Corporation plant in El Sgundo, Calif., in order to bolster morale. The maids brewed fresh coffee in "individual coffee rooms."

The president of Aerojet is charming Dan Kimball, secretary of the Navy under Truman.

This is not the first time Aerojet has been raked over the coals by the House armed Services Committee. In a previous hearing, congressmen revealed that the Navy Department had built $4,800,000 worth of government property on Aerojet's property near Sacramento at exactly the same time Dan Kimball was secretary of the Navy. While holding his government position, he retained his stock in Aerojet, thus benefited from any increase in the value of the company while he was heading the Navy.

After leaving the Navy, Kimball went back to resume his top job at Aerojet.

Because the buildings were placed on Aerojet property, the Navy had to sell them to Aerojet for a song. Obviously they could not be removed. Congressmen argued that they should not have been built on private property in the first place.

When this was exposed, no criticism of Aerojet appeared on any of the TV stations owned by the parent company, General Tire and Rubber. In fact, one commentator who had been critical of Aerojet was barred from KHJ, the General Tire outlet in Los Angeles.

It will be interesting to see whether any of the defense-owned TV stations report on the current waste of the taxpayers' money.

How to Pay for Poverty Program

EDITOR:

President Johnson has declared war on poverty. Too long the poor of our land have been neglected. Many of these folks have paid high taxes for years and deserve help. The question is, "Where shall we get the funds to provide for the needy?"

The United States of America is now helping 97 nations (at last report) with foreign aid. Some of those nations have balanced their budget, but continue to receive money from us. Why not cut off more than enough foreign aid to supply our need for the poor? "Charity ought to begin at home." When will these nations learn to provide for themselves? Many of them are prodigals.

Crime cost the fifty states 60 million dollars per day. Juvenile delinquency has increased 800% in a decade. How about a war to reduce crime? If the cost of dealing with the criminal could be reduced 50% (and it must be, and can be when we make the criminal pay), each state would have ½ million dollars a day and the Federal Government would have 4 or 5 million dollars per day.

Ninety-six per cent of our farmers do not want the government subsidy program. This should be eliminated and millions would be available for the war on poverty.

When a need arises in our family, we sit down and figure some way to cut expenses without borrowing money and going into debt. If it is good for the home, why not for the nation?

He's Proud to Be a 'Sand Thrower'

EDITOR:

I cannot pass by the opportunity to reply to that of Ginger Friedman in a recent forum. Let us examine her arguments.

She speaks of the values and ideals set down by our forefathers and reinforced by the blood of our heroes. Just exactly what she refers to here quite escapes me. A careful reading of all the historical documents so revered by Americans, from the Declaration of Independence, through the constitution, through each president's request to congress for a declaration of war, and all the literature by and about America leads one to believe that these values and ideals are in the direction of the freedom of the individual and of the government as the servant of the people.

She speaks of the fear that a bigoted few may be allowed to throw sand in our gears. I'm at a bit of a loss to understand just which gears she speaks of. If, however, the gears she speaks of are the gears driving this land of mine away from the free, capitalistic economic system (which brought this country from a wilderness to the richest, most powerful nation in all history) and toward welfare state socialism (which has never worked anywhere, anytime in all history), then you can count me among the proud sand throwers.

The final plea in her letter implores all who agree with her to rally behind Mr. Johnson so that they can truly be the cogs in the wheel of Washington. Now, this is strictly a matter of preference, of course, but if Miss Friedman relished being described as a "cog in the wheel of Washington," then I can readily understand why she would make her plea as she has. For myself, I prefer not to be thought of as a cog in any wheel, much less the wheel of Washington.

Brokers Eye Auto Talks, Hesitant Market Fades

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market closed lower last week after five days of hesitant and frustrating trading on reduced volume.

Prices opened with a loss of 4.59 in the Dow-Jones Industrial average and sagged 3.70 in the following session. Three small gains followed but were not sufficient to erase the earlier declines.

Volume contracted in all but Thursday's session, which benefited from what brokers said apparently was an early clearing of books in preparation for the weekend.

* * * *

THE GENERAL economic picture continued to be fairly good, but brokers were keeping a wary eye on the auto industry's labor negotiations. Some brokers felt the racial and political news is beginning to play a role in the market.

Following the philosophy that all good things must come to an end, some analysts were watching for a major top to form. An increasing number of brokerage letters are less aggressive and optimistic than they were earlier in the upswing.

However, majority opinion is for a continuing of the bull market following a period of sluggishness. Few of the analysts, pessimists included, see signs of any major weakness.

Dow-Jones Industrial average lost 4.54 to 841.10 and rails eased 2.68 to 217.80. Utilities finished at 149.89 up 0.53 after touching an all-time high of 150.00. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dipped 0.28 to 83.18.

* * * *

TRADING shrank to 20,755,460 shares from 22,289,750 shares the previous week and compared with 16,687,250 shares in the same week last year.

Sunshine Mining topped the most active list with a gain of 1⅜ to 24¾ on 390,200 shares. The stock has been active on rumors that a group of investors is trying to buy into the company.

It was followed in activity by Texas Gulf Sulphur, up 2⅛ to 51⅛ on 319,500 shares, Pan American World Airways, off 1¾ to 34 on 278,600, Westinghouse, up 2 to 354¼ on 221,900 and Chrysler off ⅞ to 52 on 219,900 shares.

Steels were generally firm. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem, which both issued favorable earnings reports last week, rose ⅜ and ¾ respectively. Wheeling Steel sank 4¼ on news of lower earnings for the second quarter and first half.

* * * *

MOTORS were mostly lower as traders awaited some definite trend in the talks with the United Auto Workers. Chrysler slipped ⅞, Ford lost a point and General Motors gave up ¾. American Motors rose ¼ despite lower earnings for the third fiscal quarter and nine months. Brokers said strength in the issue stemmed from hedge buying against the possibility of a strike since American's contract expires much later than that with the other major auto makers.

Chemicals shaded. Eastman Kodak lost 1¼ despite a good second quarter report. Du Pont dipped ¼ Allied 1⅜ and Union Carbide ⅜.

Oils were a mixed lot. Standard Oil (N.J.) advanced 1⅛ on record earnings and a dividend boost. Tidewater Oil rose 1⅜ on rumors British Petroleum will seek to acquire its West Coast properties. Mission Development, a large holder of Tidewater, rose ½. Socony Mobil dropped 1⅝. The first acquired Northern Natural Gas Producing, a subsidiary of Northern Natural Gas, in an exchange of stock.

* * * *

CONTROL DATA finished up ⅞ after profit-taking trimmed much of earlier gains run up after directors proposed a 3 for 2 stock split. IBM dipped 1¾. Beckman gave up 2½ and Zenith retreated 2⅛. Honeywell lost 3¾.

Among the rails, New York Central lost 1½, Chicago & North Western 3½, Norfolk & Western 1⅝, Louisville & Nashville 1⅜, Chicago Great Western 2 and Chicago Milwaukee 1⅛.

Airline shares were under pressure despite good earnings statements from Pan American, National and Trans World which dropped 1¾, 2⅜ and 1⅞ respectively. In addition, Delta lost 2⅜, Northwest 1⅞ and Western 1½.

Stores also ran into selective selling. Sears Roebuck eased 1⅜, Korvette 3⅜, Allied Stores 3⅝ and Arlan's Department Stores 2⅛. Federated Department Stores rose 3 and Bullock's advanced 5. The two stores are about to complete a merger.

Mack Trucks tumbled 6½, most of it in the final session, after the Justice Department filed an anti-trust suit to block Mack's merger with Chrysler. Mack Truck denied the department's charges that the merger would restrict competition in the truck industry and said it would fight the suit.

* * * *

CALGON soared 10¾ after directors declared a 150% stock dividend and an increased cash dividend on the new shares. Bristol-Meyers advanced 4½ on news it will seek American Dental Association recognition of its Ipana toothpaste with fluoride.

Texas Gulf advanced 2⅛ in fairly active dealings on a number of unconfirmed rumors. Curtis Publishing gained ¾. Xerox sank 11 on rumors it would cut prices on its machines. Even an announcement it will show a major new product in October failed to stem the sell orders.

Polaroid eased 4½. Corning Glass gave up 6. Filtrol picked up 5¾. Westinghouse rose 2 with the aid of some institutional buying Thursday and Friday.

27 Years Too Long to Make Up Mind

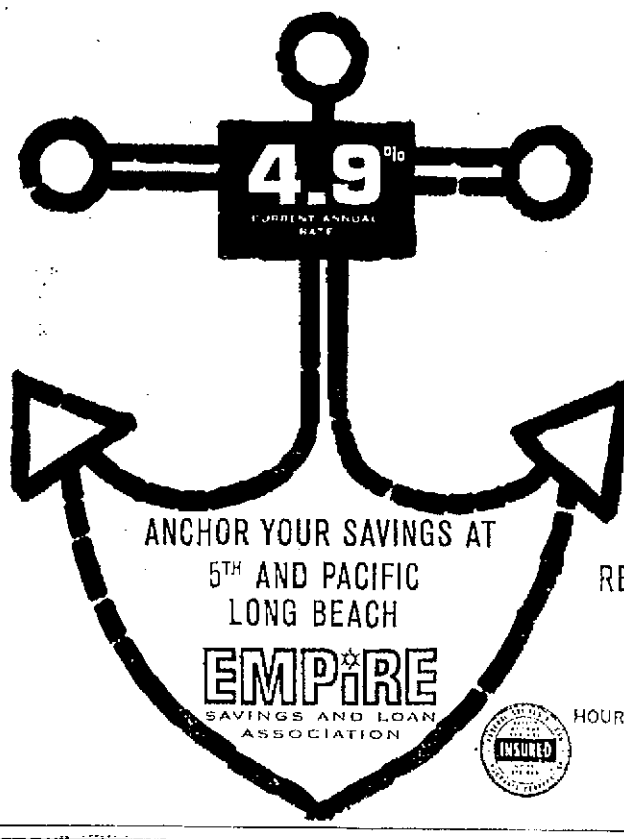

LONDON (UPI) — William Kendle, 48, lost his attempt to have his 27-year marriage annulled despite his claim that the marriage never was consummated. The judge said he "sympathized" with Kendle, but ruled he had waited too long to ask for the annulment.

Negro Women's Club Honors Stewart Udall

DENVER (AP)—The National Association of Colored Women's Clubs Inc. has named Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall as "citizen of the year."

Udall, who was honored at the association's convention in Denver, spoke in Washington June 25 at ceremonies when the association deeded the Frederick Douglass estate to the U.S. Park Service, which is in Udall's department.

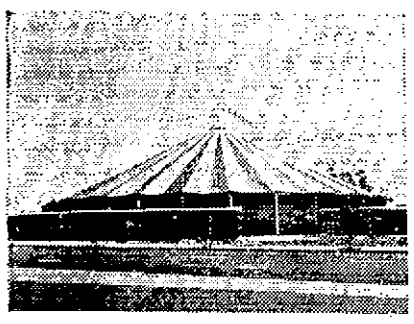

The estate is now a national shrine in memory of Douglass, a runaway slave who became a militant abolitionist prior to the Civil War. Douglass was appointed U.S. minister to Haiti after the war.

Back to the Colorado Lagoon and Lauren McCulloch:

Lauren says that she never has had a pupil who failed to learn how to swim. Many are nervous and often their parents are even worse, but once in the hands of Lauren or her fellow instructors, the children learn fast.

It's really fascinating to see the tiny tots put their hands on the bottom in shallow water and learn how to kick. Gradually they are worked into deeper water as they learn how to paddle with their hands. Then, with fear gone, it's just a matter of time until they are paddling everywhere in the lagoon.

Perhaps you wonder what Lauren does for relaxation after four or more hours in the water each day. Well, she certainly doesn't go for a swim. She is busy two nights a week taking a course in sociology. The other nights she really relaxes.

Her education and teaching career have priority over everything, even though there's a "very good boy friend" in the background. He is carving a career for himself at an out-of-state university.

DADDY OF ALL PICNICS!

Former Iowans to Convene

Natives of the Tall Corn State gather Saturday in Recreation Park for the biggest of the state picnics—the 59th annual Iowa Picnic.

Registration starts at 10 a.m. in the southwest corner of the park.

While the folks get acquainted, there will be music by two bands. James E. Son's Junior Concert Band plays at 11:30 a.m. and the Long Beach Municipal Band conducted by Charles J. Payne with Linda Sue Marks as soloist at 12:30 p.m.

The main program begins at 1 p.m. when Boy Scout Troop 49 posts the colors. There will be musical numbers, a round of speeches and then a show featuring barbershop harmony.

Vice Mayor James A. Hayes will welcome the Iowans from all over California to Long Beach, and ex-Waterloo resident Lon Peek will respond.

Recognition will be given to the oldest man and woman, the youngest child, and the person traveling farthest to the picnic.

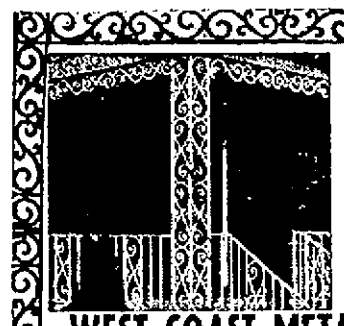

Mrs. Lucille Johnson, ex-Winfield Iowan, is emcee and the invocation will be Rev. J. R. McNichols, late of Waterloo.

Assemblyman C. George Deukmejian joins former Hawkeyes Jack Dillon (Centerville), Nelson McCook (Summer) and Tom Toborg (Ames) in a series of 10-minute speeches.

Deukmejian talks on "The Public and the Criminal," McCook on the California World's Fair, Toborg on the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce and Dillon on senior citizens.

Gang Pulls L.B. Man From Car, Beats Him

Angel A. Chavez, 32, of 1415 Molino Ave., told police he stopped his car for a traffic light at California Avenue and Anaheim Street at 9 a.m. Saturday when a gang of "eight to nine juveniles" yanked open his car door, hit him with a brick, dragged him outside and went through his pockets before escaping on foot.

AND CARY GRANT, TOO

Filmland Still Top Tourist Attraction

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is the season for visiting firemen and relatives — a time when a Hollywood reporter really finds out who and what is important.

If my experience with a flock of guests from Texas, Indiana and Pennsylvania is any criterion, the public most wants to:

1. See a movie being made, preferably with John Wayne, Jerry Lewis or Cary Grant.
2. Visit Disneyland.
3. Dine at Chasen's.
4. Dance at the Cocoanut Grove.
5. See Marilyn Monroe's grave.
6. See Rudolph Valentino's grave.
7. See a TV movie being made, preferably "Bonanza."
8. Hear a concert at Hollywood Bowl.
9. See the movie stars at Movieland Wax Museum.
10. See Tyrone Power's grave.

Grant, I found, has appeal for women of all ages—even the young ones.

Cheryl Love, a 17-year-old high school senior from South Bend, Ind., put Grant at the top of her must-see list—even over a preview of the Beatles' first movie.

"Gosh," she explained. "He's so nice and gentlemanly—and so handsome."

Her mother sighed agreement.

Wayne is the male favorite while Lewis has big appeal for the kids.

On the movie set visits, only one feminine star's name came up—and everybody knew she wasn't in town. That would be Elizabeth Taylor.

One housewife commented: "I don't approve of Liz but I guess all of us get a vicarious kick out of her public-be-damned antics. She is a star, that's for sure."

Lewis Reinjures His Knee on Movie Lot

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jerry Lewis reactivated an old ankle injury during the making of "The Disorderly Orderly" and had to shut down shooting for a week.

His associates fear that the injury may force a change in his zany style of comedy. Jerry pooh-poohs that.

"If it'll get a laugh," says Jerry, "I'll break my neck."

All Systems Go! Angels to Anaheim

By ROSS NEWHAN

All systems are go.

The Angels will make their flight to suburbia official this week.

"Our talks with the city of Anaheim are strictly in the refinement stage," revealed President Robert Reynolds this weekend. "We are no longer negotiating. There are no longer any differences of opinion on the fundamental issues and I imagine we will sign a contract shortly."

REYNOLDS

In an exclusive interview with the I, P-T, the former Stanford grid hero tackled the subject of baseball from pay-TV to inter-league play, from Bill Veeck to Walter O'Malley, from Anaheim to Seattle.

"Since the city of Anaheim accepted our letter of intent in mid-April we have never actually disagreed on any issue which might submarine the project," said Reynolds. "It's in a go stage . . . as it's been all along."

With the signing of a contract, Reynolds will lateral the ball to Anaheim and the city in turn will sign a $20 million package with a contractor (undoubtedly Del E. Webb) who will attempt to prepare a 44,000 seat stadium for occupancy in April of 1966. That's only 20 months after the proposed Aug. 15 ground-breaking ceremonies.

Reynolds, however, red-dogged the rumor that the Angels have asked O'Malley for a one-year extension of their current lease which terminates at the conclusion of the 1965 season.

"We expect certain assurances from the contractor that the stadium will be functional by 1966," said Reynolds. "Our plans call for one level parking, entrances on the same level and very minor excavations and thus we do not anticipate any construction problems of the type O'Malley experienced. People point to the Oakland project which has a two-year timetable, but again that is a multi-level stadium."

There are, of course, by products of the actual construction which could cause numerous delays. The I, P-T has learned that the floating of bonds at 3½% interest has not caused any rush on the brokerage houses.

The signing of a contract will also make popular taxpayer's suits of which O'Malley is the accepted authority.

"We are, of course, fully aware of the exigencies which may occur," admitted Reynolds. "Six months from now we will probably know for sure if we will require interim plans. At this time I would prefer moving into a stadium which is half completed rather than ask O'Malley for an extension. However, if we must go to O'Malley I'm sure he will be amenable to our needs."

It is the very hand of the landlord, however, which is driving the Angels out of bondage. The reasons for the Angels exodus have been publicized, scrutinized and analyzed and will not be repeated in length here. Reynolds did reiterate:

"We are like a boxer whose hands are tied, we have not been able to get out of our corner in the fight for the baseball dollar. We have not been able to do the things for the American League or ourselves that we'd like.

"We have been restricted in the areas of promotions, merchandising, pay-TV and sponsors. We play in a park which advertises Union Oil. One of our sponsors is Standard Oil.

"We are a separate entity but we are cast under the Dodgers' shadow for as long as we remain in Chavez Ravine."

Reynolds denies that the Angels have insisted on Webb as the contractor fearful that if the Yankee president does not win the bid he will withdraw his support from the Cherubs' move which would require eight of the 10 league votes if such balloting is necessary in the first place. The I, P-T is aware of a letter which Reynolds carries in which Webb has promised six favorable votes.

"The decision on a contractor rests strictly with Anaheim," said Reynolds. "We are not bound to Webb in any manner and should he lose the bid we still feel he will vote in our favor. We do believe that his vast experience in the construction of stadiums would be a great asset in meeting our timetable."

Since the Angels are not leaving the territory, Reynolds does not feel a vote will be necessary. Such a decision will be reached when the league meets Aug. 10 in Chicago.

Chance Tops Red Sox, 4-1, for 11th Win

By ROSS NEWHAN

Boston registered a moral victory Saturday night. They scored a run off Dean Chance.

The young dean of American League righthanders scattered eight hits as the Angels absorbed a 4-1 victory over the Red Sox before 19,863, only 12,190 of whom actually contributed to the raise Chance will receive next season.

Chance did not possess his best stuff, but what he did was enough to beat the stuffing out of the Red Sox. He threw 132 pitches but walked only one Beantown batter and fanned seven to augment his sixth consecutive conquest.

* * * *

BACK-TO-BACK homers by Willie Smith and Joe Adcock in the fourth inning featured a nine-hit Angel attack which allowed Chance some unique breathing room.

The 23-year-old ace of Bill Rigney's deck now boasts a league-leading earned-run average of 1.69 and since the All-Star recess his credentials are as astounding as the accomplishments of Ranger 7 and certainly as heavenly.

Chance has made six starts since blanking the National League for three innings. He's completed five of those games, hurled shutouts in three of them and yielded but three runs in 54 innings for an ERA of 0.66. At Dodger Stadium, he's won six of eight decisions with an ERA of 1.00.

* * * *

"I MADE a lot of mistakes tonight," said Chance, which must be the case since he yielded a run. "I came to the park with a headache and I was just throwing, not pitching."

It was Boston which left with the migraine. The Red Sox actually owed a debt of gratitude to the groundskeeper for escaping Chance's seventh shutout.

A bad-hop single by Eddie Bressoud in the second, which was destined for Jim Fregosi's glove as the final out of the frame, sent Tony Horton to third and kept matters alive. Bob Tillman then drilled a liner off Chance's right leg and as Dean looked to the outfield for it, the ball bounced towards the third-base line and Horton raced home.

The Angels wasted no time in retrieving the run, scoring off Earl Wilson (11-6) in the bottom of the second on Bobby Knoop's bases-loaded fly to right. A walk, single by Buck Rodgers and drag bunt single by Lennie Green were the ingredients in the jam.

* * * *

SMITH cracked his seventh homer into the rightfield seats to open the fourth and Adcock followed with a colossal belt which carried deep into the left centerfield pavilion. It marked Adcock's 14th homer and 297th of his career. It was also his second in Chavez Ravine, equalling Leon Wagner's production of last year.

The Angels spread some icing in the fifth. Albie Pearson kangarooed a bouncer off the plate and catcher Bob Tillman threw the ball into the rightfield corner to break Al Oerter's discus record and send Pearson to third. Fregosi followed with his 100th hit of the season, producing his 50th RBI last season. Fregosi's 100th safety also came off Wilson.

This Wilson has more trouble with Fregosi than his

'Big D' the Dupe of Phils' Bloops

PHILADELPHIA — There is a strong suspicion among the Dodgers that the Phillies sneaked in some helium-filled baseballs while waltzing to a 10-6 victory Saturday night.

The ball, about all that kept pace with the league-leaders, refused to come to earth while 10 Phillies batted and five scored in the second inning.

Victim of this disorder of gravity was Don Drysdale (who else?), which ran his losing streak against the Phillies to six games. Before that, in the days when the Phils endorsed a deodorant soap and still had to keep their distance from the rest of the league, Drysdale beat them 13 in a row.

* * * *

PHILLIES starter Jim Bunning didn't fare much better than Drysdale, except that he was taken off the hook. Bunning lasted only two innings and the ball took some peculiar hops while he was around. He was charged with four runs, two unearned.

Another oddity was that this contest became a slugging match because neither club had been able to score on its starting pitchers in 17 innings. Drysdale had been blanked by the Phils 2-0 and 1-0. Bunning was shut out 3-0 and trailed 1-0 after 10 innings in a game the Phils pulled out in the 11th.

* * * *

THE PHILLIES managed a total of 15 hits against four Dodger pitchers. The six hits in the second inning belonged in a circus side show. There were bloopers, dribblers, bleeders and chops. And Drysdale remained a lamb through it all.

With one out, Clay Dalrymple singled to center for the most legitimate hit of the inning. Cookie Rojas followed with a bloop hit behind second base. Ruben Amaro bounced a ground-rule double into the seats along the left-field foul line.

John Briggs batted for Bunning and chopped a ball over Drysdale's head to make it 4-2. Tony Gonzalez chopped one to shortstop and Maury Wills had time for a banjo lesson while waiting for it to drop. The score was 4-3.

* * * *

AFTER TWO were out, Drysdale walked Johnny Callison to fill the bases. He had two strikes on Wes Covington when Covington backed away from an inside pitch, but didn't quite make it. Covington practically stood on his ear when the ball struck his bat and sliced into left field for a two-run single that put the Phils on top 5-4.

The Phillies rally against Drysdale was so ridiculous that manager Walter Alston didn't signal for a pitcher to heat up in the bullpen.

Drysdale managed to hang around until the start of the fourth inning when gravity (or was it grabity?) again failed and brought on a nine-batter, four-run inning.

* * * *

GONZALEZ led off with a double. Richie Allen lined to Tommy Davis in leftfield, but the ball popped out of his glove for an error. Alston finally popped out of the dugout and decided it was time to rescue Drysdale, since no one else would.

Ron Perranoski absorbed the rest of the damage in the inning. It included a pinch-hit, two-run single by Alex Johnson that caromed off Nate Oliver's glove and another chop by John Herrnstein that made it 8-4.

The remainder of the game was only for laughs.

Herrnstein hit a solo home run, his fifth, for the winners and T. Davis hit his sixth.

T. Davis did succeed in knocking out winning pitcher Rick Wise, at 18 the youngest player in the league. But this wasn't too wise, either. Ex-

Gabriel Sparkles, Ram Offense Wins

By JERRY WYNN

Big Roman Gabriel more and more looks like the big man for the Rams this season.

Saturday, the sturdy 6-4 Carolina Cannonball was the whole show for Ram offense, 38-28, in the annual Chapman College Scholarship Fund game before an overflow crowd of 5,000.

Gabriel completed 12 of 19 passes for 221 yards and two touchdowns in the final tuneup for his starting pitching assignment against the Dallas Cowboys in the pre-season opener for the Rams at the Coliseum Saturday night.

And if Big Gabe needs relief, it appears that rookie Bill Munson will get the call over Terry Baker as second-string signal-caller. Munson spelled Gabriel Saturday while Baker remained on the bench for the second successive scrimmage.

Coach Harland Svare once again kept his troops working overtime as they ran off 104 plays, more than the customary scrimmage but less than the 112

A Young Girl and Karate

A 125-pound beauty from Hawaii — the only girl entered in the affair — plans to give more than 300 men all they can handle in the International Karate Championships tonight at the Auditorium.

Ruby Paglinawan, 25-year-old Filipino lass who stands 5-5, isn't the only one who thinks she has a solid chance to go all the way. The tournament directors—men who have seen (and are themselves) the best in the world — say Ruby has the same chance of victory against the 300 men as a sturdy filly like Silver Spoon in the S'Anita Handicap or Hollywood Gold Cup. A member of the distaff side has won those big events, you know.

RUBY PAGLINAWAN
Against 300 Men!

"Ruby has been one of the world's great karate artists for the past seven years," commented one expert. "She already has attained the black belt, highest degree of proficiency in karate."

Miss Paglinawan will compete in the lightweight division of the black belt competition. If she wins she'll go into the finals against the champions of the white and brown and the heavyweight black belt classes in competition for the grand championship.

(Even is she doesn't win, I think I'll ask her to visit Marlin McKeever at Orange. Unless the Rams' tight end stop slandering poor newsmen, that is.)

THE RAMS' CROP of rookies in Friday night's College All-Stars Chicago Bear contest in Chicago boast stirring credentials: all starred in a major post-season affair.

USC's Willie Brown from Long Beach was player-of-the-game in San Francisco's East-West fray . . . UCLA's Mel Profit was the leading pass receiver in the Coaches' All-American Game at Buffalo (he hauled in seven) . . . Defensive back Jerry Richardson of W. Texas St. made two interceptions in the East-West affair. . . . Roger Pillath from Wisconsin, who'll play offensive tackle for the Rams, was the San Francisco game's line star.

Opposing the Bears, however. Harland Svare's young men will be up against horses of a different color. Following on the heels of Green Bay's defeat last year and the tragic deaths of Willie Galimore and Bo Farrington, the Bears seems in a psychological position to crush the collegians this time.

PARNELLI JONES and A. J. Foyt had every opportunity to drive rear-engined cars this year at Indianapolis, yet both decided against it. They went for the so-called "old fashioned" roadsters against the advice of their friends, their own crews and the press.

In a statement issued a few days ago by Foyt, and supported by Parnelli, here's why:

"We felt we could prepare a roadster so that it would be strong enough to finish and fast enough to win, given a couple of breaks.

"I'm not saying that a roadster is a better race car than a rear-engine car. I'm just saying that Parnelli and me PREPARED our cars to win. We went over 'em three or four times, fixing things, checking everything one last time, just making sure everything was right. We KNEW what we had to do to win and we were ready. I think people make their own luck—they made theirs and we made ours, and we won."

In a rear-engined car, I still think Foyt or Jones woud have won.

THE MAGAZINE, Car and Driver, takes a nasty poke at Mickey Thompson, whose driver Dave MacDonald had the misfortune to trigger that terrible tragedy on Memorial Day. Here's that slick's editorial reaction:

"Hopefully, we have seen the last of Mickey Thompson at Indianapolis. His cars were ill-conceived and ill-prepared and have permanently marred the escutcheon of America's hot rodders.

"Even with Ford taking full responsibility for maintenance of the twin-cam engines, Mickey was utterly unable to field anything like a team of raceworthy machines. They were ugly, which is not important. What is important, is that they were totally unaerodynamic, even with their 1937 space ship styling motif.

"It has become obvious that Thompson's skill as an entrepreneur exceeds his ability as a designer constructor.

"This year he managed to seduce both Ford and the Sears Roebuck Company, but we doubt that either organization is going to leap at another chance to further finance Thompson's Folly.

"In fact, we doubt if there are many prospective sponsors for hot rodding's enfant terrible left ANYWHERE.

"But like P. T. Barnum said. . . ."

Hindsight always is better than foresight . . . for the "experts." Thompson is a pioneer who is bound to make mistakes. In defense of Mickey, I ask that magazine why Thompson's cars were allowed to even approach the track if they were so ill-prepared.

They were revolutionary, but far from ill-prepared. I think Thompson will be back at Indianapolis, maybe even as his own driver!

Bailey Stars as S.F. Bows

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bob Bailey scored three runs and slammed out a two-run homer, and Joe Gibbon pitched an eight-hitter Saturday as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the San Francisco Giants 6-1.

Gibbon, who won his eighth game, was never in serious trouble.

The Pirates got an unearned run in the third, when Bailey got on board on an error, went to second on an infield out and scored on a double by Bob Clemente.

Then Bailey started a four-run fourth with a homer that followed a walk to Dick Schofield. Bill Virdon and Clemente followed with singles that chased Giant starter Ron Herbel.

Billy Pierce relieved and gave up a two-run triple to Jerry Lynch.

BAILEY scored the other Pittsburgh run in the sixth inning, when he walked and came home on a single by Bob Clemente.

The Giants got their only run in the ninth. Jim Hart tripled and scored on an infield hit by Jose Pagan.

MARICHAL OK

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Juan Marichal, the San Francisco Giants' top pitcher, underwent extensive examination for a back ailment Saturday at Presbyterian Hospital. The tests proved negative.

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Pinch-hitter Mel Queen, a .171 hitter, smashed a three-run homer during a seventh-inning five-run rally Saturday to boost the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-5 win over the St. Louis Cardinals, who were stopped in the same inning with two runs scored and the bases filled.

Gordie Coleman singled to start the big rally and catcher Don Pavletich doubled. Leo Cardenas and pinch-hitter Marty Keough hit successive singles for two runs before Queen knocked out his second homer of the season.

THE CARDINALS threatened in their half of the seventh when three consecutive singles by Tim McCarver, Charlie James and Curt Flood filled the bases. Cincinnati relief pitcher Bill McCool forced in one run by walking Lou Brock.

Musial Comes Back for Old Timers Game

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Stan Musial will come out of retirement Aug. 9 long enough to participate in an old-timers game with members of the Cardinals and the old St. Louis Browns of 1944.

The teams met in the world series that year, the only time the world championship was contested between two St. Louis teams.

Aaron's Homer Key in Braves Victory

CHICAGO (AP)—Hank Aaron hit relief pitcher Lew Burdette's first pitch in the eighth inning for a home run and the Milwaukee Braves went on to an 8-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

It was Milwaukee's fourth straight victory and sixth in the last seven, and the Cubs' fifth straight loss.

Aaron's homer, his 17th, broke a 4-4 tie. The Braves added a run in the eighth on Rico Carty's double, an error and a sacrifice fly, and added two more in the ninth. Wade Blasingame got the victory.

THE CUBS had pulled even with three runs in the seventh off starter Denny Lemaster and Reliever Warren Spahn.

Karate Kings Invade Aud

The greatest collection of karate fighters ever assembled will compete tonight in the International Karate Championships at the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium beginning at 7 o'clock.

More than 300 of the world's best karatemen will begin eliminations in the afternoon in hopes of winning spots in the evening's finals.

Contestants come from such places as Europe, Thailand, Hong Kong, Japan, Formosa, Okinawa, Canada and the United States. Members of the U.S. Army and Marine karate teams will represent the U. S.

In addition, one girl is entered. She is Ruby Paglinawan, a beautiful filipino who lives in Hawaii. She is 5-5, weighs 125 and has reached the highest degree of proficiency in karate — the black belt.

Titles will be won tonight in both lightweight and heavyweight divisions of white, brown and black belts. The division champions then will fight for the grand championship.

Some of the early favorites are Takayuki Kubota and Zenpo Shimabuki of Japan, Algen Caurillo of Hawaii, Quai Wong of Canada and U.S. entrants Pat Burleson and Al Steen.

In addition to the fighting, special demonstrations will be given by legendary teachers Jhoon Rhee of Korea, Bruce Lee of Hong Kong, Tsumo Ohshima of Japan, Anthony Mirakian of Okinawa, Ed Parker of Hawaii and Ben Largusa of the Philippines.

Dutch Count Badly Hurt in Prix Flip

ADENAU, Germany (AP) — John Surtees of Britain, driving an Italian Ferrari, won the pole position Saturday for today's Grand Prix of Germany on the Neurburgring course.

Surtess surpassed the course record for Formula One cars when he drove his red racer around the 14.17 miles in 8:38.4 for an average speed of 98.67 miles per hour.

One veteran driver, Count Carel de Beaufort of Holland, was seriously injured when his Porsche rolled over several times and he was thrown out.

Jim Clark of Scotland, defending world champion, made the second-best time of 8:38.8, an average of 98.42 m.p.h. Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif., driving a Brabham Climax, won the third place in the front row of starters with 8:39.3, averaging 98.3 m.p.h.

Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif. qualified with a time of 8:52.7 in a Cooper Climax.

APPEAL LIKELY IF TITLE TIFF BANNED IN 'VEGAS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Boxing promoter Jack Doyle Saturday said he may appeal directly to Nevada Gov. Grant Sawyer if the State Athletic Commission turns down his bid to stage the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston rematch in Las Vegas.

Doyle said he expects the World Boxing Association (WBA), of which Nevada is a member, to withdraw its suspension of Liston at the WBA convention Aug. 26-30 and to sanction the return bout.

Earlier this week, Art Lurie, chairman of the Nevada Commission, said he would rather resign than see the match promoted here. Later, however, he said the commission would consider the proposal if the WBA removed its objections and if "certain other requirements" were met.

Lurie said Liston would have to appear before the commission and explain his "poor showing" in losing the title to Clay last Feb. 25 in Miami and also assure the group that he had severed all financial connections with Philadelphia restaurateur Sam Margolis.

"Frankly," Lurie said today, "I understand (Egyptian President) Nasser would like to stage the fight in Egypt. That would be a good place for it."

WYNN

Man to Man

CHANCE

By JERRY WYNN

A baby-faced Angel with a heavenly right wing, Dean Chance is streaking like a comet across the Southland summer sports skies.

The 23-year-old pitching prodigy has been so good that now you can read about him in the sports section instead of the financial, society and "help wanted" pages.

Chance has been so good that Angel fans are calling him one of Southern California's two* great pitchers.

Chance has been so good that Angel moneybags Gene Autry, thinking ahead to Dean's contract next year, is reported to be negotiating a loan from Rick Reichardt.

How are things on cloud nine these days, Dean?

"Things couldn't be better. We're just starting to make our move now, and I'm very, very happy with my pitching."

Has there been a key to your success this season?

"I think the main thing is experience. I'm not making the mistakes I once did. I'm more relaxed out there. I'm pitching to spots more and making the batters hit my pitch. And don't forget the help I've received from our double play combination, Jim Fregosi and Bobby Knoop. They're fantastic."

At 23 and with only 2½ years in the majors, when do you feel you will reach your full potential as a pitcher?

"I honestly don't know if I can ever pitch any better than I'm doing now. What's my ERA since the All-Star game? (Ed. note: 0.65.) I've been fortunate to get such a young start in the majors and to have such a good pitching coach as Marv Grissom."

Did you have any idols among pitchers when you were a boy?

"Yes. Bob Feller and Bob Lemon. I was born and raised in Ohio and was a fan of the Cleveland Indians. Both Feller and Lemon were great pitchers for them."

Who do you consider the best pitchers in the game today?

"Whitey Ford and Sandy Koufax. Ford's just fantastic and Koufax has more ability than any other pitcher."

Which hitters give you the most trouble?

"Al Kaline used to have my number and Carl Yastremski of the Red Sox and Pete Ward of the White Sox always are tough on me. Lou Clinton, when he was with the Red Sox, used to kill me."

Are you looking forward to the Angels shift to Anaheim?

"Yes. I think the people in Los Angeles have treated us very good, but this is O'Malley's ballpark. He was here first, and he's got the fans. When you are brought up with a club, like I was with the Indians and the fans here are with the Dodgers, your hearts are with them. I think in Anaheim, the Angels will have that same feeling of belonging. I think we will draw much as the Dodgers."

Bill Rigney has accused the Southern California press of being partial to the Dodgers. Do you agree?

"No. I think the Angels have been treated great. I know I have been. But as I said, when we have an identity of our own in Anaheim, we'll be treated better yet."

Your name is linked with Bo Belinsky as the stormy petrels and young rebels of the Angels. Do you enjoy this notoriety?

"All I want to do is to pitch. If I get my name in a headline, I want it for pitching . . . nothing else. The only trouble I've had is a personal salary dispute with Fred Haney. I felt I deserved a raised, and said it. I just wanted to do what I considered right. Now I have a pretty good raise and I'm very happy."

What do you think of Belinsky?

"I think he's just great. Bo's my best friend, and he's done more for me than anybody except my mother. After the season is over, we're going to go together on a billiards exhibition tour. Bo will play and I will narrate. We've got a million bookings lined up. It should be fun and relaxing for us and a good thing for billiards."

A great thing for the Angels in young Dean Chance.

BEARS, COLLEGIANS CLASH FRIDAY

Halas Says 'We'll Go All Out'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Even the head coach of the College All-Stars football team, Otto Graham, won't predict a victory over the Chicago Bears Friday night, but the 31st match between the pros and collegians will be the opening gridiron spectacle for another packed house.

The usual 75,000 fans, the majority of them from out of the city, will pack Soldier Field for the annual tussle between the champions of the National Football League and the pick of last year's collegiate crop, coached for the seventh straight season by Graham.

The collegians have won only eight games of the 30 played so far and only once have won two in a row, in 1946 under the late Bo McMillin and in 1947, when Frank Leahy was coach. Thus the fact that Graham's team broke a four-game losing streak with a 20-17 win over Green Bay last year could be a bad omen.

But Graham had other reasons for pessimism. "We're not as big as last year," he said, "we've had more injuries, and we haven't progressed as far."

Added to this was the determination of the Bears, badly shaken this week by the death of two players, halfback Willie Galimore and end John Farrington, in an automobile crash. They were asked by coach George Halas to dedicate the season to their deceased teammates, and the All-Star game will be their first opportunity to display their skills.

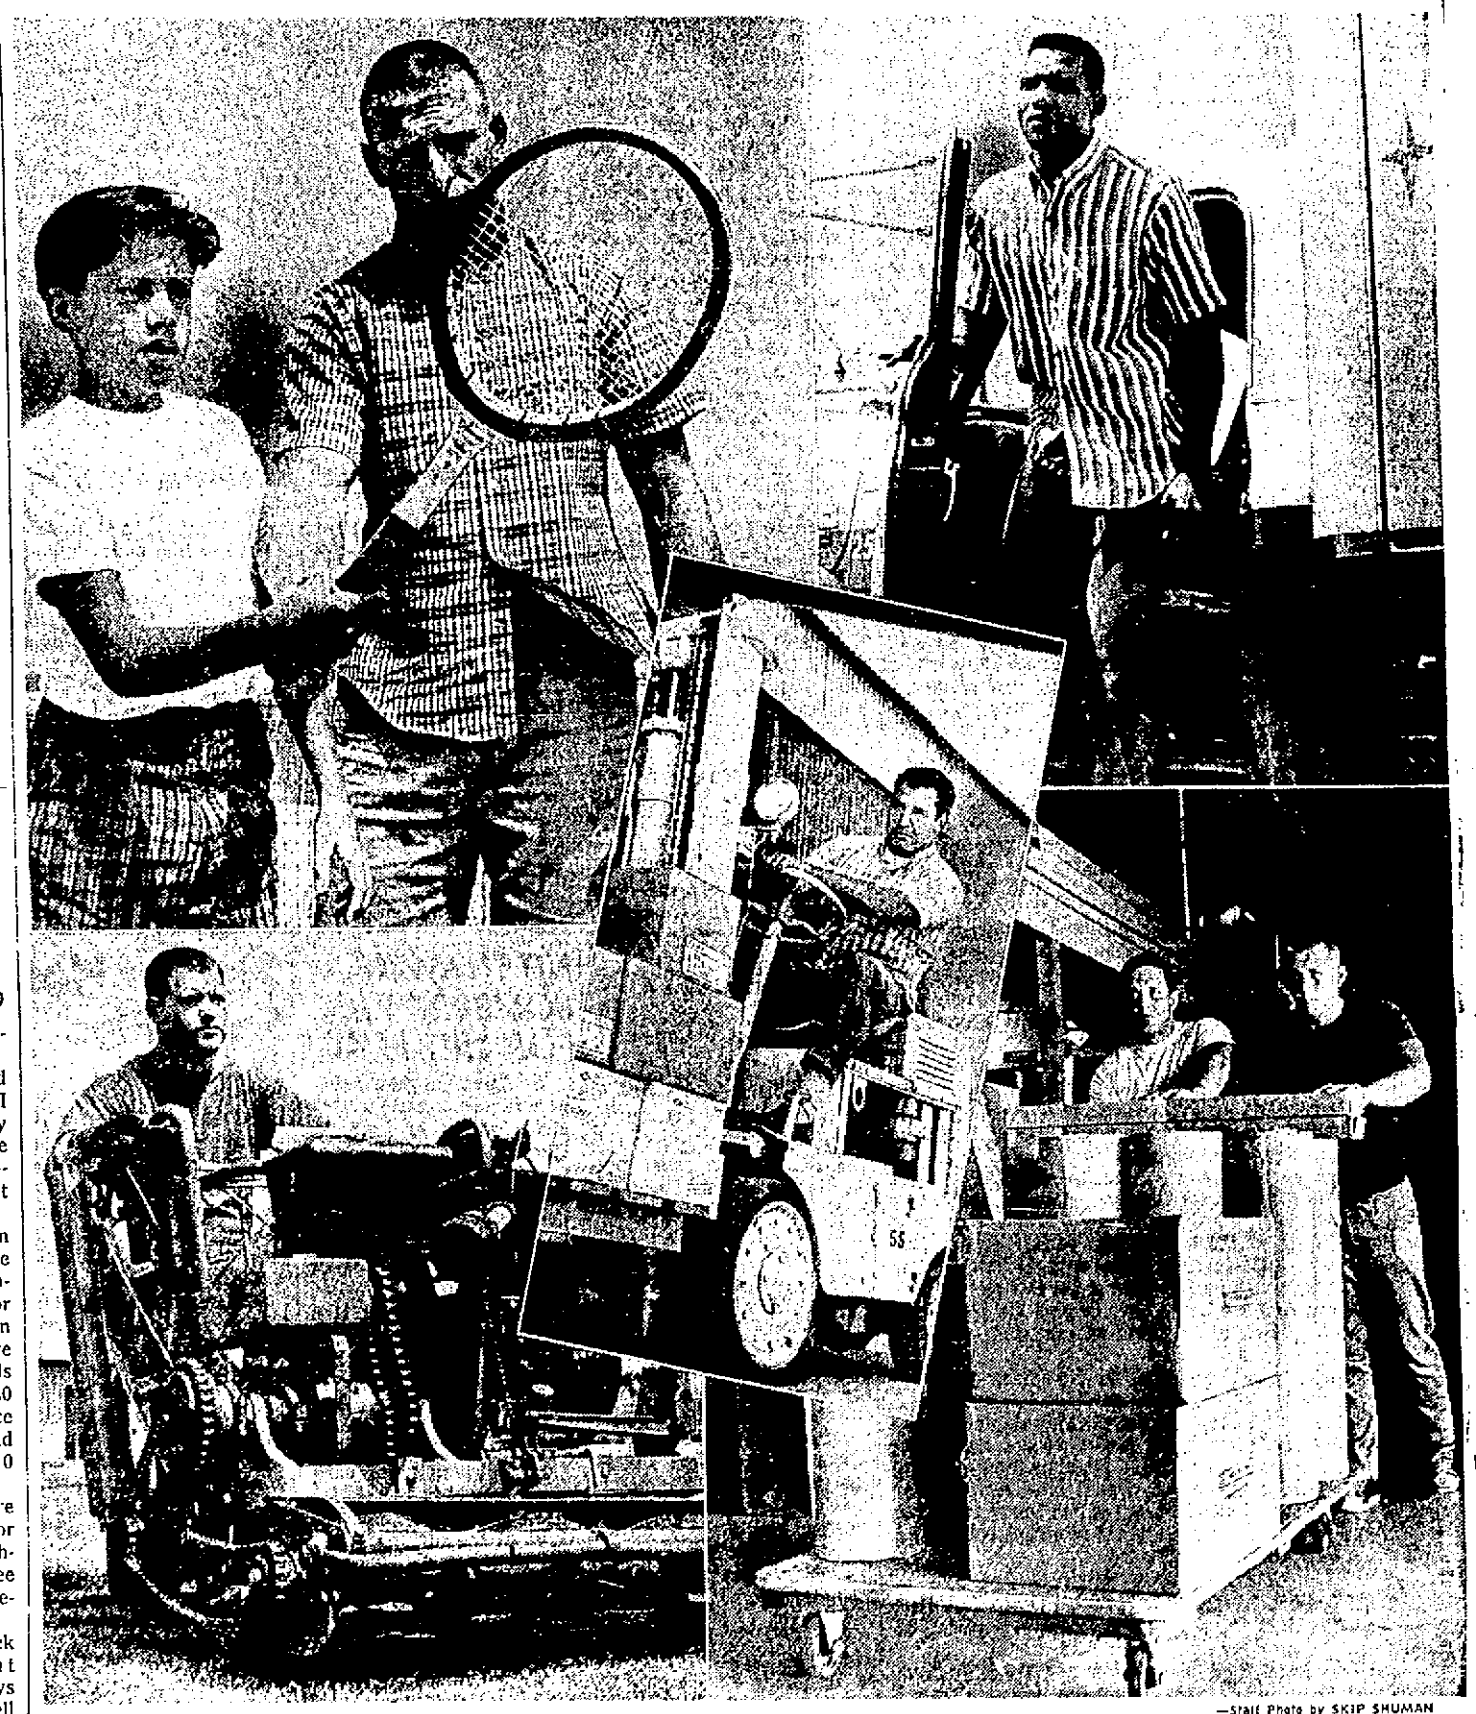

"We can't afford to lose two games in a row to the All-Stars," Halas said. "We'll go all out for it."

This year's College All-Star team has some fast backs, Ohio State's Matt Snell, Southern California's Willie Brown and Kansas State's Willis Crenshaw among them, some big linemen, Louisville's Ken Kortas, Texas' Scott Appleton, Minnesota's Carl Eller, and Texas A.&M.'s Ray Kubala among others and three quarterbacks with potential, Miami's George Mira, Southern California's Pete Beathard and Boston College's Jack Concannon.

I, P-T ON SCENE

Hank Hollingworth, I, P-T executive sports editor and outgoing president of the Southern California Football Writers, will travel to Chicago to give a first-hand account of the College All-Star Game.

GRID ROUNDUP

Hornung Shines as 27,000 Watch

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—Paul Hornung, Green Bay's slightly tarnished Golden Boy, made a spectacular return to action Saturday night by leading the Packers' offense to a 16-9 victory over the defense in the National Football League team's annual intra-squad game.

A crowd of 27,000 watched as Hornung kicked two field goals and an extra point, caught three passes for 64 yards and gained 60 yards rushing in eight carries.

HORNUNG

Hornung, who sat out last season after being suspended by NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle for gambling, looked stronger than he did the last two years he was with the Packers. Hornung seemed at least as fast as ever, and the knee he seriously injured in the 1962 campaign gave him no trouble.

The Packer offense was shackled to a great extent by a strong defense that scored one touchdown on a fumble recovery by rookie John Baker of Virginia Union at Norfolk, and on a safety when linebacker Lee Roy Caffey tackled quarterback Zeke Bratkowski in the end zone.

Quarterback Bart Starr, who came on strong at the end of last season after breaking his hand midway through the year, was also impressive, as he completed nine of 16 passes for 115 yards. Fullback Jim Taylor was the leading rusher with 61 yards in 13 carries.

* * * *

HORNUNG made an impressive start by carrying for 22 yards on the first time he took the ball. The second time he was involved in action he kicked a 47-yard field goal. He added another of 13 yards later on, and Allen Green booted a 47-yard field goal late in the game.

Other pro grid highlights:

49ers—John Brodie connected on 5-of-9 passes and Bill Kilmer ran for 37 yards and passed for a TD in a one-hour drill. . . . The two quarterbacks showed no signs of last year's injuries.

Browns—Quarterbacks Frank Ryan and Jim Ninowski completed four touchdown passes in a 45-minute scrimmage. . . . Flanker Clifton McNeil caught four passes, one for a TD.

Vikings—A doctor attending Tom Franckhauser, who suffered a brain hemorrhage last week, said the defensive back continues to show steady improvement . . . The former Rams was removed from the hospital's serious list.

Steelers—A 45-yard scoring pass from Bill Nelson to Ode Burrell highlighted a two-hour scrimmage.

Giants—A large crowd of 14,000 saw Aaron Thomas catch a 35-yard scoring pass from Y. A. Tittle and a 70-yard payoff pitch from Glynn Griffing to highlight a 90-minute scrimmage.

Lions—Traded Tom Hall, a three-year veteran, and rookie Bruce Zellmer of Winona St. College to Minnesota . . . Both are defensive backs.

Eagles—Quarterbacks King Hill and Norm Snead completed 19 of 41 passes in a wide-open 90-minute scrimmage, which produced four touchdowns, three through the air.

Cowboys Romp Over Semipros

THOUSAND OAKS (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys held controlled scrimmages with two semipro teams Saturday, defeating each by the score of 34-0.

In the first game against the San Francisco All-Stars, the Cowboys' first-string quarterback Don Meredith completed 12 out of 14 passes for 247 yards, including one 50-yard touchdown throw.

Stars of the second game against the Orange County Rhinos were quarterbacks Sonny Gibbs and John Jacobs. Each connected with six out of nine passes.

4 BEEFY BEARS GET $50 FINES

RENSSELAER, Ind. (UPI)—The price of beef is running high in the Chicago Bears football training camp.

Owner-coach George Halas fined four players $50 each Saturday for failure to reduce to the prescribed playing weights.

Halas would not reveal the weights, but fines were plastered on rookie guard Steve Barnett for being 11½ pounds overweight; end Ed O'Bradovich, 4½; halfback Billy Martin, 3, and tackle Herman Lee, 3.

"I'm tired of fooling around with these men," said Halas, preparing his squad for the All-Star game in Chicago's Soldier Field next Friday night.

"If any of them wants to save himself $50 a day, all he has to do is get his weight down where it belongs. Each day they are over the limit it will cost them $50."

plays consumed Wednesday.

"This team is in good shape," said Svare, "but I want to see how well they will play when they are tired. Things were better today than the last time, but still not what I want."

Gabriel's touchdown passes accounted for the only touchdowns. He connected with Dick Bass for 44 yards and Duane Allen for 32. The other offensive points came on field goals by Danny Villanueva of 20 yards and rookie Bruce Gossett of 16 yards and one point for each of 10 first downs.

The defense points were accumulated two each for stopping the offense without a first down and three each for two fumbles recovered.

The Ram ground attack fared poorly again, but only basic running plays were used and all are well known by the defense.

A slight laceration to rookie linebacker Marv Harris was the only injury.

Moffitt Pressed, Faces Richey Next

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (UPI)—Billie Jean Moffit of Long Beach, and Nancy Richey of Dallas, seeded one and two won semifinals matches Saturday in the Eastern Grass Court Championships at Orange Lawn Tennis Club.

Miss Moffitt capitalized on a wicked return of service to down Mrs. Carole Caldwell Graebner of Santa Monica, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1. Miss Richey defeated former Wimbledon winner Mrs. Karen Hantze Susman of San Antonio, Tex., 6-4, 7-5.

Unseeded Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, and fifth-seeded Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., upset a pair of U.S. Davis Cuppers in men's singles.

Graebner eliminated Frank Froehling, No. 2 seed from Coral Gables, Fla., 19-17, 7-5, 11-9 in a 3½-hour marathon. Ashe ousted defending champion Eugene Scott of St. James, N.Y., 11-9, 6-4, 6-4.

* * * *

GRAEBNER literally wore down Froehling, a gangling 6-foot-5 Trinity, Tex. College student. After a trade of service breaks in the eighth and ninth games of the 90-minute first set, Froehling's backhand failed him completely in the key 36th game. He made four forehand errors and lost the set.

Carrero eliminated top-seeded James Rombeau of Studio City, Calif., 6-4, 7-9, 6-4, Saturday. Avoyer earned his final berth with a 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory over fifth-seeded Stanley Pasarell of Puerto Rico.

DEMPSEY'S HEART AILS AFTER ILLNESS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jack Dempsey disclosed Saturday night he has cancelled all engagements because of a heart ailment brought on by his recent severe attack of bronchitis.

"It's the first time in years I've had to call off engagements because of illness," said the 69-year-old former heavyweight champion.

7 BIRDIES IN 10 HOLES

Floyd's Surge Ties Palmer, Collins

MONTREAL (UPI) — Ray Floyd, a strapping 21-year-old from St. Andrews, Ill., fired his second consecutive three-under-par 68 Saturday to share the third-round lead in the $50,000 Canadian Open golf championship with scrambling Bill Collins and Arnold Palmer.

All three reached the 54-hole mark with a total of 209 strokes, four under par for the tough 7,090 Pinegrove layout.

Right behind them at 210 was Australian Kel Nagle, who shot the day's best round, a five-under-par 66 which tied the competitive course record also equalled Friday by Bill Casper.

Floyd started the day at 141, three strokes behind the front-running Palmer and Collins. He quickly made up the deficit by hitting birdies on three of the final eight to settle for a tie.

"That front nine was the finest I've ever played in my life," said Floyd.

Yanks' Keystone Combo Best in Baseball

One of the most important keys to the continued success of the Yankees is their brilliant defense. Time and again, spactacular fielding plays wipe out threatening rallies by their rivals.

This was never more evident than in their series with the Angels the past week at Chavez Ravine . . . as both the infield and outfield turned in tremendous "saves" that led to two victories in three games.

BOBBY RICHARDSON
'Twins' With Tony

Even though Mickey Mantle has been slowed down by leg injuries, he and Roger Maris and Tom Tresh still form one of the top defensive trios in the game today . . . perhaps in the last decade.

And the infield is rated by some baseball men as being the equal, if not superior, to any on defense in the history of the game . . . what with Clete Boyer, one of the truly great fielding third basemen, and the fabulous keystone combination of Tony Kubek at shortstop and Bobby Richardson at second base.

There are many fine second base combinations in the game, but Kubek and Richardson must be rated head and shoulders above the others. For one thing, there isn't another duo in the majors who has played together as long.

They first teamed up at Denver in 1956 . . . and while both are thought of as "old veterans," Kubek is only 27 and Richardson 29. Barring mishaps, they should be around for another four or five years.

THE SECRET OF DEVELOPING a topnotch keystone cambination is getting to know one another. "It's the things you learn about each other that is important," Richardson explained while waiting his turn at the batting cage. "Little things," he went on, "that probably go unnoticed by the average fan. And you can't mesh these things together unless you've been at it a long time.

"When we first teamed up in '56 . . . well, it sort of had an air of permanence about it. We just seemed to click right from the start," Bobby said. "We made mistakes, of course, but we could feel we were getting better every day. I think that's because we worked so hard at improving our techniques.

"We talked a lot about the plays we had made. In fact, we'd hardly talk about anything else after a game. It was a case of living our jobs . . . going over the problems on the field as well as discussing new ways of improving ourselves. Those talks we used to have led to renewed efforts the next day on the field."

Bobby maintains it is not absolutely necessary for a second baseman and shortstop to play together for a number of years to gain extra quality in their play.

"IT'S JUST A CASE OF ONE GETTING accustomed to the ways of the other. If they're both real major leaguers, it won't take long for them to develop the kind of technique they need to get along together. One of the best new combinations I've seen in several years is the Angels' Fregosi and Knoop, who are in their first year together. But they're catching on fast.

"As for me and Tony . . . well, I can tell you just about how he will react on any given play. And he knows what I'll do. We know, for example, how the other is going to get rid of the ball on the various double play chances. More important, we know exactly how to time our runs to cover the bag so we can get there at just the right instant. And we know how to give the pivot man the ball so his throw to first base will get there with the most on it."

Richardson points out that the first thing any keystone combination must do efficiently is "to understand who is covering the bag once the pitching sign is given.

"Instinct also plays a big part once you have been together a few years, too. This leads to those fielding plays which the average fan would label 'impossible,' but which we can pull off because we know what the other man is going to do in what situation and where he's going to be to take the throw."

BOBBY ADMITS THAT he's so used to Kubek that when another man is at shortstop, there is a period of adjustment.

Joe DeMaestri, Phil Linz, Boyer and Tresh all have performed there on occasion during the past three years . . . "and while all are fine shortstops, the speed of their throws to me covering the bag were just different enough from Tony's to throw me off for awhile," Bobby reveals.

"No shortstop in the game makes the same play like the next fellow . . . and not getting rid of the ball just right may ruin a double play and cost you a game."

There are no other two fielding positions in baseball that depend so much on the other and as Bobby says, "good shortstops can bring out the best in a second baseman . . . and it's also true the other way around. Timing and togetherness. They pay off on the crucial plays—the ones that save games!"

LONG DISTANCE RUNNERS LEAD WAY AS . . .

Lil' New Zealand Olympic Threat

By BRIAN HUMBERSTONE

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—With two Olympic champions back in form and with a strong rival for each, New Zealand's medal hopes for the 1964 Olympic Games at Tokyo center on the middle and long distance running events.

The largest team ever—68 athletes—will represent New Zealand in 11 sports. The highest hopes are pinned on such men as Murray Halberg, Bill Baillie, Peter Snell and John Davies.

Snell and Halberg were the winners of the 800 and 5,000 meters at the Rome Olympics four years ago. They have trained solidly through what is the winter season here.

Last summer Snell was troubled by a stomach ailment and had a poor season. His best effort was a 3:58.5 mile in which he beat Davies, who has made outstanding progress in the past year.

The selectors granted Snell his wish to be nominated for both the 800 and 1,500. He has given little indication which he will choose and might try for the difficult double.

A year ago it seemed unlikely that Halberg would make a serious bid for a place on the Olympic team. He formed an organization for crippled children and although this has taken much of his time, Halberg has shown he still is a great runner.

At an Auckland meeting, without any serious competition for 12 months, he clocked 27:32.8 for six miles. Later he ran an impressive 10,000 meters on a heavy track in 28:56. He has been selected for both the 5,000 and 10,000 meters.

Baillie, chosen for the same events, never has competed in the Olympics. Since his withdrawal from the six miles at the 1962 British Empire Games with a leg injury, he has had a remarkable string of successes.

He won the New Zealand cross-country championship, won in America over Jim Beatty and Bruce Kidd, took the 5,000 meters at the Little Olympics in Tokyo, and he has run the world's fastest 20,000 meters.

Davies no longer is regarded as an understudy to Snell but as a formidable rival to him over a mile or 1,500 meters. He had a good season in New Zealand and was too strong for the visiting American runner, Cary Weisiger.

Barry Magee, who won the bronze medal in the marathon at Rome, has not shown good form in this event and will be only a reserve behind his brother-in-law, Jeff Julian, Ray Puckett and Ivan Keats. Magee will concentrate on the 10,000 meters, in which he has had some good times.

Brightest prospect among New Zealand's four women track and field Olympians is Marise Chamberlain. She has beaten Australia's world record holder for 800 meters, Dixie Willie.

Avis Porter in the 80-meter hurdles and 100 meters, Doreen Porter in the 100 and 200 meters and Valerie Young in shot and discus are consistent performers who possibly could take medals.

Other sports thought likely to yield medals for New Zealand are rowing, yachting and swimming.

New Zealand oarsmen have done well in Commonwealth Games competition, though they have had no success in the Olympics since the war. Yachting will have Peter Mander, 1956 Olympic Sharpie champion, in the Finn Class and Helmer Pedersen in the Flying Dutchman Class. Both have good intenational records.

New Zealand's leading swimmer is Vivien Haddon in the women's breaststroke.

RECORD 46.4 BY LARRABEE; GROTH LOSES

LONDON (UPI)—Mike Larrabee of the Southern California Striders set a track record of 46.4 seconds Saturday in winning the 400-meter run as a special guest running in the Ireland vs. England and Wales track and field meet.

The bespectacled Larrabee took the lead at the halfway mark and won by 15 yards over Graham Plows and Arthur Metcalf, both of the England-Wales team. Plows was timed in 47.9 and Metcalf in 48.0.

Morgan Groth of Oregon State lost a close battle to George Kerr of Jamaica in the 800-meter run. Kerr got in front in the last 10 yards and won in 1:47.7 as Groth was timed in 1:47.9.

202 Feet by Babka, Rambo 6-7

OXNARD — Field events highlighted the Oxnard Sports Festival track and field meet Saturday, and veteran discus thrower Rink Babka was voted the outstanding athlete of the meet.

Babka, of the Pasadena Athletic Association, got off a throw of 202 feet, 3½ inches. It was the second best of his career.

Hal Connolly, world record-holder in the hammer throw at 231 feet, 10 inches, had to settle for a best Saturday of 218-7.

Other top marks of the meet included John Rambo, Southern California Striders, 6 feet, 7¼ inches in the high jump; Larry Stuart, Striders, 253 feet, 11 inches in the javelin, and Ronnie Morris, Striders, 16-8, in the pole vault.

Osuna Gives Mexico Split With Aussies

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Rafael Osuna, the reigning U.S. singles champion, swept over Australia's Fred Stolle in straight sets, 6-2, 7-5, 6-4, Saturday and brought Mexico a split of the opening singles matches in their American Zone Davis Cup semi-finals.

Roy Emerson of Australia, generally considered the world's No. 1 amateur, got the Aussies off to a quick start with an 8-6, 6-3, 6-3 conquest of Antonio Palafox.

The doubles match will be held today, doubtlessly matching Osuna and Palafox against Emerson and Stolle. The final singles in the best-three-of-five eliminations are scheduled Monday.

THE OPENING match, in which Palafox was clearly out of his depth, lasted only 90 minutes. A crowd of 3,500, including President Adolfo Mateos, looked on.

Osuna covered the court like a cat and his placements kept Stolle off balance. His service was at peak fault, while Stolle double-faulted a half-dozen times, once losing a game because of it.

NITEHAWKS, BOMBERS VIE FOR 3RD PLACE

A trip to the International Softball Congress world's championship in Rock Island, Ill., will be the prize for the winner when the Long Beach Nitehawks and the Etiwanda Bombers meet in a sudden death playoff game tonight at 8:15 at Park Ave. Field.

The teams finished the season with a 17-11 mark, tied for third place. But third place must be determined before the ISC State tournament next weekend as the team finishing third will not have to participate in the state.

The Nitehawks have won three of the four meetings this year, but the Bombers have their ace Ritchie Stephen ready to hurl the big one tonight.

Stucker Hot, Salta Rips Compton

Joe Stucker hurled a five-hit shutout and his teammates jumped on two Compton pitchers for 13 hits as Salta Pontiac pummeled Compton, 14-0, in a Stan Musial League game at Juan Rodriguez Park Saturday night.

Stucker fanned nine, walked only one and had a perfect night with two hits in two appearances. The win was his second against one loss and he has now gone 12⅔ innings without allowing a run.

Al Goldberg drove in five runs with a double and triple, and Don Anderson hit his eighth homer of the year and had three RBI.

It was a revenge win for Salta over Compton. Coach Joe Hicks' nine was upset last Sunday by the Hub City team, 6-2. Salta is now 28-13 on the year and 10-7 in the league. Compton is 2-11 in loop action.

tributed any propaganda," revealed Reynolds. "My belief that the owners will approve our move goes clear back to St. Louis when we were first granted the franchise. Even at that time the owners voiced concern regarding the difficulties facing two teams operating in the same stadium. Those concerns have been realized and I'm sure the owners will be happy to see us put an end to them."

While the Angels (and you must recall that the Rams' Dan Reeves is a voice in this organization and vice versa) have not swept head-long into the area of pay-TV, they are keeping a far-sighted eye on the boob tube.

"If we were currently interested in pay-TV our hands would be tied by O'Malley. We'd be forced to negotiate with his company (STV) under his terms and, of course, our financial renumeration would be nowhere nearly as great compared to our negotiating with a company of our choice on our own," stated Reynolds.

"We are patiently sitting and watching pay-TV's development," continued Reynolds. "We do not feel it's program content makes it sellable on a grand-scale yet. We certainly feel it will someday be an extremely lucrative area and we'd be foolish to say we're not interested. That day, however, is still a few years away."

It is Reynolds' opinion that baseball has yet to take proper strides with free-TV let alone the meter type.

"I can't see further expansion because too many owners are still burning over the players they lost in the last draft, but we must counteract pro football's use of a national vehicle (TV) by selling our product on a national scale," insisted Reynolds.

"We could do this by accepting inter-league play on a limited basis. What greater way would there be for us to restore the game to its national position than by presenting the fan in Houston with an opportunity to see Mickey Mantle and the fan in Cleveland with the opportunity to see Sandy Koufax.

"There are too many fat-headed people in baseball who talk of a national game and then turn their back on these ideas because it might take a dollar out of their pocket. I'd like to see Veeck stop talking of frying eggs on dugout steps and talk baseball sense.

"I also think the American League is out of its head if it doesn't relocate one or two teams on the coast. Seattle is ready. The league and the Angels need such a rivalry. I think you might see some action in this regard at the Chicago meeting."

Don't be surprised if the Seattle Indians open the 1966 season against the California Angels in a half-completed Anaheim stadium.

DODGERS UNLUCKY IN LOSS

Dodger Ed Roebuck entered and set down the last eight without yielding a hit.

* * * *

THE DODGERS, now 10 games back and in seventh place, send rookie Larry Miller (1-2) against John Boozer (1-1) this afternoon. It figures to be a tough assignment for Miller. The Dodgers have defeated the Phils only three times in 10 matches this year and Sandy Koufax has had a hand in all three. He won two, one a no-hitter, and saved the other, a shutout for Joe Moeller.

DIS AND DATA—Phils second baseman Tony Taylor, hit on the mouth by a bad hop bouncer Friday night, was given the night off. Taylor's upper lip was swollen considerably and he complained of a sore jaw, but his teeth were intact. He may be able to play Monday night.

Alston hit about 50 fungo flies to Derrell Griffith to replace him for his first start using an outfielder instead of Reynolds. Frank Howard was pitching batting practice. Dodger trainers designed a special bandage—gauze, sprayed with plastic—to protect John Roseboro's still tender finger.

T. Davis extended his hitting streak to 11 games. Wills ran his to 11, but Oliver was stopped after nine games. Paid attendance was 32,030, the third largest turnout of the year and the largest for a single game.

Lancers End Home Season

By FRANK WHITNEY

The Lakewood Lancers close out their 1964 Western Softball Congress home schedule by hosting the Oxnard Merchants at Mayfair Park tonight at 8:15.

Lakewood clinched second place by beating the Long Beach Nitehawks Friday night, 3-1. The Lancers' record is 18-6 as compared to front running Gardena's 21-4 so Lakewood must win tonight to remain mathematically in contention for the championship. The Lancers have four games to play while Gardena has three.

Art Bunge (5-2) is the probable starter for Lakewood in tonight's game. He sports the league's best ERA at .098.

Lakewood Wins in Pony Tourney

Mike Parks, whose brother Jim starred at Lakewood High and LBCC, hurled Lakewood to a 4-3 victory over Pico Rivera in the Pony League Regionals at Cabrillo Park in Rossmoor, Saturday.

Lakewood will meet unbeaten Long Beach today in the championship game at 2:30 p.m. If Lakewood wins another game will follow.

King went three-for-three, including a double, to drive in two runs.

In the opener Aaron McGuire drove in three runs to give Rusty Disbro and Fullerton an easy 6-1 victory over Pico Rivera.

Three More World Swim Records Fall

LOS ALTOS (UPI) — Three more world records toppled Saturday under the drive of American swimmers as they finished their third day of competition in the men's and women's combined national AAU swimming championships.

It brought to eight the number of official world records that have been smashed. The final group of events is set for today.

The biggest record shattering performance Saturday was by 17-year-old Marilyn Ramenofsky, a a Russian-Polish girl born in Phoenix, Ariz. She bested the world mark in the 400-meter freestyle with a timing of 4:41.7 against the old mark of 4:44.5 set by Chris Von Saltza in 1960.

Don Schollander of Santa Clara, making big gains on the turns, shattered his own world mark in the 200-meter freestyle when he was timed in 1:57.6. His old mark, set last year, was 1:58.4.

* * * *

SHARON STOUDER of the City of Commerce trimmed an All-Star field to break the world mark in the 100-meter butterfly for women in 1:05.4. The world mark, held by A. Kok of the Netherlands was 1:06.1 set last year.

Schollander beat some of the finest sprinters in the world en route to his victory. Roy Saari of of El Segundo was second in 2:00.1; and Murray Rose, the talented Australian, was third in 2:01.8.

"I won it on the turns, said Schollander. "I rocketed out of the turns every time and that made the difference. I had hoped I would do it in 1:57."

It was Schollander's second world record of the meet. Saturday he set a new international standard in the 400-meter freestyle.

MISS STOUDER, a powerful little blonde, also ran away from All-Star field. Donna de Varona of Santa Clara and Sydnee Arth of Anaheim, deadlocked for second but they were nearly three seconds back at 1:08.1.

World record - holder Tom Stock of Indianapolis failed to qualify in the finals of both the 100 and 200- meters during trials.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Another Marlin Record in Atlantic

John Battles, of St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, apparently has set a record for blue marlin in the Atlantic. He got a billfish weighing 814 pounds in a Virgin Islands tournament last Sunday. He fought the fish for one hour, five minutes on 80-pound-test line.

It was 13 feet, 8 inches long and 69 inches in girth. It topped by four pounds an Atlantic blue caught off Hatteras, N.C., by Gary Stukes in 1962. That fish was 13-1 in length and 68 in girth.

The International Game Fish Association draws a fine line between blue of the Atlantic and the Pacific blue. As a matter of fact, the IGFA calls the east coast fish just a "blue marlin," but it adds "Pacific" to the one that is caught off Hawaii.

Jack Whaling, Glendale, turned that little trick just two months ago off the Kona Coast when he landed a world-record Pacific blue (1,095 pounds) in 90 minutes on 110-pound-test tackle. The Hawaiians laugh at you if you try any line that is lighter.

The annual Hawaiian International Billfishing Tournament is just a few days away and there will be 67 to 70 teams competing Aug. 10 through Aug. 15 off Kailua-Kona, Hawaii. George Hoag II and wife, Patty, will be representing the Balboa Angling Club for the third time.

DR. PAUL SOUTHGATE, chairman of the Southern California Tuna Club's inter-club albacore tournament today and that's for today only—is hoping the longfins will show in numbers for the 10 teams which will be fishing, but he, like others, has doubts about it.

The albacore picture today is obscured by about 200 to 300 miles of ocean, which means that few boats, even the big private cruisers, will be able to run that distance and return. Even if they could, the fish would be illegal for the SCTC tournament because the boats would be in Mexican waters, not those of the U.S.

J. E. (Mac) McClintock, Pierpoint's general manager, gave the Tuna Club a rundown on the situation at its luncheon last week. As everybody knows, the longfins moved into the area around the 43-Mile Bank last weekend and all boats from every landing capable of making the run scored with heavy catches, both jig and bait.

The water temperature changed practically overnight and the albacore, not liking the 70-degree stuff, sought cooler areas. On Thursday and Friday those cooler areas, said McClintock, were 20 miles west of the Dumping Ground, which is west of Todos Santos Island, off the Baja California coast.

One bright spot in the situation turned up at midmorning Friday when Cookie Cook, skipper of Pierpoint's America, radiotelephoned that 40 passengers had 49 longfins aboard. He was 90 miles from Long Beach on a course 150 degrees from San Pedro Light, well within Mexican water, and were then six hours out.

HARRY AND FRANCES BUFFUM had the time of their lives at Boca Grande, a resort on Gasparelli Island off Fort Myers and Sarasota, Fla., catching tarpon for 15 days.

Harry told the Southern California Tuna Club about it at the Thursday luncheon. He said that Vaile G. (Bud) and Marjorie Young joined them for five days.

In those five days each angler averaged 4½ fish a day, one-half a fish down from what the oldtime experienced anglers do. Mrs. Buffum caught the largest—a 125-pounder.

They fished the shallow between the island and the mainland and Harry said that he believed the tarpon to be equal of any fighting fish in the ocean.

"The tarpon is a mighty and splendid fish while you are fighting him," he said, "but is not worth anything once in the boat. Nobody bothers to keep any unless it is for pictures or a mount. Practically all fish are released to fight again."

He is having a mount of a small 33-pounder done for the SCTC room in the Lafayette Hotel.

Oddly enough, the charter-boat skippers use a live bait, called the squirrel fish. If that is not available, a crab about the size of a dollar is used on a 4/0 hook. It's up to the angler to use whatever rod, reel and line he may choose.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—Paul Miller, former graduate and sailing coach of the United States Naval Academy, has returned to Long Beach and has established an Academy of Sailing at San Miller's Sailboats, Long Beach Marina (Bazaar Building). He also has started a sailing course at Holiday del Rey, Marina del Rey.

Paul is offering the courses to adults and children seven days a week with accelerated programs to families on vacation. He says that even though yacht clubs are conducting sailing courses, there are just too many persons asking for instruction and that there are just not enough teachers to go around. He and his wife, Peggy, plan to make Long Beach their permanent home.

The Kern River, both above and below Isabella Lake, has been yielding some lunker trout to residents of this area, says Barbara O'Donnell, of the Kern Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Some of the catches: Wayne Ferrin, Lomita, 5-pound, 1-ounce brown at Camp James; Dick Hansen, Long Beach, three rainbows, largest 5 pounds. An 8-year-old Kernville girl hooked a 7-pound rainbow at the Kernville bridge and her 10-year-old brother had to land it for her. Several anglers got limits of nice trout in the Brush Creek area.

Fish learn to recognize and avoid lures, but often a big old lunker falls for an oldtimer that has been on the market for years. Also, never underestimate the value of a gob of worms or a lively night crawler.

Newport Paddlers Set Pace

By DAVE TAYLOR

The Newport Outrigger Club dominated a field of five canoe club entries in the first State Championship Outrigger Regatta at Long Beach Marina Stadium Saturday.

The regatta, sponsored by Kalifornia Outrigger Assn., was originally to have been held in the ocean just north of Belmont Pier. The event was moved to Marine Stadium at the last minute when Long Beach City officials and the KOA ran into insurance snags.

Newport Outrigger Club's senior six captured the state championship by paddling the two-mile senior men's sprint in 13 minutes, 31 seconds. Santa Monica Outrigger Canoe Club was right behind at 16:32. Balboa Outrigger Club crewmen finished third.

* * * *

IN ALL, Newport Club paddlers took first place in five of the seven regatta events, while Santa Monica captured two first places.

The Newport and Santa Monica oarsmen took the spotlight as favored Southland crews to meet the challenger of Hawaiian clubs that will field boats in the sixth annual Channel Race from Catalina Island to Newport Beach scheduled Aug. 23.

Final standings:

Novice Men (half mile)—Newport Outrigger Club, 3:45; Santa Monica Outrigger Canoe Club; Balboa Outrigger Club.

16-years-and-under (half mile) — Newport, 4:05; Santa Monica; California Canoe Club of Marina del Rey.

* * * *

MISS Smirnoff, with Bill Cantrell at the wheel, had trouble at the start of 1-C and conked out.

Miss Exide and Miss Eagle Electric gained 400 points each for their first place efforts.

SAD MORAL OF HORSE RACE BETTING:

You Can Win, But Still Lose

NEW YORK (AP) — The recent disqualification of the first three finishers in a race at Delaware Park emphasizes the hazards of betting on horses.

You can win, but still lose.

This fact has been generally overlooked with the recent big payoffs in the twin doubles, such as the $132,232.80 April 28 at Roosevelt Raceway, a harness track in Westbury, N.Y.

This is the world record pay-off for a $2 bet, but don't think the group that collected bet just $2. It could happen, of couse, accounting for the interest of the small bettor in the TD. But ordinarily you have to bet a bunch of combinations at two bucks per to hit the jackpot.

In the case of the $132,232, the seven men in the group revealed they had bet $160 worth of combinations.

On top of everything, you have to be lucky, too.

For instance, there was a man who had four winners one night and still didn't cash a ticket. He didn't bet the horses straight but just played them in the daily double and twin double. He had one-half of the DD and three of the four winners in the TD. He won but still lost.

In another case, a bettor had four winners and collected on each—but he lost, too. It was a simple case of having only $2 on each winner and $20 on each losing race.

There is another case on record of a bettor who hit a five-horse parlay—ask any horse player the odds on that—but didn't collect a nickel. Why? Another easy answer—the last horse was disqualified.

And how about the player who collects a $20.20 daily double but loses $3.80 because he bet 12 combinations for $24?

The bettor accepts these hazards as part of the game, however, as attested by the steady increase in betting and attendance in the annual year-end surveys by The Associated Press.

In 1963 a total of $3,927,324,774 was bet at the nation's thoroughbred and harness racing tracks by 56,976,363 people. The various states collected in revenue $316,570,791 from this nearly $4 billion. Another $150 million or so went to the tracks, leaving $3.4 billion returned to the bettors.

If anyone shows a yearly profit betting the races, he understandably keeps it quiet. Usually the money that goes back to the bettors in effect passes around as in a poker game with 15 cents being taken out of each pot for refreshments. Sometimes someone hits a streak, but if he keeps betting, eventually he will lose.

The New York Racing Commission banned the daily double on thoroughbreds in 1946 because "it had assumed the proportions of a gigantic numbers game." But it was restored after a year because of popular demand.

Few horse players fail to grin at this story related years ago by Toney Betts of the defunct New York Mirror.

A friend marked the program for a newcomer to the tracks. In the first race he circled No. 10, "a cinch." In the second, No. 3, "you can borrow money on this one." In the third, No. 7 "will win by 20 lengths."

In the fourth it was No. 1, "a copper-riveted certainty." In the fifth No. 8 "will lead all the way." In the sixth No. 9 "as sure as death and taxes." In the seventh No. 5, "shift in weights make him a standout." In the eighth No. 2, "can't lose."

For the ninth and last race the pick was No. 4 "GET EVEN WITH THIS ONE."

Sizzling Win by Soldier Girl

16,238 See 3-Length Triumph

By ERNIE MASON

An elusive filly stole the glory from her male counterparts at Del Mar as Mr. and Mrs. John Tusquellas' Soldier Girl "double-timed" to an easy victory in the second division of the Oceanside Handicap before an impressed throng of 16,238, largest "first Saturday" crowd in this seaside track's history.

Soldier Girl, piloted by John Longden, negotiated the six-furlong distance in 1:08 4/5, a full second faster than the time registered by Royal Eiffel in capturing the opening section of the event for three-year-olds.

The swift daughter of Guerrero, lone distaffer in either division, blazed to the front a few steps after the start and improved her position thereafter, hitting the finish three lengths in advance of Sir Echo. Timely Pie was third.

SOLDIER GIRL, owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Tusquellas, was the 3-5 favorite and returned $3.40, $3.20 and $3, while Sir Echo, ridden by Eddie Burns, paid $4.60 and $3.40 and Timely Pie paid $5.60.

Royal Eiffel's victory was accomplished in reverse fashion from Soldier Girl's, the Eiffel Tower colt rallying from well off the pace to win by 1½ lengths over War Helmet, with Emphil's Lodge third.

Royal Eiffel, a 6-5 favorite, was in sixth place early as Emphil's Lodge and Me 'n George duelled for the lead. Jerry Lambert, Army private on leave from Ft. Ord, urged Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hart's colorbearer into contention rounding the far turn, moved between horses in the stretch to take command and was drawing out at the end.

ROYAL EIFFEL rewarded his backers with $4.40, $3.20 and $2.40, while War Helmet paid $4.60 and $2.80 and Emphil's Lodge paid $2.80.

Bold Experience Shatters String by Queen Empress

Compiled From Wire Reports

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP) — Bold Experience, a daughter of Bold Ruler from C.T. Chenery's Meadow Stable, got a measure of revenge Saturday when she snapped Queen Empress' string of victories at six and won the $100,000 Sorority Stakes for two-year-old fillies at Monmouth Park in record time.

The Meadow filly went into the six-furlong race with a record of three victories and three seconds in six starts, but she twice had bowed to the Queen.

Queen Empress, even-money favorite of the crowd of 30,717, had to settle for third money in the field of seven as Mrs. Milton Erlanger's Rhodie finished second after setting the early pace. Bold Experience, under the lashing drive of Bobby Ussery, scored by 2½ lengths with Rhodie another two lengths in front of Queen Empress.

The winner, earning $60,000 to boost her bank account to $130,340, paid $8.20, $4 and $2.40. Rhodie, also previously unbeaten in three starts, returned $3.40 and $2.40. Queen Empress paid $2.20 to show.

STANLEY CONRAD'S Old Hat, scoring the greatest triumph of her career, completely scrambled the championship filly and mare picture Saturday at Delaware Park when she captured the $121,930 Delaware Handicap by 1¼ lengths.

Old Hat, ridden by Buck Thornburg and carrying the lightweight of 113 pounds, paid $36, $10.20 and $6.20. Miss Cavandish, meeting older stars for the first time, returned $4 and $3 and Waltz Song $11.60. The time for the 1¼ miles was 2:04.

LAUGH ALOUD, a son of Tom Fool with a liking for grass race courses, closed with a rush in the Saturday for a two-length decision in the $29,450 Lexington Handicap at Aqueduct. Time was 1:43.

The crowd of 50,103 made Laugh Aloud the second choice. He paid $8.60, $5.20 and $3.80. Gun Boat paid $27.20 and $15.10 and National returned $5.60. Frenchbred Point du Jour, the favorite, was fourth.

FIRM FOUNDATION for this ROUND TOWER

BACKTRACKING IN TIME, above picture shows intricate web of steel forming 130-diameter foundation mat for 34-story Tower apartment building under construction at 660 E. Ocean Blvd. More than 385 tons of Bethlehem Steel Co. reinforcing bars were placed by Rebar Contractors to strengthen this mat, now covered with concrete and inner core of round high-rise being built by Henry Sassoon. Foundation picture was taken some weeks ago. Now, (see photo at right) core has been built nearly 300 feet high. Steel framing work is under way. Tower will contain some thousand tons of reinforcing bar supplied by Bethlehem. In photo at right, the 600 E. Ocean apartment building recently completed by Sassoon is seen at left of Tower. At far right stands Villa Riviera, long a coastal landmark in Long Beach. Angle from which photo was taken makes Tower appear much higher than the Villa; but actually they will be about the same height—a little over 300 feet above beach level.

IT TOOK two weeks of round-the-clock work to slip-form the 34-story inner core of The Tower, now under construction at 660 E. Ocean Boulevard by owner-builder Henry Sassoon.

The $7.5 million, 126-foot-diameter round building will contain more than 1,000 tons of Bethlehem Steel Co.'s reinforcing bars to strengthen the foundation mat, floor slabs, and inner and outer core walls.

Construction of the outer core wall will be with the slip form technique. Circular post-tensioned floor slabs will be poured in place by a "drop slab" method.

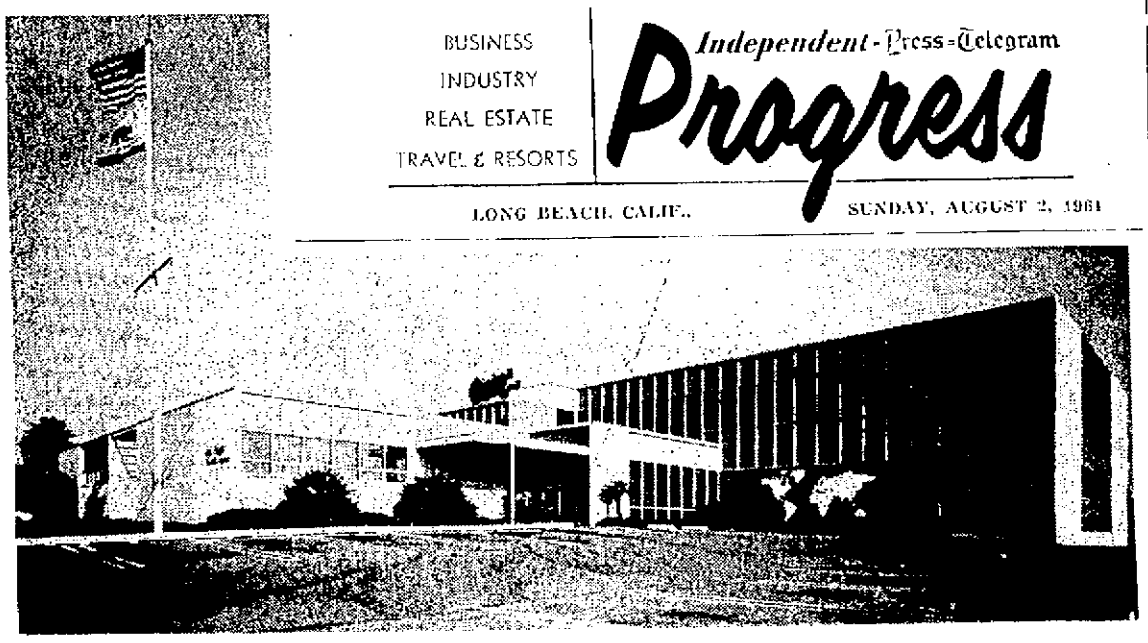

In this technique the first slab is poured at lobby level then raised to a predesignated floor. There it becomes a form for that floor's slab. The initial slab is lowered to act as a form on each succeeding floor level, until it reaches the first typical floor again.

Floor slabs above the original predesignated level are poured in the same manner.

Designed by Carl B. Troedsson, architect, The Tower will have four garage levels with a 216-car capacity, one lobby floor, 25 typical apartment floors for 200 apartments, one penthouse floor for four apartments, plus a roof and machinery level. A helistop is planned for the top level.

Columns are steel box girders 24 inches square set back 10 feet from the perimeter of the building. Exterior will be glass curtain wall, recessed to form a continuous balcony.

T. Y. Lin & Associates is the structural engineer. Reinforcing steel was placed by Rebar Contractors, Inc. Completion is scheduled for early summer of 1965.

Condominium History Made as Residents Assume Management

A milestone in Southern California real estate history was passed last week when, for the first time, management of a major privately financed condominium project was turned over to its individual home owners.

Developer Ray Watt of Hawthorne announced that management and administration of the $19 million community of Scottsdale Town Houses now is in the hands of the condominium residents.

Scottsdale Town Houses, a 600-home development, is at 23400 Avalon Boulevard, corner of Sepulveda, in Wilmington. The maximum population is expected to be approximately 3,000, making Scottsdale a city within itself.

* * * *

THE TRANSFER of authority and control come after an organization meeting of the residents, held in accordance with the management agreement signed by condominium owners at the time each home was purchased.

A 15-man board of Governors, all residents of Scottsdale, was elected by majority vote of the home owners.

At the organization meeting and election, held in the Scottsdale Town Hall, Watt traced the steps which led up to the history-making action to the more than 800 adults.

* * * *

"THERE WAS VERY LITTLE precedent for the steps we have taken and are taking," Watt said. "We have pioneered together in determining both the legal requirements and practical plans necessary to make your home ownership and hopefully your lives at Scottsdale Town Houses the rewarding experience we all wish them to be.

"When this concept of a privately financed, owned and operated condominium community was first advanced two years ago," Watt recalled, "we immediately began planning for this final step. The management agreement was prepared to assure you that you would indeed be administering your own affairs here, and at a pre-determined time.

* * * *

"DURING THE PAST several months, we have worked closely with you in the formation of your many committees and groups to give you the opportunity to work together and prepare for the management responsibility."

Heart of Scottsdale Town Houses is its Town Hall, which serves both as a recreation center and a meeting place in the tradition of the Old New England Town Hall meetings.

Prior to the organization meeting and election, members of Watt's legal staff and other corporate executives

WORLD'S LARGEST TUNA CANNER

Sea Food Company Notes 50th Year

By VERN ANTHONY
Editor of Progress Section

Van Camp Sea Food Co., with international headquarters at 840 Van Camp St., Port of Long Beach, is celebrating 50 years of leadership in the United States tuna industry.

The firm, world's largest tuna canner, began packing tuna June 6, 1914, in a plant located near its present cannery facilities on Terminal Island.

* * * *

TODAY, the Long Beach offices direct a constantly expanding worldwide organization employing more than 5,000 persons.

From its beginning in San Peedro, the company has expanded operations to include facilities in Puerto Rico, American Samoa, Ecuador, Peru, Sierra Leone, Ivory Coast, Palau, Indonesia and Aden, with others planned within the near future.

During these 50 years its brands have become the world's most popular tuna, with an annual consumption of more than 200 million cans.

* * * *

THE FIRST long-range bait boat tuna fleet was sponsored by Van Camps in the mid 20's. They also were the first to encourage the use of refrigeration to insure the highest possible quality and increase the vessel range.

Van Camps introduced purse seining for tuna on the Pacific Coast and were the first to pack light meat tuna—now the most popular tuna packed.

They were the first to launch a world wide network to find the best possible tuna.

* * * *

THE MAN behind the men who wrote the 50-year success story was Gilbert C. Van Camp, Sr., who was honored last week with a 50-year service award, presented by Gilbert C. Van Camp, Jr., who assumed the presidency of the company in 1957.

The Van Camp Sea Food Co. became a division of Ralston Purina Company, St. Louis, in July, 1963.

Retired Rear Admiral Named to Supervise Shipyards Work

SAN PEDRO — A retired Navy rear admiral has been employed by Todd Shipyards to supervise the company's construction of 14 destroyer escorts.

John T. Gilbride, company president, announced in New York that Leroy V. Honsinger has been named manager of shipbuilding, effective Saturday, to coordinate engineering, planning, procurement and production in the project announced last week.

SEVEN of a total contract for 26 destroyer escorts of a new DE-1052 class will be built in the company's San Pedro yard, and seven more will be built in its Seattle yard. The Seattle division will be the "lead yard" in the program and will build the prototype, Gilbride said.

Honsinger's 40-year career in the Navy included a stint as commander of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard in 1954 and 1955. He spent more than 20 years in shipyard assignments of an industrial management capacity and 10 years in Washington, D.C.

Since his retirement, he has been with a Watertown, Mass., firm as manager of production and purchasing.

Employes Share in Cost Savings

Employes at the Kaiser Steel plant in Fontana received an extra $291,909 last month as their share of cost savings made in steelmaking operations during June under the Kaiser Steel-United Steel workers Long Range Sharing Plan, it was announced by company and union officials.

The $291,909 was distributed among 5,191 participating employes and averaged 34c an hour. The 34c an hour was divided into cash payments averaging 23c per hour, with 11c an hour going into the wage and benefit reserve earmarked for employe benefits negotiated since the start of the plan.

Employes' total share of the cost savings was nearly the same as May, but double the April share of cost savings.

50-YEAR SERVICE AWARD

"The man behind the men" is symbolized by a 50-year service award presented to Gilbert C. Van Camp Sr. by Gilbert C. Van Camp Jr., president of the Van Camp Sea Food Co. This special award was made during celebration of the 50th anniversary of Van Camp Sea Food Co., Port of Long Beach. The company, now the world's largest tuna canner, began canning tuna in the Long Beach-San Pedro area June 6, 1914.

ELECTION CAREFULLY PLANNED

Developer Ray Watt (left) explains advanced planning that went into preparation of ballots used for election of the first Board of Governors at Scottsdale Town Houses. Direct interest was shown by Mrs. Verna Warner, chairman of the Scottsdale Women's Club; Howard Frantom, chairman of the Residents' Nominating Committee, and Jack Moyer, management agent. Management of condominium project of 600 homes was turned over to individual residents last week.

Matson Again Pares Hawaii Freight Rate

Another Hawaii freight rate reduction which, in effect, wipes out the 9.8% increase that went into effect March, 1962, has been announced by Stanley Powell Jr., Matson Lines president.

This rollback will save Hawaii rate payers $3.5 million per year.

"This reduction coupled with other rate adjustments made by Matson since 1962 will save Hawaii's rate payers $7.2 million a year," Powell said.

A comprehensive series of rate reductions covering almost the entire range of consumer items will be filed July 27 to become effective August 27, Powell said.

* * * *

THE LOWERED freight rates will complete the cancellation of the last across-the-board rate increase which took effect March 9, 1962, and will include substantial reductions of joint through rates with mainland carriers, Powell explained.

"Matson's ability to effect these significant downward adjustments in rates is directly related to the improvements which have resulted from the investment of over $30 million in the company's container system and freight fleet," Powell said.

"It is a continuation of the trend of lowering Hawaii's freight bill in recent years which has been accomplished through containerization and the development of other specialized services for the Islands."

* * * *

ANOTHER FACTOR of importance to the company in supporting the decision to pass on savings of this magnitude was the recent decision by the Secretary of Commerce which ruled that Matson's unsubsidized operation would not have to face added competition from a subsidized operator, Powell said.

"The sharing of financial improvements with Hawaii's rate payers is particularly gratifying in view of the continuing upward pressure of wage costs and other products and services the company must pay for," Powell said.

Matson launched its containerization system for Hawaii in 1958. Since that time, in addition to the $30 million already invested in the container system and other fleet improvements, the company has earmarked another $14 million to provide sufficient container capacity to accommodate 100 per cent of Hawaii's containerizable cargo.

Easterner Shows Confidence in L.B. Area--Buys Mortgage Loans

Expressing strong confidence in mortgage investments in the Long Beach-Orange County area, Richard E. Hale, president of First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Boston, during a visit to Southern California last week, agreed to purchase $2 million of government insured (FHA/VA) mortgage loans from City & Suburban Mortgage Co., approved mortgagee, headquartered in Long Beach.

"Favorable yield, attractive security, and home buyers of good habits and credit standing, all add up to a healthy real estate market in this area. This commitment to purchase an additional $2 million brings our total investment being serviced by City & Suburban Mortgage Co. to over $6 million, and certainly is indicative of our confidence in the investments offered," said Hale.

* * * *

JAMES A. EDMONDS, JR., president of City & Suburban Mortgage Co., took Hale and Vice President Robert G. Ingraham on an inspection of the metropolitan areas where the mortgage loans purchased by First Federal are located, bringing the officers up to date on current real estate developments, industrial growth, population increase and employment stability.

Edmonds stated that delinquencies were at a minimum—another indicator of the stability of mortgage loans as an investment for eastern and midwest investors.

City & Suburban Mortgage Co. originates conventional and insured residential loans, along with commercial, industrial and special purpose loans in Los Angeles and Orange counties, for life insurance companies, savings and loan associations, savings banks and other institution investors.

met in the Town Hall tradition with Scottsdale residents on three occasions to discuss the many ratifications of the transfer of management.

On many other occasions, Watt executives met informally with special groups in preparation for the transfer.

BECAUSE of the importance of the election of the first Board of Governors, the Beverly Hills firm of Kenneth Leventhal & Co., certified public accountants, was retained by Watt to serve both as pre-election consultants and to conduct the election, count ballots, and certify results. Leventhal staffers served as election clerks and ballot counters.

In sequence, an informal election notice was sent the residents. A nominating committee of residents canvassed the entire community and interviewed persons interested in serving on the Board of Governors. A formal election notice was mailed, together with an application for a ballot, a nomination petition, an acceptance nomination statement (which had to be notarized), an election fact sheet, proxy instructions for those who might not be able to attend and a proxy form.

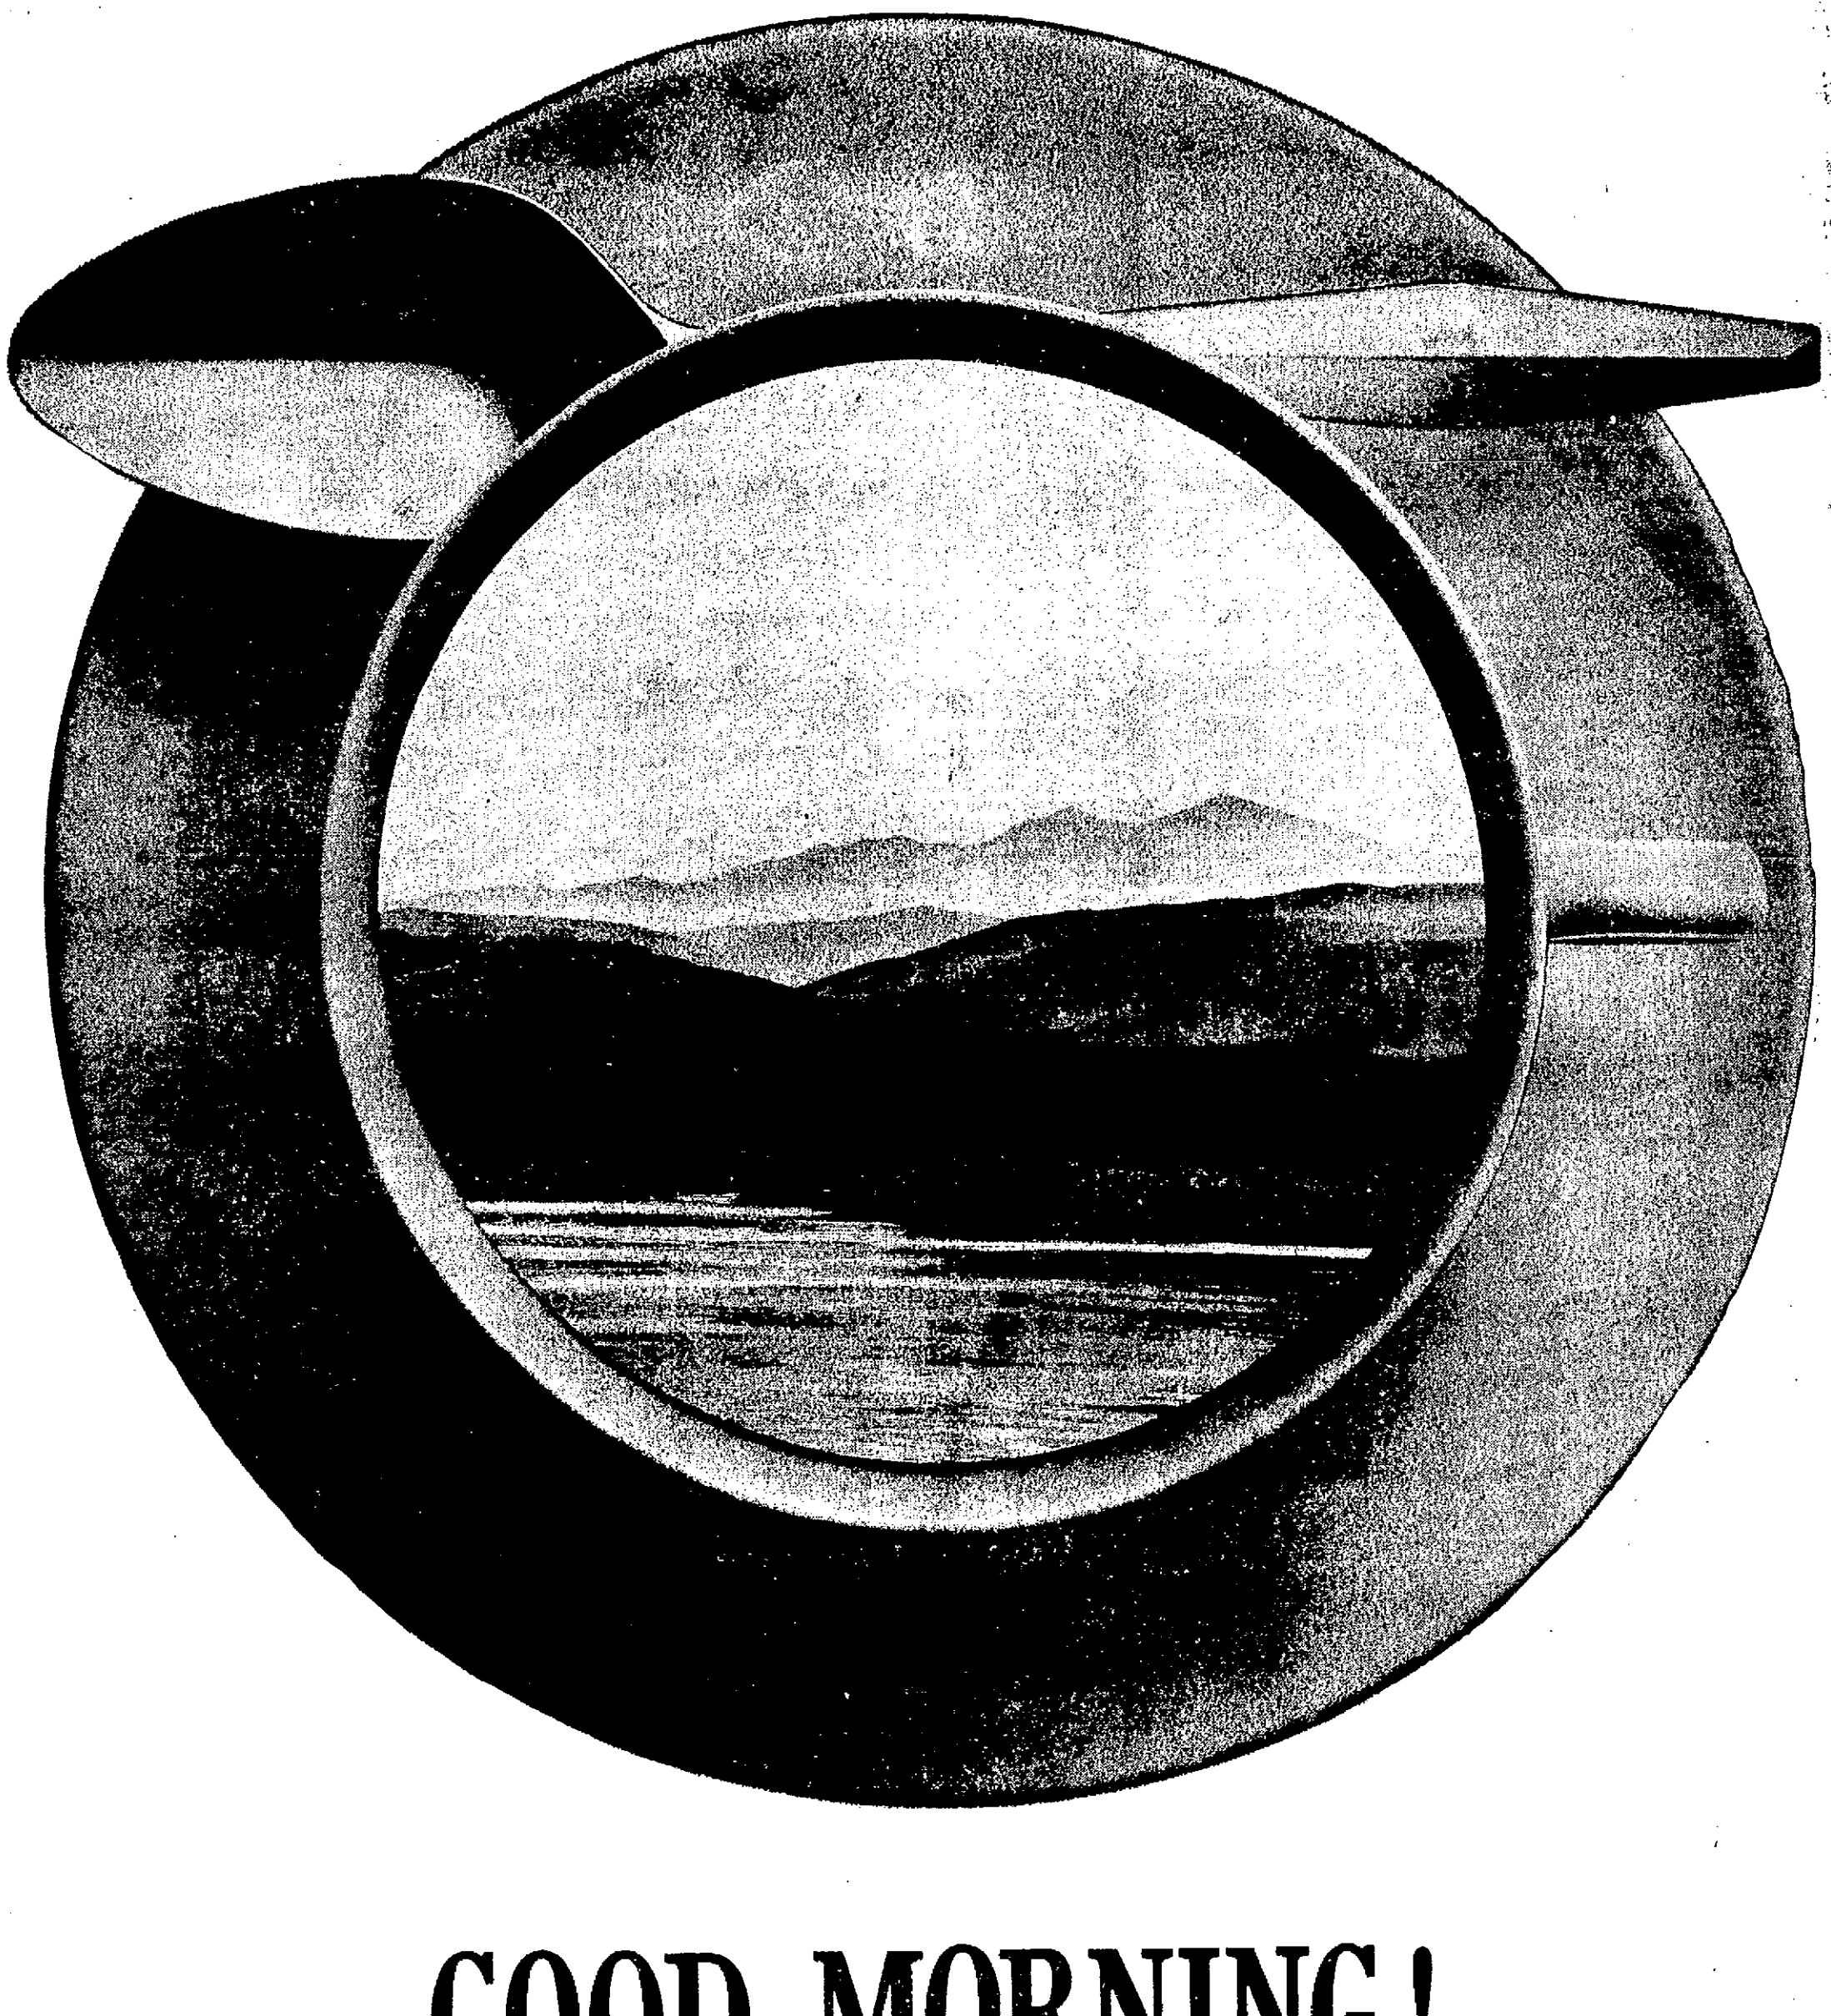

* * * *

WATT EXECUTIVES called a special meeting the week before the election at which time 30 of the 31 candidates for the board expressed their views or "platform." Prior to this meeting, sample ballots were distributed, and a form even was provided for use in the event of a lost ballot.

Watt was high in his praise for the qualifications of the candidates for the Board of Governors. Included among the 31 nominees for the 15 seats were a banker, a municipal financial consultant, a project engineer, a compensation administrator, a cost controller, a realtor, an insurance broker, a minister and several engineers and sales executives.

Ballots resembled an official municipal ballot, and voting booths and other election paraphernalia were rented from the County of Los Angeles for the occasion. Election results were posted within an hour and a half after the polls closed.

CONTEST OPEN TO PUBLIC

Name Sought for Harbor Pilot Boat

A public contest to name a new $172,788 Port of Los Angeles pilot boat has been announced by Bernard J. Caughlin, port general manager.

Now under construction in Stockton, the all-steel hull craft, which will replace the 33-year-old "Stephen M. White," is 66 feet long, 18 feet wide and will be radar and fathometer-equipped. She is expected to be delivered to the pilot station in September for time trials and christening.

A second boat, the smaller "Amos A. Fries," will be kept in service.

* * * *

"THE NEW BOAT," Caughlin said, "will be used to help ferry 17 port pilots to and from more than 8,000 ocean-going vessels arriving and leaving the Port of Los Angeles annually."

"Our civil service pilots perform one of the most important and responsible duties of any in the harbor and the new boat will help improve this vital service," Caughlin emphasized.

Prizes for the winner will be a $50 globe transister radio, symbolizing the great world trade role which the port plays, and the first official ride on the new pilot boat.

* * * *

DEADLINE for receiving entries is Tuesday. Any person may enter by mailing one boat name only, his name, address and telephone number to:

Port of Los Angeles, Public Relations Division, P.O. Box 151, San Pedro.

Caughlin said that boat names may be based on geographical locations, historical and/or important personages, or any other category which is pertinent. Entries will be judged on aptness, brevity and imagination.

Census Gives Lowdown on Commuting Workers

One out of every four of the more than 40 million workers residing in the nation's metropolitan areas is a commuter, according to a survey made by the U.S. Bureau of the Census. More than a quarter of the commuters are women.

Commuters are suburbanites who work in the central city or outside their own metropolitan areas, or in reverse are city dwellers who earn their livelihood outside the city limits.

Residents of the suburban ring who work in the central city make up by far the largest single block of the 10 million total of commuters.

The Census Bureau tabulation based on the 1960 count of the population lists 7½ million of these who from the popular point of view make up the public image of the typical suburbanite.

* * * *

SEVEN out of every eight of the suburban commuters work in the central city around which they make their homes. Many of the others work in a neighboring metropolis like New York around which are clustered a number of heavily populated areas in New Jersey and Connecticut with their own metropolitan ranking.

While the early morning rush of suburbanites into the city is going on, some 2½ million others are outward bound. These are urban dwellers whose paycheck comes from a job outside the city proper, mostly in the suburbs.

* * * *

THE LONG Beach and Los Angeles area, with its complex of space and electronics establishments in the surrounding ring, has an unusually large number of these.

Particularly high proportions are found in a handful of smaller metropolitan areas in the South and West around which sizable military installations are located.

The Census Bureau survey covers 190 metropolitan areas with 100,000 or more inhabitants. Taken together, these areas had a population of 111 million in the last census, or more than three-fifths of that for the country as a whole.

* * * *

THE FIGURES show that population size is not an automatic determinant of a metropolitan area's position in the commuting scale.

Washington, for example, smallest of the Big Ten, ranks first as a commuting center on a proportional basis. More than a third of the workers residing in and around the nation's capital were reported as commuters in the census data, and the ratio is just under half for its suburbanites alone.

Even higher proportions of commuting from the suburbs are found in a significant number of metropolitan areas in various parts of the country, led by Rochester, Winston-Salem, Durham, Muskegon, Baton Rouge, and Honolulu.

* * * *

NEW YORK, despite its size, was particularly low in the ratio of overall commuting with only about one of every eight workers in its metropolitan area qualifying. Its proportion of one-third for suburbanites alone was lower than the national average.

However, its standing in this and other respects is affected by the fact that the Census Bureau definition of the New York metropolitan area excludes the big number of commuters into the city from adjoining states.

With its large number of reverse commuters, the Long Beach-Los Angeles metropolitan area had a commanding numerical lead over all others. Its 679,000 commuters in the census count topped both New York and Chicago by over 200,000.

30c Dividend by Broadway

Directors of Broadway-Hale Stores, Inc., have declared a quarterly divided of 30 cents a share on the outstanding stock payable Aug. 31, to stockholders of record Aug. 14, without closing the stock transfer books. This compares with recent quarterly dividends of 25c per share. In announcing the increase, Edward W. Carter, president, said, "Today's dividend action reflects the company's favorable sales and earnings results to date and the directors' confidence in the prospects for the balance of fiscal 1964."

Tropical Drink for Canadians

LOUISVILLE (UPI) — Add unlikely business sites: an orange juice plant in Hamilton, Ontario.

It's a Canadian first, according to Chemetron's Votator division, which supplied the processing and container-filling equipment. Both customs duties and shipping costs are reduced by importing the juice in bulk as a partially processed frozen concentrate, then reprocessing it for retail sale.

New Rod Memory Computer 'Faster'

First commercial computer with a revolutionary "thin film" main memory said to be up to eight times faster than previous models was made available recently by National Cash Register Co., it has been anounced at the NCR office in Long Beach at 2760 Atlantic Ave.

George E. Carson, area manager, said the new computer, designated the 315 RMC (Rod Memory Computer), operates at a basic speed of 800 nanoseconds (billionths of a second).

The Rod Memory Computer is the newest addition to NCR's 315 data processor family, Carson said. He noted that the computer was designed to expand business data processing applications extending from payroll accounting to instant inventory control. It is available, he said, with a wide range of supplementary equipment.

COMPUTER'S MEMORY IMPROVED

New NCR 315 RMC (Rod Memory Computer) shown above stores data on tiny wire rods plated with a magnetic thin film. Here, Marie Coates displays several of the hair-like rods which—inserted through a stack of solenoid coil planes—form a memory module (shown on the desk top). The new computer memory, half the size of a standard 315 core-type memory and eight times faster, can store up to 240,000 digits of information and execute some 100,000 instructions a second.

Hawaiian Gardens to Have New School

Construction is expected to begin in several weeks on new Del Amo Intermediate School at Hawaiian Gardens, it was disclosed last week. Low bidders on the project, at $689,500, were Albert Reingardt and Frank Smoak, a joint venture, of 3631 Atlantic Ave., Long Beach. Completion is scheduled by May of 1965.

The school was designed by the firm of Duffy & Dreher, AIA, of 2631 Atlantic Ave. It will include an administration building and three classroom structures.

* * * *

EACH BUILDING will consist of six standard classrooms surrounding a multipurpose room large enough to accommodate all the students in the adjacent classrooms.

In one classroom building a kitchen will be installed to provide hot lunches for students. The lunches will be delivered to the other buildings by the use of electric hot food carts.

The present project will provide for 540 students. The ultimate enrollment is established at 900 students when two more classroom buildings are completed.

* * * *

THIS PROJECT provides for new streets, water and sewer mains, landscaping and fencing the entire site of 20 acres. The project will relieve the half-day schedules in the Bloomfield District.

The Bloomfield School Board has commissioned the architectural firm to design a new kindergarten to sixth grade school which will be located in the southern part of the district where many new apartment buildings are under construction.

Hutton Issues Report on Mutual Fund Study

Profit-taking and selectivity marked the market action of the nation's top professional portfolio managers last quarter.

The purchases and sales of common stock by 52 of the country's leading mutual funds and investment companies are the subject of a well-know quarterly study by E. F. Hutton's Investment Research Department which Charles Barrington, manager of E. F. Hutton's Long Beach Office, released last week.

Barrington, whose office is located at 219 East Broadway, had this to say:

"Changes in the holdings of the largest investment companies are often indications of trends taking shape in the market."

* * * *

HE POINTED to recent profit-taking in American Telephone & Telegraph and du Pont where several funds sold off large blocks, taking advantage of the upswings in these issues without totally eliminating their holdings. Profit-taking centered in the airlines, too, where sales outbalanced purchases. Airlines have been moving briskly in the market this year.

The Hutton study also shed light on the fund's interest in public utilities. If fund activity is any indication, things may be looking bright in this industry. Still, fund moves were thoroughly selective.

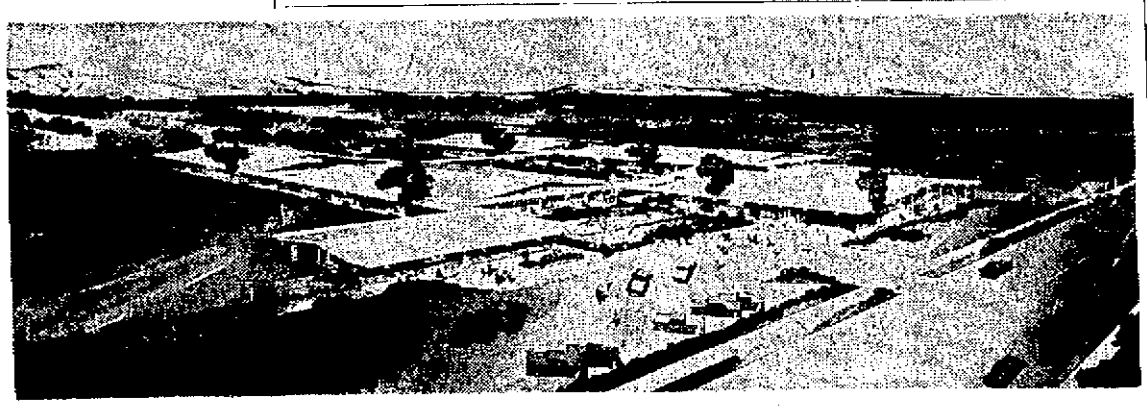

Purchases in Southern California Edison, for instance, contrasted with sales in Florida Power and Light. Barrington noted that the largest single fund purchase of the quarter in numbers of shares was in public utilities where a major fund increased already sizable holdings in Central Illinois Public Service.

* * * *

A STAND-OFF prevailed in the steel group. Buying and selling was well-paired, but the leaning definitely was toward the buy side in terms of number of shares purchased.

On-balance selling in the office equipment stocks continued a trend started in the previous quarter, emphasized by profit-taking in Xerox, a growth favorite.

"All in all," Barrington said, "Hutton's newest study of fund buying and selling in the market proved once more that we have a market of stocks and not a stock market. Like so many of us in the market, the smart money is profiting where it can today and looking for the bright lights of tomorrow."

NEW SCHOOL FOR HAWAIIAN GARDENS

California Seen as Biggest Life Insurance State by '68

New York continued during 1963 to have more life insurance in force than any other state. But California, in second place, had by far the largest dollar increase in life insurance.

Many other states showed larger percentage increases than either New York or California.

The Institue of Life Insurance reports that New York ended the year with nearly $83.4 billion of life insurance in force, an increase of $4.9 billion or 6.3% over 1962.

* * * *

CALIFORNIA'S total was nearly $72.5 billion at year-end, an increase of $6.3 billion or 9.5%. The Institute estimates that, if present trends continue, California will overtake New York as the biggest life insurance owner by the end of 1968.

For a nation as a whole, total life insurance in force climbed to $730.6 billion at the end of 1963, an increase of $54.6 billion or 8.1%. California accounted for about 11½% and New York about 9% of the nation's increase.

* * * *

NEW YORK'S $48.7 billion of ordinary life insurance protection was well ahead of California's $39.1 billion. But California's $27.1 billion of group insurance nearly equaled New York's $27.9 billion. California may become the biggest group life insurance owner during 1964.

California's $4.6 billion of credit life insurance was well ahead of New York's $4.1 billion at the end of 1963.

Pennsylvania had by far the largest amount of industrial life insurance, over $3.5 billion. Ohio, with over $2.6 billion, also outranked third place New York, which had slightly less than $2.6 billion.

Shipbuilding Gains; Japan Holds Lead

In the latest returns issued by Lloyd's Register of Shipping, the well-known International Classification Society, it is reported that for the quarter ended June 30th, 1964, there were under construction throughout the world 1,454 steamships and motorships of 9,673,963 tons gross; an increase of 187,423 tons since the last quarter.

Sharing in this upsurge, the United States had increased its volume to 487,082 tons, an advance of 131,081 tons over the March 1964 quarter.

Thus, American shipyards have overtaken Norway and Spain over the last three months.

* * * *

JAPAN continues to overshadow the achievements of other countries, with a total of 2,353,232 tons, an increase of 151,905 tons over the March quarter.

For Great Britain and Northern Ireland the shipyards had under construction 171 ships of 1,543,533 tons gross, which is 62,574 tons less than the previous quarter. A new record also has been established for Sweden with an aggregate of 874,570 tons. A late entrant into the shipbuilding industry, Brazil, in a space of four and a half years is now producing 129,080 tons gross.

Due to an unusually high figure of completions, Italy's total dropped to 579,942 tons from 678,959 tons in the March 1949, with a total of 229,743 tons gross.

First Western Chief Named

The board of directors of First Western Bank & Trust Co. elected Stewart Cosgriff of Los Angeles president of its statewide branch banking system; Josef Beles, comptroller; and Robert B. Shears, vice president.

S. COSGRIFF

Cosgriff, former vice chairman of the board, joined First Western in 1961.

He is a director of the Potash Company of America and American Crystal Sugar Company and a former member of the board of directors of the Denver branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City.

A banker for 40 years, Cosgriff, prior to joining First Western, served as president of the Denver National Bank and when the Denver National and United States National banks merged in 1959, he was named chairman and chief executive officer of Denver U.S. National Bank, the combined organization.

Port Board Lauds Todd

Todd Shipyard, San Pedro Division, was congratulated and commended in a letter from the Los Angeles Board of Harbor Commissioners recently on the yard's new $75,029,930 contract to build seven destroyer escorts.

In lauding the company, the board and staff of the Harbor Department said the contract will be a "great economic lift" for Harbor area communities and for the Los Angeles area as well.

The letter also said that it is gratifying to know that Todd Shipyard has such "outstanding competitive ability" in bidding against yards from the Atlantic, Gulf and Great Lakes areas.

The board and staff letter also commended the yard for its previous construction projects.

'Copter Sales by Hughes Gain

LOS ANGELES — Hughes helicopters accounted for an even 50 per cent of all U.S. commercial 'copter deliveries during the first quarter of 1964.

Rea E. Hopper, vice president of Hughes Tool Co.'s aircraft division, also announced that sales of the company's compact helicopter accounted for 41 per cent of the industry total during the calendar year of 1963. That was up from a 27 per cent share of the market for 1962, the first full year of sales activity for Hughes helicopters.

THROUGH MID-1965 AT LEAST

B of A Economists See Nation's 41-Month-Old 'Boom' Continuing

The nation's 41-month-old economic "boom" — one of the longest in history—will continue through at least the middle of next year, according to a special mid-year report prepared by Bank of America's Economics Research Department.

The 19-page report prepared for internal bank use only, outlines expected developments in the economy of the nation and of California, and in specific areas of the economy which reflect those developments.

* * * *

HIGHLIGHTS of the trends expected during the next 12 months include:

—A continued sustained rise for California's economy, with a slight decline in the unemployment rate, more consumer spending, some decline in construction activity and another big year for agriculture.

—Growth of the Gross National Product from $600 billion in the fourth quarter of 1963 to $639 billion in the last quarter of 1964, an increase of 6½ per cent.

—Slower expansion during the first half of 1965, but with the economy still climbing.

* * * *

—PLANT AND equipment expenditures during 1964 to be about 12 per cent above the 1963 level.

—Not much likelihood of renewed inflation, because the projected combination of increased business and consumer demand is not likely to press hard upon the capacity of the economy to produce through mid-1965.

—A more rapid increase in employment than in recent years, and some improvement in the unemployment rate. However, unemployment is not expected to be much below 5 per cent by mid-1965, and will still be far short of the 4 per cent level widely accepted as "full employment."

* * * *

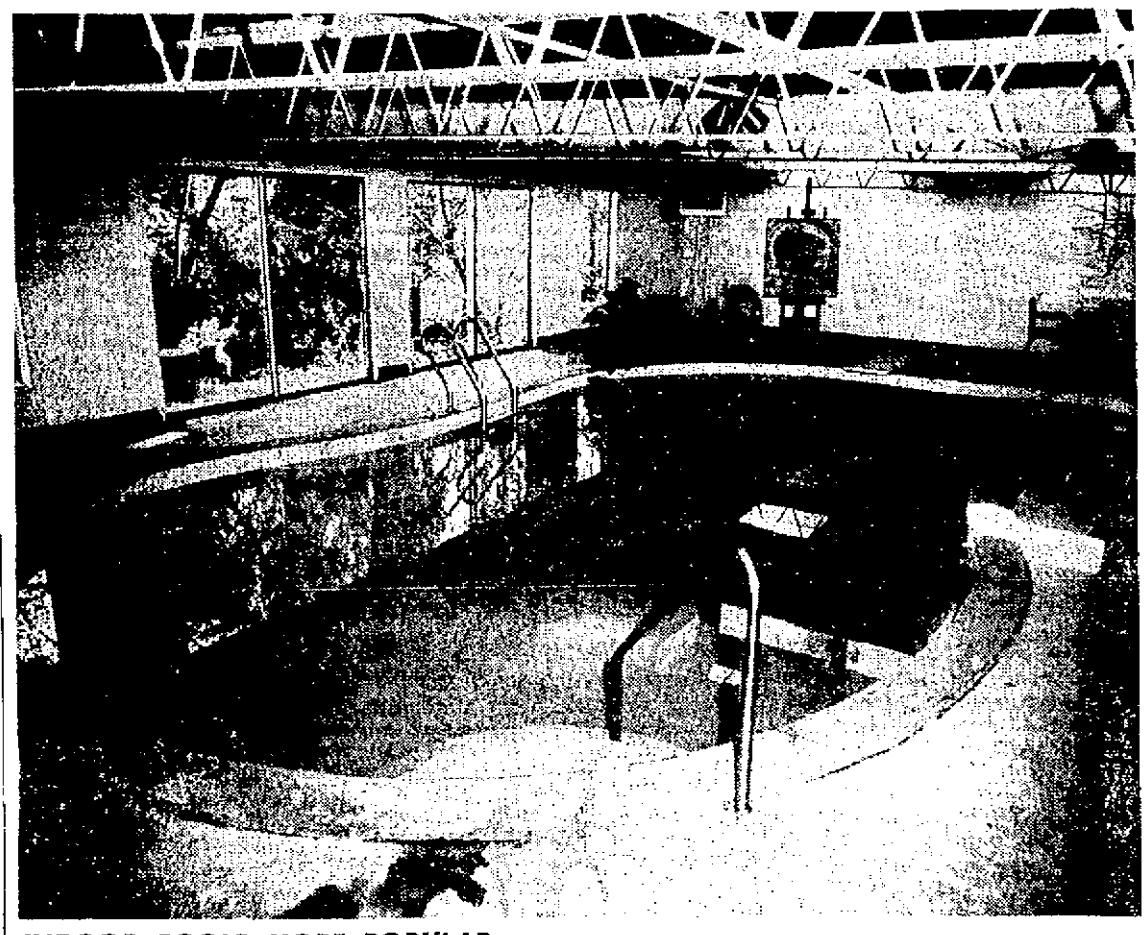

—CONSUMER SPENDING to reach record levels during 1964. This should include a record year for auto sales, as well as increased spending on other durable goods.

—Continued high activity in housing construction during 1964, but new housing starts are expected to decline moderately from the highs of early 1964.

—Slower increase in government spending.

—Smaller deficits on balance of payments.

—Not so much danger of sharply rising interest rates as seemed likely earlier this year, although an upward pressure is expected to develop as 1964 progresses.

INDOOR POOLS MORE POPULAR

Indoor swimming pools are rapidly gaining in popularity all over the nation, reports the National Swimming Pool Institute. The covering, with exposed beams as shown here, is not too expensive for such a large area and with such an improvement summer relaxation, fun and fitness are possible all year. In the Southern California area where outdoor swimming is possible all year, pool owners are taking to the coverings to cut down on pool maintenance costs. Sliding glass doors and some roof vents allow air flow during hot months. A generous deck area will permit gracious entertaining at poolside the year around.

U.S. Plants Make More Use of Automatic Control Systems

Out of the 31,800 manufacturing plants in the U. S. with 100 employes or more, some 20,800—two-thirds of them—are involved with automatic control systems.

Control Engineering, McGraw-Hill publication, in explaining this survey, declares that the figures do not mean that two-thirds of U.S. plants are automated. It does mean that these plants use automatic control systems, a highly specific means to automation.

* * * *

AUTOMATION, as the word is commonly used, means making an end manufacturing process more automatic or mechanized. A control system measures and controls specific variables in a given machine or process.

It was found that some 4,400 of the plants incorporate automatic controls into end products—and many of those are machines designed for another company's automation.

But nearly all plants involved with control systems—20,300 out of the 20,800—are applying them directly to plant operations.

Pacific Island Village Homes Go on Display

One of the first planned communities with fully coordinated architecture is Pacific Island Village which will stage its public open house today.

A project of the Douglass Construction Co. of California, Pacific Island Village is unique in that the architectural stylings of the series of homes are a matter of coordinated unity instead of a mixture of stylings.

Don L. Ward, project sales manager, announced 111 homes will be constructed in the first unit with homes in the Monterey Villa, Contempia Court, Imperial Garden and California Ranch series.

* * * *

WITH MODELS now open, Ward also announced that the moving of 1.5 million yards of earth will allow the Pacific Island Village homes unobstructed views of the ocean and mountains. He said 99% of the homes will have views.

Pacific Island Village, located within the 7,000-acre Laguna Niguel master community, is built atop a coastal plateau between 700 and 900 feet above sea level. When the community is complete, its 222 acres will hold 700 dwellings.

The master plan calls for six swimming pools, active party areas and other recreational facilities.

* * * *

INDIVIDUAL homes are from two bedrooms with one large bath to four bedrooms and 2½ baths. The homes selling conventionally from $244,500 are one and two-story structures.

The $22 million community is planned and developed for anyone over 18 years of age. A neighborhood shopping center and the Pacific Island Club with its recreation, dining and social activities will be constructed soon.

Ward said residents are eligible to join the El Niguel Country Club, the El Niguel Riding Club and the Monarch Bay Beach Club.

Pacific Island Village's models are reached via the Santa Ana-San Diego Freeway turn-off or Pacific Coast Hwy.

11,730 Paid $40.5 Million at Fullerton in Six Months

FULLERTON — The six largest industries in Fullerton paid nearly $40.5 million in wages and salaries during the first six months of this year, the Fullerton Chamber of Commerce disclosed last week.

David E. McNabb, manager of the booster body's business development department, said the six firms employed 11,730 workers during this period.

Hughes Aircraft Co. ground systems group, with 4,800 employes, is the city's largest employer. Beckman Instruments, Inc., also an electronics plant, had a payroll of 3,000.

Hunt Foods and Industries, Inc., employed 1,449 regular workers and 1,000 seasonal help.

Kimberly-Clark Corp. had 525 on its payroll; Autonetics had 500 workers; and Fruehauf Corp.'s military systems division had 465.

McNabb said that for every 100 payrolls, 65 jobs in service industries can be created.

Needs for Successful Urban Renewal Told

"The most successful urban renewal disposition program is one that has been preceded by a sound planning and acquisition program that has created a saleable product, with site conditions and urban renewal controls patterned to what the local market is buying."

This advice to local public agencies of the Urban Renewal Administration is contained in a special report by the Urban Renewal Advisory Committee of the Society of Industrial Realtors issued recently to all such agencies throughout the country.

* * * *

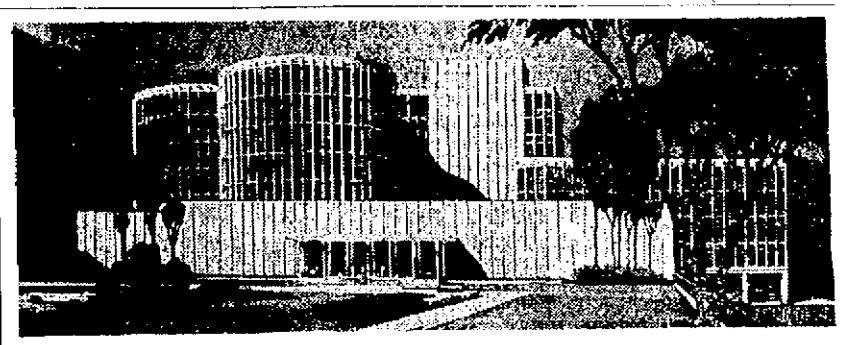

"URBAN RENEWAL marketing activity must be both imaginative and realistic in its interpretations of the potentials of the real estate market," the report states.

Published in pamphlet form, the report was prepared by the society's committee in response to a request from Commissioner William L. Slayton of the Urban Renewal Administration.

325% Increase in Earnings

LOS ANGELES — Clarence J. Woodard, president of The Rucker Co., announced the electro-hydraulic systems firm has shown a substantial increase in both sales and earnings in the second quarter of 1964 over the first quarter of 1964, as well as for the first six months of 1964 over the same period last year.

Sales for the six months ending June 30th totaled $5,227,636, compared with $3,421,268 for the same period in 1963, representing an increase of 53%.

Earnings of 33c per share for the first six months ending June 30th represented an unusual increase of 325%.

Another Expansion for Walker & Lee

Opening of a new Walker & Lee, Inc. resale office to handle all real estate sales for Ventura County and northwest Los Angeles County, was announced by Frank R. Hart, executive vice president of the growing company.

He also announced appointment of John Johnson, formerly manager of Walker & Lee sub-division sales in the Torrance area, as supervisor of all sales activity for the office.

The new headquarters, located at 166 Moorpark Rd., Thousand Oaks, will be staffed to "bring the same high degree of individual service to the area that has characterized the firm's activities in Los Angeles and Orange Counties for 23 years, he said.

* * * *

THE COMPANY'S new "guaranteed home sales" plan will be instigated within the area immediately. Hart explained this plan enables families, wishing to move into new homes, to use the equity in their present home as a down payment in these newer areas.

He said that because of Walker & Lee's 16 other resale offices this trade-in plan guarantees each home's sale and relieves the home owner of having to go through the sale of this old home before being able to purchase the new.

"We believe we are the only real estate sales company in the Southland who has such a highly developed referral system," Hart said.

* * * *

WALKER & LEE is not a new name in Ventura real estate circles. To date the company has sold more than $20 million in the area.

Hart's announcement comes on the heels of the company's first six months report for 1964, claiming house sales of more than $49,870,000; acreage department's escrows of over $14 million; commercial and industrial, and residential investments and income properties at $2,607,000.

Total 1964 sales picture for the 23-year-old company through June is $66,900,000. Since its founding, the sales firm has sold more than 59,000 homes.

Locale Is Ideal for Retirees

A mild climate is the goal of the thousands of retirees who enter California each year, states James K. Leishman, sales manager of a $25,000,000 retirement development in Oceanside.

Oceana and the North County San Diego area boasts the No. 1 climate in the United States, he continued. The cooling ocean breezes and smog-free sunshine of Oceana has proved to be the greatest sales feature to many out-of-state buyers at the development.

Oceana is a complete planned community including some 1100 garden-type apartments, recreational facilities, shopping center, motel and restaurant. The development is located in the rolling coastal hills within the city limits of Oceanside.

* * * *

FIVE MODELS are available in a moderate price range from $11,495 to $17,495. Floor plans include homes from one bedroom, one bath, to two bedrooms, den, and two bath models.

Oceana may be reached via 101 freeway, taking the Mission Blvd. exit in Oceanside. The site is three miles east of downtown Oceanside and set high on the hills overlooking the San Luis Rey Valley.

Colony Cove Homes Value Up Sharply

Colony Cove, planned community one mile north of San Clemente, may set a record in Orange County for the rapid increase in value per home, says Dave Laughlin, sales counselor.

Laughlin said many residents of Colony Cove had purchased an extra home just for an investment with value increases of the homes up to 15%.

Colony Cove, a project of the Douglass Construction Co. of California, is an architecturally-planned community for adults with children 16 years of age or older. It has its own swimming pool, clubhouse, two putting greens and a tropical brook and waterfalls among its aesthetic and recreational features, Laughlin said.

* * * *

SITUATED ATOP a bluff with a spectacular ocean view, Colony Cove offers homes with two and three-bedrooms. Homes are financed conventionally from $22,500.

Laughlin said Colony Cove, designed by San Clemente architect Chris Abel, has received wide attention for its impressive architecture and construction features.

Furnished in Danish, modern, Oriental and ranch decors, models are open from 9:30 a.m. until dusk. Colony Cove is reached via the Santa Ana-San Diego Freeway to the U. S. 101 Alternate off-ramp and the Pacific Coast Hwy. At Pacific Coast Hwy., visitors may turn left or south two miles to the gateway entrance of Colony Cove.

INTERIOR APPEALING
This view in a Lake Park Home showing the dining area, breakfast bar and kitchen. The homes are priced from $21,950 and 12 new exterior stylings are available.

Lake Park's Location Is Prime Attraction

Location has been cited as one of the prime attractions at Lake Park, the $40 million, 2,000-home community near Lakewood, it was reported by Michael L. Tenzer, vice president and marketing director of Larwin Co.

Tenzer noted that Lake Park's Phase II "is only minutes away from the major employment, commercial and industrial centers of the area."

Tenzer also attributed the summer sales success to the fact that Lake Park "offers not only the widest selection of two-story homes in Orange County, but also the lowest priced two-story models in the area."

* * * *

PRICED FROM $21,950, Lake Park's Phase II features three, four and five-bedroom homes with two and three baths. Twelve, all-new exteriors with three floor plans including a den or family room and fireplace, are included.

All models feature breakfast bars, built-in kitchen appliances, disposals, double sinks, ceramic tile, sliding glass patio doors and wood-grained paneling.

Another popular extra at Lake Park is the over-size two-car garage, with extra room for workshop and storage space.

* * * *

THE GRAMERCY two-story model, priced at $25,950 includes five bedrooms, three baths, fireplace, master bedroom suite with private terrace and large family room.

Close to the Santa Ana Freeway, model homes may be reached from the Valley View turnoff to Lincoln and west to Moody.

To reach Lake Park from the Long Beach-Lakewood vicinity, drive east on Carson to the model homes east of Moody.

LUXURY HOMES PLANNED
Looking over site of 43-acre section of famed Banning Ranch, Newport Beach, being acquired by Volk-McLain Communities Inc. for development of single-family luxury home community, are Robert McLain and Kenneth Q. Volk Jr., principals in the developing company; and Hancock Banning III, vice president and general manager of Beeco, Ltd.

West Newport Beach Area Housing Development Set

A 43-acre West Newport Beach segment of historic Banning Ranch is about to be transformed into one of the south coast's most modern single-family luxury communities by Volk-McLain Communities, Inc., Los Angeles.

Part of the 600 acres still owned by the heirs of famed California pioneer Phineas Banning, the land originally was included in the Rancho Santa Ana grant to Antonio Yorba and Juan Peralta in 1810.

Phineas Banning and his wife Mary acquired 4,077 acres of the "Santiago" portion of the old Rancho Santa Ana in 1874, of which the 600 acres remain in the family.

* * * *

Banning is vice president and general manager of Beeco, Ltd. His cousin, William P. Banning, is president of the land investment company which owns the Banning Ranch.

Kenneth Q. Volk, Jr., a principal in the developing firm, said 236 luxury homes in the $35,000 price range are to be constructed on the site, following completion of escrow. The land is adajacent to Pacific Coast Hiway, overlooking Newport Bay.

VOLK SAID the new community of homes would be in strict compliance with overall planning for the development of the 600-acre tract which is located in the city of Newport Beach and Orange County.

Grading has already been started on Bluff Road, which leads from the main entrance on Pacific Coast Highway through the development, with the three and four-bedroom homes scheduled for completion in early 1965.

Volk-McLain Communities, Inc., builders of more than 10,000 homes in California during the past 15 years, are developers of the luxurious apartment building, "The Newport," on Baysde Drive, Newport Beach.

Remodeled Heartwell Bldg. Open

Grand opening of the New Heartwell Building was announced Saturday by Stanley Broxmeyer, Los Angeles, who purchased the tall office structure at 19 Pine Ave., last December.

Because of extensive remodeling, Broxmeyer is calling it the New Heartwell Building.

Norman J. Feddersen, resident manager of the building, said four and a half floors were completely remodeled for the district offices of the U. S. Coast Guard. All lobbys have been remodeled and ceilings lowered.

Various suites are being remodeled to meet the needs of firms and the building has available up to an entire floor, 6,000 square feet, for lease.

Garden Park Estates Real Success Story

Garden Park Estates in Garden Grove can aptly be described as a "success story." Since opening, the community has witnessed consistent response to the "value" homes offered by the builders.

"We believe this warm reception is attributable to a number of pertinent factors," a spokesman said. Location, durable and solid construction with only quality name-brand materials, a wide variety of designs and available floor plans, and strong artistic appeal are among the components he listed for their success.

The builders developed the community in the recreation center of the Southland-Orange County. "It is also one of the fastest growing areas in the state where every day we witness the birth of new electronic and manufacturing plants." Employment opportunities are increasing in Orange County, with predictions being made for even further growth.

* * * *

"OUR CLIMATE IS IDEAL too," he added, "with gentle ocean breezes keeping the thermometer from soaring to sizzling heights."

Good schools are claimed for the Garden Park district, and complete shopping districts are within convenient reach of residents. "Here, the shopper will find a vast selection of home, hardware, food and clothing supplies," the spokesman said.

Throughout the many years of constructing shelter for Southland families, the builders of Garden Park Estates have maintained high ethical standards and residents are assured of many years of solid home comfort, relatively maintenance free.

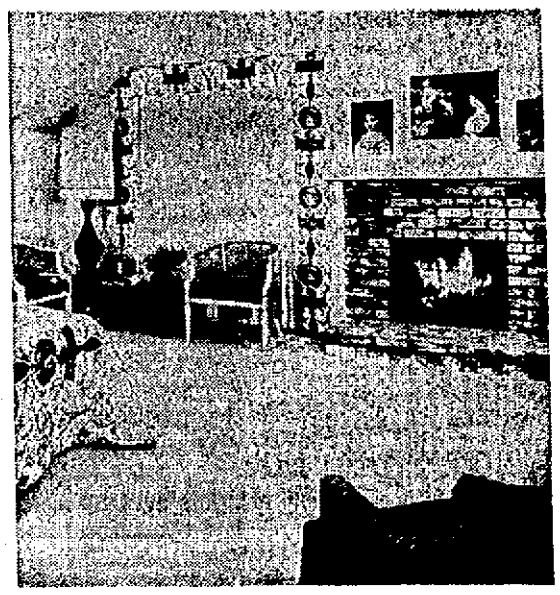

* * * *

CREATIVE ARCHITECTS were retained to draw up the floor plans for the homes. Geared for busy families, the plans produced are both attractive and totally functional.

Now available are one and two-story homes with three, four and five bedrooms. Some include formal dining rooms and family rooms.

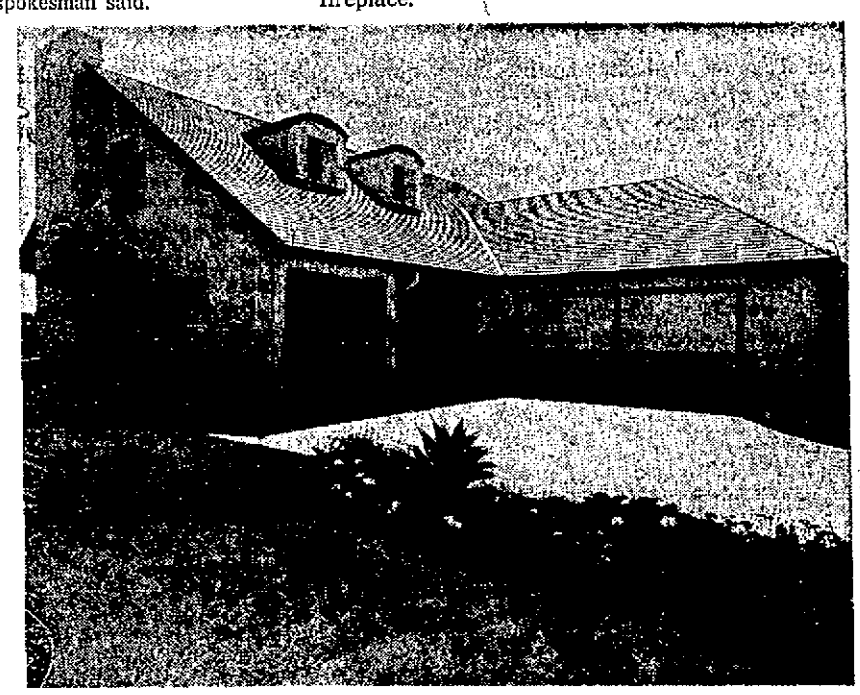

Moderately priced from $20,450, veterans can move in with nothing down except costs and impounds. Non-veterans can use lowest FHA terms.

A furnished model display is open every day at the corner of Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Freeway in Garden Grove.

Investing Becomes Emotional Experience as Anxiety Gains

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first of "Property Investments" written exclusively for and copyrighted by Scientific property investments.)

By G. L. DAVENPORT
Consulting Psychologist

Anyway you look at it, investing is an emotional experience.

There is the case of Armand, who had, through the years, saved a small amount of money over and above his expenses and he decided to invest it. As the time grew near he began to show all sorts of symptoms unique for him. Usually a kind, reserved and sober man, he became irritable, especially toward those close to him. He was not as much in control of himself and he drank a little too much. The prospect of investing gave him a number of anxiety symptoms. After investment, which was in the form of stock in a small company, his anxiety was relieved.

* * * *

PSYCHOLOGISTS are very familiar with these symptoms, as are investment people. The psychologist, however, would explain it differently from the way the investment people would go about it. The psychologist would say that in some subconscious way the money to be invested was equated with a part of the man, such as his arm or some part of his body, and that in putting the money into a strange and unknown place, as the company was, he became understandably concerned. The money which he had protected for so long might be lost. It was similar to anticipating the loss of an arm.

The investment salesman would say rather simply that the guy was nervous. To many people money means something other than a means of barter. It means to them more than it really is. That is one of the reasons why people procrastinate in making investments, and eventually end up losing what little security they had started out with. Thereafter they turn out to be bitter and even envious of their friends and neighbors who did invest.

* * * *

IT MAY TAKE a psychologist to help such people conquer their fears, and it would be worth it to them. However, many people in knowing that their fears are rooted in a misconception of the real role of money can solve their own problems for themselves.

To ease their tensions many people may find investments in land a great help. The land, because it appears to be so solid and substantial, because they can stand on it and it won't slip away from under their feet, because it is something which will be here forever—"land immortality" as it were—gives its owners a feeling of unshakable security, a commodity most needed by beginning investors. As these beginners mature in their investing, or receive proper initial investment counseling, the decrease of their tensions goes hand in hand with a substantial increase in their investment return.

* * * *

THE PERSON who does not invest when he has money, as little as it may be, probably ought to look deeper into his reluctance and vaccilation, and if he cannot do so himself, he ought to seek help.

Yet even the mature investor ought to look at money investments for what they are, namely a means of improving economic security and therefore to continue to refine his investment knowledge constantly. Ongoing investment in land property may and ought to be a lifelong pursuit.

Due to the non-stop increases in population upon essentially limited and exhaustible expanses of land, if properly researched, monitored and sold, is an investment which will attract all types of investors.

In the next articles we shall try to explore some of the methods of conquering the fears of investing, to present in some detail the technical knowledge required for the evaluation of a good investment and to differentiate the various types of successful investors, so that our readers may acquire the necessary insight and knowledge upon which to base their individual decisions.

Sales Gain, Earnings Up

Kaiser Cement & Gypsum Corp. recorded increases of 13% in sales and 34% in earnings, not including a special credit, during the first half of 1964, compared to the same period last year, it was announced by Peter S. Hass, president.

Net sales and operating revenue for the six months ended June 30 were $43,649,000, compared with $38,750,000 recorded in the first half of 1963 on sales of its cement, gypsum and insulating board products.

Consolidated net earnings for the period were $4,594,000, including a special credit for a non-recurring utility refund of $423,000 after federal taxes.

* * * *

NET EARNINGS before the special credit were $4,171,000, equivalent to $.65 per common share, as compared with $3,101,000 and $.46 per common share earned in the first half of 1963.

Hass pointed out that the special refund credit, amounting to $.07 per common share, had the effect of increasing earnings to the equivalent of $.72 per common share.

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

The success of our recent advertising series prompts me to congratulate your newspapers for a job well done!

You may recall our teaser campaign simply consisting of a photograph of our premium tire, the "ULTISSIMO" and the words "WE'RE EXPANDING". I hesitate to use a superlative to an advertising man, but the response was incredible. Our phone lines were jammed and our sales promptly increased despite the fact that neither our name, address nor phone number was included.

This confirms our belief in consistent advertising and proves that the Independent, Press-Telegram has created a favorable image of the "Ultissimo", which your readers have come to associate with the Richardson Tire Co.

Please convey my sincere thanks to all concerned and rest assured of our continued advertising in your fine newspapers.

Rio? A Breeze!

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

If you have been thinking of visiting South America, and have given up the idea because the distance is too great, well—think again.

You can now leave Los Angeles International Airport after dinner and arrive in Rio de Janeiro in time for lunch next day.

This has been made possible by a new Pan American jet route that links California with Brazil with two long-range flights, each exceeding 3,000 miles. Flying time: 12½ hours.

The 7-970-mile route, stretching a third of the way around the world in distance, links Los Angeles, Panama, Rio and Montevideo. W. A. Elsaesser, Pan Am's district sales manager, explains that without changing planes, passengers boarding the big jets fly the 3,160-mile nonstop route to Panama in six hours and then cut 3,325 miles diagonally across South America to Rio in 6½ hours. From Rio, the Clippers zoom 1,145 miles to Montevideo in two hours, 40 minutes.

Thus, despite the four-hour time difference, you still get to Rio for lunch after leaving Los Angeles after dinner the evening before.

WHAT IS REPUTED to be the only dude ranch travel trailer park in the United States has been opened in the heart of the recreation area of the Los Padres National Forest 16 miles northeast of Santa Barbara.

The Rancho Oso Travel Trailer Park is situated within the privately owned 310-acre Rancho Oso Fun Ranch and will remain open the year around.

The park is designed to enable travel trailer clubs and groups as well as individuals to experience all the activities of a genuine Western ranch, according to Robert F. Jamison, coowner.

"In many respects," says Jamison, "the ranch on which the park is located retains the same character it had when it was known for its fine stock. Cattle still graze in the pastures, the riding stables and corral are still a focal point, and the wranglers are veteran cowhands."

Rancho Oso Fun Ranch has lodge, cabin, tent camping and picnic facilities for non-trailering guests arriving in groups or as individuals. Other facilities include a heated pool, active sports and game areas and horseback riding. Trailerites also participate in planned recreational activities, such as Sunday morning breakfast rides, old-fashioned hay rides, chuck wagon dinners and square dancing.

* * * *

AND SPEAKING of trailers, the Wally Byam Around the World Caravan — 104 Americans circling the globe in 44 trailers—has reached Teheran.

After leaving Los Angeles last September, the trailerites have visited Honolulu, Yokohama, Hong Kong, Singapore; overland up the Malay Peninsula through Malaysia, Thailand, Cambodia, an 11-week tour of India and Nepal; Pakistan, Afghanistan and Iran.

The trailerites expect to be gone a year.

AN INVITATION to visit and tour Long Beach has been extended to motorists by the Allstate Motor Club in its new 220 page vacation guide.

J. H. Twiss, regional manager of the Allstate Motor Club, said many tourists should be attracted to visit Long Beach because of the interesting and extensive coverage of the area in the guide.

The new vacation guide, with its new approach to planning that "perfect vacation," vividly illustrates North America's outstanding vacation areas with nearly 200 full color photographs and describes and locates 1,200 vacation spots for the traveler.

The vacation guide employs a new concept in road maps through its use of "Stop—Go—See" maps. A quick look at the map allows the motorist to choose between the fastest or most scenic roues across country, in addition to having the outstanding points of interest clearly marked.

DISCOVERY of new claimants to the title of world's tallest living things —a grove of redwoods over 367 feet high—has focussed fresh attention on Northern California's Redwood Empire.

The lofty trees are near Orick, north of Eureka, on private lumber company land. Groves of their almost as-tall cousins are on public display in state parks, stretching from San Francisco Bay north 400 miles into Oregon. These are readily accessible over a modern network of highways.

The Redwood Empire Association, 476 Post St., San Francisco, (94102), promptly answers inquiries about this region with free illustrated pamphlets describing sequoia sempervirens and other attractions in this coastal vacationland.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"We are planning a trip to Puerto Rico in December and would like moderate accommodations for a family of five. . . ."

THERE'S a small monthly booklet by the Chamber of Commerce that you find (free) on all hotel desks. Among ads for night clubs, tourist shops etc., you'll find ads for smaller hotels and rooms with kitchens. But I wouldn't order one at long distance. Move into a big hotel for a couple of days. Take a taxi and shop around.

"What is the best way to sightsee the island?"

RENT A CAR and drive around. Takes about four leisurely days. If you want more, you can crisscross on some fine scenic mountain roads. There are good hotels everywhere. It's a beautiful, tropic island and not too expensive.

Lot of English spoken. But more Spanish. Roads are well marked. But speed limits are in miles and distances in kilometers. The island is bursting with people. You are seldom outside of sight of houses. Swimming is wonderful—the sea is warm and painter's blue. Old San Juan is a great historic fortress. No outstanding shopping. But some very fine restaurants. Prices medium to expensive.

"We are planning a first trip to Europe and wonder where to start a file of information. . . ."

START WITH ALL the airlines that run to the countries you will go to. Send them your route. Ask for any information. Airlines give you a great deal of action on this kind of query. I would ask them all because —though they overlap—they all have specialties.

Second, write the national tourist offices. (All have New York offices. And some have branch offices in larger American cities.) These won't be too good—national tourist offices are usually run by the government and staffed by political appointees. I rarely go to these people. But try them, it only costs a stamp.

Third, go to a travel agent and plot some comparative prices. Especially airline prices. All airlines have similar fares, fixed by their own international price-fixing organization. But there are all kinds of complicated reductions: Flying on weekdays instead of weekends; special excursion fares; family rates. Travel agents should know the best one for you.

"Do you advise credit cards—Diner's and American Express—for a trip to Europe?"

THEY'RE a convenience I use them a lot for that and for tax records. With American Express you can cash your personal check into traveler's checks up to $300. (You can run into a lot of frustrating red tape, too. But generally it works.)

You'll also find the shops taking credit cards are the most expensive in the town. And obviously, they've had to mark up the 7 to 10% the credit card people charge them.

"We are a young and adventurous couple. We have enough money to get to Europe. But once there, we must keep daily costs down."

HERE'S AN IDEA for you. Nearly all countries now have a "meet-and-live-with-the-people" program. In other words, you eat and sleep in a family home. Get this program from the national tourist office. (And check it again when you arrive. New York and home offices don't always agree.) Supposed to be a way to live for very little. Say $3 a day for a couple.

August Offers Beauty

August is a month of beauty for Southern Californians.

There is the traditional International Beauty Parade of girls from 60 countries—Borneo to Brazil, Scotland to Singapore competing for the "Miss International of 1965" title during the International Beauty Congress in Long Beach, starting Wednesday and concluding Aug. 15. The beauties first in the parade along Ocean Blvd. and then in nightly showings and contests.

One of the most beautifully costumed parades is El Desfile Historico, the colorful historical parade of the Old Spanish Fiesta Aug. 12-15 at Santa Barbara, once the social capital of the old Spanish California. Some of the gorgeous Spanish costumes of riders and passengers in old coaches and ox-carts come from the trunks of old Spanish-Californians. Almost as beautiful is El Desfile de Los Ninos, the costumed parade for children.

Beautiful again is the Ondo parade of hundreds of kimona-clad girls, dancing as they wind down the street, during the annual Nisei Week Festival in the Li'l Tokyo section of down town Los Angeles Aug. 14-23. The area will be lighted up by hundreds of Japanese lanterns. There will be Judo, karate and kendo (sword) tournaments and a Cha-No-Yu tea ceremony.

LUXURY IN BEACH AREA HOME
Shown is a portion of the large living room in a Dutch Haven Marina Series of homes in Huntington Beach. Location close to the beach is a big selling factor in the development.

Dutch Haven Marina Series of Homes Cooled by Sea Breeze

With peak summer temperatures now a reality, more and more families searching for a new home are discovering the unique advantage of cool, smog-free ocean breezes at the new Dutch Haven Marina Series in Huntington Beach.

The marked surge in sales that followed the approach of hot summer weather has continued, Tom Rochelle, Dutch Haven sales manager, commented, stressing that location close to the beach is a definite asset at any time of the year.

Located in the heart of a nationally known resort area renowned for its ideal year-round temperatures, the Dutch Haven Marina Series is situated on Edwards Ave. in Huntington Beach.

* * * *

OTHER ADVANTAGES are the many beaches, some of Southern California's finest, located just a few minutes away. All offer excellent facilities for swimming, surfing, boating and picnicking. Marinas are situated at Huntington Beach, Long Beach and Newport Beach, with an abundance of public and private golf courses also situated nearby.

Homes at the Dutch Haven Marina Series are three to four bedrooms with up to two full baths. Prices start at $18,950. VA, FHA and Cal-Vet financing are available. Move-in terms to Vets are $95.

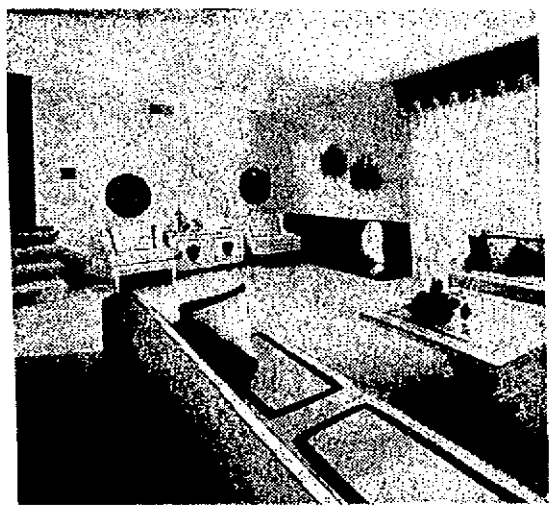

There are no hidden charges, second mortgages or balloon payments. Improvements such as street lighting, sidewalks, streets, curbs and utilities are covered in the original cost.

* * * *

AMONG THE MANY luxury features are complete Medallion kitchens with built-in dishwasher, range, disposal, oven and range hood, family rooms, separate dining areas, decorater fireplaces with log lighters, custom hardwood paneling, wood shake roofs with large overhangs, master bedroom suites, forced-air heating and complete color coordination with decorator wallpaper.

Four furnished model homes are open daily from 10 to 9.

To visit the Dutch Haven Marina Series: Drive south on Santa Ane Freeway, to Beach Blvd., turnoff. Go south on Beach to Warner, right on Warner to Edwards, left on Edwards to model homes.

EL DORADO PARK ESTATE
Spacious living room shown is a furnished model home at El Dorado Park Estates in Long Beach. Focal point is handsome black marble fireplace.

Homes Are Adjoined by El Dorado Park

Residents of El Dorado Park Estates in Long Beach appreciate the immediate convenience to a beautiful park. Adjacent to the expanding El Dorado City Park and Golf Course, parents of small children can use it as supplementary play space.

"There is also an excellent golf course here, with 'walk-to' convenience," a spokesman said.

The homes now presented are spacious one-story, two-story and split-level dwellings with three, four and five bedrooms — "Ideal for growing families," he added.

The essence of informal California has been captured at El Dorado Park Estates, in combination with tasteful elegance. "We believe the quality and design of the homes are attractive to those looking for more than the ordinary," said the spokesman.

* * * *

ENTERTAINING in the grand manner, or small informal backyard barbecues are both possible in a residence at El Dorado Park Estates. Many plans feature a formal dining room, plus large rumpus room.

Of particular note in the homes are the unusual and attractive fireplaces. They are available in a variety of materials, including painted jumbo brick, white marble face, Palos Verdes stone and many others.

Convenience to schools and shopping is available from the community, in addition to the park and many other recreational facilities.

Prices start from $29,950 with excellent financing available.

To view the comprehensive model display, from Long Beach drive east on Spring St. across the San Gabriel River to El Dorado Park Estates at Claremont, just east of the park.

Another Record

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Consumer Finance Association says households in the United States with two or more cars set a new record in 1963. It says 8.7 million, or more than 15.6% of all households have more than one car.

Rural Atmosphere Has Great Appeal

"An out-in-the-country atmosphere with the convenience of a metropolitan, in-town location at a reasonable price." These are the three most sought after attributes with Southern California home shoppers, according to Tom Coughlin, president of KRIC Enterprises, developers of Hillview Regency Townhouses.

Located in uptown Santa Ana at the top of Sherry Lane, three blocks north of 17th St., Hillview Regency is a 10-acre in-town project designed for the leisure-minded home buyer.

* * * *

TO CREATE a true country club environment, three acres are devoted to recreational facilities. A large, luxurious community center building provides a Sauna Bath, billiard room, card room, ping-pong, a nine-hole putting course with sand traps and shuffle board courts also is offered. Landscaping along with the surrounding orange groves join to create a refreshing countryside atmosphere.

Coughlin pointed out that the Townhouse concept of living costs less than most individual homes or own-your-own types.

* * * *

THE BUYER finances individually, reserving the right to sell or refinance at any time. He enjoys all standard interest and tax deduction advantages.

The home shopper is offered a wide choice of two and three bedrooms, single-level studio units, two bathrooms, sunken living room, fully carpeted and draped, dining area and Caloric gas kitchens.

Over-all, the homes include up to 1,300 square feet of living space under roof and up to 350 square feet of fenced patio. All Hillview Regency homes also include such quality features as GE air conditioner and dishwasher, forced-air heat and vinyl tile floors.

Pull-Tab Cans on Soft Drinks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The pull-tab can, which captured 50% of the canned beer market in less than two years, has been introduced to the consumer for soft drinks by the Continental Can Co.

Cans now account for about 6½% of the soft drink market, according to Ellison L. Hazard, Continental's president. He predicted that canned soft drinks will attain more than 10% of the market by 1965, largely because of the new pull-tabs.

A World of Style

THE GREAT AMERICAN LOOK . . . at home anywhere in the world, reflecting the international flavor of today's fast-paced jet set. Top, local mannequin Luise Conn sets the pace in a Chanel-inspired triple-tiered skirt and serpent belt . . . center, Luise and Sue Rebol borrow fashion influences from Spanish senoritas—the black lace and flamenco skirt, the dazzle of crystal paillettes . . . and, lower, Sue tops her British-styled suit with an Adolfo-designed copy of the Canadian Mounties hat. All fashions pictured will be shown in Miss International Fashion Show Luncheon sponsored by Ebell Juniors and presented by Buffums'.

One World of Fashion . . .

That—appropriately—will be theme of Ebell Juniors' eighth annual Miss International Fashion Show Luncheon to be held Aug. 12, 11:30 a. m., at the Lafayette Hotel.

Opening the festivities will be presentation of the world's most beautiful girls . . . the 45 contestants in this year's International Beauty Congress . . . who, in a lend-lease moment of glamour and pageantry, will parade the ramp in their colorful, often flamboyant native costumes.

Miss American Beauty (she's scheduled to be selected the night before) will be introduced. And the 34 other U. S. representatives also will be on hand to add pulchritude.

Marvin Cloud will be master of ceremonies; music will be provided by Paul King.

This year, for the first time (and for audience second-glances) the international beauties are scheduled to stay on for the luncheon and fashion show. Seated on a raised platform near the show ramp, they'll provide colorful contrast to the preview of American-designed fall-winter fashions.

AND AMERICAN-DESIGNED fashions there will be. Worlds of them!

Presented by Buffums', the fashion extravaganza will make the most of "the beautiful American" fashion image —the look that is at home in Singapore or Saskatchewan, Paris or Pakistan.

It will also prove that in this fast-moving country-hopping jet age, American fashions have more foreign accents than a general assembly at the U. N.

These words from show commentator John Hersey of Buffums'—who, incidentally, can parlez vous fashionese with the greatest of ease, no matter what the accent:

"Today, even Parisienne couturiers design with the American woman in mind . . . for her fashion image is known, recognized, admired and emulated the world over. . . .

"But American fashion, today crossing all international boundaries, is taking its influences from the far-flung corners of the earth. The world has never before seen such a lend-lease program of fashion give and take."

HERSEY NOTES that there will be Latin-inspired

...some show-stoppers!

SMALL-BODIED COAT from Paris, by Nina Ricci collection. The 1964-isms: its rising band collar and arched waist seam.

Chanel's never-before slacks, Heim's knee-length tunics over provocative breeches and Dior's feminized versions of the Russian Cossack were among the fashion trends unveiled last week in Paris.

As everyone expected, there were, in fact, a record number of show-stoppers during that twice-annual circus, the Paris fashion showings.

One such was Louis Feraud's answer to the topless dress—a purple suede sleeveless creation slit widely from neck to waist.

Below the waist was a wide belt of pink cobra to match the mannequin's pink mesh stockings—and when she walked, it was apparent that was all she had on.

Another was at the house of Lanvin, where Jules Crahay startled onlookers with the wickedest "baby dress" ever to glide down a runway.

It was long, peignoir-shaped, of sheer black cloque organza—and the girl seemed to have absolutely nothing on underneath. She did—flesh-colored leotards.

What made it a baby dress?

A tucked white organdy bib with Peter Pan collar, all edged in fine ruching.

BUT THOSE were the shock treatments—the side shows, so to speak.

Getting down to the serious business of influencing what women the world over will be wearing next season, Paris designers presented the sexiest, softest clothes in the past 10 years.

Most couturiers featured the animated silhouette—clothes that seem to move with the wearer, giving a vivid

Their Props Are Apropos

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Women's Editor

THE OLD ADAGE—if you want a job done, ask a busy person to do it—is going to be proved again, in duplicate. In this case reference is to persons (very capable types) Carolyn (Mrs. Jack) Stanaland (left, below) and Ida Frances (Mrs. Frances M.) Lowry. The props are very apropos, as I'll explain in half a mo'.

To each her own, props have a vivid meaning.

Ida Frances, despite the traumatic experience in store this month of engineering the weddings of two daughters (thus the bells), has graciously agreed to substitute for Ponnie (Mrs. Herman) Ridder as United Crusade area residential chairman. And this is true dedication since she has already served three separate times as LB residential chairman in past Community Chest drives. But when Ponnie's sad but necessary obligations in the east, settling the estate of her late mother, made it impossible for her to continue, Ida Frances stepped in.

For instance, it was imperative that Ponnie leave Friday for Rye Beach, N.H., where she anticipates her presence will be required for five weeks or more.

Now, as for Carolyn's "props," she is vice president and full time manager of Bellflower's Equitable Savings and Loan. Despite her daily dollar duties, she has taken on the job of organizing a Crusade women's committee to serve the new joint United Way-Red Cross appeal.

So far she has enlisted the help of such well known women as Mayor Gladys Iliff, Paramount, councilmen's wives Nedra (Mrs. Woodrow) Smith, Lakewood; Marvel (Mrs. Bert) Bond, L.B.; Mary (Mrs. Ted) Mosier, Paramount; Lee (Mrs. J. Kimball) Walker, wife of the mayor of Bellflower, as well; Evelyn (Mrs. Lloyd) Whaley, Nancy (Mrs. William) Cree, Ina (Mrs. Willard) Harris, Long Beach; Del (Mrs. Eugene) Comer, Lakewood, and Virginia (Mrs. R. D.) Boggs, Bellflower. The way she's been getting around, it's evident Mrs. Stanaland should be known as Caroming Carolyn!

MARRIED in Germany and now honeymooning in Switzerland are Jo Dee (nee Boyle) and Lt. Anthony Pettine III, of Philadelphia, Pa., a "wonderful fellow!" The latter a direct quote from new mother-in-law, "Jo" (Mrs. Lawrence) Boyle who was present for the wedding last week.

Jo Dee, Poly High and Whittier College grad, has been teaching at the American School in Dexheim, Germany, romantic location considering that's how she met Tony, Army stationed nearby. They'll be back Stateside in September when Tony will take post-graduate work at his alma mater, Drexel Institute of Technology in Philly.

LIGHTS DANCED on Alamitos Bay and feminine conversation, to the decibel level of 32 femmes in convivial mood, wafted out on the balmy summer air Wednesday from the waterfront home of Shirley Caldwell. Shirley, Barbara Clark and Deenie Conway were co-hostesses at a bridal shower for Pam White. Pam will become the bride of Hal Horrocks Jr. on August 23.

Special guests, naturally, were Pam's mother, Marilyn; Hal's mom, Pat. Others, a few, in the oh and ah crowd (let's face it girls, we all do at such affairs) were Betty Daniels, Ellen Landis, Udell Green, Kay Nesbitt, Nina Matthews, Bessie Crosby, Hope Cunningham, Pat Webb, Phyllis Norris, Gladys King and Win Nott.

Wild Waves Say...

"HOME" again is Lillian (Mrs. Tom) White with daughter, Christine. Unfortunately, far as a whole rooting section of friends here is concerned, trip is just for summer vacation from current home in Oklahoma City. Lillian and Christine are staying with Ina and Willie Harris when in town or with the senior Whites in Norwalk until they can move into their house in Seal Beach.

In a few days the two Toms, dad and son, will arrive from OC to join the family for August vacation on the seacoast.

HERE'S one case where good luck was the direct result of good, hard work. John MacInnis won a top salesman's contest (Cormier) and, as a result, he and Isabel are off on an all-expense trip to the N'York fair and to the Bahamas. Son and daughter, Tony and Laurie, are keeping house while they're gone. What makes this bonus trip doubly exciting is that the entire family just recently returned from a great vacation in Mexico City.

PLAY DAYS in Hawaii, followed by more play on the Lurline, ended Sunday for Gloria and Richard McWilliams and their daughters, Diane and Pamela, with the ship's docking here last weekend.

The family foursome, candid camera caught on shipboard, are pictured herewith. But why so sad, Dick? Going back to work THAT fearsome?

Part of the fun in the islands was a mammoth surprise. Pat and Joe De Giorgio flew over ahead of the McWilliams, unbeknownest, to be on hand at the airport to greet Gloria, Dick and daughters on arrival. The De Giorgios, who had tried to talk them into a trip last fall, did it as a gala lark, but were only able to spend five days in Hawaii.

A ship docks—and, alas, a vacation ends.

AN OLD fashioned spelling match, which became an out and out laughing match, was highlight of the night when Rosie Nicholson had a surprise cocktail dinner party for "Hap" Appleton's birthday week ago last night.

Guests proved they knew their Ps and Qs about having fun—but not necessarily (for the majority) their ABC's about spelling. Honoree "Hap" left below) admits he was one of the first to get stung in the bee, going down in hilarious defeat. His is seen in post-spelling conference with team captains Susie Virgilio and Adm. "Casey" (Clark L.) Green.

Actually, "Casey" and his wife, Mary, just couldn't be beat; didn't flounder on a single word. Others there to test memories on whether it was "i" before "e" or vice versa were Loraine and "Doc" Miller, Markie and Darry Neighbors, Pat and Walt Gilkie, Camille Kendall, Mary Smith, Jim Wilson, Linda Goodwin, Bill Brady, and hostess' daughter, Susie Broz.

Lost composure over words like equanimity.

Waistlines varied, but generally were high with small bosoms and long, tight sleeves.

Necklines, which last season took daring plunges, most often rode high and close to the throat.

And hemlines, the burning question every season, were just a little shorter in collections by the younger designers. The average, however, still just covered the knee.

Generally the 1965 silhouette is romantic, emerging from the disembodied, unfitted era. Jackets and dresses softly follow body contours, defining but not stressing the waist and natural shoulder line.

The "sportive look" is completely outmoded.

MUCH OF THE fall-winter Paris fashion news is in pants.

Even Chanel put trousers on ladies—the first she's shown since she began designing in 1914.

But men needn't fret too much. Chanel made it very clear that they are not for racing around outdoors or to wear behind a desk at the office.

The Chanel pants are elegant—most often in flannel with gold-shot matelasse tops. They are wide and sit straight on the hips with a flat sailor-style panel across the front that makes pockets at the sides. The legs are wide and tubular.

Chanel also included capes for the first time in her collection.

Since she's probably Paris' most copied designer, it appears likely that women from Tokyo to Tennessee will be wearing Chanel hostess pajamas and cape outfits next winter.

SOME HIGHLIGHTS from other collections:

The Christian Dior woman for this winter is a Russian—either a peasant in billowing skirt and babushka scarf or a Cossack in fur-trimmed tunic.

Included in the collection by Marc Bohan were tall Russian fur hats, tunics and jackets banded in Russian sable and fringed scarves nearly hiding the faces.

Skirts all but vanished in Jacques Heim's collection. This designer showed knee-length tunics from under which peeped provocative breeches or pantaloons of mink for daytime and of lace and sparkling jewels for evening.

Shorter tunics were his second shocker. They were like boys' shirts but in fur or jersey and worn with waist-high striped stockings or leotard tights.

GERARD PIPART, designing for the house of Nina Ricci, concentrated on suits with long, high-waisted jackets ending at the bottom of the hip.

Balmain clothes had fewer collars on coats, suits and dresses; bulky tweed coats and lots of deep ruby red, particularly for evening.

Soft bulk and fur facings characterized the slim, tubular silhouettes of Jacques Esterel and Ferrera. Both showed long jacket suits. Esterel's were straight, often banded in fur and worn over low, flippy pleats. Ferreras' were more fitted, worn with slim skirts.

Feraud, Madeleine de Rauch and Esterel showed slack suits for street wear, a fashion idea that showed up in last spring's Paris collections and appears to be snowballing.

But even slack suits are femininized for the coming season.

It's a season when a lady will be a lady—even when she's wearing the pants.

FOR OLYMPIC TRIM

Just Let Little Willie Walk

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—More use of shank's mare would increase for everyone that physical fitness the government is concerned about, say a husband and wife who were on Olympic teams nearly half a century ago.

Both Richmond and Alice Landan, who competed in the Olympics in Antwerp in 1920 and are still part of the U.S. planning for the world competition, advocate walking as the nearly perfect exercise. They urge that parents walk and see that children do too—every day. And, they suggest that the U.S. government further its fitness campaign by spending for additional recreational sites so both adults and children can get in more outdoor activity.

"Walking uses most of the body's muscles," said Landan. "It's good for the lungs, for circulation. It's one exercise almost everyone can get." His wife, once a champion swimmer, added that swimming is "probably the best all-round exercise" but pools or beaches aren't accessible to everyone.

"I'd tell parents to start having little Willie walk that half mile to school every day," said Landan.

"I walked the three miles each way from home to Hotchkiss (a preparatory school) every day without giving it a thought," he said. Landan, who went on to become a Yale graduate and track champion, grew up in Salisbury, Conn.

* * * *

AT YALE he held intercollegiate titles for the high jump and won a gold medal for the United States in the 1920 Olympics. His six feet four and one-quarter inch mark then was an Olympics record. He also at one time held the world indoor record of six feet, five and one-half inches.

Now, he said, the world records are held by a Russian, Valery Brumel, whose high jump mark indoors is seven feet four and one-half inches; outdoors, seven feet, five and one-half.

The Landans first met during the '20 Olympics and were married two years later. They have a married son and daughter and five grandchildren. All are interested in athletics, they said, but not in competition.

Mrs. Landan, 62, a pretty woman with a trim figure, grew up in Westchester County, N. Y., suburbs and studied at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in Manhattan. She recalled that her father, an attorney, was so strong an exponent of walking that he put pedometers on his six children and saw that as they grew up they also got in at least 10 miles on foot each day.

* * * *

"SOMETIMES," she said, "we'd do as many as 100 miles a week. Father once planned for all of us to walk across the country, but mother spiked THAT. She didn't want to see the family publicized. After the Olympics when my picture hit the Police Gazette she nearly died."

Mrs. Landan held "all the records" of the Women's Swimming Association of New York at one time. She also was a national junior champion and member of a team which held the world record for free style swim relays.

In the 1920 Olympics, however, she lost out in high dive competition to a 13-year-old member of the U.S. team.

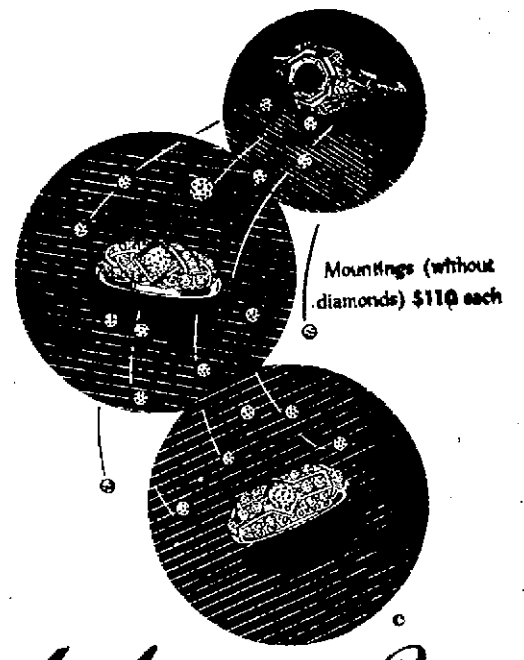

The Landans long since have quit competition but their enthusiasm for the Olympics goes on. Landan, 65, now a sales executive with the Bryan Elliott Co., an exhibit and display firm in Queens, serves as representative to the Olympic Committee of U.S. Olympians. This is an organization of former Olympians, plus coaches and others associated with the games, who continue to promote U.S. participation.

* * * *

MRS. LANDAN is active in the supply and equipment division of the U.S. group. For the games of the 18th Olympiad in Tokyo Oct. 10-25, the 400 men and 100 women athletes and the officials from the United States will be wearing donated apparel valued at $500,000, she said.

Contributions by textile and apparel firms were arranged by Burlington Industries and the Chemstrand Co., coordinating members of the apparel committee. Both the athletes' and officials' clothes including parade dress and travel-leisure outfits are built on the red, white and blue theme.

Mrs. Landan said all have sent in individual measurements but each will get a final fitting before departing for Tokyo.

The new Mrs. Oberlatz is an alumna of Wilson High School and the University of Arizona where she was affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Her husband was graduated from the University of Washington and was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon. The couple will be at home in Orinda after Aug. 16.

Sprague - Danon

Wedding vows were sealed by William Bond Sprague, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sprague, 3947 Lewis Ave., and Victoria Jacqueline Danon in Saints Felicitus and Perpetua Catholic Church in San Marino.

Attendants for the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Danon of Pasadena, were Mrs. James Blackmore, matron of honor; Linda Sprague, bridegroom's sister; Christine Skamser, Carol Westphall and Susan Miller, with Robert Clements as ring bearer.

For the double ring ceremony the bride chose a traditional gown of imported Chantilly lace with a ruffled skirt and flowing chapel train. Her bouffant illusion veil fell from a lace crown embroidered with sequins and pearls. Her bouquet was a cascade of stephanotis and orchids.

Assisting as best man was Blaine Mansfield, with ushers being Richard Danon, brother of the bride; John Sprague, brother of the bridegroom; James Peterson and Ron Simpson.

FOLLOWING reception at the Huntington Sheraton the newlyweds departed for a Hawaiian honeymoon. They will reside in Long Beach.

A graduate of Pasadena City College, the bride attended UC at Berkeley from which the bridegroom has his degree in engineering. The bride is a member of Beta Sigma Phi.

flamenco hemlines and sizzling colors . . . an Americanization of the Canadian Mounties hat (so stylish this year) . . . slithery discotheque dresses (a direct steal from Paris where New Jimmie's started it all), the greatest new after-five-not-formal fashion . . . also this season's see-through fabrics, ruffles and plunging necklines, the revival of a sexy trend for which France must assume responsibility.

Also in the international flavor: evening elegance with a Spanish accent—the froth of black lace, the flash of jet, the swish of a mantilla . . . a translation of the English country look in controlled tailoring, bulky tweeds and textured hose . . . and the staccato of jungle prints and glimmering reptiles vibrating from the jungles of darkest Africa.

"Today we're enjoying a wonderful ONE world of fashion," Hersey notes. "No matter what the activity, no matter what time . . . what's fashion here is fashion anywhere in the world."

DOORS at the Lafayette Ballroom will open at 11 a. m., according to Mrs. Harry M. Miner, Ebell Juniors president.

Food will be served at 11:30; IBC contestant introductions will begin at 11:45.

Door prizes will be awarded by Buffums'.

Tickets for the luncheon and show are available from Mrs. C. D. Slosson, 1105 Ramillo Ave., or any Ebell Junior.

Shop Hopping with Sandy

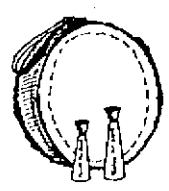

SO MANY NEW DEVELOPMENTS — often difficult to keep informed about products which serve practical needs rather than just being luxurious. One of the most remarkable is the transparent glass coating developed by SUN-AWAY. Controlling fade, heat and glare, it literally more than pays for itself. SUN-AWAY tailors light with invisible crystal clear, tinted or frosted synthetic enamel to meet your specific needs. More practical than installing awnings or tinted glass, continually replacing merchandise or furnishings, increasing heating or cooling facilities, suffering eyestrain . . . at the same time adds luxury to the appearance of your home or business and beauty to objects currently reflecting harsh light. Next week: Specific home problems, but see for yourself, call 436-6424 or write SUN-AWAY, 40 South Pine, L. B.

SURPRISE for all Shop Hoppers — you'll be gifted with an initial key chain when you mention this column at GRETA'S during their summer clearance sale (It's better than ever!) They're in the midst of an old-fashioned, honest-to-goodness SALE—regular stock of a store going into its 25th year of quality service. Street and cocktail dresses, formals, coats and suits, casuals, lingerie, jewelry, hosiery . . . and tomorrow you'll especially want to be at the head of the line because SWIM SUITS go on sale then, too. All of your favorites by famous makers at substantial savings. Shop early, have fun, park free from 9:30 'til 6 daily, Fridays 9:30 'til 9 at GRETA'S, 5012 East Second, Belmont Shore.

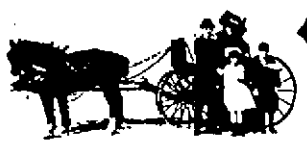

PERFECT PUPPY buying time! ANN'S is overlapping, so they're on special: Registered Cocker Spaniels, $50, Chihuahuas, $35, and "varieties" from $5. Ever see a Pekingese-Cocker or a Beagle-Dachshund . . . some of the most unlikely combinations produce the cutest puppies — they'll all win you, and there's enough to find that "certain" one. This is the best time of year to house train puppies. Add fun, companionship and responsibility to your child's summer with a puppy from ANN'S PET SHOP, 1440 East Seventh, L. B. (Phone 436-0453).

HAVE YOU been to HOLIDAY WIGS yet for your free skin analysis and make-up by their beauty consultant? Amazing fresh, soft feeling and stays — even while swimming! No obligation, but when (then or later) you purchase the skin care items, another gift is yours — an attractive beige overnight case with special compartment for the complete Fashion Two Twenty (non-allergenic) cosmetics. Add the glamour items whenever you like; also continue receiving expert advice (another courtesy). Daily skin care is so important and the compact, convenient case goes anywhere, anytime. Whatever you decide it's a delightful way to refresh during or after a busy shopping spree; might try on some wigs, too (really practical for summer!) at HOLIDAY WIGS, 5331 East Second Belmont Shore.

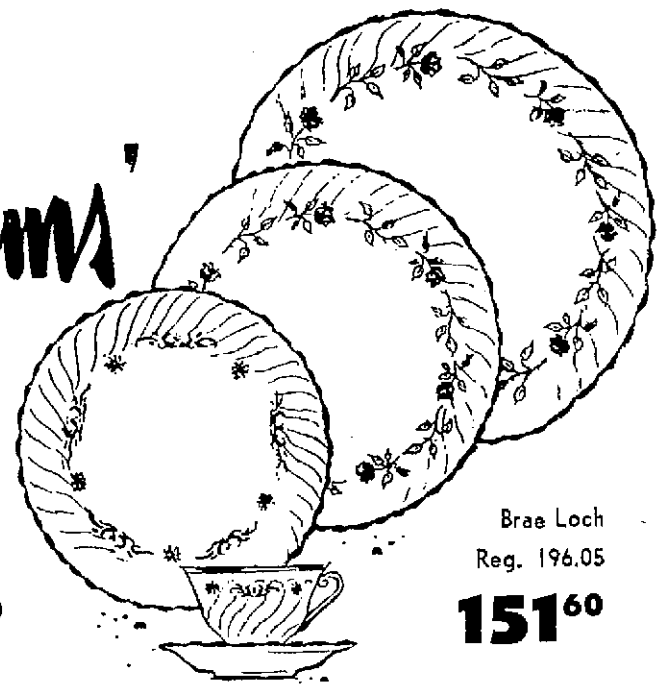

SUMMERTIME IDEAS advertised will add much to your comfort, convenience and fun . . . know of some more? Readers and/or advertisers, call HEmlock 5-1161, ext. 249.

Sorority Alumns Summer Fete

Members of the City Panhellenic board will be special guests when Long Beach alumnae chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi entertains at a dessert-bridge Thursday at the home of Mrs. James W. Wood, 4416 California Ave. Delectable cakes and pastries, prepared by members, will be enjoyed at umbrella-shaded tables around the lawn and swimming pool area.

Honored guest will be Mrs. Verne W. McKinney of Los Angeles, past national president of Alpha Omicron Pi, who leaves later this month for an extended world tour. Invitations have also been accepted by members of the board in 1941, during the year of Mrs. Wood's presidency, who have been playing bridge together since then.

Other previous boards to be represented will be Mrs. Epley's 1950 group who have also been meeting regularly through the years, as well as the 1963 board.

The buffet will be set in a covered patio with a Venetian glass fountain as centerpiece and white gladioli arranged in urns on white pedestals at either end.

Joan Eggart Bride of Spencer Green

Atlantic Avenue Methodist Church was the setting Saturday evening for the wedding of Joan Marion Eggart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wray J. Eggart, 2055 Dawson Ave., and Spencer Harris Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger L. Green, 2060 St. Louis Ave.

Preceding the bride to the altar were her sister, Elizabeth Eggart who was maid of honor, and Paula C. Johnson, Christine Russell and Carolyn Armstrong. John F. Green served as his brother's best man, with Wray J. Eggart Jr., bride's brother, Bob Cole and Ronald Childers as ushers.

A chapel length gown of bombazine and Chantilly lace with a tiered bouffant skirt and trimming of seed pearls and sequins was chosen by the bride. A pearl crown held her veil and her bouquet was composed of orchids, carnations and stephanotis.

* * * *

BOTH YOUNG people were graduated from Polytechnic High School. The bride was graduated from Long Beach Business College as a dental assistant and attended Long Beach City College. The bridegroom was graduated from Long Beach College of Commerce and is now attending LBCC.

Oswald Jacoby
Impossible Dilemma

One of the great short stories of the nineteenth century was Frank Stockton's "The Lady or the Tiger." In this story the hero was given an impossible dilemma to solve.

You are South. West opens the five of hearts against your three no-trump contract and East plays the queen. You wish you had found your way to a safe five-club contract, but you are in three no-trump.

If you rise with the ace and East obtains the lead with the ace of clubs he will lead through your jack of hearts. If hearts break 4-4 everything will be fine, but if they break 5-3 you will be set. On the other hand, if you hold off twice in hearts and it turns out that West holds the ace of clubs and five of hearts you will be set that way. Who has the ace of clubs? Is there a correct play or are you faced with an absolute guess?

* * * *

THE ANSWER is that you have about as close a thing to a guess as possible. At first glance you note that if West holds five hearts and East holds three, that East has 10 cards, any one of which may be the ace of clubs. West has only eight clubs, so that East is more likely to hold the ace than West.

Against that, you have the possibility that East started with queen-ten-nine of hearts. In that case, if he held the ace of clubs, you would still make the hand. You would cover the 10 with the jack and the nine would block the suit.

Williams-Smith in Garden Rite

Karen Ann Smith and John Herman Williams were married Saturday in the garden of the Lakewood residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace B. Smith.

The bride wore an imported Irish linen sheath fashioned with Alencon inserts and a chapel train trimmed in Alencon lace. Her veil fell from a linen and lace ring decorated with pearls.

Her attendants, all gowned in orange linen, included her sisters, Kristi and Kerri Smith, maids of honor; Nancy Tisdale, Pam George, Mary Carson and Mrs. Leslie Stewart.

Reese Williams attended his brother as best man. Larry Burnight, James Chalker, Tom Hermstad, Don Klubnik and Leslie Stewart seated guests.

* * * *

THE NEW Mrs. Williams graduated from Lakewood High School and the University of Arizona, where she was president of Gamma Phi Beta.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Williams, graduated from Jordan High School and California State College, Long Beach, where he was Sigma Alpha Epsilon president.

The couple will reside in Long Beach on return from a wedding trip to Mexico City and Acapulco.

WHY GROW OLD?

A Check List to Keep You in Shape

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The following is a list which you might use to check up on yourself every few weeks. We are all so prone to procrastinate, to allow less important things to rob us of self-improvement efforts which may not seem essential at the moment or show results immediately, but pay such tremendous dividends in the long run.

It is the day by day small investments which count up in an astounding way, like compound interest. It isn't the big periodic splurge in exercise that counts, or the frantic effort to eat as one should or the sudden concern about skin lubrication between long times of neglect.

* * * *

DID YOU cleanse your face twice today—more if it is oily?

Did you use a lubricating cream if you are past 30 or have dry skin? Did you allow it to soak in for an hour or so?

Did you get any exercise other than that your regular work calls for?

Did you take any little rest periods?

Did you massage your scalp or brush your hair in such a way as to stimulate the circulation in your scalp?

* * * *

DID YOU give any serious thought to the food you ate today? Did you make it a point to get all of the fond elements so essential to health?

Did you have a good laugh?

Did you do something you are really interested in?

If you did all of these things you probably have a lot of happiness ahead of you. If you missed many you would be wise to heed the warnings.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Don't Hold Your Breath

DEAR ABBY: My wife is going to leave me and my two children in the near future. I would like a nice-looking woman beween 30 and 40 to keep house for me and the children. I am very lonely and in need of female companionship, and maybe I could fall in love with her. I can't get married again because of my religion, so I had better make that plain, but I am sure there are many women who wouldn't mind living like that. She would have to be about five feet two or three. No taller, and not too fat. But I would prefer one a little too plump to one who is skinny. She'd have to be a good cook and housekeeper, and in good health. I can't stand to hear a woman complain about her health. She would have to like baseball, football and roller skating. I can't pay much, but I have a nice home, automatic heat and a power lawn mower. Thank you very much.—WAITING.

DEAR WAITING: If you expect to find a good-looking cook, housekeeper, companion, playmate and nursemaid, who will work like a horse in exchange for a roof over her head, forget it. No woman in her right mind would assume all the responsibilities of a with none of the benefits.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: For the past four years my husband has been wearing a hair piece. As far as I know, nobody has ever kidded him about it, although I would just as soon he didn't wear it, and so would our children. Lately he has become very self-conscious about it. He doesn't want to associate with anyone. When someone comes to the door unexpectedly he runs to the bathroom and locks himself in. When we go any place he always wears a hat, no matter how hot it is, and he never takes his hat off. He is getting so unfriendly he's not fit to live with any more. Can you help me?—WORRIED WIFE.

DEAR WORRIED: Apparently your husband has developed a fixation about his hairpiece. Try to convince him that he looks better without it. If he's unconvinced, perhaps he has been kidded about it, in which case he should shop around for a better one. If that fails, do him the kindness of steering him to a doctor. Could be it's not what is ON his head, but what is In it that is really bothering him.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion on something that has caused a big argument between my mother and me. I am 19 and my boy friend is 20. Sometimes he and I will sit in his car right in front of my house and talk for a little while before I go into the house. I am not saying that he has never given me a good night kiss in the car, but we DO NOT sit out there and neck up a storm. We talk mostly. We don't do anything in his car that we wouldn't do in my house. My mother says that the neighbors are getting their eyes full, and they will gossip about me and ruin my reputation. I couldn't care less what the neighbors say. Can you settle this?—CLEAR CONSCIENCE.

DEAR CLEAR: "Avoid the appearance of evil." As long as you don't do anything in his car that you wouldn't do in your house, do it in your house. A girl's reputation should be as clear as her conscience. Don't muddy yours needlesly.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CONCORDIAN": Don't stay away from church because there are so many hypocrites. There's always room for one more.

MAJOR & MINOR NOTES

'Fed Up,' Realtor Creates Festival

By RACHEL MORTON
I. P-T Music Critic

Remember the old adage, "Too many cooks spoil the broth?"

In an article in the New York Times of July 19 entitled "Getting Long Island together," Theodore Strongin writes about how "A Festival is Created by a Realtor Intent on Coordination." The realtor is Norman Blankman.

"I got fed up," he stated. "Fed up with 150 or so known organizations dealing with arts in Long Island, New York. That meant 150 separate demands for funds, 150 separate schedules of events, 150 different audiences, 150 set of officers."

"Blankman, a large scale realtor, is a man of action, quick spoken and throbbing with carefully controlled energy—just the man, in short, to 'get fed up' and do something about it.

"Long Island," he said, "like the rest of the nation is smitten with the cultural bug, and even if much of it is superficial, some good does rub off on us.

"BLANKMAN and his wife, a Martha Graham pupil of the dance, served on some of these committees but gradually they came to feel that there was serious waste involved in the dissapation of effort.

"So they got everyone and everything working together under their guidance with the result that Long Island's Art Festival opened recently with the New York City Ballet, and is staging 30 performing arts events and seven concerts by the Philadelphia Orchestra. Thei Philadelphia Orchestra. Their successful efforts were recognized by a Nassau County executive, Eugene H. Nickerson, who appointed Blankman as head of a newly formed Arts Commission and last May he made available $25,000 in county funds to help stage the festival.

"NORMAN Blankman foresees the Center as a year-round operation and negotiations are being completed with Alfred Wallenstein to head a fully-professional Long Island Philharmonic Orchestra on a year-round basis."

Long Beach might profit by the experiences and successes of the Long Island Arts Festival.

In my opinion, the reason our May music festivals have been disappointing is that too many people were involved. Likewise, the dim prospect of our ever having grand opera in Long Beach is that too many want a "finger in the pie."

I attended a meeting recently where the subject of having grand opera in Long Beach was discussed. But there were so many divergent ideas and so many "fingers in the pie" that I came away very discouraged. The only way to have grand opera in our city is to interest some public spirited citizens of wealth and have them buy a "package deal" that would bring to Long Beach a reliable opera company already established.

Film Probes Loneliness of Old Age

"Umberto D" was withheld from American theaters for nearly five years because its theme, the loneliness of old age, wasn't regarded as "box office" by the experts.

Directed by Vittorio de Sica, the film is a probing character study of an old man alone in the world except for his mongrel dog and of his attempts to sustain himself and his pet.

"Umberto D" will be presented in the Little Theater of California State College, Long Beach, Saturday at 7 and 9 p.m. It is the sixth of nine films in Long Beach Film Society's summer series. Tickets will be on sale at the box office.

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

The winners of the recent Barnsdall All-City Outdoor Festival are an extremely interesting cross section of what is current in art in this area. The 22 paintings and graphics, and 4 sculptures are on display in the Tower Gallery of Los Angeles City Hall.

The site itself is fascinating to visit. On the 25th floor, its windows and balconies command the entire Los Angeles basin and surrounding hills. It is open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Fridays and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

* * * *

WHILE it is hard to generalize about so many different works in different media, all are fresh and unhackneyed; there is a prevading sense of the mysterious. With a few exceptions like assemblage, "found" objects, and pop art, most of the leading, current trends are expressed.

Hammersley's blue, black, grey, and white "Matched" is a dynamic example of immaculate hard-edge. Strombotne's "The Man" is, essentially, a black painting with two enigmatic figures, one in a beribboned military tunic. Hansen's recent pursuit of "The Dome" in black and white duco with resist is awesome.

* * * *

IT IS GRATIFYING to see Dick Swift's "The Creation of Eve" the major winner in graphics and two of his students, Clifton Cline and Betty Saar also awardees. Cline's work is strong influenced by Swift, though he eschews reference to representation in his "Amen-Ra."

Saar, on the other hand, is an individual departure. Her rollicking steer on the left hand is transposed into raised, embossed cuts of beef on the right with consummate skill.

Joyce Tremaine's "Is This Araby" in poisonous green and livid pink is an aged and fattened odalisque with a chortling camel and a beturbaned speaking head coming out of the woodwork. Very puzzling, strange, and disturbing.

* * * *

AMONG the sculptures, James Basler's "Totem" is to me the most exciting. Others are either cast bronze or welded sheet and wire, and while they are all fine, they are not unusual. Basler constructs in seemingly random lumber which has been brazed, which gives the graining rich dimension.

This exhibit, which continues until Aug. 12, is an excellent opportunity to appraise some of the leading Los Angeles area artists. It is not too large, so that the viewer can thoughtfully consider each of the works.

It's the Way That You Do It

By CURTYNE DRISCOLL

"We can tell pretty well how much experience a girl has had by the way she puts the paper in the typewriter," said Barbara Jones, vivacious manager of Western Girl Inc., Long Beach office.

"A superior attitude toward taking tests often means a superior attitude on taking a job. And neatly typed references are indicative of basically neat girls."

"How you act when confronted with a job application blank is as important as what you write on it, when it comes to getting a job," she continued.

Mrs. Jones admits that she peeks at job hunters in her outer office—and what she sees gives her a head start on deciding whether or not to hire a girl.

PRACTICALLY every employer does the same thing, she says, whether a temporary employment service like Western Girl or the personnel department of a large company.

"The way a girl acts when she thinks she is unobserved is often a greater clue to her personality than the answers she might give in a formal interview. And personality is as important as job history or stenographic skills in determining how she will get along in an office," Mrs. Jones explained.

Personality factors are more often the reason for a girl not being employed than lack of skills, she said.

Western Girl Inc. is an organization that employs girls to fill temporary jobs. During the peak period from April to October (vacation time) the Long Beach office has about 100 girls out every week.

The girls seem to like the challenge of temporary work and changing jobs, according to Mrs. Jones.

Young women new to the area find it a good way to job shop. Many Navy officers' wives find it a good way to spend the six or seven months their husbands are away in West Pac. (Employers love them because they want to work Saturdays and Sundays, the loneliest days of the week.) And mothers of small children find it a good way to keep their stenographic skills without being tied down to a full time job.

WESTERN GIRL has about 100 offices throughout the U.S. and issues "travels cards" to its employees to identify them where ever they may go. The card carries the girl's test scores and rating so she can be placed immediately.

Oh, yes, Western Girl has report cards, too. When the temporary situation is terminated, the employer is asked to fill out and return a card rating the Western Girl's performance.

Ratings, in order of appearance on the card are: promptness, appearance, personality, cooperation and efficiency, indicating the importance of attributes other than being the fastest typist ever.

In card after card, the girls were rated as excellent on all points. (Ooops, watch that promptness, girls!)

And an amazing number of them carried a hand written plea, "Please send back!"

SOME DO'S AND DON'TS for job hunters from Barbara Jones:

DO

Read the entire application blank over quickly—so that you can put the correct information into the correct spaces.

Be ready with references, dates of employment, social security number, etc.

Sit up straight, write quickly and act businesslike.

Be prepared to be tested. For instance, have your glasses ready, and, if you think you might be given a typing test, be sure your nails are filed to a comfortable length for typing.

DON'T

Spread the contents of your purse all over the office—or practically empty your purse in order to find your social security card.

Light a cigarette while making out your application.

Ask questions in a loud voice, disturbing other applicants.

Make nervous remarks when confronted with a test (such as, "I'm very nervous," "I'm not used to this make of typewriter.")

Putting a job applicant at ease, friendly Barbara Jones, manager of Western Girl Inc., says personality is as important as job skills to prospective employers. Annalee Ela (top photo) typifies the poise and charm that impresses at interviews.

Western Girl Carolyn Turrentine shows how an overstuffed hand bag can lead to disaster just when a girl wants to appear at her very best . . . looking for a job.

Green Eyed Monster Threatens Happiness

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have been married almost two years. This is a second marriage for me and for my husband; he has one child, I have three; they are all with us.

We are both very jealous. When I found out it made him jealous, I quit doing those things (mostly dancing).

My husband, on the other hand, tries to make me jealous. He tells me about girls he has gone with, takes me to their homes where he talks a mile a minute with them, leaving me to listen to their reminiscing about old times. I've told him I don't like it and threatened to leave. He says he's sorry, but soon he is doing the same thing over.

I love him very much. How can I make him stop deliberately hurting me?

—VERY UNHAPPY

DEAR UNHAPPY:

Stay jealous if you must, but for goodness sake stop showing it. If you must listen to reminiscences, PRETEND to be terribly interested. That will fascinate him.

When you can tactfully avoid it, don't go where you are exposed to these get-togethers that irritate you.

When he sees he actually isn't hurting you (can't hurt you)—or so you must make him think—the fun of trying will speedily die out. All the best!—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My 13-year-old sister went to the store with a friend and never came back. I'm hoping she will read this and call us or write us. Mother is failing fast and this is just one more try to find Wanda.

Please, Wanda, let us help you whatever your problems—just let us know where you are. I write in love and desperation, as your sister: Margaret Southard, 4753 Canehill, Lakewood, Calif.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Playboy husbands! I wonder if there are other wives with husbands who are as stupid as mine?

My dearly beloved (ha! ha!) goes to union meetings or whatever kind of meeting he can think of on paydays, stops at a particular bar to have a beer with the fellas (the kind that wear lipstick and skirts!). It takes him till 3 or 4 a.m. to get home. Hubby is so elated with events of the night he fails to remove the lipsticked cigarette butts from the car ashtray; and some of "her" belongings are usually left in the car.

He also forgets to remove slips of paper with the names, addresses and phone numbers of his friends. I find them when I do the washing or dry cleaning.

The only thing dumb hubby doesn't know is that this supposedly unsuspecting wife has seen her lawyer in regards to getting rid of him (so he can really be a playboy!), plus a support order because she is tired of footing the bills and responsibilities while he is out spending his paycheck with the "fellas" (???)

—KNOWING, IRATE WIFE

DEAR KNOWING:

Perhaps if your husband reads this, he will do an about-face. You've let him get by with his little game so long, he probably thought he had it made! Little does he suspect that his number has been called and that he'll have to bow out of the playboy game or watch the curtain go down on a once-happy marriage.

Let's hope he settles down and behaves himself so you don't have to go though with your divorce (or separation).—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am 16, have been married almost two years, and have a darling little girl almost a year old. My problem is I don't love my husband; I love someone else.

This other man is 30, married and has three children but he is better to me than my own husband. He's everything a girl could want. To top it off, his wife and I are good friends.

A few stolen moments while his wife is away is just like a beautiful dream. But now I'm waking up and I think I'm about to have his child.

Where will all this end ??

—BETTY BLUE

DEAR BLUE:

Where indeed! The whole mixed-up business is such a pudd'n'head mess that it can't help but get messier. And probably the sooner it all blows up the better.

If you do find you're going to have this man's child, then better make a clean break of it NOW, as judging from your letter, it's all bound to come out sooner or later anyway.

In the letter above I remarked that "telling all" is sometimes self-indulgence—but in this case I'd say it was about the only way to wipe the slate clean.—M.M.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Cooking No Labor for Him

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I.-P-T Food Editor

"If it's smoking, its cooking. If it's burned, it's done."

This is the tongue in cheek description of the cooking know-how of most of the Chefs of the Week . . . or perhaps men in general.

Thus it is noteworthy that the cooking capabilities of President Johnson's official family qualify them to preside over any range. They each have a favorite recipe, too!

Today's Chef of the Week, W. Willard Wirtz, secretary of labor, has mastered Beef Brochette. His imaginative abilities have combined the cubes of beef with cubed eggplant, cherry tomatoes and canned small onions.

Barbecued Beef Kabobs is the favorite of Secretary of agriculture Orville L. Freeman. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, recommends his Marinated Steaks, while Luther H. Hodges, secretary of commerce, and Stewart L. Udall, secretary of interior, want none of the marinating-basting-barbecuing bit. They prefer to do theirs as-is, with the true, succulent flavor of the beef still intact.

* * * *

SECRETARY Wirtz was appointed secretary of labor by the late President John F. Kennedy in August of 1962, was confirmed by the Senate without hearings, and sworn into office at the White House in September. Prior to that he had served as under secretary of labor, engaged in the private practice of law, and had been a full professor of law at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. Earlier in his career he had taught law at the University of Iowa, and English at Kewanee, Ill., High School.

Born in DeKalb, Ill., Wirtz attended Northern Illinois State Teachers College in DeKalb, the University of California in Berkeley, and Beloit College in Beloit, Wis., from which he received a BA degree. He entered Harvard Law School in 1934, and was graduated in 1937.

Since assuming office, his principal concerns, apart from the everyday administration of the Department of Labor, have centered around the nation's broad unemployment problem in all its ramifications — long-range economic development, employment aspects of the civil rights question, and the problems imposed upon the field of labor-management relations by the country's advanced industrial technology.

* * * *

IN HIS capacity as secretary of labor, he also bears major responsibilities on several governmental committees independent of his department.

Sharing his cooking interests are Mrs. Wirtz, the former Mary Jane Quisenberry of St. Louis, Mo., and their sons, Richard, 23, and Philip, 14.

FAVORITE beef cookout entree of Secretary Wirtz is beef brochette—tender cubes of beef strung on metal skewers with cubes of eggplant, cherry tomatoes and canned small onions.

W. Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Labor

Secretary Wirtz likes the beef cut in 1-inch cubes. Ditto for the raw eggplant. And he says both the meat and eggplant cubes should be marinated in olive oil and garlic for at least three hours before putting them on skewers alternately with the tomatoes and onions.

Start the charcoal fire early, is his advice also. And don't overcook the beef or vegetables. Here are his directions:

BEEF BROCHETTE

Marinate 1-inch cubes of tender beef and 1-inch cubes of raw eggplant for at least 3 hours in olive oil and garlic. On skewers, alternate beef cubes with eggplant cubes, small red (cherry) tomatoes, and canned small onions. Cook over hot coals until meat is browned evenly.

BARBECUED BEEF KABOBS
Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Labor

Take ½ cup olive oil or salad oil, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon rosemary or oregano, 1 pound tender lean beef cut in 1½-inch cubes, 2 large onions cut in wedges, 2 large tomatoes cut in wedges and 8 pitted ripe olives.

Combine oil and reasonings. Add meat cubes and let stand for several hours. Using four skewers, place ¼ of meat cubes, vegetables and olives on each skewer. Broil over charcoal until brown or about 12 minutes, turning to brown evenly. Provides four servings.

MARINATED STEAK
Robert S. McNamara Secretary of Defense

McNamara likes a tender sirloin steak, at least 1½-inches thick, marinated at least four hours in the following sauce: 1 part wine vinegar, 2 parts olive oil, lots of salt and pepper, garlic and a dab of ketchup. He cooks it over hot coals, 10 to 15 minutes for rare, or 15 to 20 minutes, turning once, for well done steaks.

Luther H. Hodges, the Secretary of Commerce, prefers steak for a cookout—the best cut available—broiled over charcoal and seasoned only with salt and pepper.

Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall likes his steak without barbecue sauces. He wants it cooked "as is" so the true, succulent flavor of the beef comes through.

OUR COVER

Southland today pays tribute to Long Beach as an international center of feminine pulchritude with a cover photo of Gudrun Bjarnadottir who came to this city last year as Iceland's loveliest representative and left with the crown of Miss International Beauty for 1964. She returns in the waning days of her reign to witness the selection of and to crown her successor. A native of Keflavik, Iceland, Gudrun speaks English and Icelandic and attended Pitmans College, London. She aspires to a theatrical career and will have that chance this year in the filming of a motion picture to be made in Hawaii. For those who like to make an advance selection of her successor, Southland also presents some interesting data on selections of prior years, with which to make a possible forecast as the girls take the spotlight in the 1965 pageant. NEXT WEEK

A famous Southern California planner-architect has started some penetrating studies of a long-range plan to develop Santa Catalina Island for 16,000 permanent residents. This would necessitate some rather startling changes on the island, which are discussed next week by writer Lou Jobst in an article titled "Cardboard Kingdom."

PADDOCK POOLS HARBOR AREA

Tour trams now carry the public through the Universal studios and past such sets as this Paris street scene.

MOVIES

Ticket to Movieland

By Al Kreig

NO LONGER need you know someone who knows someone before you can see the inside of a movie studio. At Universal City, just three miles from Hollywood and Vine, the West's most famous corner, the world's largest movie studio five times each week day throws wide its gates.

Heretofore, Universal Pictures portals have been closed to all but such as Cary Grant and his black-and-beige Rolls and some 3,000 to 6,000 assorted stars, extras, script girls, directors and others necessary to the production of movies and television films.

Your pass to the glamour world of moviemaking is a ticket on one of the three-car trams that make the 2¼-hour tours of the huge studio tucked between San Fernando Valley and the Hollywood Hills. Your guide aboard the candy-striped caravan is a candy-striped girl who looks ready to be discovered by a talent scout right in his own back yard and be swept away to fame.

MOVIE JARGON comes easily. You learn that the 400-acre studio has a front lot, a back lot and some variously defined areas. Universal is mostly back lot. The back lot is the "world" of the movies. Here are recreated on the half-shell the streets of Paris, New York, Hometown, U. S. A., jungle and desert, South Seas and Cut 'Em Off Pass.

The tram snakes its way past some of the 40 barn-like sound stages, one of which houses the 40-year-old "Phantom of the Opera" set; past the offices of Gregory Peck, Sandra Dee, Marlon Brando, past Gina Lollobrigida's dressing room which has no windows; past the music department where dubbing and looping go on (really).

"You're welcome to make snapshots and movies of anything you see—the tram moves slowly enough.

IN THE TECHNICAL area, one of a pair of outsize Quonset huts is entered. This is a scene dock where architectural exteriors and interiors are stored, broken down into flat sections: A Japanese tea room, the inside and outside of a French farmhouse, prison bars, cocktail lounges. Similar buildings house the properties.

THE TRAM passes a lagoon with a Singapore waterfront flavor, rumbles by another lake and a waterfall whose height is adjustable, and winds up through stagecoach robbing country to Visitors Village for a rest and refreshment stop. Here on the heights the visitor has a panoramic view of the studio.

Returning to the front lot, the tour stops for a look inside a sound stage, but never one that is in action. You will probably see film being shot somewhere along the route, however, although you may not wander among its actors under its Klieg lights.

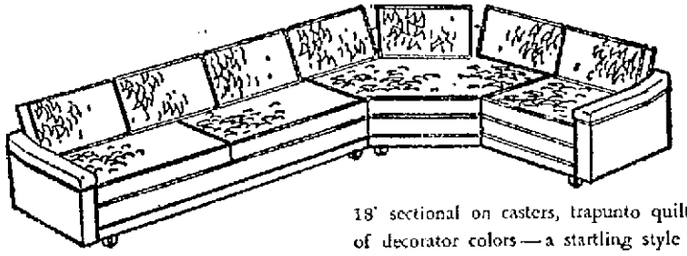

The finale occurs at the new studio commissary building where one lucky lady guest per trip is made up by Perc Westmore or one of his grease paint staff. Here, too, are various costume and photo displays.

The trams operate daily except Sunday. Adult tickets cost $2.50; children under 12, $1.25.

Sorry, girls, no screen tests; your candy-striped girl guide was here ahead of you.

Science Spies on Davy Jones

By Lou Jobst

SCIENCE, blind as a bat where most of the ocean bottom is concerned, is using 3-D photography, a motion picture industry gimmick a few years ago, to shine some light in the darkest ocean deeps.

Stereophotography, a process in which two overlapping and almost matching photographs of the same area are made to create the third dimension, depth, is enabling oceanographers to get a "first hand" look at the ocean floor without the necessity of expensive manned dives.

These "stereopics" provide data on floor textures, materials, depressions and marine life. They also size up everything they see and can provide exact measurements down to fractions of an inch (by using special viewers or projectors).

U. S. Navy Photos

Stereo cameras and strobe lights are part of equipment devised for scientific look at miles-deep floor of sea.

THE NAVY Electronics Laboratory at San Diego has developed a 500-pound deep sea research instrument package which is built around a pair of stereo cameras. Other instruments in the package can take sediment samples, sea floor cores, water samples, temperatures and water current velocities and directions.

Pressure-tight cases for the cameras and the electrical equipment are pre-tested for depths of 36,000 feet, deeper than any known bottom. Tripping mechanisms and pre-setting devices operate the cameras and other gear including the electronic flash equipment. The frame is ballasted to keep the 2¼-by-2¼ cameras, which use unperforated 70-mm. high speed film, vertical.

Echo soundings are used to determine the camera distances from the bottom. Deeper trips down may take more than two hours.

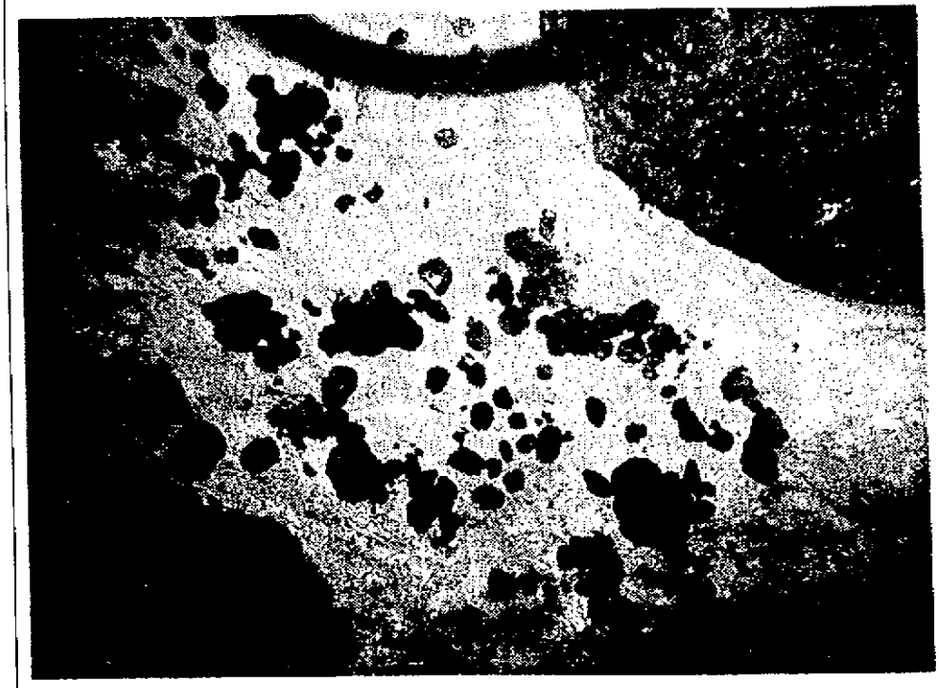

WHILE STILL a relatively new device in ocean research, stereopics have already made some important findings. Ripple marks found on the bottom have established the presence of deep ocean currents, a departure from traditional belief that deep water was still and virtually motionless.

Cameras have also discovered the presence of ocean bottom mineral deposits including vast fields of manganese nodules and phosphorite. These deposits, which represent great reserves of commercially valuable minerals, can be surveyed and even "claim staked" by camera.

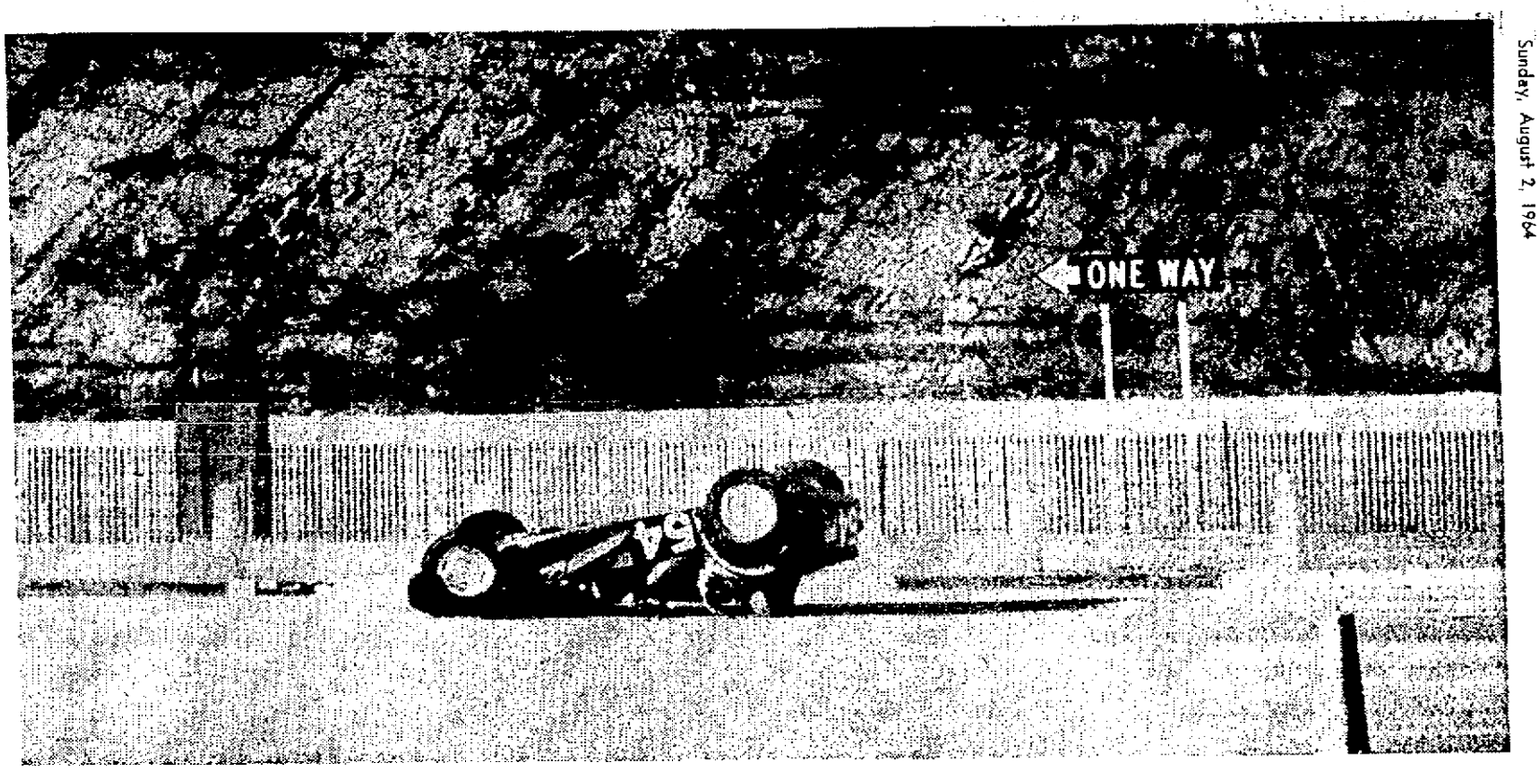

And, occasionally, the cameras have made pictures of slow-moving invertebrates and other forms of animal life including fish and crustaceans.

The cameras have also been used to study the homes and habitats of these rarely seen bottom creatures.

The cameras may even discover forms of life man does not now know exists.

Bottom of the sea, more than 3 miles down, off the California shore: Dark rocks of varying sizes are manganese nodules. Flat pictures get depth by use of 3-D viewers.

Sprawling green giants died that new beauty may be born

The Park With 1,000 Gardeners

By Lana C. Phelan

THREE YEARS AGO, sprawling green giants lay dying in the warm Long Beach sunshine as rows of tall Washingtonian palms and ancient eucalyptus were rudely uprooted in downtown Lincoln Park. Progress, in the form of the Lincoln Park Underground Parking Garage, was under way—but progress was nearly drowned in the tears of the public as the big trees went down.

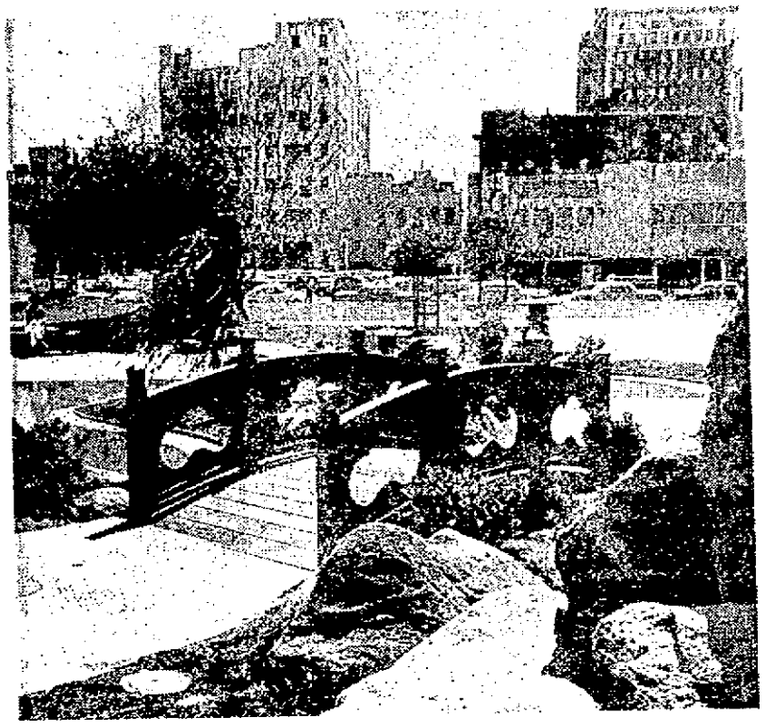

Now, the underground garage is completed and in use, and a most unusual transformation has taken place above ground behind the library building. Flanked by the new roque and shuffleboard courts and ringed about by palm trees and brightly blooming beds of geraniums is a strange and lovely garden that is presently the focal point of the assorted talents of a thousand gardeners.

Ten steps inside the park brings the visitor suddenly into the Orient. A 15-foot umbrella of Nicoli Bird-of-Paradise shelters the legend, "Yokkaichi, Japan-Long Beach, California —Sister Cities."

Designed by Don D. Obert, park director, as a tribute to the sister city of Long Beach, a Japanese garden is springing into life and beauty. It is centered with a low waterfall, bubbling from a volcanic feather-rock base and channeled into a sparkling, busy stream, flowing musically and coolly over a mossy rock bed wandering in a circular path, finally passing beneath an arched red and black Japanese bridge. There, one can stand watching the stream widen into an irregular pool beyond.

A SMALL GRANITE pagoda stands solemnly in the pool, guarding the stepping stones that march across the north end. Here, in the pool, in a mysterious fashion unobserved by viewers, the water is reclaimed and returned to retrace its route.

Grouped around the waterfall, along the stream and bridge and reaching out to surround the pool is a fragrant, pastel confusion of azaleas, abelia and tiny star jasmine. Stone and metal Japanese lanterns (reinforced at night by amber spotlights) guide visitors along the neatly kept walkways where bamboo benches are placed invitingly for meditation. A tea ceremony ablution bowl is at hand for utmost convenience. Red and green nandina bloom erect and feathery above piles of pale gray lava rock.

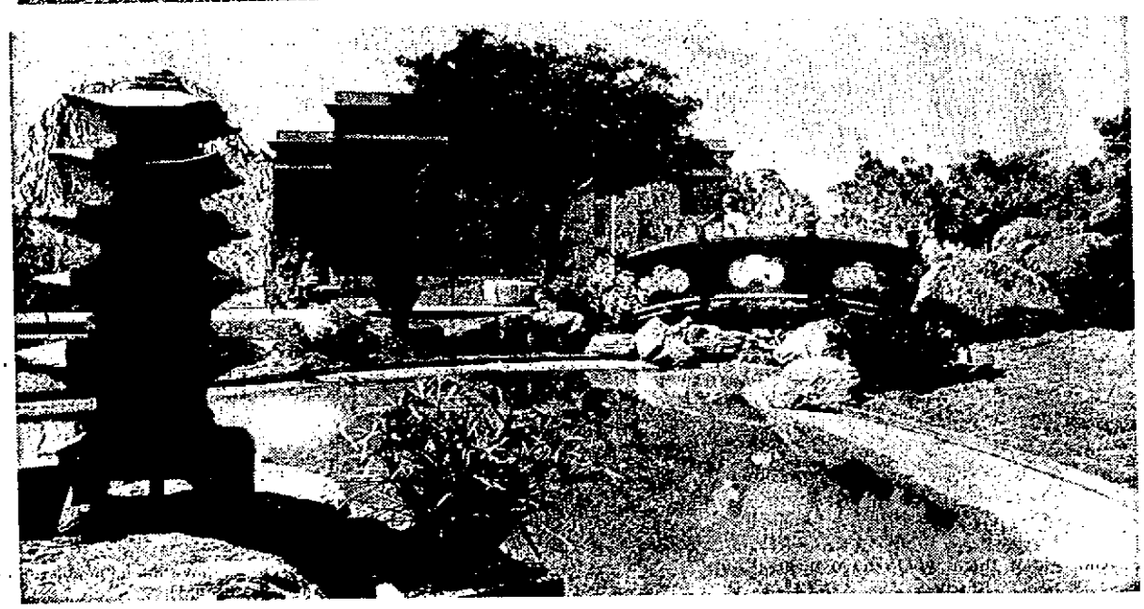

Throughout the park, new trees have been added, tall and beautiful: olive and coral, evergreen ash, magnolia and Italian pine, already 15 to 20 years old at time of planting, have been carefully placed in raised mounds of earth, designed to supplement the barely three feet of soil now separating the park and the underground garage below. The carefully tended grass is velvety, and beds of mosses in two shades of green kitten-fur bank the pool area. The Japanese pigeons closely resemble the local variety.

CLARENCE DUTTON, head gardener at Lincoln Park, grinned amiably and told about the garden and its many gardeners. "We don't dare let a weed show. We have too many Iowa farmers who are expert Oriental gardeners. Every day our senior citizens inspect this place, and heaven help us if anything isn't done right."

He stopped to answer a question from an oldster. "They really take a personal interest in it; the garden belongs to them," he said. "The Irish

What Beauty Queens Are Made Of

Sugar and Spice, Certainly, But What Else?

By Herm Lewis

SUGAR and spice, certainly, but what else? What are beauty queens made of?

In this age of statistical analysis, pollsters and computers, perhaps even beauty can be reduced to coldly impersonal perforations speeding along on tape.

If the slide rule adherents were so inclined, they might correctly predict the winner in this year's International Beauty Spectacular by analyzing all the statistics pertinent to winners of the past. They might devise a silver slipper statistical formula, then search through this year's entry blanks, find the girl the slipper fits, then name her queen. All, of course, in advance of the real judging.

BUT, COMPUTER OR NO, the past does hold some valid information about the quantity of sugar and spice that goes into the making of a beauty queen.

A survey of records kept on the past 12 winners in Long Beach would lead a mathematician to predict that this year's queen will be 20 years of age. Youngest of the queens named thus far was 18, the oldest, 22.

Going further out on the limb, he might hazard guessing her height at 5 feet 6 inches. This is the average height of all 12 winners. The shortest was 5 feet 3 inches, the tallest last year's Gudrun Bjarnadottir at 5 feet 8½ inches. Good things might come in small packages, but beauty, it seems, comes in big ones.

In the weight classification, beauty queens are a far cry from their emaciated sisters who model for the fashion magazines. Reversing the popular trend, they seem to believe they can eat their way to fame, fortune, and beauty. Their average weight is 122½ pounds.

And, all of them would have been attractive, regardless of the changing styles in bathing suits. They averaged 36 inches in the bust, with last year's "Miss Iceland" and 1960's "Miss Colombia" setting the pace at 37½ inches.

SLIM WAISTS would seem to be a must. They average 23, with only a 2½-inch variation in 12 years. Christine Martel, the 1953 beauty, squeezed into 22 inches and Stella Marquez, 1960's "Miss Colombia," the girth champion, was a bare 24½ inches.

Hip measurements are another constant. With only a few exceptions, they were 36 inches, with none narrower than 35½ and two at 37½.

The eyes have it, if they're blue. Blue eyes won out two-to-one over brown, the nearest rival.

And, a prince charming with a real—not statistical—silver slipper, better gamble on size 7½. No shoe sizes were smaller than 5½ or larger than 8.

Summing up, if the winner crowned Friday night, Aug. 14, in the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium, fulfills the average, she will be 20 years of age, 5 feet 6 inchs tall, weigh 122½ pounds, have a 36-inch bust and hips, a 23-inch waist, blue eyes, brown hair and will wear a 7½ shoe.

None of these take into account, however, poise, posture and the indefinable thing they mean when they say beauty is more than skin deep.

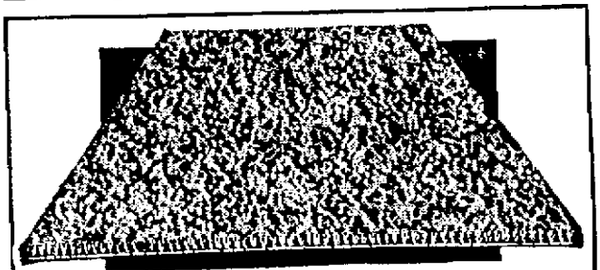

TO PEER BENEATH the statistical exterior a panel of nine judges has been assembled for this year. Robinson A. Reid, president of the Board of Harbor Comissioners, heads the

In the Interests of Friendship

JAYNE STARK
Welcome for IBC's Miss England

MARDEE (SHERLOCK) WILSON
"Watson must be here somewhere . . ."

By Irma McCall

WOULD YOU be surprised to see Sherlock Holmes, Mamie Van Doren, Sir Walter Raleigh and Queen Elizabeth, and Winston Churchill marching down Ocean Boulevard? Well, these famous Britishers (in miniature) will form a unique escort for Miss England at the International Beauty Congress parade at 1 p.m. next Sunday. Members of the International Children's Choir, will also represent a Beefeater, a Grenadier, a London businessman, and an English school boy and girl.

These young citizens are dedicated to promoting world peace. A bright-eyed grandmother originated the choir. Six years ago Mrs. Easter Beekly aspired only to direct her children's dance studio in North Long Beach. Then, one day, a letter spun her life into orbit, when the postman delivered a song "Let There Be Peace on Earth, and Let It Begin With Me."

MRS. BEEKLY had always closed dance recitals with the ballerinas and tappers warbling a popular tune. Realizing that this new song would further understanding among nations, she taught it as a finale. One afternoon as the children performed outdoors at a Lakewood U.N. celebration, she noticed the flags fluttering behind the singers and the great inspiration struck. Each child would be a nation!

Boys and girls of appropriate family background, ages 3 to 14, were chosen to represent 92 nations. Pint-sized Liberia was born there, and a Korean orphan couldn't be more real.

Some countries, including Paraguay, Iceland and Ceylon, donated valauble costumes. The secretary of a USSR Youth Group wrote: "Let us know, please, the size of the costumes and we will send a pattern and samples of the clothing of our people. With friendly regards." From Hungary: "We think the realization of your idea will be a contribution to the friendship of nations and are only too glad to promote this project."

FROM THE START every audience has loved the children. TV greats have featured the choir: Sinatra, Crosby, Edie Adams (three shows, one with the theme "Love Around the World," Burt Lancaster in a Freedom's Foundation benefit. The children brighten the lives of patients in veterans' hospitals. They sing in prisons, universities, churches, clubs. They delight affluent banqueters paying $100 a plate for a cause. Women at a recent WAIF benefit in Beverly Hills declared, "The choir was the highlight of the afternoon!"

For six summers the youngsters have contributed to the "sisterhood" of nations in a gracious and appealing ceremony—the presentation of a friendship bracelet to each IBC girl by the child representing her country. The last Miss Scotland wept when 2½-year-old Kerri Shuttleton gave her the golden talisman. As a result of these symbolic gifts several lasting friendships have developed.

La Reina Rule

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif., 90812, for origin and meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you publish data on BARRITT.—F. B., Long Beach.

F.B.: BARRITT is a form of the English surname Barrett. The cognomen evolved in Britain from an early French-German hero named "Bero-walt" meaning "mighty as a bear." The bear was symbolic of strength in battle. A tenant-in-chief named Beret, a baronial land owner, was the first recorded member of this family, listed in the Domesday Book of 1066. Two centuries later John Baret was a Lincolnshire resident. The Barrett or Barritt shield granted in 1383, is red, emblazoned with a silver stripe across the top. The shield has a blue border.

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you inform us on RIVERA. —G.R., Santa Ana.

G. R.: RIVERA, when traced to its Spanish source in the Middle Ages, is revealed to mean "resident on the riverbank." The Rivera coat-of-arms granted in old Spain is a shield colored silver on the upper half, red on the lower half, divided by a wavy line. Diego Rivera, noted Mexican mural painter, was among many illustrious members of this lineage.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give gencalogy on SANDERS and SAUNDERS.—H.B., Mrs. S., Long Beach.

H.B., S.: SANDERS and SAUNDERS were contracted to their present form in medieval England and Scotland from the Friscan-Dutch baptismal name Aleksander (Alexander) meaning "protector and defender of men." Somerset records of 1327 list William Saundres. Shropshire lists of 1273 note Richard, "Brother of Sander." The Saunders and Sanders shield is black, emblazoned with three silver bull heads. John Saunders settled at Salem, Mass., in 1628; John Sanders was a legatee in the will filed at Newberry, Mass., in 1647.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze JEWELL. — D. H., Long Beach; G. J., Garden Grove.

D.H., G.J.: JEWELL is an English spelling variation of the ancient Biblical Hebrew baptismal name Joel meaning "Jehova is God." The Jewell shield from Salisbury has three silver gillyflowers on a blue background. Thomas and Grissell Jewell were citizens of Braintree, Mass., as early at 1642.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give information on REDBURN.—B.J., Anaheim.

B.J.: REDBURN is taken from an English locality originally called Hreod-burne, meaning "reed-filling brook." This ancient Saxon phrase evolved as the surnames Redbourn, Redbourne and Redburn. The family shield, held by the Redborne branch, is covered with checkered gold and blue squares and crossed by a red chevron.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain PENALUNA. — B., Long Beach.

B.: PENALUNA, a phonetically spelled Cornish surname, is from southwest England. It began as the ancient Cymric phrase "Pen-lluan" meaning "resident at the glistening headland." Penaluna can also be from a Spanish landmark called "Pena Luna," describing "moon shaped rock."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on LUCE or DE LUCE.—M.B., Long Beach.

M.B.: LUCE and DE LUCE descended from an old French given-name which evolved from the Latin "Lucius" meaning "light or wisdom." Lucilius and Lucius were used in honor of the 3rd century Pope St. Lucius. Luce was introduced to England by 11th century French ancestors. In Ireland and Scotland, Luce had a separate source, from the archaic Celtic term "Llwys" meaning "clear, pure river." This was a locality

Old Favorites Come to a Party

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

Corned beef and coleslaw are the principals of this large, tasty and eye-appealing ring mold for a party.

THAT FAVORITE family standby for generations, corned beef and cabbage, gets a culinary face-lifting and puts on a party dress when it is combined in a festive and elegant molded salad. A two-layer beauty, Corned Beef and Coleslaw Party Mold unites a variety of compatible flavors, offers cool and satisfying eating, and makes a striking appearance on the buffet or sit-down dinner table. It makes 10 to 12 servings.

When unmolded, a thick layer of delectable pineapple coleslaw sits atop a thinner layer of jellied beef. There's good reason for the varying thickness of the layers. The creamy molded cabbage salad is light and airy, so that a sizeable serving is in order. The meat layer, being loaded with the full-seasoned beef, can well be smaller so that it will be completely satisfying without being overly filling.

The mold is a large one, and the greens will look more attractive in the center than around the edges, and at the same time the serving plate will not look crowded. For extra color, add cherry tomatoes and green pepper rings to the greens, if you wish. Dressing to spoon over the salad is optional; however you might like to offer a choice of French or coleslaw dressings.

Canned corned beef turns many other favorite summer salads, as well as coleslaw, into main dishes. Add it to potato, macaroni, rice, and mixed vegetable salads, or let it replace the cottage cheese usually served with fruit salads. It provides the complete protein of beef economically and most conveniently. There is no need to thaw it, no rush to use it up before it "turns"; a can on the pantry shelf or in the refrigerator keeps indefinitely, and the meat is ready to eat or to use in plain or fancy dishes the minute the can is opened.

Corned Beef and Coleslaw Party Mold

Coleslaw Layer:

3 to 4 cups chopped green cabbage
1 cup crushed pineapple, drained
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
Juice from pineapple, plus water to make 1 cup
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon salt
½ tsp. prepared mustard
¼ cup chilled evaporated milk
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Corned Beef Layer:

2 cans (12-oz. each) corned beef, unchilled
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
1 cup cold water
½ cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon grated horseradish
1 teaspoon grated onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

For the coleslaw layer, combine cabbage and pineapple. Soften gelatin in cold water. Heat pineapple juice; add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Blend in 1 tablespoon lemon juice, mayonnaise, salt, and mustard; stir into cabbage mixture. Refrigerate until slightly thickened. Whip evaporated milk with remaining lemon juice until stiff; carefully fold into thickened cabbage mixture. Turn into 2¾ or 3-quart ring mold, refrigerate until set.

For the meat layer, flake corned beef with fork. Soften gelatin in ¼ cup water; heat over hot water until gelatin is dissolved. Add to mayonnaise; blend in remaining ingredients and mix well. Turn into mold on top of coleslaw layer; refrigerate until firm!

To serve, unmold onto large plate. Center of ring may be filled with mixed salad greens in bit-size pieces, to be spooned onto plates before topping with servings of molded salad. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Recipe of the Week

ALMONDS' delicate flavor is part of this week's $5 prize winning recipe submitted by Mrs. Lee Hubbard, 1608 E. 27th St., Anchorage, Alaska. The recipe:

Mocha Almond Mold

¼ cup almonds, chopped fine
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup sugar
1½ tblsp. instant coffee
¼ tsp. salt
1½ cups milk
1½ cups heavy cream, to be whipped
2 egg whites, to be beaten

Chop almonds and set aside. Combine gelatine, sugar, instant coffee and salt in small saucepan. Gradually blend in milk; heat and stir constantly until solids dissolve. Stir in almonds and set aside to cool, then chill in refrigerator until mixture begins to set. Butter 8" square baking pan. Whip 1 cup heavy cream. Beat egg whites until they hold soft peaks. Gently fold in cream and egg whites to gelatine mixture. Turn into buttered pan, chill until firm. Loosen sides with spatula, unmold onto dish. Whip remaining cream. Trim a square-cut serving on each plate. Serves 4.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812.

in Wigtownshire, Scotland, where Luce Abbey was founded in A.D. 1190. The Luce shield is blue, decorated with a silver crescent.

DEAR MISS RULE: What have you on BLOUNT. — M.M., Garden Grove.

M.M.: BLOUNT came into use in 12th century Britain where the name meant "blond one." Hugh Le Blount is in the 14th century Writs of Parliament. Melodin Le Blount was a Huntingdonshire ancestress in 1273. The Blounts were Barons Mountjoy and Earls of Devonshire. Their progenitor was the valiant Sir Walter Blount, noted for his ability in battle during the 1300s. He died in 1403. The Blount shield is covered with six narrow alternating gold and black stripes divided by cloudy bands.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze HYATT. — E. H., Westminster.

E.H.: HYATT is a picturesque English surname. The source is evident from the recorded forefather John Atte Haghyate (John at the High Gate) who lived in the early 1300s. The Hyatt shield is silver, emblazoned with a black rampant lion below a black and silver serrated-edge stripe.

Passport to a Campus Wardrobe for Fall

Blending neo-classic and contemporary, the Americana Look is represented here in a bulky turtle neck sweater sparked with giant hound's tooth checks in a fluffy mohair, and Bobbie Brooks teams it with a classic slender skirt made of a soft wool flannel.

This fall's campus-bound fashions for the All-American jeunne fille include a world of sportswear with an international flair. From the Continent, the British Isles and the U.S.A. come looks which have been translated into coordinates for class-time and "apres school" activities.

A passport to these looks can be booked from a collection of internationally inspired sweaters by Bobbie Brooks. From the Continent comes the popular Italian mohair sweater in pullover and cardigan styles. Traveling north, we find the influence of the Scandinavian ski sweater in colors bright and clear as the northern lights.

From a selection of color palettes, each with one bright and one deep tone (occasionally white is added for a third color), these internationally inspired sweaters are designed to match or contrast with paterns or solids in skirts and pants.

For example, a brown, red and white tweed skirt has coordinating sweaters in each of these three colors. In reverse, a red and brown check sweater has coordinate skirts in solid brown or solid red. And the fashion adventurist will enjoy "scrambling" her colors and wearing one solid-bright sweater with another solid-deep color skirt.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Study Can Be Fun

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: "My father used to think that if we were having fun, we weren't learning or accomplishing anything. He didn't want to see any smiles until the book was closed or the garden weeded. This thesis seems so grim that I've always hoped it was really not true. Does drudgery, itself, have something to do with impressing a lesson on a child? Does the medicine have to be bitter to do any good?"

ANSWER: Learning is often wearisome, but that doesn't improve its quality.

There is no proof that a lesson learned under pleasant circumstances is learned less readily or less effectively than one that is drilled grimly into the brain by "good hard work."

We know a father who taught his preschool youngster the basics of arithmetic by playing darts with him. The child eagerly learned to calculate scores from the numbered circles on the board. His arithmetic is excellent, even though he enjoyed learning it. He never realized he was "studying."

Imaginative devices such as the dart board system actually promote learning, while the dull and uninteresting routines retard it. This would seem so obvious as to need no emphasis.

In education, as in medicine, there's nothing wrong with sugar-coating the pill.

QUESTION: Do all geniuses have a touch of madness?

ANSWER: Not long ago the National Association for Gifted Children conducted a study of the childhood of 400 outstanding persons of the 20th century. Only one of the 400 could be described as mad, and the frequency of mental illness among the 400 was found to be below that of the general population.

Other findings: The most common quality among the 400 was love of learning. Most of the 400 came from small towns and rural areas. Most of the 400 had had some serious disturbance—death of parents, broken homes, desertion, financial hardship—in their childhood.

The Temper of the Cold War

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

LEON URIS completes a loosely integrated, but monumental German-Jewish trilogy with "ARMAGEDDON" (Doubleday, $6.95).

Although Uris' fourth novel deals specifically with the Americans and the genesis and first battles of the Cold War in central Europe, it bears an obvious kinship to "Mila 18," the story of the Warsaw Ghetto, and "Exodus," a postwar classic dealing with the rise of Israel.

The California writer, whose first best-seller, "Battle Cry," was written while he worked as a newspaper circulation worker in San Francisco, searches the causes of anti-semitism in Germany.

He probes the German pysche, the ethnic, social and historic origins of national traits of fanaticism, blind obedience, paganism, hero worship, machine-like precision and lack of non-native compassion which, many believe, gave rise to Hitler and the unspeakable mass murder of six million European Jews.

But Armageddon is also a story of German courage, nobility and honor and a blossoming love of freedom as exemplified by the Berliners.

It tells of the great struggle for Berlin, beginning with its rape, destruction and occupation by the Russians in 1945, through the four-power occupation to the incredible air lift of 1948.

The hero is Sean O'Sullivan, an Irish extraction American occupation officer who has an undying hatred of Germans because both of his brothers were killed by them in the war.

Other major characters include Ulrich Falkenstein, the anti-Nazi German who becomes a force in the democratization of West Germany after the war; Col. Igor Karlovy, the Russian officer torn between eye-opening experiences with western freedom and his love of mother Russia.

Armageddon sets the tone and temper of the continuing Cold War, exposing Communism as an anti-human menace as much as Nazism.

NOTHING brings out the good and bad, the courage and fear in people so successfully as the stress induced by overpowering crisis.

John Masters, best known for his novels about India, sends a catastrophic winter storm to isolate a town of 2,200 on the tip of Cape Cod and lays bare the stories of many of these New Englanders as they face their challenge.

"TRIAL AT MONOMOY" (Harper & Row, $4.95) introduces its many characters through the issues and caste differences that divide them. The basic split concerns the future of a dune property, which old-timers and do-gooders want declared a national park and bird sanctuary, while business and political interests pull for a housing subdivision.

There is the aristocratic town matriarch whose family once owned the property and whose son brings home a Negro fiancee; the suspended school teacher who leads the campaign for the bird sanctuary; the greedy real estate developer who tries to force in housing; the local politicians; the Coast Guard chief responsible for the town's safety, and some daring air-sea rescues; the town delinquents; and a lot of others.

When the town's hotel becomes the communal shelter for the endangered populace, secrets and old scandals become intertwined community property, popping many bubbles — a Hollywood formula for drama and excitement.

TWO NEW BOOKS are designed to help women be prettier, or at least better dressed (probably on the same money they now spend, or possibly even a little less.)

"LOOK YOUR BEST" by Candy Jones, cover girl and fashion authority (Harper & Row, $4.95) tells how to recognize the current "look" in fashion, and how to dramatize good points and minimize figure flaws. Avoid the expensively dowdy, cutie-pie doll, Bohemian and sex-boat looks, she warns. She covers proper attire for office, parties, church, beach and sports. She includes a chapter on professional make-up tricks, and an amusing (and eye-opening) section on how men like their women to look—and why.

"ELEGANCE, A Complete Guide for Every Woman Who Wants to Be Well and Properly Dressed on All Occasions" (Doubleday, $5.50) by Genevieve Antoine Dariaux, director of Nina Ricci's salons in Paris, teaches women to read fashion magazines and columns and shop in salons and in bargain basements. She is against boots, sunglasses (except in bright sunlight), exposed knees, belts on waistlines over 28 inches, suede shoes in the evening, harlequin eyeglasses and curlers in public. She also opposes gloves, shoes, hat and handbag of the same color. Her nomination for the most versatile year-around dress is a white one in a dull fabric of very simple design. And she likes white felt hats that can be worn in every season with almost every ensemble.

REMEMBER Pierre van Paassen's "Days of Our Years," a best seller in the 1940s? The author has written an autobiographical memoir which covers his life to that period in "TO NUMBER OUR DAYS" (Scribner's, $7.50).

Van Paassen began as a preacher, became a journalist and lecturer, and throughout his life has advocated many causes. He describes his early years at mission stations in Canada, his service in Canada's Corps of Guides in World War I, his life in Paris at the end of the war.

Long an adherent of Socialism, he attached himself to anti-Fascist, anti-German, anti-military causes. And he became one of the first non-Jews to promote Zionism.

ESSAYS, lectures and articles by Sir Julian Huxley, scientist who became a philosopher—and a good one!—are combined in "ESSAYS OF A HUMANIST" (Harper, $4.95). The first five essays are on the main theme of his idea-system which he calls Evolutionary Humanism. Basically, the core of his thinking is the concept that we are in a revolutionary age resulting from accelerated evolution, and have reached the point at which mankind is beginning to take charge of its own evolution and that of the whole world.

He considers the direction science is taking, aims of education and potential results of education. Other subjects include the humanist approach to religion, the population explosion—and diverting pieces on bird watching.

MOST READERS will remember Leonard Wibberley's delightful chronicle of a pocket-size duchy that stumped the larger world of science and military might, in "The Mouse That Roared." And its sequel, "The Mouse on the Moon," which spoofed the satellites.

He products fantasy-satire —perhaps this time it is more satire than fantasy — in "A FEAST OF FREEDOM" (Morrow, $3.95) about Omo Lau, a Pacific island dependency of Great Britain. For the sake of international diplomacy the tiny colony is given its freedom. Omo Lau asks for annexation to the United States. And American generals decide it is a fine test range for nuclear missiles.

MEET PIGTAIL, red-haired heroine of C. Y. Lee's new novel of Hong Kong Bay, "THE VIRGIN MARKET" (Doubleday, $4.50). Lee is the author of the well-known novel, "Flower Drum Song," and other books.

"Moon Missile," as this project is called, provides what the professionals refer to as "creative play."

By Bill Meyerriecks

THE NEW look in playgrounds around the nation is what architects and designers term "creative play." A current example of this is the newly opened John F. Kennedy Playground in Washington, D.C. It features real jet planes, some trolleys, a Marine obstacle course, a fire engine and other appealing diversions for the youngsters to climb on and enjoy. In Kansas City, the city fathers set up a magnificent woodpile in sand that is a popular attraction. A Philadelphia playground sports a 25-foot high rocket that kids can climb up and return to earth via a slide.

Sketchbook this week turns you into a playground designer and builder. It presents the "Moon Missile," plan S-170, that can be built in your own backyard. This excellent exercise climber, with the creative play theme, is not a difficult project for Dad to tackle. It is made from standard lumber and tempered hardboard sheets and no special tools are required. The 50-cent Sketchbook plan illustrates and explains all steps of construction plus all details, parts and materials lists to follow.

FOR THE YOUNGSTERS, it's strictly fun and fancy. The missile base legs hold the 8-foot-high housing steady and firm. Inside there is a ladder to climb to reach the second stage platform. The missile is light and airy since the portholes cut in the sides are large enough for an eight-year-old to slide through. It won't take much for the space-minded boy (or girl) to imagine a landing near some lunar crater once they're aboard. And with Dad following the Sketchbook plan instructions for painting the moon missile, it almost looks real enough to just take off into space.

To obtain the easily followed plan, specify "Moon Missile" S-170 and send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812.

Asthma Linked to Autumn

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

COMING of cold weather in the fall months produces a significant increase in asthma attacks.

The finding is that of Dr. Leon Greenburg of Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York. He studied emergency clinic visits for asthma at three New York hospitals — Bellevue, Metropolitan and Harlem.

He suspects that cold air acts as a physiological triggering mechanism in susceptible persons.

Other considerations: It may be that one or more air pollutants not now measured are responsible, such as those released when a heating system is fired up for the first time in the fall. Or perhaps the increase has something to do with the dust that has been lying dormant around a radiator. Still another possibility: the low indoor air humidity brought about by heating during the first spells of cool weather.

HIGH SCHOOL pole vaulters who misuse or abuse fiberglass poles risk serious injury from falls or impalement.

The warning comes in a joint statement issued by the Committee on the Medical Aspects of Sports of the American Medical Association and the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations.

Too often, in an attempt to achieve a whiplike action, the athlete turns to a vaulting pole lighter than that specified for his weight, the statement notes. If poles are overloaded, breakage is apt to occur, and injury may result.

PROPER APPLICATION of adhesive tape can prevent irritation from the tape, a researcher says.

True sensitivity to tape is rare, says Dr. Howard E. Dorton, Lexington, Ky. When irritation does occur it usually is due to improper application.

Blistering from tape often occurs when it is improperly applied by continuous forceful traction on distorted skin, he says. In correct bandaging, tension is applied evenly away from the midportion of the tape.

The report is in the journal Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics.

TWO DOCTORS urge caution in the use of petrolatum products to prevent sunburn.

Patients, they say, should not rub such sun-protective substances into the skin vigorously. If massaged into the skin, such compounds can produce photosensitization, a condition in which the skin reacts abnormally to sunlight.

Petrolatum sunscreens, such as "red vet pet," should always be applied gently, say Drs. E. Kocsard and F. Ofner of New South Wales. Their report is in Archives of Dermatology.

IF A PREGNANT woman has hemorrhoids, the best time to remove them is immediately after she delivers, two rectal surgeons contend.

In fact, they even recommend that the operation be performed as she lies on the delivery table.

The suggestion is that of Drs. James M. Hampton of Baylor University and Fidel Ruiz-Moreno of the University of Mexico.

Their contention is that increases in blood volume and venous blood pressure in the lower extremities during pregnancy promote rapid healing after rectal surgery. Paradoxically, these are the same physiological factors that play a role in making hemorrhoids a complication of pregnancy, the doctors report in Medical World News, news magazine for physicians.

"Healing is so rapid you can almost watch it take place," says Dr. Hampton.

Dr. Ruiz-Moreno points out that a woman's blood supply increases about 25% by the fourth month of pregnancy, but has returned to normal 10 days after delivery.

Healing time is 20% to 30% faster than usual, Dr. Ruiz-Moreno says.

Summer skiing is a new sport for Southlanders, among them Angela and Lynn Flaherty of Long Beach, above.

New Interest in Summer Skiing

By Jerome Hall

MOST people don't suspect it, but skiing is a year-round sport.

From November to May it is just a 2-to-8-hour drive to snowy slopes. From May to November it takes a little longer, because the slopes are in the Peruvian Andes.

This, obviously, cuts deeply into the active roster. For years ski resort operators in Southern California and all the way around the northern hemisphere, have been searching for an answer to the May-to-November dilemma.

As a substitute for snow, some resort operators have covered their slopes with straw and invited the skiing public to enjoy the sport of princes in the good ol' summertime.

But this has not been a satisfactory substitute, and other slopecovers have been tested at great expense to the management.

HILLSIDES have been splattered with plastic chips. To cover a modest area of 100 by 300 feet cost $40,000, and then it was discovered that about all the skier could do was point the slats downhill and hope for the best. Falling on plastic chips at high speed was not a pleasant experience.

It has been, it's plain to see, an arduous and expensive search for a way to shorten that trip to summer skiing grounds and fatten the pockets of the ski tow people.

The answer may have been found.

In Southern California's mountain resort area there is a test of a new subsitute snow under way that is attracting ski people from all across the United States and from Europe, which is just now recovering from that crushed almond shell experiment.

At Snow Valley in the San Bernardino Mountains, barely two hours drive from Long Beach-Orange County, a ski slope has been spread with Snow-Go. The management prefers not to reveal what Snow-Go is made of (is it cotton seed hulls, a soft waste product of cotton?) and is searching for a way to control its use in summer skiing.

"I KNOW we can't get a patent on cotton seed," says George Roberts, who came upon the idea by recalling his boyhood days in the Carolinas when he slid down mountains of it before he'd even heard of skiing.

"It just doesn't seem fair, though, that we take all the chances testing Snow-Go and others just step in and cash in on it."

Jim Duncan, partner with Roberts in the summer operation at Snow Valley, says he doesn't care how many ski resorts jump into the Snow-Go. "There are 9 million people down the hill looking for something different to do this summer, so I'm not the least bit worried that we'll get our share," he says.

Several other Southland ski operators say they are convinced this is the long-sought answer. Verdict of those who have tested the slope is encouraging. "It looks better than we hoped," says Roberts.

CROWDS over the early summer weekends were large, though the project is almost completely unknown outside the inner circle of the ski business.

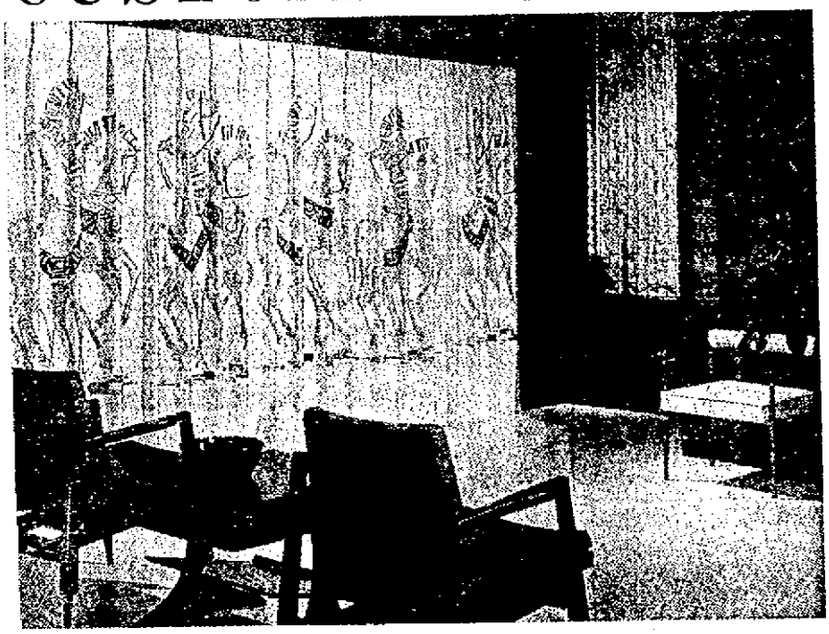

(The cost is startlingly low, by resort standards. Rental of boots, skis and poles, use of rope tow and the hillside is $3 for all day for adults, $2 for children. Lessons start at 50 cents.)

General verdict is Snow-Go is the next best thing to snow. "It packs just like the real stuff," claims Roberts, and the sight of skiers doing a slalom down the hill bears him out.

And best off, the squirrels won't have anything to do with it.

Art Comes to South Street

Art holds top interest in the life of Stan Riner, seen touching up a painting at a nook in his father's store.

By Mickey Gastwirth

SOME artists need the atmosphere of a Paris garret or a Greenwich Village studio to inspire them to do great work, but Stan Riner gets his inspiration in his dad's liquor store at 2028 E. South St., which is a center of cultural activity of sorts, and the gathering place for many who enjoy good music, books, art, and cribbage.

Soon after dawn breaks, this shop opens its doors. The first item of business is to turn on the Hi-Fi. Throughout the entire day and evening there is the stereophonic flow of continuous good music. Visitors may browse for a while, watching television, listening to the ball games, playing chess, checkers, or cribbage. Yet, much of the conversation and interest centers on Stan's art gallery.

Spread amongst the wines and liquors, along the walls, and in every available empty space in the store is an amazing display of Stan Riner oil paintings. Stan began his first oil painting last January, has just completed his 28th picture, many of which are now hanging in his "gallery."

THE PAINTINGS are rich in color, and his form is pleasing to his many daily critics, the patrons of the store. Because expert critics acclaimed his work, he was recently honored by having a one-man show at the Artists Theater in Garden Grove.

Always experimenting, and looking for new fields to conquer, Stan recently finished his first painting on velvet. But with the zest and fervor of a temperamental artist, always looking for perfection . . . he tore it up . . . and began a new one, which is now displayed with his oil paintings.

Stan's formal art education has been limited to an art class at Franklin Junior High School, and a class at Poly High School. His parents, Jack and Celia, recognized his talents early, when he would "scribble," draw, and sketch with pencil. They recall with pride his first "masterpiece." It was a poster entered in a second grade class at Stevenson Elementary school, which not only won first place, but was sent to the state finals and is now hanging in the archives of the Washington, D. C., post office.

IN LATER years, between football sessions at Poly and Long Beach City College, Stan continued to draw and sketch; yet, not seriously. He was encouraged to enroll in a private art school, but lasted only one day. He simply refused to listen to instructions on how to paint, determined to use only his own imagination and techniques.

Stan's older brother Bernie also has tried his hand at painting. He paints for therapy, while Stan paints for "fun." However, this fun has brought other compensations. Just for kicks, he put "ridiculous" price tags on the pictures. To everyone's amazement, especially Stan's, the paintings have begun to sell at the asking prices!

It's a long, hard day for Stan Riner, working in the store, painting, and continuing his other hobbies. Stan carves little figures out of avocado seeds, and bowls in his spare time.

Long Beach's Nickel Movie Days

By Maymie R. Krythe

LONG BEACH had its first chance to view the new invention of motion pictures soon after the first Southern California showing in July 1896 at the Orpheum Theater in Los Angeles. The opportunity was offered through the medium of several store spaces on the Pike that were converted into nickelodeons—and the admission was just one nickel!

One early house advertised as follows:

"DON'T MISS WONDERLAND!
BEST SHOW ON THE PIKE"

Their program then included the films, "Lion Hunting" and "Changing of Souls." Of course, the audience joined in the customary popular song (illustrated with slides), such as "She Waits by the Deep Blue Sea."

Another nickelodeon, the Art, in 1908, offered thrills with such reels as "The Witches' Kiss," "A Red Hot Day," or "The Miser's Hoard." The Wigwam featured cowboy films to the delight of the youngsters, who after the show could refresh themselves with five-cent hamburgers.

THE LYCEUM'S bill for one week consisted of "The Bargeman's Daughter," "Volunteer Betrothal," "Sheep Industry," "An Angelic Servant," with the ballad, "Somebody Is Waiting 'neath the Southern Skies."

A "strictly first - class" house was the Byde-A-Wyle, near Hotel Virginia. Its opening was reported April 2, 1908, in the Long Beach Telegram:

"The prettiest, coziest homiest gem of a theatre in Long Beach opened its doors to a big throng . . . a very much improved edition de luxe over the old theatre . . . a pretty foyer, an inclined floor, proscenium boxes, and loges, a large stage, gallery, and a family circle, and a roof over all are some of the features that go to make up the swellest little show house outside of Los Angeles."

Manager Clark of the Byde-A-Wyle presented current films and "top" vaudeville numbers, with an orchestra.

THE THEATORIUM, on the Pike, just west of the old Pine Avenue Pier, advised:

"SEE THE OTHERS,
OF COURSE, BUT
SEE THEATORIUM FIRST"

This house was very popular because of daily performances from 2 to 5:20 p.m., at five cents; also because of film showings on Saturday and Sunday evenings. It is said that some residents never missed a program, which changed three times weekly.

In 1911, William J. Fahey and William Raymond bought the Theatorium, and showed films made by such companies as Biograph, Vitagraph, Lubin and Pathe.

When the partners sold out, Fahey became owner of Joyland, at the west end of the Pike, and introduced Paramount films there, including pictures starring Mary Pickford. A big hit at Joyland was Geraldine Farrar in the movie version of Carmen. An orchestra was added to this movie house and the price was raised to ten cents.

On Dec. 12, 1912, Raymond held the "Grand Opening" of his movie house, Fairyland. This "absolutely fireproof" building was on the Pike below the present Breakers Hotel. It had 600 seats, at a nickel each; besides films, it offered variety acts.

Otis Hoyt arrived in Long Beach in 1915 and soon became prominent in movie and theatrical affairs. At one time he owned and operated several movie theaters, including the Liberty (now the Roxy) on Ocean Boulevard, and the Hoyt (later the Strand) on the Pike.

FOR SEVERAL years the local center of amusement had been along the seaside. However between 1915 and 1920 some theater men established houses in the business district. In October, 1916, Fahey opened the Palace on Pine Avenue near Ocean. The place seated 800 persons and movies featuring Norma Talmadge, Mary Pickford, Elsie Ferguson and other leading stars of the day were shown. (In 1929, Fahey brought the first sound picture to Long Beach and theatergoers lined up for more than a block for the showing at the Palace.)

The Loew Corporation of New York, in 1918, opened a new and luxurious theater, the State, on Ocean. Fahey bought this house in 1922 and showed some of the biggest hits of the era there—"The Volga Boatman," "Coquette," and "Five-Star Final." Fahey also brought distinctive vaudeville acts to Long Beach, including Ginger Rogers and a noted Russian troupe.

Movie houses were well-patronized in the early days of Long Beach and most of the theaters were converted Pike structures. Best of the early theaters may have been the Laughlin, built in 1916 at Fourth Street and Pine Avenue, where the owners feared for a time that they had built too far from the main business district.

The Laughlin was damaged in the 1933 earthquake but was repaired and reopened some months later as a motion picture theater. In the following year it was converted into a drug store, and, in 1956, made way for the Woolworth store.

For those with nostalgia for the "Good Old Days," the Laughlin recalls thoughts of an "800-seat shrine of the gods of the celluloid kingdom" standing "proud and handsome as the finest theater of its day."

To Tell of Time

—Illustrated by Clyde Winslow

Down through the ages, time has become important to man and ways of telling time include many interesting ideas.

By Enola Chamberlin

IT DOESN'T SEEM to matter if we set our clocks ahead an hour or back an hour, most of us still don't have time enough. Like quicksilver, time runs through our fingers. We look at the clock, it says 4 o'clock when we know it should be no later than 2. This being so we wonder what it was like in the "good old days" when there weren't any clocks to look at. We don't have to go too far back in time to find out.

Regardless that man's residence on earth can be marked in thousands of years it is only in the past few hundred years that we have had clocks with which to measure time. Before that the hours were marked in various ways. Sun dials functioned when the sun shone. But they have been in use since Babylonian times. Banded candles, a band for each hour burned were fine unless the keeper of the candles went to sleep. Drip clocks worked all right, so much water dripping from a vessel in an hour. But someone had always to be refilling the bucket. Seems like in those days they had no time to do anything but keep track of time.

AND IN SPITE of all the effort expended they knew nothing of the minutes and seconds which were ticking eternally by. And nothing really kept time. All people could say was that it was so many hours since the candle was lighted or the water was set to dripping.

The first clock was operated by a weight attached to a cord or chain. This turned a set of gear wheels which kept a pointer or hand traveling around a dial on which the hours were marked.

And then, a little less than 400 years ago, came Galileo. From watching a lamp swinging back and forth in a cathedral at Pisa, Italy, he came up with the idea of the pendulum. It would mark off, not just the hours, but the minutes and seconds as well. And we still use the pendulum in some of our clocks.

About 50 years after Galileo's death, the first spring clock was brought out in Germany. From that day on time took over. Watches came into existence. They, like the clocks, had to have keys to wind them. Later, and it seems Madame Pompadour had the first one, they were made with attached buttons for winding. Napoleon wore one which was kept wound by his walking.

THE NEXT break through on time was the electric clock. Much later, in 1957, the electric watch. It is powered by a tiny battery which will keep it running for a year.

It would seem now as if we'd given enough time to time. But no, we must go on to the Atmos clock. This is a timepiece powered by the variations in the atmosphere. Two degrees of temperature change will wind its main spring enough to keep it running for 48 hours. We'll find this even in our thermostatically-heated houses. Its makers say it will never stop, will run for centuries, because of lack of friction in its moving parts. They also say it will keep accurate time to the end of its Methusalah-life.

And still we are not through taking time with time. We have the Henri X. Corbat timepiece. One of these is located at Palm Springs. The power that runs this clock can never be turned off. Twenty silicon solar cells convert light energy into electricity. A battery stores this electricity for use at night and during heavy overcast. This clock maker says these solar cells will work efficiently for 300 years.

As if we really care. Seems as if they'd have helped us a lot more if they'd invented something to stretch our day so it would reach to the end of the things we have to do and have something left over for the things we want to do.

and Scotch mosses worry them most, as they feel the light green ones must not be getting enough something or other. We sure get a lot of inquiries on whether the mosses can stand the sun, or freezing, or do they need lots of water (yes, to everything)."

He indicated a carefully reinforced switch of peach tree nearby. Perhaps 30 small green peaches graced its branches. "There's a lot of speculation over the peach crop. They're real fruit experts." Then, ruefully, "I'm afraid the peaches are going to be bitter."

WHEN ASKED about the work of maintaining the garden, Dutton agreed that a lot of hand trimming was necessary, but was quick to add that he and the "paid" staff felt the interest in the unique little park justified the extra work. "The Japanese Citizens' League is going to help us authenticate our planting, so we look forward to that. Also, this month Mayor Sukenori Hirata of Yokkaichi is coming to help us dedicate our park.* So, you see we are growing!" He excused himself as a group of "gardeners" descended upon him.

Regretfully it is time to leave, and ten steps later, the visitor is back in Long Beach.

Downtown Lincoln Park will be dedicated from 4 to 4:30 p.m. next Sunday, immediately following the International Beauty Congress parade.*

Deep Six for the Paint Brush

By Jack Baldwin

After preparing boat surface for glassing, cover with glass cloth and fit it carefully to hull conformation.

—Photos by the Author

When bonding coats have been applied, add special wax to last coat to avoid tackiness during final sanding.

TOUGH new fortified plastics three times harder than concrete offer the promise that boat owners of the future may deep six paint and varnish brushes to Davy Jones' locker. They may even come to wonder what they were for!

The rugged and versatile new polyester plastic can be applied over new or old wood, steel, or glass cloth—and it never needs painting. Clear material applied over grained mahogany can create a transparent finish as smooth and as beautiful as the finest hand-rubbed furniture.

The orthalic resin-based coatings also are available in a wide variety of colors. Development of a new patented process for adding pigment to base material overcomes a weakness found in many earlier polyester type plastics, laboratory tests show. Pigment blocks the harmful effect of the ultra-violet rays of the sun which causes many types of plastics to continue "setting" and eventually become brittle.

BOTH THE clear and pigment fortified plastics can be finished to either a glass-smooth surface or abrasive material can be combined with the liquid to create a non-skid surface for decks, companion ways, and ladders.

The material under development for the past 10 years by Prep-Rite Plastic Inc. of Long Beach, is not affected after setting by solutions commonly used aboard a boat. It cannot be dissolved or stained by high octane gas, oil, battery acid, salt water, fish blood, spilled pickle juice or an overturned Scotch and soda.

It is 100 per cent non-porous, independent laboratory tests reveal.

A TORTURE TEST by the Twining Laboratories of Southern California shows that the material when applied in combination with glass fibers resisted the direct flame of a blow torch for three minutes. Gasoline spilled on the surface and ignited left no visible mark, the report stated.

The orthalic resin-based polyester material when applied over a wood surface will create a bond stronger than the wood itself, the tests proved.

Use of the newly developed coatings when spread over glass cloth on a hull can create an armor-plated surface that the manufacturers claim will outlast the life of the boat—and never need protective painting.

While the application of "glass" demands strict attention to instructions and careful workmanship the extra care and expense as compared to repeated springtime scraping, sanding and painting is well worth the effort.

For boat owners who are contemplating recovering the bottoms of their present boats or are building new boats here are step by step instructions on how to create a coating as tough as nails, smooth as glass, and one that never needs elbow greasing.

FIRST STEP in glassing an old boat is to remove all old paint down to bare wood or metal with the aid of a disc sander — available at most tool rental agencies. Recommended is an open coat, 80-grit sanding disc on a sander of not more than 2,000 r.p.m. —about 1,750 is best.

When covering an old wooden boat check for rotted areas. Use a needle-pointed tool such as an ice pick or awl and probe entire bottom for soft spongy spots, paying particular attention to darkened areas. Replace rotted sections.

Fill hollow spots and dented areas with a non-oil based filler putty. The author used P/R Filler putty, a polyester material which when activated by a small amount of catalyst sets up sanding hard in five to 10 minutes. Putty can be drilled, sawed, or sanded to a feather edge without risk of chipping.

(Caution: When adding catalyst to any polyester base follow directions of manufacturer implicitly. Mix only enough material to be used in less than 10 minutes. Unlike adding thinner to paint the more catalyst added to base material the faster the set-up time. Material can set as hard as concrete in seconds if too much catalyst is added.)

Oil or grease spots on the hull must be removed with solvent or strong detergents.

WHEN THE hull is sanded smooth, drape bottom from stem to stern with six- to eight - ounce glass cloth. Smooth out all wrinkles. Cloth may be overlapped if not wide enough to cover entire bottom. Overlap at least three inches. Seam will later disappear. Trim away overhanging excess cloth with scissors. Slash cloth to aid in conforming to compound curves at the bow. Make a V-shaped notch at corners of transom and overlap.

Protect painted areas not being resurfaced with butcher paper and masking tape. Avoid use of newsprint as paper will let solutions bleed through to painted areas beneath.)

Dip or pour polyester base into a clean metal container. Do not put any container, roller, brush, or any tool which has even a slight trace of catalyst on it into the raw polyester.

MEASURE accurately the correct amount of catalyst as recommended by the manufacturer — usually about one ounce to a gallon. Add to polyester, mixing thoroughly and quickly.

Pour a small amount of liquid over the glass cloth. Roll liquid into cross-hatched pattern of cloth thoroughly. Use only a roller with phenolic core cover as chemicals will dissolve covers commonly used with water or oil-based paints.

Cloth will become invisible as it becomes saturated. Spots where pattern of cloth are discernable indicates the cloth is either not saturated or not in firm contact with wood surface—or both! When applying the liquid over cloth always use a clear, unpigmented polyester for the first coat. Its transparency will permit you to detect air bubbles trapped beneath the cloth.

For inside corners and smaller areas, use a pure bristle (not nylon or other synthetic type) brush. Rinse immediately in acetone before polyester hardens. Rinse roller in acetone between coats.

Second and subsequent coats can contain pigment. Apply when previous coat becomes tacky. Four or five coats are recommended.

TO THE POLYESTER used in the final coat add approximately five percent of a special wax recommended by the supplier. Wax will eliminate tackiness of the final coat and prevent clogging of sanding disc. Use an open coat 100- to 120-grit sanding disc for final finishing if desired.

Hand sand corners and small areas not accessible with the sander.

The boat is now ready for the water.

As for those paint brushes: give them away, throw them away or give them the deep six. You won't be needing them again!

Famous Last Words

GROVER CLEVELAND
. . . Tried so hard to do right . . .

By Hoyt McAfee

BLUNT-SPOKEN Harry Truman supposedly once told some ministers who visited him in the White House: "A man's last words usually reveal much about him. When I die, I hope that mine will be: 'I gave the Republicans hell and had an interesting life. Thank you, Lord!' "

Those words are in character. They certainly sound like Truman. As to the nature of a man's last utterance on this earth, much depends upon how he dies: whether peacefully, in pain, or suddenly and violently.

Final words of U.S. presidents, shown in research, reveal that, on their deathbeds, most of these leaders voiced concern about: (1) their loved ones and friends, (2) about their country, (3) or voiced expressions of a spiritual nature. Most surprising of all, perhaps, were the last words of rough-and-tumble Andrew Jackson.

His deathbed utterance was one of tender solicitude for his family.

He said: "I hope to meet each of you in heaven. Be good children, all of you; and strive to be ready when the change comes."

Almost equally surprising was the last comment of the greatest free thinker ever to occupy the White House — Thomas Jefferson. He identified himself with no religious group. To paraphrase one of his expressions—"I have ever thought religion a concern purely between our God and our conscience. I consider myself directly accountable to HIM — not to the priests, preachers, or rabbis. A man's deeds are the true measure of his religion: not his WORDS or whether he does, or doesn't attend church!"

SO, NOW, ponder his dying words. First, he asked whether the date was July 4. It was. Then, in a fading voice, he said: "I resign my spirit to God, my daughter to my country."

George Washington's head slumped down on a pillow and he uttered one brief sentence: "It is well." John Quincy Adams, the only president's son ever elected America's chief executive, died as peacefully as Washington. He remarked: "This is the last of earth. I am content."

President Martin Van Buren opened his eyes a moment and began this sentence: "There is but one reliance"—. At that point his voice broke and he slumped into death. Likewise for President Grover Cleveland. He had completed saying, "I have tried so hard to do right," when his voice trailed off and he could speak no more.

After a bullet from John Wilkes Booth's pistol entered Abraham Lincoln's head, he lingered in the throes of death for hours. Only incoherent mumblings came from his lips. It was different with James A. Garfield, the second U. S. President to meet death at the hands of an assassin (Charles Guiteau).

SHOT AND WOUNDED in the Washington, D.C., railway station, on July 2, 1881, Garfield lived till Sept. 19 of that year.

On his dying day he suffered agonizing pain. In a hoarse whisper he bade his Chief of Staff, David Swain, to lean closer. Garfield murmured to him: "Oh, Swain — there is pain here. Oh, oh!"

On Sept. 6, 1901, a crazed anarchist joined the line of persons moving forward to shake hands with President William McKinley at Buffalo's Pan-American Exposition. Suddenly he brandished a pistol in his bandaged hand and fired, point blank, at McKinley. For eight days thereafter the wounded U. S. President lingered on.

WILLIAM McKINLEY
. . . God's will be done . . .

Death finally overtook him on Sept. 14. In an emotion-choked voice he spoke these words: "It is God's way. His will be done. We are all going, we are all going, we are all going!" Benjamin Harrison was another president who died in acute pain. He asked: "Are the doctors here?" One stepped forward quickly. Harrison groaned: "Doctor — my lungs!" Then a convulsive shudder shook his body and he died.

ROUGH RIDER Teddy Roosevelt made this final request on his deathbed: "Please put out the light!" As this reporter pointed out in Southland Magazine, on April 12, FDR's final remark was: "I have a terrific headache!"

President Woodrow Wilson reached out for his wife's hand (Edith Wilson). In a voice barely above a whisper he told her: "Edith, I'm a broken machine!" President James Madison spoke in a grateful voice on his deathbed: "I always talk better lying down!"

As for President John Adams, a trace of bitterness crept into his voice a moment before his death. He remarked: "Thomas Jefferson still lives!" That was a scornful reference to his life-long foe in politics. Yet earlier that same July 4, Jefferson had died—something Adams was unaware of since news traveled so slowly in those days.

President Ulysses S. Grant's last request was: "Give me water!" John Tyler raised a weak hand and spoke quietly: "Doctor, I am going. Perhaps it is best." An emotional President Andrew Johnson turned to his loved ones and pleaded: "Don't cry! Be good children and we shall meet in heaven."

JAMES BUCHANAN, the only bachelor president in U. S. history, murmured this prayer: "Oh, Lord God Almighty—as thou wilt." President Zachary Taylor mustered the strength to declare: "I have tried to discharge my duties faithfully. I regret nothing, but am sorry to be leaving my friends."

Two U.S. presidents spoke words of love (for their wives) in their dying moments. President James K. Polk: "I love you, Sarah (Polk). For all eternity, I love you!" President Rutherford B. Hayes: "I know that I am going where Lucy is" (that being a reference to his wife).

President William Henry Harrison, Indian fighter and hero of the Battle of Tippecanoe, won the presidential election on this slogan: "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too." On his inauguration day (held out of doors in miserably cold weather), he caught pneumonia and died one month later. His last words, spoken to Vice-President John Tyler, were: "Sir, I wish you to understand the true principles of government. I wish them carried out."

President Millard Fillmore took a bite of food, called it "palatible nourishment," then lapsed into death. President Warren G. Harding, as reputable historians have recorded, had a torrid, illicit love affair with a spicy young blonde (named Nan Britton) during his White House days.

Yet when sudden death struck down President Harding in San Francisco, after his trip to Alaska, his wife was at his side. She began reading to him. His final words to her were: "That's good. Go on — read some more."

Courage That Walks on Four Legs

By Eleanor A. Price

No breed monopolizes heroics, but German shepherds got nod for guard training. One here and toy pug are owned by Amy Blech, a member of Hollywood Dog Obedience Club.

ENTRIES for the German Shepherd Dog Club of Orange County match today at La Palma Park, Anaheim, have closed at 200 dogs in breed and 100 in obedience. There are classes from ages 2-4 months up, just so the dogs have no championship points. Eleanor Waskow, M.D., is judging breed; Bob Penny, obedience.

The German shepherd dog is often called police dog, war dog, scout dog, attack dog, protection dog. He does excel in these things, but for plain heroic home pets, he is equaled by the collie, according to surveys. And even these two breeds have no monopoly on rating the headlines when it comes to heroics. Toy dogs and even mixed breeds have shown courage in the clutch.

And names don't mean a thing. There are just as many heroic Queenies, Kings, Sams, Ladys, Beggars, Pennys, Trixies as there are dogs with long and fancy names among those competing every year for Ken-L Ration gold medal awards and other awards.

FOR ACTUAL training of dogs to protect person and property, the first choice is the German shepherd dog followed closely by the Doberman pinscher. The dog should not be a naturally mean bully in the show-off sense, but he must be very intelligent, of superb temperament, tough, courageous. His training usually starts just before he is one year of age, but there have been cases of dogs up to three years of age which accepted the rigid training readily.

Training a dog to be an aggressive guard and patroller is a job for an expert trainer, one who can really discipline a dog to perfection. For example, the dog is trained to attack either on command or at the sight of a weapon, yet he must stop even in midflight if the weapon is a knife and the person drawing it from his pocket calmly uses it on his fingernails rather than as an instrument of combat. Some dogs are trained to patrol alone in a locked building or walled or fenced area, and in this case he attacks and continues to attack until his prey remains motionless. Then he stands guard until his trainer arrives to take over. Certainly no place for the novice trainer here!

IN MOST CASES, the trainer is the only person who feeds, grooms, talks to and plays with the dog while the animal is in training. The trainer must be patient and not abusive, for a dog that learns to hate or fear is worthless. On the other hand, punishment should not be token. A clip on the jaw is acceptable, but beating, raging, and screaming are out.

A person has no real love for the dog at all if he chains him on the premises the dog is to guard. The body of many a loyal chained dog has been found in the early morning with a bullet through his head or his skull caved in.

EVENING TRIAL of Valley Hills Obedience Club at Sepulveda Sports Center in Encino is set for Aug. 15. Secretary is Joe Carr, 5156 Otis Ave., Tarzana. Silver Bay Kennel Club show and trial is Aug. 23 at Balboa Park, San Diego.

Cabrillo Kennel Club has scheduled a sanctioned match Aug. 16 at Recreation Park, Oceanside. Entry fees of $1 per dog, 50 cents for extra class, may be sent to Route 1, Box 785E, Escondido, or may be paid at the rounds until noon.

South Bay Kennel Club has a breed match (no obedience) today at Alondra Park, Manhattan Avenue at Prairie Avenue, Lawndale. Entries until noon, judging to start at 1 p.m.

group which is made up of actress and beauty expert Arlene Dahl, Philippine civic leader Carmen Planas, glamour photographer Tom Kelley, artist Alberto Varga, make-up artist Gordon Bau, wardrobe designer Charles Le Maire, world traveler and educator James H. Noguer, and one-time entertainer and current president of the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor Irvin P. Mazzei.

Theirs is the task of mixing up the sugar and spice and statistics and coming up with this year's International Beauty. And, chances are, they'll end up with someone that's 20 years of age, 5 feet 6 inches tall, 120 pounds with blue eyes and blonde hair.

Hibiscus Is a Color Splasher

By Joe Littlefield

LANDSCAPINGS throughout the Southland are liberally splashed with color through the planting of hibiscus and the most popular variety of these shrubs, and the one with the longest season of bloom, is the evergreen Hibiscus rosa-sinensis. The urn-shaped flowers with protruding, gold-tipped styles furnish lots of showy flowers in tropical effect, offer a wide range of colors. The leaves, too, are shiny and fresh looking, even in the smog areas.

This hibiscus may be planted in coastal, interior, and foothill areas of Southern California where temperatures don't go too low.

Planted now in sunny locations where shrubs are needed for color, they'll grow fairly fast, and become well established by the time cold weather rolls around.

ALL THE VARIETIES are lovely and are favored. Three that seem to stand out above the rest are Kona with fully double rosy-pink flowers the petals daintily frilled, the stamens deeper rose color. Crown of Bohemia double blossoms are a showy burnt-orange color. The plant blooms nearly year round, but is slower to reach maturity and bloom. Be patient with this variety.

Ross Estey has large single flowers, the petal edges of orange shade to a glowing rose center. The tufted, ruffled flowers usually last three to four days. The glossy green foliage is thick and leaves are larger than some of the other varieties.

Agnes Gault hibiscus is vigorous and no doubt the largest grower of them all. The single rose pink flowers are attractive.

IF HIBISCUS in your locality freeze easily, you'd be wiser to plan Hibiscus syriacus, "rose of Sharon," because this husky grower stands cold down to about zero degree! A deciduous plant, it is popular in the eastern and southern states. The hollyhock-like blossoms in single or double shape flowers are white, pink or lavender, and bloom during the summer season. The plant may be trimmed and trained to grow into a low tree around 10 to 12 feet tall. Time to prune Althea, generally, is during the winter when the plants are dormant.

Garden Clubs

Long Beach Amateur Orchid Society will hear a talk on "Semi-Albas, Their Breeding and New Developments" by Leo Holquin, orchid hybridizer and commercial orchidizer, at a meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in Long Beach Silverado Park Clubhouse. plants in bloom will be displayed. The public is invited.

Tips on Gardening

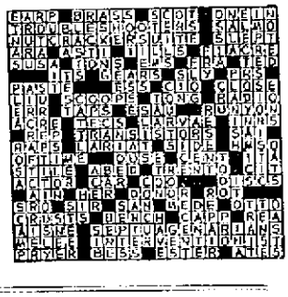

Garden tips for the week . . . Stop by your nursery and check out the summer flowering shrubs, abelia grandiflora, the common myrtle, oleanders and others. Now you can see the bloom before you buy.

If you will have a late vacation, be sure to soak your garden thoroughly before leaving. Take note to leave written explicit instructions to whomever is going to watch over your garden.

Cut back delphiniums when the flowers fade. This will encourage a new crop in many areas, says California Association of Nurserymen.

Primroses may be divided now or next month. Rework the soil with generous amounts of leaf mold and a good fertilizer before replanting.

DR. CARL Q. CHRISTOL
Space Law Expert

Space Age to Need Space Lawyers

By Lou Jobst

LIKE lunar landings, space lawyers are just around the corner.

This is the view of Dr. Carl Q. Christol, chairman of the USC political science department and a foremost authority on international law.

The Southland educator says a body of law to govern man's activities in the hostile regions of outer space is already emerging.

This general consensus for special jurisprudence includes these points:

1. The various world powers may not interfere harmfully with radio broadcasts to, from and through outer space.

2. Mass destruction weapons and nuclear testing should be prohibited in these extra-terresterial regions.

3. Space vehicles and their passengers should return to their port (or country) of registry and nations will be held liable for damages to other countries caused by the space apparatus or machines.

4. Nationality of space stations and vehicles will be recognized as are the nationality of ships on earth oceans.

Dr. Christol also believes it will be legal for the military to build space stations as long as the "military use is for a peaceful purpose."

He believes the U. S. has been and will continue to be a leader in the development of international law for international

"WHILE THE U. S. most certainly would look to its own security in outer space as elsewhere, it has acted to lessen space dangers, achieve order under law and secure for mankind a more orderly and stable world."

Dr. Christol warns there will be no development of outer space without law.

BILL WELCH

Part-Wizard

TO MAKE progress in the restaurant business these days, you've got to be part-genius, part-wizard and part-scholar.

And that explains why Rex Welch and his brother Bill have turned the glamorous, expensive-looking Tenderloin Restaurant, 4363 Atlantic Blvd., into one of Long Beach's most popular and successful dining establishments. They did it by carefully studying the eating habits of their guests and determining that many were 'unable to eat all of the delicious prime rib au jus they ordered because the serving was too large.

Rex, who owns the restaurant, and Bill, who manages it, decided to decrease the size of the meat portion—and the $4.50 price. This decision, made last May, resulted in a fabulous upswing in the restaurant's popularity. The prime rib, now $1.95, is still the same quality of delectably tender beef, beautifully roasted and served by skilled waiters working in an atmosphere of elegance and refinement. The serving of beef is certainly sufficient for most appetites and the rest of the fine dinner has been unchanged. Included are a marvelous salad, mixed by the waiter at the table in a huge bowl on a bed of ice; outstanding baked potato stuffed with sour cream and chopped bacon or served with melted butter; dark and light sourdough breads and choice of beverage. For huge appetites, a $3.90 cut of prime rib is available.

Also featured are such splendid entrees as braised sirloin tips, prepared with a touch of wine for $1.50; fresh trout with chopped almonds, $3.50; sauteed sand dabs maitre d' hotel, $1.75, and the succulent lobster-N. Y. steak combination, $4.50.

BUT SHE'S SERIOUS ACTRESS

Tina Louise Doesn't Fight 'Sex-Goddess' Image

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just when you figure that lotta-girl Tina Louise is all set to decorate the New York eye-line for a lengthy period, away she goes to Hollywood.

"I don't fight it any more," said the titian-haired, statuesque actress concerning the sex-goddess image that nature has inflicted on her and which is responsible for her taking a job in one of the new television series for the fall.

"That doesn't mean I like it, but I'm resigned to trying to make it work for me. My interest is in serious acting. But you go where the money is when it comes along with the idea that it will help you do what you really want to do later."

* * * *

MISS LOUISE is not one of those beauties who just talk about serious acting to make conversation. She kept out of circulation for well over a year to study in the private classes of Lee Strasberg, the maestro, the law-giver of the oh-so-serious -and -dedicated-and-famous Actors Studio. And, a few months ago, she achieved what many players do not—she became a permanent member of the studio itself. It ain't easy.

"Achieving that goal made it possible for me to go on accepting, for the time being, the sort of roles with which people naturally associate me," Miss Louise said. "I proved something to myself, and I can afford to wait."

* * * *

WHAT SHE DID was to accept the important featured role of a sexy dish, fancied by a Hollywood producer, in the smash-hit musical "Fade out—Fade In," starring Carol Burnett. An attractive job, good for a year, at least.

"But we hadn't been open in New York for more than two weeks before I had this offer to become one of the regulars in the new CBS television series Gilligan's Island,' " she explained. "Fortunately, I had an escape clause in my show contract. The television offer was too good to pass up. I'm ambitious, but it doesn't hurt to be practical."

So "Gilligan's Island," a comedy series headed by Bob Denver and involving an assortment of persons in adventures stemming from the ineptitude of a charter-boat skipper, has Miss Louise's services in the role of a glamorous movie star named Ginger.

MISS LOUISE started her show business career as a singer in the chorus of a revue called "Two's Company," starring Bette Davis, in December, 1952. She had singing and bit assignments in another revue, "Almanac," a year later. Her most impressive Broadway appearance was as Appassionta Von Climax in the "L'il Abner" musical hit of 1956-57.

The movies took her after that success, and her best role was as the beautiful Griselda in "God's Little Acre." She is currently to be seen in United Artists' "For Those Who Think Young."

BERT'S EYE VIEW

Good Old Summertime Makes TV Fine for Wally

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Wally Sherwin is as rare as a hot dog without mustard.

Wally, you see, likes summer TV.

The coincidental fact that he is programming director for KHJ-TV (channel 9) has considerable to do with his attitude.

"We build our new audiences in the summer," said

WALLY SHERWIN

Wally. "Viewing habits may be a little later, but the number of sets still in use is fantastic—maybe 2% off from winter."

Channel 9's programming devotes 56% of its air time to movies and a good portion of their films are first-run during the summer months.

The reasoning behind the first-run summer-months' billing is competitive. It's competition aimed at the networks.

* * * *

"THE NETWORKS reason that they have to get their money back on making a series by re-running it during the summer," said Sherwin.

It's reasoning figured on the production cost of a 26-episode series and compared with the advertising returns. As Sherwin points out, the networks frequently don't get into the black side of the ledger until the money rolls in from the repeats.

"I think the networks' reasoning is good—for us," he said.

"We make our biggest ratings during the summer. People are just as selective during the summer as in the winter—any they're selecting us in preference to repeats."

In addition to quite a number of first-run Sunday night and weekly "Million Dollar Movies," channel 9 this summer also launched its highly rated Saturday "Gladiator" films.

Sherwin describes the strong-man Herculean film as "sword, sandal and spear spectacles."

* * * *

THE HOST gladiator, David Draper, sometimes chides the action. When, for example, a Samson-type character may be wrestling with a lion, Draper is likely to comment: "Aw, come on now."

The chiding is Wally's idea and started with spooky movies shown earlier Saturday before "Gladiator" airtime. He feels "more kids wait around for the cracks" during the spooky movies than may be there to watch the picture.

It is Wally himself who is the off-stage "Hello, dere" voice of the spook spoofer. His favorite off-stage crack: "This thing better start getting spooky soon or I'll turn the lights on."

THE LIGHTS are turned on go-green for his summer programming and fall, too. Channel 9 recently acquired several package-buys of late-release movies including some "adult films which we'll run late at night."

Competition in purchasing is becoming more intense since the networks entered the film-airing picture.

Wally feels it will be extremely difficult to buy any quantity of movies for television in three or four years.

What does he plan to do then?

"Punt," he answered.

But before he has his back to the goal line and is forced to punt, there's a couple of new ideas he may want to kick around.

And an old idea that he'll stick with—people really do watch television in summer.

Double TV Duty

Andy Griffith joins the list of stars who will have a regular nighttime once-a-week show on the air while re-runs of his old episodes go into a five-a-week daytime schedule. The re-runs will be at 11-11:30 a.m., Mondays through Fridays, on CBS, starting in the fall when Griffith's nighttime program begins its fourth season on CBS.

SPECIAL

PINKY LEE—The diminutive comic with the checkered hat returns to ch. 7 with a daily half-hour for the kiddies at 7:30 a.m. Pinky tells stories, dances, sings, offers pantomines, introduces cartoons.

LES CRANE SHOW—Premiere. Tired of the substitute hosts for Johnny Carson? Of the slapstick and liberal views of Steverino? ABC tonight launches for late viewers a third man, whose theme is discussion, led by controversial young Les Crane. Producer-director Barry Shear (of "The Lively Ones," Kovak-Adams") uses five cameras in an arena setting, with the live audience seated in a theatre-in-the-round arrangement. At 11:30 p.m., ch. 7, 90-min. series is slated for a week's test run. Opener discusses Jean Harlow (with Gloria Swanson, Adele Rogers St. Johns and author Irving Shulman); has Ricardo Montalban and Artie Shaw discussing tapes of a bullfight; offers comedy by Mel Brooks, Don Rickles, Jack E. Leonard, Prof. Irwin Corey and Jack Carter; and spotlights two remotes.

When is Reed Hadley coming back in another television series?

J.T. Goulder, Long Beach

Reed says, "I wish I knew."

He told me there had been one good possibility that had fallen through. Now he is waiting for something better to come along.

In the meantime, his old series, "Racket Squad" and "Public Defender," are still sporadically aired in re-run form around the country.

Could you tell me why Tom Kennedy and Jack Narz have different names? I'm very fond of both of them. I watch their shows every day. Are Jack and Tom married?

Sheryl Halpin, Lakewood

Maybe we'd better make it clear, Sheryl, that they are brothers and the family name is Narz.

Seven years ago Tom changed his last name to Kennedy because both he and Jack were running into "sponsor conflict."

One Narz brother would be plugging Brand X soap and the other Narz would be advertising Brand Y soap.

The sponsors thought this was a dirty deal and the brothers felt they had to clean up the situation.

So Tom became a Kennedy.

Tom is host of channel 4's daily "You Don't Say." Jack is emcee for channel 5's daily "Seven Keys."

Tom is married and has three children. Jack is available.

KMPC should be commended for finding such a hilarious like disc jockey as Bob Arbogast.

His show would be even funnier if Jack Margolous was on it. How could I let KMPC in on this?

Audrea Kloese, Long Beach

You've just let KMPC in on it through this column. Now let me in on who is Jack Margolous.

'My Living Doll' Isn't--She's a Robot

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Bob Cummings is unveiling his fourth television series this fall, a show which he's kept shrouded in secrecy lest unscrupulous video thieves steal it.

Television has its share of idea bandits, but Cummings is the type of fellow who can keep a secret.

Bob's plans for his new CBS-TV series "My Living Doll" have been in the works for months. When quizzed some time ago on his future plans, Bob would answer in generalities—or else change the subject to flying, something he can talk about for days. He's an expert pilot.

Bob explained his security wraps recently when he spoke of the mad scramble for jobs in Hollywood.

"IF YOU SAY you got a call from a studio offering a job, somebody else will call the studio and say they've got an actor who'll do it for half what Cummings will do it for, or nothing," he said. "There are only so many parts around and three television networks."

In "Living Doll," Cummings co-stars with Julie Newmar and Jack Mullaney. Miss Newmar, a statuesque beauty, portrays a human robot. Cummings is a doctor.

The idea is out of this world. Miss Newmar is the only leading lady on television who operates on solar batteries.

This show is Cummings' fourth television series. His first, "My Hero," was something that Bob felt would damage his career. He then went into "The Bob Cummings Show" and struck it rich.

The series ran for six years and Cummings fattened his bank account.

AFTER THAT, he stayed off television for a while before trying another series which turned out to be an ill-fated venture.

The new show is produced by Jack Chertok, who also films "My Favorite Martian." He's well-grounded in out-of-this-world subject matter.

"We have a wonderful idea," Cummings said. "The secret of this show is in the believeability of the robot which they have built into the likeness of one of America's most beautiful women. If we don't believe in her, we won't believe in anything.

"The robot is one of the most testing roles I've ever seen. Every action that anybody ever learned doesn't work. The robot doesn't initiate action of its own. It must be programmed."

You don't need glasses...

You need a new WINEGARD COLORTRON ANTENNA

You need a more powerful TV antenna to clear up that picture. One that takes more of the signal from the airwaves, and amplifies it before it reaches your set. When your set receives a strong, clean signal from the antenna, your picture becomes sharp, clear, bright... more enjoyable.

Model for model, Winegard's new electronic Colortrons are the world's most powerful antennas. Distant stations come in clearer and sharper. Snow and interference are reduced or eliminated.

For color or black & white, you can't own a finer antenna for best reception. Priced from $84.90. Antenna without electronic amplifier $21.95 up.

Q. Two things about the Duke and Duchess of Windsor: (1) How long did he reign as King Edward VIII of England? (2) Is it true that none of his family has ever received the Duchess? — Bernard Goldenson, Chicago, Ill.

A. Edward VIII reigned for 327 days. The Duchess of Windsor has never been received by any member of her husband's family, not even unofficially.

Q. Will Henry Ford II marry Christina Austin? Didn't he announce that in London recently?—F. R., Lansing, Mich.

A. Ford, 46, said nothing about Christina Austin, 37-year-old widow of a British naval officer, when he was recently in London. What he did say was, "I am here to talk with Lord Rootes about an automatic transmission system for his Ford-engined car, the Tiger."

Q. Film star Stewart Granger married a Belgian beauty queen a few weeks ago. How old is Granger? How old is his new wife? Is Granger washed up in Hollywood films? — Lois Jenkinson, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. Granger is 51; his wife, the former Caroline Lecerf, is 22; Hollywood does not consider Granger a particularly potent box-office draw.

Q. What connection does Robert Strausz-Hupé have with Barry Goldwater?—T. R. Ritchie, Dallas, Tex.

A. Strausz-Hupé is a former Viennese merchant banker who now teaches political science at the University of Pennsylvania, is a member of Sen. Goldwater's brain trust.

Q. Elizabeth Taylor and Eddie Fisher adopted a little German child a few years ago. Have they returned her to her parents?—Vivian Henry, Jacksonville, Fla.

A. No. The girl, Maria, 5, lives with Miss Taylor and Richard Burton, calls him, not Fisher, "Dada."

Q. I read in a Canadian magazine that a nuclear bomb was dropped on the U.S. by an American pilot named Charles Woodruff. Is this true or fiction? If true, how many people were killed, and why was the story hushed up?—Kenneth Labiere, Montreal, Que.

A. On March 11, 1958, a B-47 in the 308th Bomb Wing of the U.S. Air Force's Strategic Air Command accidentally lost a nuclear bomb from its bomb bay as it was flying over Mars Bluff, S. C. The three-man crew of the plane, called The City of Savannah, consisted of Capt. Earl Koehler, the pilot; Capt. Charles Woodruff, copilot; and Capt. Bruce M. Kulka, navigator. The bomb was "noncritical," meaning there could be no nuclear reaction, no nuclear blast. There was, however, an explosion which destroyed the home of Walter Gregg of Mars Bluff, S. C., but there were no casualties. The accident was reported by the press.

Q. How much does screen star Natalie Wood earn per year?—Dora Gertner, Newark, N. J.

A. From $500,000 to $1,000,000.

Q. Can you reveal anything about a young woman named Laila Baalbaki, who has caused a social revolution in the Near East?—D. Boggs, Chapel Hill, N.C.

A. Laila Baalbaki is a 28-year-old Lebanese novelist, the most popular and best-known modern Arabic writer. Recently she was charged with pornography because in a novel she told the dull truth of Arabic women trying to live in the outmoded Moslem social structure. Her first novel, I Live, published in 1956, when she was 20, brought Miss Baalbaki overnight fame. American publishers say her novels are too tame, conservative and even "adolescent" for publication in this country.

Q. Is it on the level that Bette Davis and Sir Alec Guinness hate each other? — Lou Allen, Oakland, Calif.

A. Having worked in one film together, they are not members of a mutual admiration society.

Q. Why does Bing Crosby always wear a hat off-screen?—T. L. P., Des Moines, Iowa.

A. He is almost completely bald, does not like to reveal it.

Q. A gossip columnist wrote recently: "Zsa Zsa Gabor was murdered in London." What is the meaning of that remark?—Amy Bennett, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

A. Zsa Zsa appeared on TV in London and was criticized for an obvious lack of performing talent.

Q. William Douglas-Home, the British playwright—is his brother Prime Minister of Great Britain?—Peter Knox, Tulsa, Okla.

A. Yes, Sir Alec and William Douglas-Home are brothers.

Sunflowers—MONET

The 19th century gave birth to a joyous, dynamic new art-form called Impressionism. Canvases suddenly were bathed in sunlight and came alive.

Here are four of the most magnificent impressionist paintings, reproduced to beautify your home.

Vincent Van Gogh (1853-90), one-eared eccentric Dutchman, painted swirling yellow-gold "Sunflowers" against a pale lemon background, one of the most glorious flower paintings ever created.

"White Lilacs and Roses" by Edouard Manet (1832-83) contrasts 3 fragilely-tinted red and pink roses and white lilacs in glass container with a strong, dark background.

Pierre Renoir's (1841-1919) "A Large Vase of Flowers" delicate toned spring nosegays are as reminiscent of a Dutch still life as the delft vase in which they are placed.

Sensuous "Sunflowers" were created in characteristic short strokes by Claude Monet (1840-1926). A sunburst of orange and yellow flowers are set off by masses of green leaves, in a white vase that stands on a red cloth.

Each picture is covered with unbreakable plastic and framed in passepartout with a wood-like finish. Ready to be hung. Over-all size 11 x 14 inches each. Full set of four pictures makes a glorious grouping. To order for immediate delivery mail coupon now!

BEATLEMANIA IS COMING

The Beatles

HOW LONG WILL THEY LAST?

by LLOYD SHEARER

For the next 50 days an epidemic of Beatlemania will scourge this continent.

The Beatles' first motion picture, a plotless, innocuous 90 minutes of filmed nonsense called A Hard Day's Night, will be released early this month. A few weeks later the Beatles will tour the U.S. and Canada in a series of one-night stands at $25,000 per night against 60 per cent of the gross, whichever is higher.

Already multimillionaires, this likable quartet of British mopheads will pick up another million by the time they depart New York on September 21.

In the hectic, colorful history of show business there has been nothing or no one to rival their fantastic success.

No act, no single entertainer, no group has garnered so much publicity, played before such tremendous crowds, earned such enormous amounts of money, sold so many recordings and by-products in so short a period of time.

In the past 6 months, for example, the Beatles have sold 10,000,000 albums at a royalty of 17¢ each. Last February when they first came to America, they sold more than 1,000,000 copies of a single record in one day. By the end of 1964, Malcolm Evans, who handles their by-products—everything from wigs to wallets—estimates that more than $50,000,000 worth of their products will have been sold. The Beatles' share: 15 per cent.

As for exposure, they have appeared on TV and stage before some 300,000,000 people. Wherever they've rocked and rolled, they have prompted riots, faintings, swoonings, screamings, impassioned female outbursts of love and near-violent demonstrations of teenage hysteria.

Publicity-wise, only one event in the past year—the assassination of President John F. Kennedy—has been accorded more space by the world press.

A few weeks ago Brian Somerville, 33, the press agent who has handled their public relations since they were unknowns in their native Liverpool, quit his job and took an advertisement in the London Times, seeking a new one. His explanation: "There is nothing more I or any other press agent can do for the Beatles. They have had total and constant exposure in the press. All I can say is that it has been a most incredible and exhausting experience."

How long can the Beatles maintain their unprecedented popularity?

Alistair Taylor, their general manager, says, "I agree that they have waned somewhat in England. There are several reasons for that: one, they established so high a peak they had to slow down a bit; and two, they have crossed the teenage barrier into the adult world. Everybody, regardless of age, in England likes the Beatles. Now, when adults like an act that teenagers discovered, the teenagers become suspicious, and their enthusiasm begins to wane.

"But what you must not lose sight of," Mr. Taylor declares, "is that the Beatles now have a great future as film stars. In addition they are all talented musicians, and several are excellent composers; as you know they compose their own tunes.

"I should say they will remain on the show business scene as a top attraction for many, many years to come."

LOOK WHAT HAPPENED TO ELVIS

Colonel Tom Parker, manager of Elvis Presley, a forerunner of the Beatles, believes the quartet will last "just as long as they continue to project the image of being nice, pleasant, unpretentious, fun-loving young fellas.

"A lot of people," Colonel Parker avers, "say the Beatles are a phenomenon, that they'll pass just as quickly as they came on. Reminds me of what they told me about Elvis. 'He's a passing fancy,' the wiseguys explained to me in 1955, 'can't possibly last.' Well, Elvis has been around for almost 10 years now. He's become a full-fledged movie star. I predict the same thing will happen to the Beatles. They're blessed with what we in show business call 'star-magic.' "

The executives of United Artists apparently held the same belief 10 months ago, before the Beatles set foot on American soil. They signed the boys to a three-picture deal, shot the first film outside London this past March and April. The demand for its release in this country has been so strong that United Artists has been able to sell tickets in advance, an unheard-of procedure for a regular-run film shown at ordinary prices.

Since dozens of other pop groups, many with similar Buster Brown haircuts and tight Edwardian suits, have become their aggressive, competitive imitators, the Beatles hope motion pictures will afford them a new lease on life. They anticipate that the medium will bring them a wider, more literate, serious, sophisticated audience than the pop-disc and teenage public they now have.

Beatles fan Geraldine Bridge, London secretary, carries her strong enthusiasm for the quartet to a Kent beach.

Beatles on the balcony look down on 10,000 screaming fans in Melbourne, Australia. With them is Lord Mayor of Melbourne.

In line with this they quietly, two months ago, bought their own motion picture studio a few miles from London. Once their United Artists deal expires, there is no doubt but what they will produce their own films. Their personal manager and discoverer, 30-year-old Brian Epstein—"We call him the Fifth Beatle," they say—is not one to miss any financial opportunity. Reportedly, Epstein gets from 20 to 25 cents of every dollar his Beatles earn.

The Beatles' first movie, named by themselves, A Hard Day's Night, is basically a showcase for their rock 'n' roll act. Its story line, if it can be called that, deals with four happy Liverpool lads called Paul (Paul McCartney), John (John Lennon), George (George Harrison) and Ringo (Ringo Starr), who play their music all over Great Britain, generally pursued by hundreds of screaming girls. Into the company of this foursome comes Mixing John McCartney, Paul's grandfather, played by Wilfred Brambell, who is dedicated to the principle of divide and conquer.

The production deals with the attempts of Paul's grandfather to louse up the Beatles' act in the course of 36 hours. The Beatles play themselves, sing six new numbers, are each given a stretch of film in which to shine as individuals.

ON LOYALTY ALONE

Regardless of what the critics do to it, A Hard Day's Night, which cost only $750,000, will probably gross from $5,000,000 to $15,000,000 on a world-wide basis, with Epstein and his boys taking an estimated 50 per cent of the profits.

"On the basis of fan loyalty alone," says David Picker, vice-president of United Artists, "we expect the picture to do smash business. The loyalty the Beatles inspire is incredible, especially in America."

What is the basis of the Beatles' fanatical fandom? And fantastic appeal? Ask the teenage girls who swoon and scream at the sight of these young long-hairs, age 21 to 24, one of whom, John Lennon, is married and the father of a 13-month-old baby, and they come up with such assorted answers as: "They're cute . . . They're tough . . . They're the most . . . When I listen to them, I just quiver all over . . . I love them because they're so nice . . . Underneath their hair a girl knows, she just knows, they're gentlemen . . . We girls love their beat, their sound. They're something new. Maybe they're English and maybe they aren't teenagers, but they belong to us."

WORSHIP OF AN IDEAL

A British psychologist, John Gabriel, author of Children Growing Up, defines the teenage cult of Beatlemania as "adolescent idealism." He says: "Perhaps most adolescents must worship an ideal and realize that such worship is nebulous before they are able to love an ordinary human being and accept him despite his imperfections."

According to Gabriel, adults should not sneer at the teenagers' mass love crush. When they scream at the Beatles, he believes, they are proudly announcing to the world that they have discovered their ideal or perfect human being. Shy and insecure because of their age, they find safety in numbers and conformity, contagion in the enthusiasm generated by their girl friends who admire the Beatles.

American psychiatrists offer a different explanation as to why the four young men who've played their way from $15-a-night stands to the top echelon of the entertainment world, arouse such intense fever in the American girl.

Dr. Ralph Greenson, who treated Marilyn Monroe and dozens of other Hollywood personalities in the past 25 years, says flatly: "In appearance the Beatles present an impression of sexual ambiguity [the truth, of course, is that the Beatles are swingers who have lived in Paris and Hamburg, love, know and cultivate the society of women, all sizes, ages and shapes].

"In teenagers," Greenson goes on to say, "there is difficulty in getting involved with a completely masculine figure. Girls of 12, 13, 14, 15 and even 16 are fearful of getting involved with a man of 23 or 24. Whether they know it or not, these girls are using the Beatles as a compromise. The Beatles seem so young and kidlike and feminine with their long hair and youthful ways, they pose no sexual threat. There is something of the baby about them. And that's why the teenagers are attracted."

Another psychiatrist, who prefers to remain nameless, says: "Just examine the pop-singers who have excited our young women. Rudy Vallee was thin-voiced and fragile-looking. Frank Sinatra, before he became snarling and tough, was as thin as a pipestem. When Elvis Presley first turned up, what kind of motions and gyrations did he go through? They were bumps and grinds and pelvic motions. Basically these are female motions, the kind of gestures female dancers use.

"The Beatles perhaps are truly masculine," this doctor continues, "in real life. But on stage, with their long hair and tight suits and Cuban heels, they seem to engender important feminine ingredients. The girls sense this. They identify with it just as their mothers unconsciously identified with Sinatra and their grandmothers with Vallee.

"In my opinion the Beatles will last only as long as they engender that identity. Let them cut their hair, and they'll lose half their following overnight."

Fred Martin, former public relations director of Capitol Records, traveled with the Beatles on their last tour. "I don't discount the psychiatric explanation of their success," he states. "But the fact is that these four guys have the best rock 'n' roll act in the business. They're not phonys. They know music.

"Their success is relatively new and sensational. But they've been around a long time. They've played England, Germany, France; they've played with other groups. They know harmony and counterpoint.

"They were poor, came from the wrong side of the tracks in Liverpool. They're down-to-earth. They put on no airs. They're good-natured and polite. Audiences establish an immediate rapport with them. They're successful because they're good. In my book it's as simple as that."

Whatever the explanation, be warned: Beatlemania is on its way. The Beatles make their feature film debut August 11. After that—bedlam.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

Because of volume of mail, PARADE cannot answer queries about this column.

FACT-OF-MEDICINE. Only 1 American doctor in 10 charges for medical advice given over the phone.

RICH SEAS. The sea is richer than you think. An oceanographic commission meeting in Paris recently explained that the sea is one of the richest natural resources available to mankind. It can provide enormous amounts of food and minerals. As an example the commission pointed to the successful dredging of beaches drowned in the ice age. In South Africa, at the mouth of the Orange River, more than $10,000 worth of diamonds are being recovered each day. In Alaska and Malaysia, dredging has produced goodly supplies of gold and tin.

RUSSIAN DILEMMA. Nikita Khrushchev is in serious trouble with the Soviet satellite countries. More and more they refuse to follow Russian advice. Khrushchev advises the Soviet bloc not to trade with the West -- yet Russia, to solve its urgent agricultural problems, is compelled to do business on an ever-growing scale with the Western powers, ordering bulk supplies of grain, chemicals and fertilizers. Yugoslavia has come to no harm with her Western trade arrangements; neither has Poland. Now Rumania comes along with a U.S. trade agreement. Can Czechoslovakia be far behind?

CAR AGE. The average American car is six years old. In 1964 an estimated 5,000,000 of these too-old vehicles will be junked.

FRAUD. Scotland's whisky and textile producers are trying to stop phony imitations of their products. In Greece and Argentina large amounts of local woolen products are sold with Scotch trade names. In other European countries tourists are being offered Scotch at reduced prices which is not Scotch at all.

REAL SISTER SOURIRE, AT FICHERMONT CONVENT.

NUN DEBBIE. A film version of the life of Sister Sourire, the Belgian nun whose recordings have become international best-sellers and whose biography was first written up in PARADE, will be photographed next year. Most prominently mentioned for the leading role of the singing nun: Debbie Reynolds.

WIFE'S CASH VALUE. How much is a 20-year-old wife and mother worth to her husband? In Miami, Fla., recently, Wright Sarvis, 24, sued a railway for $350,000 because his wife Cheryl, 20, was killed by a train. Dr. Roy Lassiter, economics professor at the University of Florida, testified that such a wife was easily worth more than $400,000 to her husband. He based his computations on the expected life span of the husband, another 46 years, and on the combined replacement wages of a domestic servant and schoolteacher for that period of time. The professor declined to estimate the cash value of a wife's love and companionship. The jury awarded the husband $250,000.

PLAY-FILMING. Cheapest way to produce a feature film is to photograph a Broadway play while the actors are going through their nightly chores on-stage. Warner Brothers is trying out the method on Richard Burton's Hamlet. If Warner's can sell that one to movie houses, they will photograph more and more Broadway plays.

OFF-SHORE TELECASTERS. Pirate ships completely equipped with radio and television transmitters have anchored themselves in European waters and are beaming programs to countries where broadcasting facilities are owned by the government. They obtain their revenue from sponsors who are prohibited from advertising on government-owned radio and TV stations. Latest such pirate ship is the Global Adventurer, anchored in the North Sea, six miles off the Dutch Coast. The Global Adventurer will start transmitting test TV programs on August 15, begin regular programing September 1. The Dutch government, furious, can do nothing about it. Off the British coast are ship stations, called Radio Atlanta and Radio Caroline.

How 2^{67} for The National Observer Changed Our Lives

Thousands of families are now getting more information and more reading pleasure from this new kind of national weekly newspaper. The following account gives some idea of what you can look forward to, if you take advantage of our very special trial offer. To do so, use coupon below.

By a Subscriber

FOR YEARS I was shy in groups, even at home. Didn't enter into conversations easily. By the time I'd collect my thoughts to venture an opinion, the group's talk would pass me by.

"A few months ago, I sent for a trial subscription to The National Observer, that wonderful new weekly put out by The Wall Street Journal people. I hoped that regular reading of such dependable and varied information would give me more self-assurance and poise. I hoped for all this—but didn't really expect it. After all, what could a mere newspaper do for me? To my surprise, I have discovered that The National Observer more than lives up to my desires.

"There is a wealth of significant, useful and entertaining information every week. It is authoritative, wholesome and unslanted...written so interestingly that when I finish an issue the information is mine. I easily take part in almost any discussion of politics, science, books, movies . . . keep up-to-date on theater, art, medical findings, fashions, household problems, economic events. (These are only some of the many subjects reported regularly in The National Observer.)

"Busy as I am with other chores, I don't get behind on my reading, for The National Observer very wisely gives me all this information in concise form—in relatively few pages that I can manage very conveniently.

Wives love it

"And I'm not the only one who gets a lot out of The Observer. Just the other day my wife clipped an Observer item describing 12 fund-raising ideas for clubs and organizations and took it to her club's finance committee meeting. Last week she stood up in P.T.A. and asked if our own school system shouldn't consider year-round schooling divided into three semesters—another idea she got from The Observer. She stopped correcting our little Billy's baby talk after The Observer told her why experts advise parents against it. She says it's the most helpful news publication she's ever read.

Teen-agers use it for school

"Not only that, our teen-age boy and girl enjoy it and use it in their school work. It's a pleasure to be able to pass along to them a paper filled with clean, constructive news, free from sensational crimes and scandalmongering. John was quite impressed with the new facts brought out about auto seat belts at The Stapp Car Crash Conference. Betty was tremendously interested in what college presidents and deans had to say about the point of a college education for women. And they're always clipping items for their Social Studies homework—such as the story of how the Louisiana constitution has been amended 407 times, and the one about the weighted vote plan adopted by New Mexico's state legislature.

"And you should hear the whole family chattering away at the dinner table these days. We have so much more in common to talk about now. Sometimes we're still lingering long after dessert, discussing whether or not you can eliminate poverty by passing laws . . . whether carpets in the classroom are a frill or an economy... whether teaching machines can also be used to teach better human relations....

"We're just a changed family since we discovered The National Observer."

SO MANY National Observer families are talking like this. Why don't you join them?

The National Observer is published by Dow Jones, the same worldwide news-gathering organization that publishes The Wall Street Journal.

Differs from other news weeklies

Because The Observer is printed simultaneously on high-speed newspaper presses in several of the Journal's own modern printing plants across the country—and because newspapers can be "made up" and printed faster than magazines—last minute stories can be included only hours before the paper comes off the press.

You get more news—in a compact, full-size, single-section newspaper. And you get more out of it. The large newspaper format permits not just one major "cover story," but five or six. Inside pages are important news pages too—there's no "letdown." Well-written headlines let you learn a lot quickly and invite easy browsing for the stories that interest you most. More than 50 excellent pictures, reproduced with sparkling clarity on our own special crisp-white newsprint, open windows not only on the people, places and events in the headlines but also such amusing sidelights as a 5-year-old boy washing his St. Bernard dog in the family bathtub ...or the ingenious statuettes a Westport man fashions out of railroad spikes.

Many enjoyable special features

Each week, too, The National Observer brings you more than a dozen special features that add to your enjoyment or broaden your knowledge in important areas. "The Week in Washington," for example, can be read in seven minutes or less, yet brings you up to date on significant happenings in Congress, the White House; Government agencies, the courts and politics. Similarly, "How's Business?" fills you in quickly on important trends in industry, the performance of the stock market, and other economic indicators.

For Bridge enthusiasts, there's "Better Bridge"; for crossword fans, a really challenging puzzle; for recipe collectors, a gem or two almost every week in "Food for Thought." "A Chat With the Doctor" brings you helpful medical hints on subjects ranging from snakebite to hiccups. And the whole family will enjoy the dry humor of "Grass Roots Philosophy," culled from the home-town press. ("Keep smiling! It makes everyone wonder what you've been up to.")

Send no money...just mail coupon

Leaving Eiffel Tower, historic Parisian eyesore, tourists in search of Paris charm may be cheated, abused.

ONE MILLION AMERICANS WILL VISIT FRANCE THIS YEAR. HERE'S ...

How NOT to GET CHEATED in PARIS

by ARNO JOHANSEN

PARIS.

This is the month when Parisians move out of Paris for their vacations and turn the city over to the Americans.

The French leave behind, however, a hard core of Parisians to serve the tourists.

Unfortunately, the word "serve" can all too frequently mean gyp, swindle, abuse and victimize.

Officials of the French Government Tourist Office will scream denials, but the truth is that for years some of the Parisians have been "taking" American tourists like Delilah took Samson.

Last year a PARADE reporter polled 150 returning Americans at Orly Airport on how they had been treated in Paris. Approximately 85 per cent said they had been cheated—or thought they had been cheated, which is just as bad—and an even higher percentage agreed Paris was the most expensive city in Europe.

When the PARADE reporter relayed this information to a French tourist official, he was told: "You think Paris is bad? You should see what happens to European tourists when they hit New York. They are completely victimized by everyone."

To check the validity of that allegation, PARADE last September assigned a reporter to the S.S. Canberra of the P&O-Orient Lines on its return trip to Europe. In New York it discharged a boatload of foreign tourists for the Labor Day weekend. Some 150 of these visitors were asked the following questions as the Canberra steamed homeward:

Q. From your experiences during your short stay in New York, would you say that Americans (shopkeepers, taxi and bus drivers, restaurateurs, etc.) were honest, friendly and co-operative, or cold and grasping, eager to charge as much as they could?

A. Honest and friendly — 95%
Cold and grasping — 5%

Q. Do you feel you were cheated or taken advantage of in any way?

A. Yes — 8% No — 92%

Q. Did the prices charged for services and goods seem reasonable to you?

A. Yes — 64% No — 36%

Q. Were the police and other city officials helpful in lending guidance when asked?

A. Yes — 97% No — 3%

Paris is one of the great cities of the world. Every tourist should see it, but many are now frightened away because of the high costs and the fear of being taken for financial rides.

How is one to avoid being gypped in Paris?

Here are a few simple rules:

1. Before leaving the U.S., write to the French Government Tourist Office at any of these addresses:

610 Fifth Avenue, New York 20, N.Y.
9418 Wilshire Boulevard, Beverly Hills, Calif.
18 South Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.
323 Geary Street, San Francisco, Calif.

Ask for literature on 450 selected international tourist hotels and for the booklet on economical, comfortable hotels in Paris. The Parisian hotels are rated 1-star, 2-star, 3-star, 4-star and Luxury. The 4-star and Luxury hotels are the most expensive and usually crowded with Americans. Avoid these if you're traveling on a budget.

Ask also for the booklet on the Paris subway (Métro) and for the list of more than 1,000 establishments in Paris and the suburbs where meals are served at from 5 to 7 francs ($1 to $1.40).

Go to your local bank and buy $5 or $10 in French currency so you can recognize the various denominations. Try to learn some basic French sentences from a phrase book. It is much easier for an ignorant tourist to be taken advantage of than one who has even a little knowledge of the language and currency.

2. When you arrive in Paris by air, be sure to save $5 for the return trip. The French government this past June 1 quietly increased the airport embarkation tax charged all passengers on long-distance overseas flights to $5, the highest airport user's tax in the world. You must pay it or you can't leave the country.

3. Try to avoid taxicabs in Paris. Not that the French cabbies aren't honest—it's just that many of them know how to spot the typical American tourist. "Generally, monsieur," one cabbie told me, "we can tell an American by his clothes, his camera, his accent or his dark glasses." Occasionally a cabbie succumbs to the temptation of charging an American tourist the the night rate for a day trip, taking him for an unnecessary ride or giving him too little change.

If you prefer taxis to the marvelous Paris subway, which constitutes a much more adventurous travel experience and costs only 8¢ a ride, you can ask the cabdriver for a receipt—"Je voudrais avoir un reçu." He may give you a slip of paper on which is printed his hack number and the Paris taxi prices for day trips, night trips, baggage charges, etc. Inasmuch as Paris is so tourist-conscious, it would be helpful if these regulations were translated into English and other languages. The American tourist would then know exactly what he is paying for. In any event, if you ask a cabdriver for a receipt, he will think twice before cheating you.

Do not let any cabdriver "steer" you to a restaurant. Almost always he will collect a tip from the owner or doorman for bringing you. Much better to follow the recommendation of your hotel concierge.

Do not hold out to any cabdriver, particularly one who says, "tip," or "tip for me," a handful of French coins. He is likely to take most of them, and the action is complete evidence of your ignorance. Look carefully at the taxicab meter before you pay the charges. Do not get panicky. Don't let yourself be bullied.

4. Avoid night clubs. As in most cities, these are the biggest gyp-joints of all. In Paris the standard procedure is to charge a tourist anywhere from $15 to $25 for a bottle of champagne. Most of the night club shows and revues are awful. There is nothing in Paris that equals the shows now staged in Las Vegas, Nev. If you're intent upon night clubs in Paris, however, reconcile yourself to getting clipped.

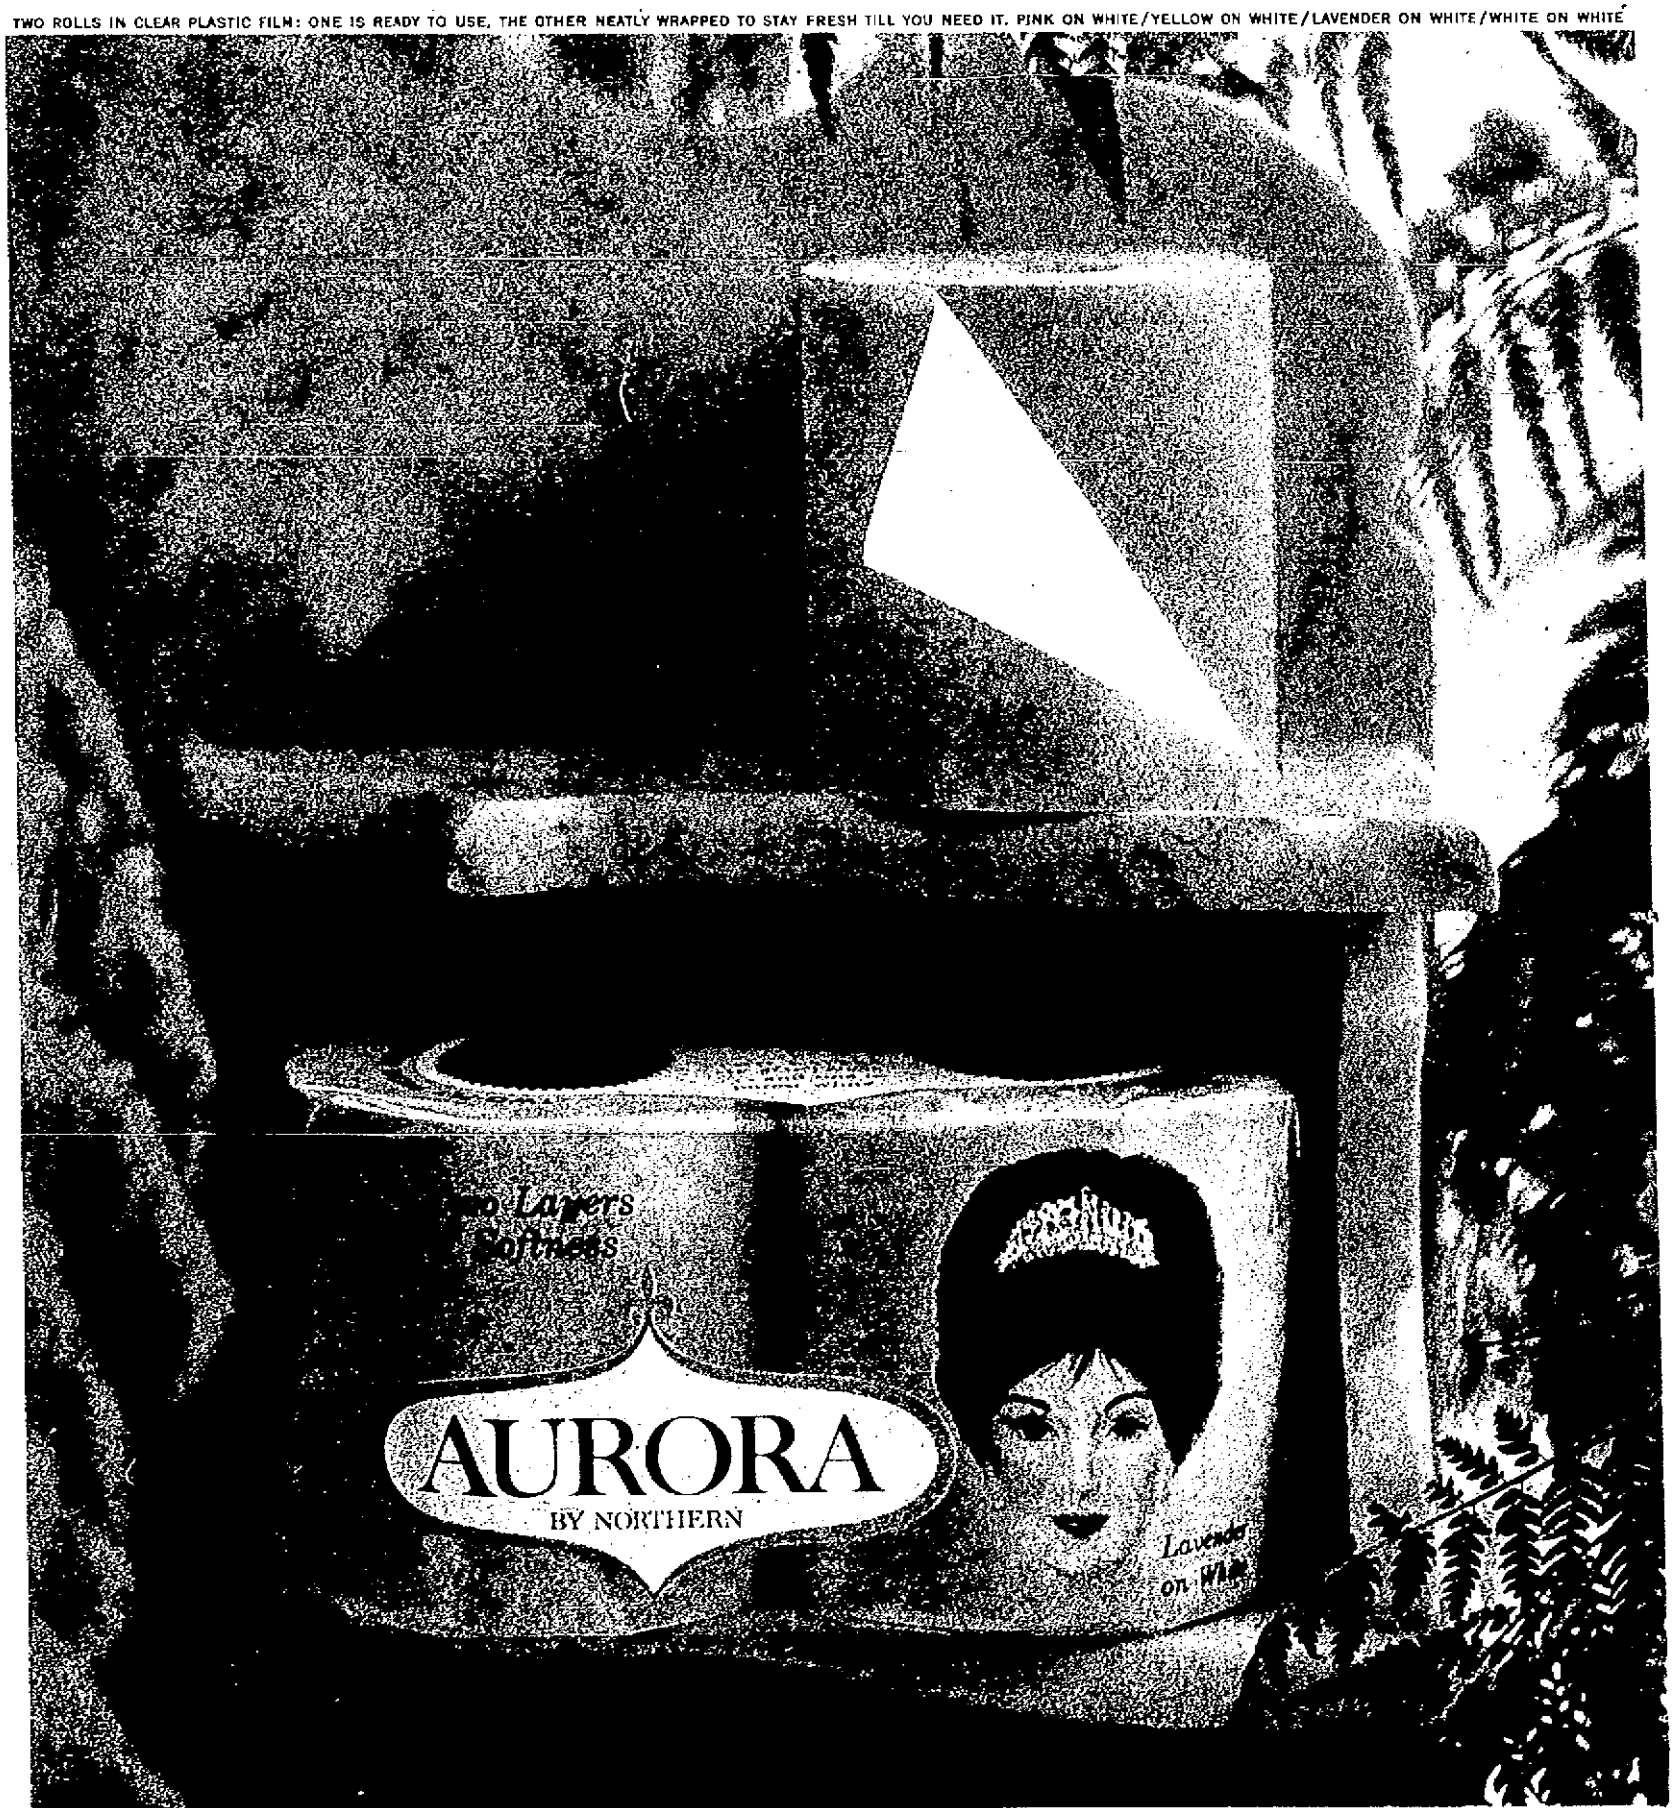

5. French restaurants are the best in the world. Avoid the expensive ones. Like the hotels, restaurants throughout Paris are classified by 1, 2, 3 or 4 stars. A round enamel disc near the door indicates their category. Those in the first three categories serve a special "fixed-price" meal from $1 to $3.60, including cover charge, hors d'oeuvres, a main dish plus vegetables, cheese or dessert. And the menu for the meal of the day is usually hung in the window. This is the best buy. Don't let yourself be switched to expensive à la carte dinners with champagne. The tab can very easily mount to $40 for two. If you want wine, ask for the house wine, or vin ordinaire.

6. Visit the French Bureau de Tourisme at 8 avenue de l'Opéra, its branch office at 127 avenue des Champs-Élysées or the office of "Welcome" at 7 rue Balzac, just off the Champs-Élysées. These are the tourist offices whose personnel will prevent you from being cheated if only you will ask for help.

The French have become most sensitive about their tourist-cheating reputation and are doing everything possible to reconstruct the image of Paris as a tourist mecca. Tourism is France's third-largest industry in money earned, and the French are mightily disturbed over the current tourist trend to avoid Paris or to cut short a vacation there. They want American dollars badly, and for the first time in a long while they are willing to take pains to get them.

Remember: Your most valuable address in Paris is 7 rue Balzac—Office of the Paris Hostesses. It's open every day except Christmas from 9:00 A.M. to midnight. Pretty English-speaking girls provide information on every aspect of tourism. No charge.

Patio supper

by BETH MERRIMAN
Parade food editor

Late supper on the patio or porch can be a relaxing meal for both hostess and guests with this superb recipe for chili cooked and kept hot in an electric buffet cooker. A basket of hot corn bread—made with a mix—is a perfect complement to chili; so is a cold, crisp salad. Serve lemon sherbet and tall glasses of cold milk, iced tea or coffee as finishing touches to an easy-to-make and inexpensive company or family supper.

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 large onion, chopped
2 lbs. ground beef
2 cans (1 lb. each) tomatoes
2 cans (10½ oz. each) condensed tomato soup
1 teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon cayenne
1 bay leaf
2 tablespoons chili powder
1 garlic clove
1 teaspoon salt
2 cans (1 lb. each) kidney beans
Corn Bread*

Melt butter over medium heat. Add onion and meat; cook until brown, stirring often. Add tomatoes, soup, paprika, cayenne, bay leaf and chili powder. Simmer 1 hour, adding water if mixture gets too thick. Mash garlic and salt together; stir into mixture. Stir in beans (do not drain). Heat thoroughly. Serve on squares of hot corn bread. Makes 12 servings.

CORN BREAD: Prepare 2 pkgs. corn muffin mix as directed on package. Bake in well-greased oblong pan, 8 x 11 x 2 inches, at 350° for about 35 minutes, or until golden brown. Cut into squares and serve piping hot with chili.

MARINA OSWALD

WHAT WILL SHE TELL HER CHILDREN?

by SID ROSS

Suppose your husband had allegedly assassinated the President of the United States?

What would you tell your children? Would you tell them the truth or would you avoid the entire subject?

Would you leave the city of his alleged crime?

Would you change your name?

How does Lee Harvey Oswald's widow, Russian-born Marina Oswald, feel about Americans—and about America? And how do Americans feel about her?

Recently Mrs. Oswald sat in her five-room rented ranch home here on the edge of Dallas and spoke about these questions. She allowed PARADE to be the first publication to examine the 6,000 letters she has received since last November. And she talked about what these letters—and this reception—mean for her, and her children's, future.

To Marina, Americans are kind, generous, compassionate people—the kind she wants to live among for the rest of her life. It is not only the letters they have written, or the $70,000 they have spontaneously contributed. It is the thoughtfulness the letters have shown, the warmth, friendship and sympathy offered a frightened woman from a foreign land.

Take, for instance, the way American widows, themselves hardly the most fortunate of persons, have rallied to her aid. "These are women with many more problems than I have," she says. "They have known tragedy, too, but they have no one to help them. Most of them have not much money, and what they have they need. Yet they willingly offer it to me."

Or take the response from American children: "Children are always writing, and their letters have helped me very much," says Mrs. Oswald. "One Sunday school class wrote and told me how they all got together and baked a cake and sold it and sent me the money. Letters like this tell me I am doing right to bring up my June and my Rachel in this country. I know American children will be honest and nice and friendly with them when they are older."

ADVICE AND PROPOSALS

In the letters Mrs. Oswald has received, and which still arrive every day from all states of the Union and from abroad, writers have offered her all kinds of help and assistance—not to mention money. Some have offered their homes. Others have suggested adopting the children, and still others have proposed marriage. The writers have also been generous with advice—that she change her name, that she go abroad or move to another state, that she go into hiding.

But she declares, "I want to stay here, in Dallas. I like Dallas. People here in Texas are very friendly, especially with children. After what happened, people were more friendly than they had ever been before. I visit back and forth with my neighbor on the corner, and another neighbor takes me shopping in the car.

"The suggestions that I change my name or give up my children—I could not do that. I am not proud of my name and my position, but I am not ashamed of them. I did nothing guilty. As for the children, without them, I have no reason for living.

"I have not thought of another marriage. It is too serious a matter to be entered into the way some men have suggested in their letters—like picking me from a Sears, Roebuck catalog."

In dress and in manner, Marina Oswald, 23, today seems thoroughly American. She likes to dress in tight Capri pants and blouses and favors heavy eye make-up. She wears her dark blonde hair short and lightly teased and chain-smokes mentholated cigarettes. Even her home is thoroughly American. Interestingly, there is no photo of Lee Oswald to be seen in the house.

When Oswald was shot by Jack Ruby, two days after the assassination, his wife, who had been in the U.S. less than two years, spoke virtually no English. Today, however, she can make herself understood in the language, although in her interview with PARADE, a Russian friend helped with translation. But she insisted on reading, or having read to her, every one of the letters Americans have sent. She has sent thank-you cards to everyone who contributed money.

"These letters have given me courage and strength," she says. "I'm not really strong myself, but they have helped me. They give me courage and inspiration."

Many express regrets that her husband could not have lived to have a fair trial—"in the truly American way." Most are forgiving, and many are inspired by religious feeling.

Typical is one from a woman in Fort Worth, Tex.:

After the shot heard around the world: Marina scans letters of sympathy, advice and proposals of marriage.

"Bitterness and hatred have deprived you of a husband and your children of a father, even as they have Mrs. Kennedy . . . The days ahead will be difficult, and so a group of us who believe in Christian love wish to convey to you and your children our concern."

"The hearts of all Americans go out to you," a California woman wrote. "We sincerely hope that life in America will be worth-while for you and your children, and that the tragedy that touched so many lives will be completely erased from the memory of all."

Several women tried to give Mrs. Oswald moral courage from their own lives. "I am a widow 74 years old, and life has hit me on all sides, but nothing has ever happened to me which caused me to hang my head in shame," wrote one. Another wrote poignantly: "I know from personal experience what a wife suffers when her husband brings shame down upon her and her children."

"I feel sorry," Marina says. "I feel ashamed. It is a great loss to a country to lose its President. He had much more to give the nation. But first of all I feel sorry for poor Jackie because she lost her husband, the father of her children."

Twice Mrs. Oswald wrote letters of sympathy to the President's young widow. But she has never been able to summon up the courage to mail them. "I feel this would make too much pain for her," she says. "I don't believe she would want a letter from me."

'BECAUSE HE WAS A FATHER'

And when she was in Washington to appear before the Warren Commission, Mrs. Oswald wanted to visit the Kennedy grave in Arlington National Cemetery and place flowers—"not so much because he was President but because he was a father." But in the end she hung back. "I was afraid of how people would react, that they would say I did not belong there."

Yet she did not speak harshly of the wispy, strange young man who found her in the Soviet Union and brought her to the United States as his bride. "If Lee killed the President," she says in a quavering voice, "I am sorry. We have lost a husband and father. If he killed the President it was also his fate, his punishment from above, to get killed himself."

She plans to tell June and Rachel all about Lee Oswald as soon as they are old enough to understand. "I wonder how I will do it," she says, "but I do not want them to hear first from someone else. I will tell them the bad and the good things about Lee. I am glad that I have two little girls. It would be much harder with boys. Boys always want to make heroes of their fathers."

And Mrs. Oswald does not hope for the execution of Jack Ruby. She is opposed to capital punishment for anyone. "Besides," she notes, "he will execute himself every day as long as he lives." Nor does she feel any bitterness toward the Dallas police, in whose custody her husband was when he was fatally shot. "It could have happened anywhere, in any city," she says.

Mrs. Oswald has given a good deal of thought to her adopted land as opposed to her native one. She notes that Lee Oswald, when he was unemployed, drew more money from the government than he would have if he had been employed as a young engineer in the Soviet Union. She was also startled to find that she and June and Rachel were entitled to Social Security payments, in spite of the way Lee Oswald died.

"The United States government is so human; it does not deprive children of what they need," she says. "In Russia if my husband had killed Khrushchev, I do not know what would have happened. . . ."

She also has been startled by how few Americans have condemned her and her children for the alleged crimes of her husband. On the other hand, one woman sent her $1—"for the service your husband did for the country." Mrs. Oswald sent it back.

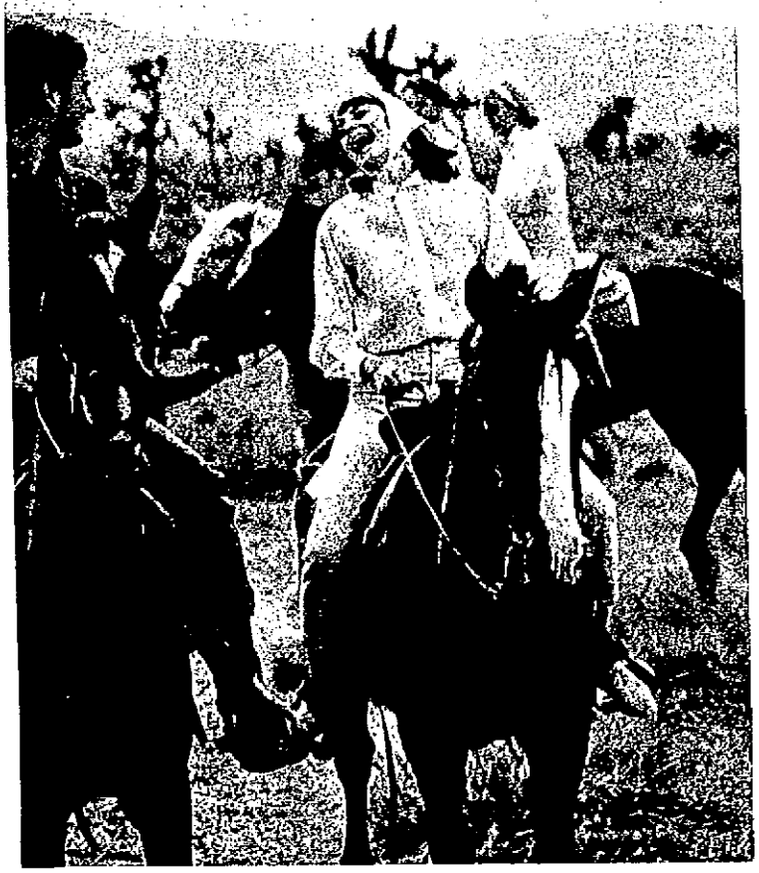

And, interestingly, she has never received a letter from a Communist country—even from her closest relative, an uncle who lives in Leningrad.

But to Americans, Mrs. Oswald is grateful—and she asked PARADE to convey her thanks to all America. Sitting down at a table, she wrote neatly in Russian:

"My children and I sincerely thank the American people for their moral support during such a difficult time. I wish there could always be understanding and good will between the American and the Russian people, and between all people in the world."

Then, in English, she concluded:

"Sincerely, Mrs. Marina Oswald and Children."

MAKE LIVING EASIER—TAKE A LOOK AT THESE SMART NEW IDEAS DESIGNED FOR YOUR HOME AND YOUR FAMILY ■ BY PETER DRYDEN

Plastic weight lifting

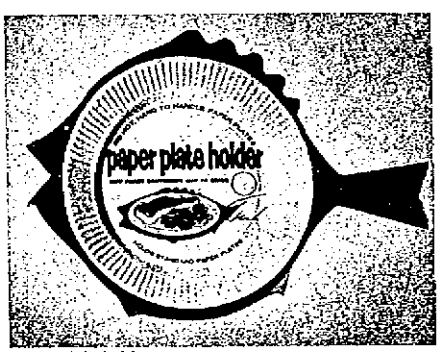

Now—plastic weight lifting: New aids for family fitness are barbells and dumbbells (left) that could bring weight lifting out of gym, cellar and garage into living room or bedroom. They're made of a smooth, plasticlike material that is as tough as iron but does not mar floors or carpets, rust or make clanging noise. They're colorful, too (burgundy, gold, copper, white or blue). Barbells come in sets of 60 lb. ($18.98 in stores) or 110 lb. ($24.95)—complete with discs, revolving chrome bar, all hardware. 26-lb. Junior set: $9.95. Dumbbells for women: $4 a pair. Diversified Products, Dept. PP, Opelika, Ala

Tar guard: A new cigarette holder is guaranteed to remove most (up to 85%) of the hot tars from smoke without affecting your smoking enjoyment. Not a filter, it uses an aerodynamic principle to capture tars, has no cartridge to replace, washes clean under a hot water tap. $2.95. Tar Gard Co., Dept. PP, 105 Market St., San Francisco 5, Calif.

Record cabinet

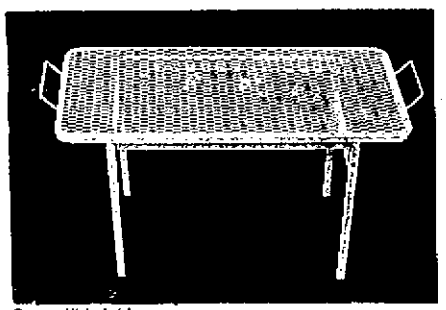

Files 200 LPs: Thanks to the unusual design of this black wrought-iron storage cabinet (left), you can keep up to 200 LP record albums neatly stacked in minimum space. Ten compartments hold 20 records each and allow you to sort your collection into categories such as jazz, popular, folk, symphonic. 22" H x 25" W x 12" D; vinyl-tipped legs. $9.95 plus express charges collect. Leslie Creations, Dept. PP, Lafayette Hill, Pa.

Paper plate holder

Paper plate holder: Here's one answer to your hot, sagging paper plate problems—a plastic, fish-shape holder (left) with convenient tail handle that can accommodate any standard paper plate and lend it extra strength and rigidity. In colors: green, yellow, red. 8 for $3.75; 12 for $5.75. Hendry House, Dept. PP, Box 183, Upper Montclair, N. J.

For your garden tools: You may find it easier to sharpen them—and get a smoother result—with a new 5-inch disc made of neoprene impregnated with 24-grit aluminum oxide. It fits any ¼-inch or larger electric drill, throws a cold spark that keeps metal from heating up and can produce an even, smooth beveled edge (free of high and low areas) on rotary mower blades, shovels, axes, hoes, forks, grass cutters. About $2 in stores. Stanley Works, Dept. PP, 195 Lake St., New Britain, Conn.

Convertible table

Convertible table: You can use this cocktail table (left) indoors and out—on terrace or patio in summer, in playroom or living room in winter and for general utility purposes. It's made of steel with a baked-on, rust-resistant finish. The 14" x 28" expanded steel latticework top is closely woven to support firmly even demitasse cups—and is removable for use as serving tray. $8.95 plus delivery. Hampden Specialty Products, Dept. PP, 295 Fifth Ave., New York, N. Y. 10016.

Parade of Progress items are NOT advertising. Write manufacturer if not available in stores. Manufacturers & Distributors: PARADE will gladly consider your new ideas but regrets that it is unable to correspond about them.

my favorite jokes

by Tony Stevens

EDITOR'S NOTE: Born in Jersey City, N.J., in 1933, the youngest of 13 children, Tony Stevens—real name: Anthony Steven Morelli—is a young comedian who in the past few years has worked many of the big-time night spots in the East. Stevens got his show business start in the Army working as a Special Services master of ceremonies in Korea. When he isn't working in night clubs, the comic attends Rutgers University at night, toward a degree in accounting. Married and the father of two daughters, Tony has been signed to appear with Frank Sinatra, Jr., later this month in Jersey. Herewith some of his jokes:

I came home the other night, and my wife was crying. I said, "What are you crying about?" She answered, "The dog ate the cake I baked for your birthday party." "Well, don't be so upset," I told her. "I'll buy you a new dog tomorrow."

It's no wonder those Russian athletes are so strong. Eight hours a day they spend building up their muscles, and do you know how they do it? Tearing last year's history books in half!

What do you think of the new topless bathing suits the girls are wearing at the beaches? I bet they'll drive many a man to distraction this summer—and the rest to binoculars!

I understand that in Las Vegas, where new rooms are constantly being added to all the hotels, the hotel owners have thought up a novel kind of gambling game: They give you the key to your room, then bet you 5 to 1 you can't find it.

And speaking of hotels, we stayed at a very nice one in the Catskills for a week in June. I won't say the mattress was soft, but my wife disappeared for two days and she never even left the room.... It was a typical summer resort—two girls to every man. And brother, that's my kind of odds!

Did you hear about the conceited plumber who took one look at Niagara Falls and said, "Give me time and I could fix it"?

There's only one difference between a bachelor and a married man. When a bachelor sees a pretty girl, he turns around and whistles at her. When a married man sees a pretty girl, he... come to think of it, there's no difference at all between a bachelor and a married man.

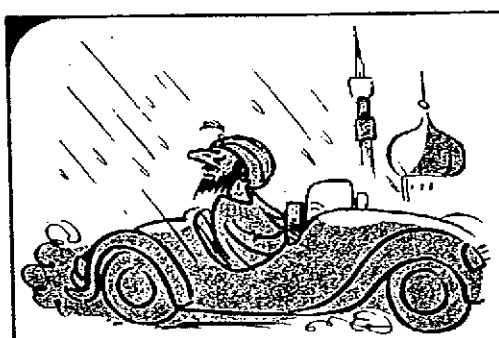

Two old maids were in an insane asylum. Said one: "I just wish a man were here to hug me and kiss me and squeeze me to death." The other looked at her and replied: "Now you're talking sense. You'll be out of here in no time!"

There is a lot of hoopla about the Academy Awards in Hollywood every year, but personally I think they are all a fake. Otherwise, how come Tommy Manville never won an Oscar for the best supporting performance?

I hear Liberace made out a new will. He plans to leave his brain to Harvard and his teeth to Colgate.

Did you hear about the race horse who made so much money he bought himself a string of people?

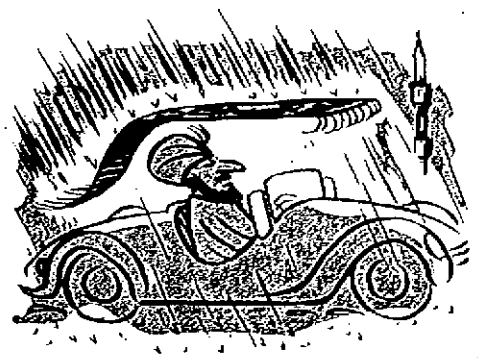

Have you seen the latest Italian singing rage of the teenagers, Rita Pavone? She's not even 5 feet tall and weighs less than 90 lbs.—kind of like Jayne Mansfield after taxes.

Portable Plunges Exempt

SWIM-POOL FENCE LAW FULL OF HOLES

By BILL DUNCAN

Gaping loopholes in California's fencing law for swimming pools exist in most Southland cities, preventing policing agencies from properly enforcing the safeguards, particularly as they apply to portable pools.

The loopholes were discovered when The Independent, Press-Telegram began an investigation after the drowning of three small children in portable swimming pools in two separate backyard tragedies two days apart. The I, P-T probe was on the question of whether the plastic plunges are included under the swimming-pool-fencing law.

Ironically, in both cases the deaths occured despite legal fencing.

Since January of this year, 11 children, the oldest seven years, have drowned in backyard swimming pools—mostly in conventional pools. Of these, five children scaled a neighbor's fence during the neighbor's absence to gain access to the pool.

However, portable swimming pools—the plastic-lined-tank types—are exempt from the fencing law in the unincorporated area of Los Angeles County and in 13 Long Beach-area municipalities. In other cities having laws governing portable pools, policing agencies say the ordinance is "almost unenforceable."

Reason?

No building permit is needed for installation of these pools and building departments have no way of knowing in what backyard the pools are to be set up.

Specifically, the fence law was enacted in 1957 to protect toddlers from falling into open, unprotected swimming pools. The law came about when the pools became as popular at tract homes as at mansions.

It was written as an amendment to the Kathy Fiscus Law, legislation spawned after the golden-haired San Marino three-year-old fell into an abandoned oil well in 1949 and died before rescuers could reach her.

Most cities, including Long Beach, have written a proviso requiring fencing for any body of water more than 18 inches deep. Orange County's ordinance for its unincorporated territory specifies 24 inches of water.

One building-department official commented:

"There must be hundreds of these pools set up in backyards all over Southern California. Most would not be legally fenced and building departments do not have the staff to adequately police the do-it-yourself installations. We could hardly justify our men peeking into everybody's backyard."

A spokesman for the Fullerton building department said the city simply doesn't class the portable pools as swimming pools because they are regarded as only temporary installations.

William A. Jensen, Los Angeles County building superintendent said, "There is nothing specific in our ordinance about portable pools. Since these pools require no permits we felt we would have a harder time enforcing the fencing law. The law, itself, is designed to prevent tots from tumbling into a ground-level pool. The portables are about 3½ feet above the ground and give that added protection."

The Los Angeles County Building Department has contracts to serve 28 incorporated areas in the county. Among these are Lakewood, Bellflower, Norwalk, Paramount, Artesia, Dairy Valley, Hawaiian Gardens, La Mirada, Santa Fe Springs, Lomita, Rolling Hills and Rolling Hills Estates.

Most cities have fencing ordinances, similar to the Long Beach ordinance, which requires a 5-foot, 6-inch minimum height fence with self-closing and locking hardware installed on all gates. The hardware cannot be installed lower than 4 feet, 6 inches above the ground.

The locking devices lead to another loophole in the fencing law. Under the law, owners are allowed to use a portion of existing buildings as part of the fence.

Doors leading from the buildings, do not have to

Thant Sees Russ in Walkout

Report K Threat on Penalty for Nonpayment

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Top sources reported Saturday Premier Khrushchev told Secretary General U Thant the Soviet Union will walk out of the General Assembly and perhaps quit the United Nations altogether if its vote is taken away for nonpayment of bills.

These sources said Thant, deeply worried, will discuss this threatened break-up of the world organization with President Johnson when he flies to Washington for a scheduled appointment Thursday.

Thant has just returned from a trip to Moscow where he appealed to the Kremlin not to let the U.N. go broke through failure to pay up.

* * * *

HE TOLD newsmen there, after a long talk with Khrushchev, that he saw no change in the Soviet stand.

The United States insists that the Soviet Union lose its vote in the Assembly unless it pays some of its back dues before the assembly convenes Nov. 1.

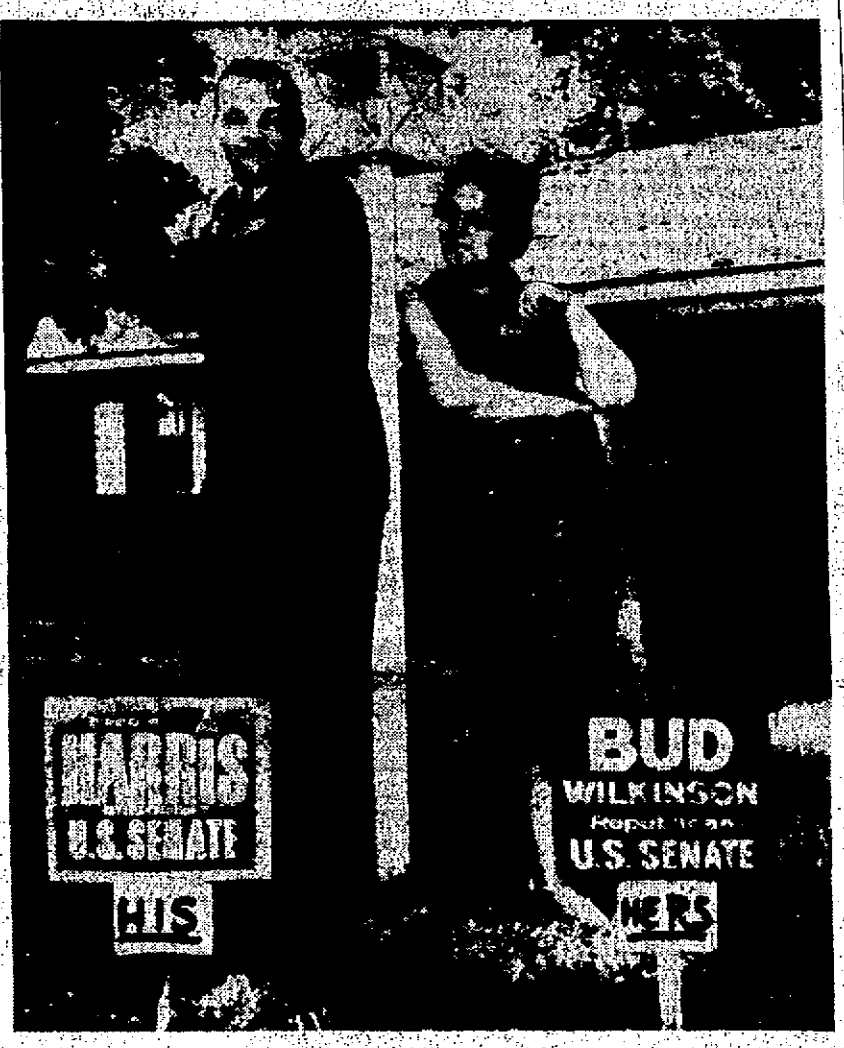

The U.N. charter says that any country two years behind in U.N. dues "shall have no vote" in the assembly.

The Soviet Union has refused to pay its assessments for Congo and Middle East peacekeeping costs and, if these are counted along with its regular budget assessments, it is two years behind.

The Americans say these costs must be counted because they are binding on all members. The Russians say they are not because they were not assessed by the Security Council.

* * * *

THE SOVIET UNION walked out of the Security Council in 1950 to protest the continued representation of Nationalist China there. The absence of the Kremlin's veto-wielding delegate permitted the U.N. to set up its Korean operation which would otherwise have been stopped. The Soviet Union later returned to the council.

HOUSE DIVIDED BY POLITICS
Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Phillips of Sand Springs, Okla. are backing opposing candidates for the U.S. Senate and want no confusion by neighbors about who is voting for whom. Phillips, Sand Springs city attorney, supports Democratic candidate Fred R. Harris, while his independent-minded spouse favors former Oklahoma U. football coach Bud Wilkinson, GOP nominee.

RFK Backers Reported Flooding LBJ With Pleas

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) — Neighbors, friends and supporters of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy have launched a telegram and telephone drive designed to urge President Johnson to reconsider the attorney general as a running mate, Informed sources here said Saturday.

A Kennedy aide said the attorney general was "aware" of the campaign in his behalf but made it clear that Kennedy "was absolutely taking no part" in the drive.

In Washington, sources said President Johnson, who earlier this week ruled Kennedy out as a vice presidential candidate, asked the attorney general to play a major role in the 1964 election campaign.

Such an assignment could mean service as the President's personal campaign manager. Kennedy was campaign manager in 1960 for his brother, the late President John F. Kennedy.

The reports from Hyannis Port and Washington came as Kennedy met at the family compound here with Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman and Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver.

Kennedy was understood to be reconsidering requests from New York supporters that he run for the Senate seat now held by Republican Kenneth B. Keating. He once rejected this proposal.

Informed sources said some 200 telegrams had been sent Saturday from the Western Union office in nearby Hyannis.

A spokesman said most of the telegrams were sent directly to the White House.

The Kennedy aide said the attorney general had received a barrage of telephone calls and telegrams Saturday from supporters expressing their anger at the manner in which President Johnson eliminated him as a Democratic vice presidential candidate. The supporters were described as "solid Democrats."

The callers, backers of the attorney general and the late President John F. Kennedy, reportedly asked the attorney general what their next move should be.

Informed sources here said Kennedy declined to comment on the incoming calls or the outgoing calls and telegrams that were being sent in his behalf. Kennedy spent most of the day relaxing with his family, an aide said.

Sources said telephone calls were being made to key Democratic leaders in other states asking them to urge the President to reconsider his position.

Report Rocky Won't Revolt

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Daily News reported Saturday night in a copyrighted article that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller "has no present intention" of joining Sens. Kenneth B. Keating and Jacob K. Javits of New York in disavowing the national Republican ticket.

The Daily News article, by James Desmond, said that although Rockefeller "still has deep misgivings" about the Republican platform on civil rights, "extremism" and aid to education, he "feels he can function most effectively within the regular structure of the Republican Party."

RANGER EXPERTS AT WHITE HOUSE

LBJ Told Man Can Make Lunar Landing in 1960s

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Johnson hailed Saturday the Ranger 7 triumph in closeup photography of the moon and said that in space this nation "has achieved fully the leadership we have sought for free men."

He called the Ranger exploit a "historic extension of man's knowledge" and tied it into a plea for peaceful scientific progress.

The President also assented to scientists' reports that the Ranger feat confirms the feasibility of manned moon landings, it is hoped within the 1960s.

* * * *

AT A WHITE HOUSE briefing in which some of Ranger's pictures of the lunar surface were examined and explained, Johnson received—and obviously accepted—assurances that:

—There are many lunar areas on which manned landings appear possible.

—The Apollo spacecraft design meets the requirement for such landings.

The President was advised also that the Ranger success fires new hope that the late President Kennedy's goal of a manned lunar landing in this decade can be achieved.

"Are you hopeful that you can stay on schedule?" Johnson asked.

"I am hopeful," replied Homer E. Newell, associate administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

* * * *

"THE RANGER photographs," Newell said, "provide reassurance that the design range in the LEM (the lunar excursion module, that part of the Apollo spacecraft in which two crew members will leave the mother ship and descend to the moon) is sufficient to take into account the landing difficulties that will be encountered."

Newell and Ranger Chief William H. Pickering, director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif., showed Johnson and White House staff members, on a screen, enlargements of the striking Ranger moon pictures.

Some of the pictures were pockmarked with numbers of craters, to a much

TOO CLEAR FOR LBJ!

WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Johnson Saturday looked at a clear, detailed picture of a lunar "sea," taken from a distance of about 100 miles, and wondered aloud:

"There is not any likelihood, is there, that any of these UPI and AP boys will get cameras like that after my boat?"

The President, with a laugh, was referring to photographs taken of him with telescopic lenses in Texas recently when he was boating during a weekend holiday. The photos showed him with a fairly noticeable bay window.

Candidate's Press Aide Cancels Talk

By ANDY PARK

Acting like publicity-shy Greta Garbo, the Republican presidential nominee sneaked into Orange County Saturday under security wraps that veteran newsmen were comparing with Nikita Khruschev's Southern California visit in 1959.

On the third day of a California vacation "with complete privacy," Arizona's U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater thwarted newsmen at almost every turn from the exclusive Bohemian Grove campsite in Northern California to Newport Beach's Balboa Bay Club where he checked in at 6:04 p.m.

* * * *

LEAVING Santa Rosa Airport in a private Convair twin-engine airplane at 3:30 p.m., the senator and four aides flew into Orange County Airport at 5:37 p.m. and taxied to the west end of the runway, a quarter of a mile from several score newsmen waiting for him.

Amid the howls of television and newspaper reporters — many of whom have followed the senator since he left Washington Thursday — the Republican standard-bearer stepped from his plane at 5:43 p.m.

Oil Talks Still on at Deadline

Three major oil firms were still negotiating with union leaders at midnight Saturday to avert a walkout at local plants set for that hour.

Earlier Saturday Mobil Oil concluded negotiations at its Torrance refinery with a bargaining committee of Mobil Unit, Local 1-547, Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union.

Mobil spokesman Edward Fulham said the committee accepted the company's offer of 2% wage increase, increased vacations and other fringe benefits.

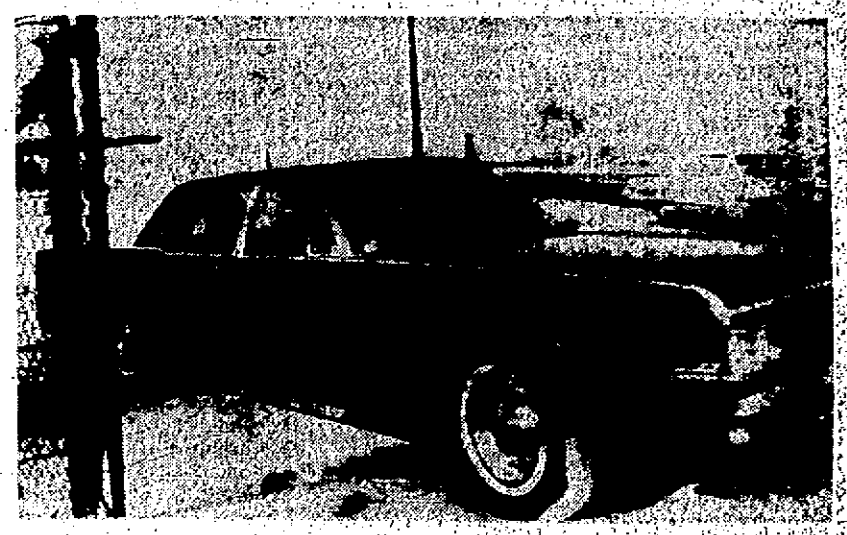

Still negotiating with the union were Texas Co., Shell and Richfield. Union Oil Co. settled Friday and Tidewater Oil has no meetings scheduled until Monday.

On May 25 Mobil and the union signed a contract covering various working conditions and management-labor relations at the Torrance refinery. That contract will remain in effect until February 1966, Fulham said.

Student Loans Extension OKd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Saturday approved a three-year extension and broadening of the government's program to provide loans for college students.

With only a handful of senators on the floor, the Senate extended by voice vote the National Defense Education Act through 1968.

L.A.C. Says:

Don't Care How--If They Profit

Financial immorality does not seem to bother some people whether it be in government or union leadership. Conviction of Jimmy Hoffa of using union funds for his own benefit may mean a change in the leadership of the Teamsters Union. But that is doubtful unless Hoffa actually goes to jail. This largest union in the nation has consistently chosen as its leaders men who have been guilty of such actions. Dave Beck grew to be a millionaire manipulating the funds—and was consistently re-elected as president. It was only when he went to jail for income tax evasion that his assistant, Jimmy Hoffa, took over.

We may be critical of the attitude of union members who continue to re-elect such men as their leader. But the fact is, these leaders have gained great benefits for the membership through strikes and nationwide control of this vital transportation system. It is an example of how people—not only union members—overlook dishonest acts of their leaders if it means benefits for themselves—or if it fits into their political philosophy.

Such an example is shown by the way many people close their minds and eyes to the immorality of the Bobby Baker case—and to the way the Johnson fortune has been achieved through the actions of agencies over which Johnson—and Baker—had great influence. These facts are simply ignored by the Johnson partisans, because they are so dedicated to his support. Their attitude seems to be—what's the difference—he is our man.

In the Hoffa trial, it was charged he made improper loans from the Teamsters pension fund of over $20 million—and that Hoffa and his aides got $1.7 million for themselves as commissions and other charges. Hoffa insists the loans will all be repaid with a big profit—so why is anyone concerned over it all. A few months before he was convicted of jury tampering in a trial involving other use of union funds. But regardless of the years of this type of information—and the union being expelled from the AFL-CIO—the membership has re-elected him.

This disregarding of morals by the people is one of our greatest dangers. A few years ago several officers of the Chrysler Company were removed from office because it was charged they had given Chrysler contracts to outside companies in which they had interests. Sherman Adams was quickly removed from his office as assistant to President Eisenhower when it was shown he accepted gifts from a man for whom he performed political favors. But the Bobby Baker case is swept under the carpet and the Johnson TV monopoly which his family still owns, is ignored by those who should demand that all the facts be disclosed and punishment be provided for any acts of profiting from their political power.

Many people are weary of having these issues discussed. They seem to take them for granted and as not a serious matter. But we may be sure such immorality would be quickly criticized if it was applied to Senator Goldwater. It seems natural that partisans overlook such acts by their favorites. But it is evidence of a decaying morality in unions or political parties to be complacent over such issues.

The liberal Democrats—and so-called liberal Republicans—may not like these issues to be a part of the campaign. But it will be a test of the fundamental standards of the American people. If they approve of such acts by leaders they support—then they encourage all those in power to improperly profit from their positions. They should ask themselves—would I approve of such actions by the head of a corporation in which I have my money invested? If the answer is no, then they should apply it to men they elect to public office or as leaders of their unions.—L.A.C.

ENGLE'S WIDOW CONSOLED

Mrs. Clair Engle (left) is embraced by unidentified friend as she arrives at Ft. Myer, Va. chapel to attend memorial service for her husband, Sen. Clair Engle, who died Thursday. President and Mrs. Johnson were among mourners.

Engle 'Comes Home' to Red Bluff

RED BLUFF, Calif. — The body of Clair Engle arrived Saturday afternoon in his home city of Red Bluff where the late Democratic Senator began his political career as district attorney of Tehama County 30 years ago.

The body was flown to Chico, Calif., from Washington, where a 20-minute memorial service was held Saturday morning with leading political figures, including President and Mrs. Johnson, in attendance.

The body of Engle, who died Thursday of a brain tumor, will lie in state beginning today at about 11 a.m. in the Tehama Courthouse.

A graveside service has been scheduled for Monday at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Doyle Porter of the Red Bluff First Methodist Church officiating.

At the conclusion of the memorial service in the small Ft. Myer chapel, Mrs. Johnson stepped across the aisle and kissed and embraced Mrs. Lucretia Engle, widow of the late Senator.

Also attending were about half the members of the Senate, Chief Justice Earl Warren and Pierre Salinger, the Democratic nominee for Engle's seat. Salinger is expected to be named by Gov. Edmund G. Brown to fill out Engle's term.

Salinger also plans to accompany a 15-man congressional delegation which will fly to the funeral. Sen. Thomas Kuchel, R-Calif., has been designated chairman of the funeral committee.

The other members are Sens. Alan J. Bible and Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev.; Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex.; E. L. Bartlett, D-Alaska; Frank E. Moss, D-Utah; Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio; Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho, and Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii.

Reps. Chet Holifield, George P. Miller and Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif., Patrick Minor Martin, R-Calif., and John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz.

The committee plans to fly nonstop from Andrews Air Force Base near Washington today to the Chico Airport.

ANYONE SEE A 10-TON PINK HALF-TRACK HERE?

Long Beach police Saturday searched and searched for a pink, World War II armored half-track which had been reported missing.

Patrolman Kenneth D. Johnson said he asked in gas stations and restaurants up and down Pacific Coast Highway for the missing giant.

Finally, he said, someone reported seeing it go by but confounded matters by saying it was being driven by four men wearing red fezes.

The 10-ton armored troop carrier, belonging to D.S. Michelson Enterprises, was bound for a promotional stunt in the World's Teen Fair in Costa Mesa when it broke down in Long Beach about noon.

The four fez-wearing chaps, it later turned out, were connected with the event, accidentally discovered the stalled behemoth, started it, and drove it out to the fairgrounds before notifying the owner, who was frantically seeking spare parts.

have self-closing, self locking devices. In the death of two of the latest drowning victims, the children entered the fenced areas through unlocked garage doors.

How safe is a fenced pool?

It is the concensus of most building-department and police agencies that the fencing law is only safeguard for children too young to climb.

How much protection does a fenced pool give the owner against lawsuits in cases of drowning?

It is an edge with most juries, but doesn't immunize the owner from civil liability, legal experts say.

Much depends on the negligence involved on the part of the owner. It is hard to show that a five-year-old had a malicious intent to trespass by climbing a fence to immerse himself in the cooling waters of a swimming pool, a Long Beach Bar Association official said.

British Seek Oil Under North Sea

LONDON (UPI)—Britain is looking for an undersea Texas on its doorstep.

It hopes oil and natural gas lie beneath the grey, windswept water of the North Sea, for centuries one of its main fishing grounds.

Now the sea booms with the sound of explosive charges, set off by survey ships which measure the shock waves to find out what is under the water. They are searching for domes of spongy rock, the type which might contain oil or gas.

"If an equivalent to Texas is found under the North Sea we can all look forward to another advance in our national prosperity," says Minister of Power Frederick J. Erroll.

* * * *

HIS MINISTRY has just finished receiving applications for concessions to explore and produce oil and gas in the British-controlled section of the North Sea. About 35 have been submitted, some from consortiums including American companies. The successful bids for licenses will be announced in September or October.

Britain is the second largest consumer of oil in the Western world after the United States and uses more than 61 million tons a year. It all has to be imported except for the fraction produced at home, 100,000 tons a year from wells in Nottinghamshire and Lincolnshire.

The two home fields of natural gas as Eskdale on the English northwest coast and at Cousland in Scotland can fulfill only the needs of their communities.

A major oil strike in the North Sea would ease Britain's dependence on the Middle East.

50-FOOT MOON CRATERS SHOWN FROM 25 MILES AWAY
Craters only 50 feet in diameter are seen from an altitude of 25 miles in one of historic series of photos relayed back to earth by Ranger 7. Area shown is 4½ square miles. Goldwater Eludes Southland Press and embraced his wife, Peggy, who had been waiting for him all week at the Balboa Bay Club.

* * * *

SPOTTING an Independent, Press-Telegram reporter rushing toward him from a six-foot barbed-wire fence and an I, P-T photographer running toward a "secret" gate at the southwest end of the airport, Goldwater quickly ushered his wife into the back seat of a radio-equipped Lincoln Continental and began speeding toward the exit.

Hunched down in the back seat of the car, the GOP nominee continued to look straight ahead as his car, escorted by two Newport Beach police detective cars, sped through the gate. Only I, P-T photographer Curtis Johnson was there to record the scene.

* * * *

THE SENATOR'S dash to his Balboa Bay Club retreat capped a day of frustration and confusion for newsmen who had tried since dawn to catch a glimpse of him.

The senator eluded newsmen early Saturday as he left the Bohemian Club near Monte Rio where he had been the overnight guest of Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, U.S.A. (Ret.).

Goldwater's traveling press aide, Ed Nellor, had advised newsmen that he (Nellor) would hold a press briefing at the Newporter Inn in Newport Beach at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, but they arrived only to find it canceled.

Traveling by aircraft, auto and chartered buses, the newsmen arrived in Southern California only to discover that rooms reserved for them at the Balboa Bay Club had been canceled on orders of Goldwater's staff.

* * * *

"WE WERE told that the senator would refuse to stay at the club if newsmen or cameras were present," a wire service reporter said.

Goldwater's Convair flew from Santa Rosa Airport directly to Orange County Airport, according to a flight plan filed with the Federal Aviation Agency.

Mrs. Goldwater and two married daughters arrived at the airport 30 minutes before the plane. They drove to a secluded spot near the airport fire station to await his arrival. When two I, P-T newsmen discovered them, they were driven to the far end of the runway by Newport Beach detectives who then ordered the area cordoned off by private security guards.

* * * *

HOWEVER, as the senator's plane taxied up to the waiting cars, an I, P-T reporter scaled a fence and ran toward him as a photographer secreted himself near the exit gate at the corner of the airfield.

Goldwater drove into the Balboa Bay Club grounds and went directly to his second-floor suite—already equipped with a vertical ham radio antenna—at the south end of the exclusive club.

Identifying themselves as "guests of a member," the two I, P-T men went after him.

The ruse worked to gain entrance to the grounds but not to the Goldwater apartment.

* * * *

IN WHAT club members described as "fantastic" security arrangements, Goldwater's retreat was protected by detectives from the Costa Mesa and Newport Beach police departments and extra private patrolmen circulating throughout the club.

Dressed in swimming attire, as busboys and in business dress, guards with walkie-talkies swarmed among the guests and guarded Goldwater's door.

Mrs. Dorothy Yardley, public relations director of the club, was forbidden even to tell telephoning newsmen any details of the inside of the facility.

The I, P-T men were stopped seven times by detectives who demanded identification. Producing valid out-of-state driver's licenses, the newsmen were allowed to continue to circulate.

* * * *

BUT WHEN photographer Johnson began taking pictures of the guards and the Goldwater apartment, seven detectives cornered him against a fence at the end of the parking lot.

Under the impression that Johnson was a "curious guest," the guards asked him to refrain from taking more photographs. A check with club headquarters by radio greater degree than earlier pictures taken with earth-based telescopes would have indicated.

'Push on to Moon,' Experts Urge LBJ

A group of the worst pock-marks appeared along the features that had been described, in telescope studies of the moon, as rays extending from the huge Copernicus crater.

"Apparently landing missions should avoid these rays," Newell said, "but there is ample area for Apollo landings."

Newell said the pictures indicate that in a given maria or dry-ocean-bed-like area, 1% of the sector would be unsatisfactory for landings and 99% would be "more satisfactory as a possible landing area."

In an apparent effort to answer those who criticize administration plans to push ahead with the manned landings, Johnson commented that "these pictures are very exciting," but asked whether the answer to larger scientific questions must not await a manned landing.

"Yes," Newell said. "Many questions cannot be solved until man gets on the moon, selects materials, analyzes them and brings them back to earth."

* * * *

"THE PAYOFF, then, is in the manned landing, and bringing back what you find?" Johnson asked.

"That is correct."

"Is it desirable to do this as soon as we can? If we are going to do it, we should do it as quickly as possible? There is little doubht about the desirability of this?"

"Not in my mind," Newell said.

Johnson asked what the result would be should he and Congress decide that "we have had enough and it is a little too difficult for our country." What would happen, he wanted to know, if "we sit back in our rocking chairs and let the rest of the world go by?"

"We would be backing down from a real challenge," Newell said.

"So what?" Johnson countered. "What would we lose?"

Newell said America then would forfeit the leadership that had made her great.

* * * *

"CAN WE BE first in the world if we are second in space?" Johnson asked.

"I don't think we can," Pickering said.

"We can not," Newell agreed.

Johnson asked if the NASA officials feel the United States should maintain the present pace of the lunar program.

"There is no indication in any of the pictures that would say we should slow down," Newell replied.

"If I were to conclude, if budget (bureau) should conclude, Congress conclude, the American people conclude that the effect of slowing down the space program would be the saving of a few millions of dollars, would that be penny wise and pound foolish?" Johnson asked.

Pickering said the program is an investment needed not only now but as a long-term investment for the future.

TIRED BUT CAN'T QUIT

Ranger 7 Scientists Shun Rest for Study

PASADENA (AP)—Jet Propulsion Laboratory scientists took a second look Saturday at the historic Ranger 7 photos of the moon—pictures they hope may unlock centuries-old

But one big question seems to be settled: the future of the scientists and engineers much criticized in the past for six consecutive failures in the $200-million Ranger program.

Lucky Number 7 streaked to the moon in what JPL experts jubilantly called a "textbook" operation and snapped television pictures all the way to its climatic crash early Friday against the moon's Sea of Clouds.

AND THE photos it took, released here Friday night and shown to President Johnson in the White House Saturday, were spectacularly successful.

JPL scientists planned to take a day off, after almost a week of little or no sleep while tracking and guiding Ranger to the lunar landing. But they couldn't resist returning to the big Pasadena facility Saturday for further study and analysis of Ranger's 4,316 pictures, some shot from as close as 1,000 feet from the surface of the moon.

Spokesmen said there would be no further pictures of the moon released from the laboratory over the weekend. No time was set for possible release of additional views this week. So far, only 10 of Ranger's pictures have been released.

* * * *

ONE SHOT showed a pock-marked ridge astronauts would have to avoid on a lunar landing. But mostly, the pictures showed a flat plain pock-marked here and there with craters of varying sizes.

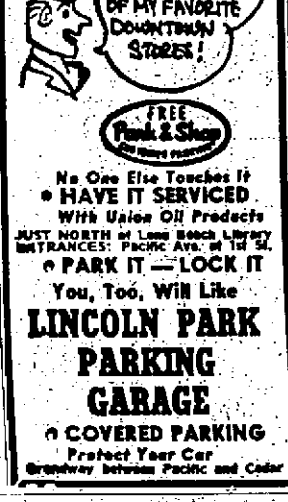

The photos indicated that some seem to have been made when big chunks of rock landed in the moon's dusty surface, possibly fragments of giant meteorites which carved their own bigger craters farther away.

Up and down the street the word goes out . . .

This is payday weekend . . . the white-hats are in Long Beach.

Neon lights along the Pike flash a little brighter . . . Jukeboxes in a hundred bars blare a little louder . . .

The con men, card sharks, fast-buck artists and good-time girls edge in for the kill . . .

And the city's "second" police force swings into action.

Working in cooperation with the Long Beach Police Department, the Navy's Shore Patrol unit actually functions as a military carbon copy of its civilian counterpart.

Like the civilian police department, the Shore Patrol has its own patrolmen, detectives, paddy wagons, booking desk and cellblock.

Navy Lt. C. E. Waldrop, 40-year-old veteran of 23 years service, serves as "chief" for this 130-man "second" police force.

"I guess this is more like the sheriff's job than the police chief's, because we cover all of Los Angeles County," Lt. Waldrop said.

In addition to the 104 armbanded men who work the 24-hour patrols, the unit has a dozen Marine Corps military policemen, two plain-clothes apprehension teams to deal with deserters and absentees, and a small administrative staff to handle paperwork.

"Actually, this is a pretty small police force to handle an area this big, with a military population of about 56,000, but we get good cooperation from the local police, which makes our job a whole lot easier," Lt. Waldrop said.

Almost every weekend between 12,000 and 15,000 members of this military population swarm into Long Beach and surrounding communities . . . or overflow into Los Angeles . . . looking for fun, or "something to do."

"We'll average 9,000 military visitors at the Hollywood USO just about any weekend of the year," Lt. Waldrop said. A small Shore Patrol substation has been set up in Los Angeles to handle any problems which develop.

And, problems do develop.

"Our booking desk usually handles between 35 and 50 men a night on a busy weekend, and sometimes even more.

"Most of the time these men are youngsters who've had a little too much to drink, and need a place to square away.

"But, sometimes they're booked for more serious offenses such as auto theft, assault, desertion or larceny," Lt. Waldrop explained.

"Once in a while," he added, "we get a little heat (complaints) from citizens who don't like the way a patrol checks passes or searches a prisoner, then we have to explain.

"Sometimes its hard to show people that the Shore Patrol has a dual function. The patrolmen are out there to protect the military man, as well as to keep peace in the community.

"This often means we've got to protect a man . . . especially one who's had too much to drink . . . from himself.

"These youngsters are a long way from home, and sometimes they get depressed. That can lead to trouble, so the patrolmen check them to be sure they aren't carrying any hidden weapons.

"One slipped by a while back . . . had a razor blade in the sole of his shoe . . . slashed his wrist in the brig.

"We just don't want that to happen," Lt. Waldrop explained.

The Shore Patrol's second-biggest problem is auto theft.

"Most of these young fellows don't stop to realize they're committing a felony which could land them behind bars for a long time.

"They see a car with the keys in it, and the next thing you know they've stolen it.

"Often they just take he car for a joyride, or to get back to the base before their liberty runs out," the Shore Patrol chief said.

Besides patrol duties, Lt. Waldrop's outfit handles other law enforcement chores, such as tavern inspection, and the investigation of rackets. "We keep a close check on taverns to see that they meet certain sanitary requirements, and that they aren't gypping the serviceman.

"If violations become flagrant, or too many complaints are lodged, we can request certain places to be posted off limits to military personnel," Lt. Waldrop said.

In addition, the Shore Patrol maintains close liaison with the Long Beach Police Department.

One of the unit's senior petty officers is assigned to ride specialized patrol beats in the city's police cruisers. The walking patrol works closely with the police department's zone patrol units.

"I'd say that we get better cooperation and liaison from the Long Beach Police Department than any city in the United States," Lt. Waldrop said.

Long Beach is a good liberty town. Ask any sailor, leatherneck, or airman . . . any place in the world . . . and he'll tell you the same thing. But, just in case the liberty gets a bit out of hand, there's a "second" police force standing by . . . just in case.

LT. C. E. WALDROP HEADS CITY'S "SECOND POLICE FORCE," THE NAVY'S SHORE PATROL UNIT

PUT OUT TO PASTURE

Famed Funeral Horse Retires

FT. MYER, Va. (UPI)—"Big Boy," the gentle old horse which led President John F. Kennedy's funeral cortege up the sloped drives of Arlington National Cemetery last November, has retired.

Ailing from kidney trouble, a weak back and his age—18—Big Boy was retired last June from the Army caisson section at Ft. Myer, Va. and put out to pasture.

Assigned to the section from an old cavalry unit in Oklahoma, Big Boy had escorted the caskets of more than 2,400 military officers in the past 12 years.

"He knew how to pull a funeral better than the men who rode him," Warrant Officer John McKinney, caisson section leader, said. "He knows every bend and dip in the road."

* * * *

DRAPED IN A BLACK BLANET, black saddle and bridle, Big Boy led processions for such historic figures as Gen. George C. Marshall and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. He was a natural choice for the lead horse, trainers said, because of his size and beauty. As chief of the traditional seven-horse escort, he always wore an English saddle. The others followed in regular cavalry saddles.

"It a good thing we could use him as the single mount, because he had a violent hatred for the harness—he'd just have no part of it," said Sgt. Ballard, chief of section for the black horses

Big Boy was always popular with the caisson trainers because of his gentle disposition. Although the object of much teasing, he had a skill that is missing in the section today. "There's really no one to take his place," Ballard said. "He was so well trained, you could put his feet in one spot and he wouldn't move until he was told to. He set his own distance and when it was time to stop or turn, he did it without being told."

Red Chinese Seen Testing Crude A-Bomb by Year's End

LONDON (UPI) — Communist China is expected to detonate a crude nuclear device before the end of the year, diplomatic reports indicated Saturday.

Qualified informants said the explosion will be designed to boost Red China's prestige as a coming nuclear power. They said Chinese scientists have not yet been able to develop a sophisticated nuclear device to rival those of the United States and the Soviet Union.

It may be 10 years or more before Peking can produce nuclear weapons of any consequence and far longer before it develops the vehicles to wage atomic war without the assistance of the Soviet Union. Russian aid seems out of the question at this time because of the Sino-Soviet ideological dispute.

Soviet technicians who once helped China in the nuclear field have long since pulled out. According to official Peking charges, the Soviets have reneged on an earlier agreement to supply Communist China with a sample of a nuclear bomb.

Informed sources said China has perserved in nuclear research in spite of the Soviet withdrawal. Communist diplomats claim the Chinese "stole" some Soviet atomic secrets at the height of the era of cooperation and friendship between Peking and Moscow when Soviet experts worked in China and Chinese scientists were trained in Russia.

China's nuclear program was reportedly slowed in the past two years by a serious economic crisis and the stoppage of Soviet assistance. But sources said Peking is now pushing the nuclear program forcefully.

Prestige considerations appear to be the major motivating force. Possession of an atomic bomb, no matter how primitive, would give China a leg up in its drive to extend its influence in Asia and Africa and at the same time strengthen Peking's hand in the mounting conflict with the Soviets.

Lorne Green's Friend Provides Bet Bonanza

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lorne Green, the papa on the "Bonanza" television series, has a friend who really is a friend.

"I nicknamed him 'The Genius' after he picked the exact order of finish—every horse—the day before the Kentucky Derby.

"A few weeks ago, he called me up and said he wanted to make a few bets for me, but first wanted my permission. I gave it in one-tenth of a second.

"He didn't even tell me the horses, the tracks or the races—not even the amount bet.

"But the other night he came to town and handed me $1,260 in winnings.

"Is that or is that not a friend?"

Singapore Chief Has Tough Fight Threatened From the Far Right

By TONY ESCODA

SINGAPORE (AP) — Singapore's premier Lee Kuan Yew, a tough political battler, is facing what could be the biggest fight of his career.

At stake is his rule over this island city, the commercial center of young Malaysia. It has long been a hotbed of leftist agitation and a prime target for Southeast Asia's reds.

Elected by a landslide in 1959, Lee has beaten back opposition from the extreme left — occasionally jailing top pro-Communist politicians —while pushing a moderately Socialist program aimed at stabilizing Singapore.

This time, Lee says, the threat comes from the far right.

* * * *

HE BLAMES Malay "extremists" for the recent savage racial clashes between Malays and Chinese, and warns this may be just the beginning.

Unless "we read the danger signals and put our house in order," the premier states, "Malaysia may never be the same again."

Those close to the premier's thinking paint an even more gloomy picture: An "ungovernable" Singapore . . . and the breakup of Malaysia.

Lee has accused ultra-nationalist Malays in Kuala Lumpur, the federal capital, of outdoing hostile Indonesia in efforts to "set Malaysian against Malaysian on the basis of race."

Without naming names, Lee has made it plain he means some of the leading figures in the United Malay National Organization (UMNO). This is the key faction in Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman's ruling Alliance Party.

* * * *

UMNO OFFICIALS have charged Lee's government with discriminating against Singapore's Malay minority. Only days before the rioting erupted, they formed an "action committee" which they said was designed to safeguard Malay interests here.

A showdown on the race issue between Lee and Rahman seems likely.

The premier has served notice he would like to see Rahman muzzle ultranationalists in UMNO, as a starter.

The next step, Lee says, should be to "start integrating positively and consciously."

Lee's statements, coming on top of the racial riots, point up the divisive factors at work in 10-months-old Malaysia, with its population of 4.2 million Chinese, 4 million Malays and a mixture of Indians, Pakistanis and Eurasians.

* * * *

THE CHINESE complain they are being forced into the role of second-class citizens by special guarantees and privileges for Malays in government, education and business.

Lee and his supporters insist free competition should be the guiding spirit in Malaysia.

The Malays, on the other hand, are obviously fearful of eventual domination by the hard-driving, ambitious Chinese, symbolized by 40-year-old Lee and his militant People's Action Party.

In Singapore Chinese outnumber Malays 5-1 and control the island state's government and entrepot trade. Many Malays claim to see the handwriting on the wall.

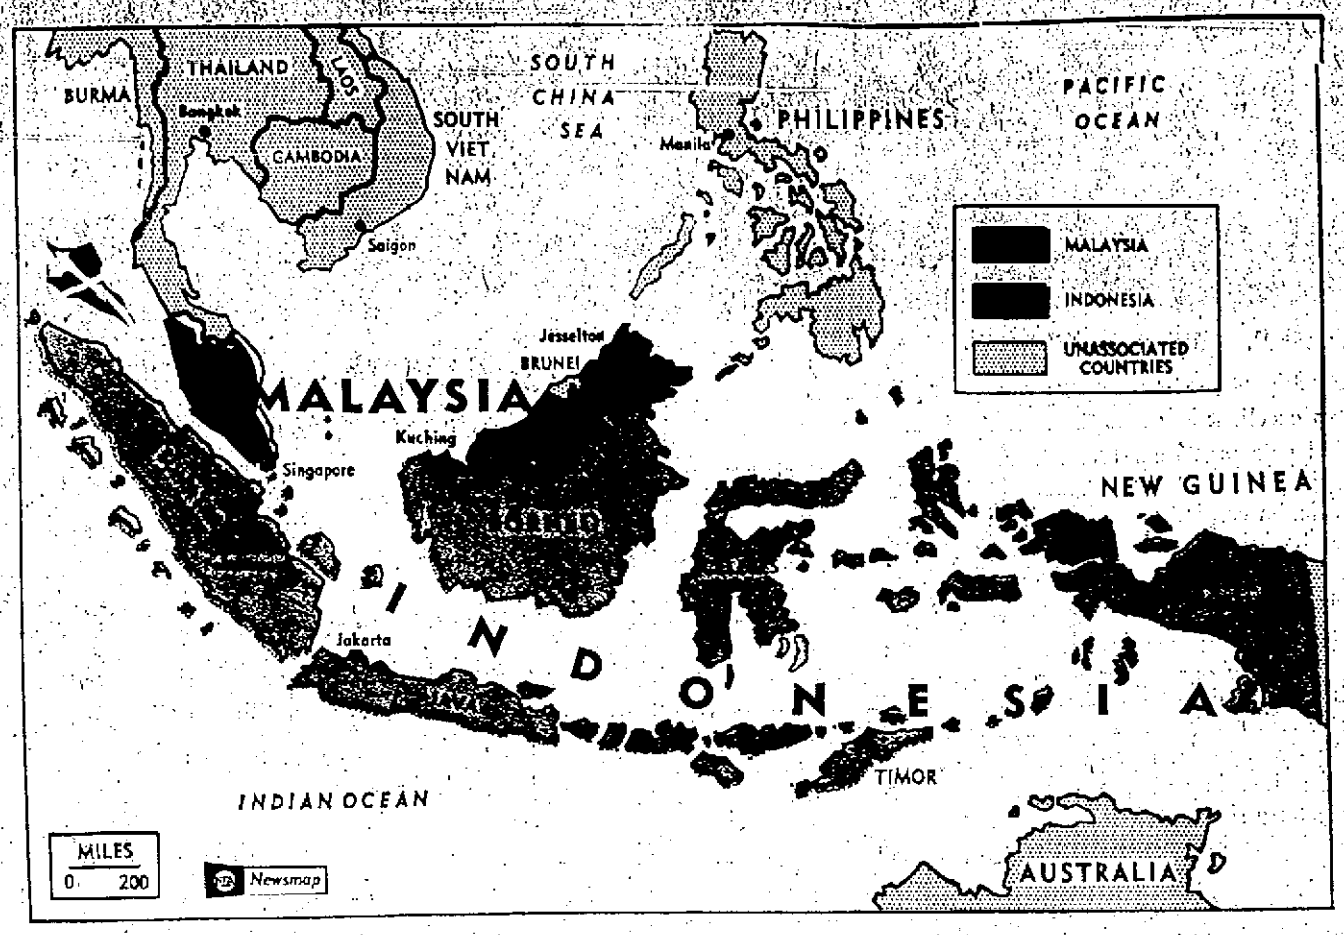

Lee is a brilliant, Cambridge-educated lawyer who combined a touch of intellectual arrogance with a sure feel of the masses. He and his party have political plans that stretch into the Malayan heartland of Malaysia.

* * * *

WITH SINGAPORE'S stability again thrown in doubt by the racial outburst, Lee could be facing an uphill struggle.

Powerful Malay circles in Kuala Lumpur have begun calling for a change in Singapore's government. But political analysts here point out that Lee, with continued support of his people, holds a trump card which Malaysia's leaders cannot ignore.

If he goes, Singapore may go with him — and Malaysia, too.

MALAYSIA WITH its 10 million citizens—a baby among nations, born Sept. 16, 1963—faces the peril of war with sprawling Indonesia, population nearly 100 million. Made up of the former British territories of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and North Borneo, Malaysia is viewed by Indonesia's President Sukarno as an attempt by the British to perpetuate their Southeast Asia interests. Further clouding the situation, rioting engaged in by Malayans and Chinese in Singapore added racial disharmony to the woes of the new nation. This map pinpoints the area involved with Singapore as the commercial center of the young country.

U.S. Trying to Utilize Atom in Desalinization

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Interior Department and the Atomic Energy Commission will join in a study to speed up research on the use of nuclear energy in water desalting processes, according to Interior Secretary Stewart Udall.

Udall's statement was in a letter, released today, to Budget Director Kermit Gordon, who was ordered recently by President Johnson to begin an expanded program in desalting research.

"To date our country had had little or no experience in coupling dual-purpose desalting and generating facilities to either conventional or nuclear power sources," Udall said, adding that the Soviet Union "may be moving more quickly than the United States" in this field.

* * * *

UDALL SAID the joint task force will be expected to recommend whether or not it will be advisable to construct a pilot nuclear desalting plant before attempting any large-scale desalting projects by already established means.

Before a final report is delivered Sept. 11, Udall said, the task force also will look into developing techniques for converting sea water economically for small markets and "for improving the quality of brackish water for inland uses."

LIFELESS ZONE IN MID-PACIFIC

Scripps to Explore Sea Desert

By LOU JOBST
Marine Editor

LA JOLLA — Scientists set out Saturday to explore a vast desert wasteland they have found in the midst of the teeming Pacific Ocean.

The lifeless zone, called a faunal boundary, is a puzzle to oceanographers who say it begins in a sea that teems with myriad forms of marine life as if one were to suddenly step from a South American rain forest into the middle of the Mojave Desert.

The Scripps Institution of Oceanography study of this desert sea will take at least three months and will include an attempt to fix the boundaries of the lifeless zone. The scientific task force, code name Ursa Major, is being headed by John A. McGowan, 40, a researcher in the field of marine invertebrates and a man very familiar with the Pacific.

* * * *

THE 90-DAY STUDY will be made aboard the 180-foot research ship, Alexander Agassiz, and will be made in three legs. The first will take the ship west into the Pacific to a point above the Hawaiian Islands and then north to Kodiak Island, arriving there Aug. 18; the second will retrace the northward journey of the first leg southward to Hawaii, putting into Honolulu Sept. 2. The third leg will be a direct trip to San Diego.

The expedition will cross the sub-Arctic Convergence and the North Pacific Drift, two well-known ocean current systems.

During the trip the Agassiz will tow biological sample nets and take water samples every 20 to 80 miles. Data will be submitted to computers at the close of the expedition.

The expedition was named Ursa Major which is Latin for Great Bear, the northern constellation the Agassiz will use for navigational sightings and position fixes.

The faunal boundary, a major feature of the biology of the Pacific, has never before been studied in detail.

* * * *

AT THE SAME TIME, Scripps has announced plans to build a new base for its fleet of seven research ships.

The new home base will be located on a six-acre site the institution leases from the Navy on nearby Point Loma. Construction, which will include the dredging of a deep-water berthing area, will begin in a few weeks and will be completed by next spring.

The facility will include six buildings and a 300-foot floating dock.

At present Scripps' ships are docked at the Navy Electronic Laboratory and in San Diego Bay. Support facilities are located as much as 10 miles from the present docking areas.

Big 3 Automakers to Offer Proposals to Union Aug. 11

DETROIT (UPI) — The automotive Big Three plan to place economic offers on the bargaining table on or about Aug. 12 in new contract talks with the United Auto Workers of America, a reliable source said Saturday.

The source said that the automakers planned to make their economic offer "10 days earlier than in 1961."

In the 1961 round of negotiations, the Big Three economic packages were put on the bargaining table Aug. 22. The contract finally was signed with General Motors Sept. 6.

* * * *

NEGOTIATIONS to hammer out a new three-year contract for more than 500,000 workers at GM, Ford and Chrysler have slowed down as each side waited for the other to make the next move.

"They control the timing," Douglas Fraser, director of the UAW's Chrysler department, said. "We have to wait for them to make their offer before we can grab the ball and run with it."

Fraser, and other UAW executives said they expected the companies' economic offers to come about two weeks before the Aug. 31 termination date.

Leonard Woodcock, UAW GM department director, said that he "hopes they don't wait as long as Aug. 22, as they did three years ago. "That's just not enough time," Woodcock hinted.

Ken Bannon, head of the union's Ford department, echoed the sentiments of Fraser and Woodcock. Bannon said there was not enough time to settle both national and plant-level problems during the 1961 round of negotiations and as a result, Ford was hit by a nationwide strike.

* * * *

WOODCOCK said that negotiations were in a traditionally slack period and it was not surprising that little progress had been made.

He said that during last week's talks he noticed "slight movement by the company" but not enough to indicate any real progress.

Manton M. Cummins, Ford's chief negotiator, said, "we're in the hard process of collective bargaining. We're about the same place we were last time."

"You have to sit down and discuss the demands to see what they really want and get some realism into the proposals," Cummins said. He added that it was hard to determine at this stage what the union's main objective was.

"Apparently they are serious about early retirement, but now everything is of top priority," Cummins said.

10-DAY PAGEANT OPENS WEDNESDAY

L.B. Readies Big Welcome for 24 World Beauties

By BOB SANDERS

The first big contingent — 24 strong — of 1964 International Beauty Pageant lovelies will arrive here Wednesday to herald the official opening of the 10-day pageant.

The main body of bodies, including four United States states' girls, are scheduled to arrive at Los Angeles International Airport aboard United Flight No. 15 from New York at 8:30 p.m.

Immediately after their arrival they will be hurried into waiting cars, driven by volunteers from the Long Beach firemen's union, Fire Fighters' Local 372, for the trip to Long Beach.

* * * *

THEY ARE expected to arrive at their IBC home-away-from-home at the Lafayette Hotel about 9:30 when a gala, movie-premiere type of welcome has been planned.

While giant searchlights fan the night sky, Mayor Edwin W. Wade, pageant officials, the inevitable press representative and other civic dignitaries will extend official greetings to the latest load of beauty.

Marvin Marker's Long Beach Concent Band, in full dress uniforms, will play a special concert for the arriving beauties.

The foreign contestants include: Misses Greece (Maria Schinaraki), Israel (Daphne Chisholm), Luxembourg (Jeanny Hubert), Spain (Lucia Pilar Herrera), Holland (Renske van de Berg), Belgium (Elaine Stockman), Wales (Pamela Martin), Scotland (Dorothy Smallman), France (Brigitte Pradel), Sweden (Birgitta Alverjung), Norway (Inger Sande), Finland (Maila Ostring), Iceland (Elisabeth Ottosdottir), South Africa (Lorraine Mason), Denmark (Alice Andersen), Austria (Erika Augustin), and Germany (Monika Brugger).

Contestants from England, Liberia and Turkey, as well as New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts are expected to arrive on the same flight but IBC officials here do not have their names yet.

With the exception of six contestants scheduled to arrive later in the evening, the 24 girls will complete the roster of IBC beauties for this year's contest. According to the latest count by IBC officials there will be 45 foreign beauties and 35 United States lovelies in this year's extravaganza.

* * * *

FIRST event of the contest will be the beauty parade Sunday at 1 p.m. from Alamitos Avenue to Ocean Boulevard.

First performance of the new show will be held with the preliminaries of the Miss American Beauty Pageant Monday night.

A different version of the show will be presented each of the succeeding competition nights, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday. No performance is scheduled for Thursday in order that the nationwide NBC live television show, scheduled for Friday, may be rehearsed.

The pageant closes Saturday night with the coronation ball for the new International Beauty queen.

GIRL-WATHCING is a pastime for most American males, but for Steven Papich (seated at left), director of the forthcoming Miss International Beauty Contest it's all in a day's work. The 38-year-old choreographer, who has danced or worked in 100 movies, prefers to work with larger numbers of dancers because "working with a few scares me."

IT MIGHT SCARE WALTER MITTY, BUT—

When Papich Yells, 55 Girls Jump

By MARY NEISWENDER

He's the only guy in the world who can shout "jump" —and 55 dolls jump.

It's a dream for a husband—a paradise for a bachelor —and almost unbelievable for either.

But for Steven Papich, 38-year-old actor, dancer, choreographer and director of the International Beauty Congress pageant, it's all in a day's work.

* * * *

And for him, the more dolls that jump the happier he is.

"It'd scare the hell out of me to have to work with only a few dancers."

Son of an Illinois coal miner, Papich, however, is scared of little else.

He is the only practicing Roman Catholic to be inducted into the voodoo cult.

It was on a visit to Haiti and in order to do the Haitians a favor and "return the Haitian soil to their African homeland, I had to become one of their priests."

Only reason they asked him, says the dark-haired dancer, is that "they found out I was going to Africa right from Haiti."

* * * *

"Chickens were slaughtered, a goat was sacrificed—it was the whole bit," he says.

Papich, who entered show business after a three-year tour of duty with the U.S. Navy, began dancing in the Katherine Dunham School along with the then unknowns, Eartha Kitt and Marlon Brando. He toured the world with the troupe until a 1953 call from Hollywood.

"I started by dancing in 'Stars and Stripes Forever'—the life story of Sousa," he says, "and from that, for the next six years I danced or worked in 100 movies and choreographed 17 pictures."

His movies included "The Robe," "Seven Year Itch," "The Egyptian" and "The Silver Chalice."

* * * *

HE SWITCHED jobs—but not cities—when he moved from the movie lots to Hollywood Bowl.

He had been the Bowl's choreographer for five years when IBC Producer Wayne Dailard, then producing the spectacular "California Story" tapped him.

Born of Yugoslav parents—who still live in St. David, Ill.—Papich since his meteoric rise in show business has traveled the world around several times.

* * * *

I'VE BEEN to the fabled city of Timbuctoo . . .

"I've had dinner in Paris with Gen. De Gaulle . . .

"I've been an honorce at the Arabic Feast of Ramadan . . .

"I've traveled hundreds of thousands of miles around the world, and though it may sound corny—there's no place like home."

To him, home is the stage, the fanfare and the dolls.

6 Bodies Recovered in Crash

Divers Saturday afternoon recovered the bodies of six men who perished in the crash of a private plane in the ocean off Los Angeles International Airport.

Two bodies were found outside the sunken plane which spun into the ocean after taking off shortly after midnight. Divers from the Los Angeles County's underwater recovery team found the wreck in 159 feet of water.

The victims were identified as M. P. Moeser, Chula Vista, the pilot; John Lauc, Los Angeles, general manager of Oceanic Sales Corp.; Carl Merry Jr., Los Angeles; Siegfriedo Ruiz, Whittier; Joe W. Cranic, San Diego, vice president of Ocean Garden Products, owner of the plane; and Jack B. Schmidt, San Diego.

* * * *

THE PLANE, a Cessna 310, was on a flight to San Diego's Lindbergh Field, where it is based.

The divers hooked a salvage line from the craft to a Navy minesweeper which, spokesmen said, was not powerful enough to pull it to the surface. Coast Guard officials said they will send a rescue ship to the scene today to bring the plane into Terminal Island.

Federal Aviation Agency investigators will inspect the wreckage to determine the cause of the crash.

Grecian Beauty Crowned Miss Universe in Miami

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—An exotic brown-haired beauty from Athens, Greece, Kiriaki Tsopei, won the Miss Universe beauty crown Saturday night.

She nosed out the British entry, Brenda Blackler of London, who was named first runner-up and placed in position to assume the title if the Greek winner is unable to carry out her responsibilities.

Ronit Rinat, a dark blonde with blue-gray eyes from Israel, was third. Siv Marta Aberg of Sweden, the tallest girl in the finals at 5-10, was fourth. Lana Yi Yu of the Republic of China was fifth.

A Miami Beach convention hall crowd of 6,800 watched the 15 finalists parade in evening dresses and bathing suits past the judges and up and down red cloth-covered ramps reaching out into the audience.

For Miss Tsopei, the march before a national television audience led to the triumph of a lifetime and a dream-world reign as queen of international beauties.

KIRIAKI TSOPEI
Dream Comes True

Probably, for some others, it led to professional contracts as models or actresses. For the rest of the finalists, and the 85 others eliminated in earlier round, it terminated in disappointment and heartbreak.

Miss Tsopei accepted the Miss Universe crown from the retiring queen, Ieda Maria Vargas of Brazil. She also received a $7,500 cash award, a $10,000 personal appearance contract and a rich wardrobe.

The Grecian lovely has the imposing measurements of 36-22-36, in spite of the fact that she eats potatoes three times a day. She explained that "You don't get fat on Greek potatoes." She is a model by occupation.

Jeanne Venables, California entry in the Miss USA contest, decided earlier this week, was voted "Miss Amity" by other girls in the Miss Universe pageant. Her award was for friendship, personal popularity and international understanding.

At the start of Saturday night's competition, winding up a grueling two weeks of preparation and rehearsal, entries from the United States and four South American nations—Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Venezuela — were eliminated.

This left 10 girls. Those losing out in the final judging were Maria Amelia Ramirez of Argentina, Sirpa Wallenius of Finland, Edith Noel of France, Emanuela Stramana of Italy and Jorunn Nystedt of Norway.

Horseshoeing Class Is Overcrowded

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Do students at the University of Nevada know something that the auto industry doesn't?

The university announced it scheduled a second class in horseshoeing Aug. 3-7 because the first one this summer was filled to capacity.

Penguin Thefts Laid to Millionaire Set

CHESSINGTON, England (UPI) — Zoo director Harry Snazzle said some eccentric millionaire may have masterminded the theft of four penguins.

"We chased a young man in a black track suit near the penguins' quarters some weeks ago," Snazzle said. "There are plenty of rich people with biggish gardens with ponds who might think it nice to have some."

State GOP in Harmony on Platform

By JIM McCAULEY
I.-P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO — The Republican State Convention bid for harmony Saturday night by adopting a watered-down civil rights plank.

In an echo of San Francisco, the state GOP conclave faced its toughest scrap over the wording of the platform on civil rights. But in a day of growing GOP togetherness, rival party factions embraced a compromise.

Solution to the hassle came by throwing out the language from the 1962 platform which had come out for support of laws for compulsory integration.

* * * *

THE PLATFORM committee recommended a 1964-model platform which stressed voluntary rather than compulsory desegregation. Proposed language for the new platform said:

"It encourages individuals to eliminate segregated housing practices."

The GOP move toward harmony began several days ago.

At that time, State Senate Minority Leader John F. McCarthy had vowed to introduce a broad plank that would have been offensive to realtors and others who say property rights are periled by modern civil rights legislation.

McCarthy originally wanted the plank to say: "The party goes on record supporting all existing federal, state and local statutes controlling discrimination in places of accomodation, employment and housing."

* * * *

BUT GOP leaders skirted a showdown on a tough civil rights plank when the platform committee ruled that no plank could be accepted which related directly to a ballot proposition such as the Rumford Act repealer.

McCarthy softened his plank after a number of Rumford Act foes bristled.

And in a subcommittee hearing, it was obvious that the overflow gallery opposed a tough civil rights plank. Anti-civil rights speeches drew thunderous applause.

McCarthy and others who battled for a tougher civil rights approach drew only silence from the gallery.

* * * *

LONG BEACH Realtor Reg F. Dupuy, 44th Assembly District nominee, helped scuttle McCarthy's plan for a strong civil rights plank.

"There is nothing wrong with people wanting to live by themselves as they prefer to do in Chinatown. There's been no compulsory segregation for years. And there should be no compulsory integration," said Dupuy.

The voluntary civil rights plank also "reaffirmed Republican dedication to the elimination in California of discrimination based on race, creed, national origin or sex."

The platform committee, urging "that the protection of our freedom requires that the budget be balanced, waste in government be eliminated and taxes be reduced, also recommended adoption of these planks:

Finance—Opposed withholding tax, deplored "six years ox extravagance, lashed reliance on bond financing and urged less of a drain on property taxpayers.

Law enforcement—Accused Democrats of "chronic overprotection of criminal elements, saying it "seriously has handicapped the ability of law-enforcement officials to protect the public."

Internal security—Insisted that subversives be denied use of public buildings.

Welfare—Deplored recent expansion of welfare programs. Pledged efforts to institute more local control and declared that financially able persons have a moral responsibility to contribute to support of family members.

Agriculture—Opposed end to importation of Mexican laborers.

Government organization—Opposed reapportionment of the Senate, calling it an "insidious" court decision. Also called for purity of elections, reform in California's state inheritance-tax-appraiser system and retention of voters' constitutional literacy requirements.

Republican leaders generally beat down any proposals that varied radically from the tenor of recent platforms.

Goldwater Evades Press Corps

informed the police that they could not confiscate Johnson's film "unless he is a newsman."

In all the checks and questions, the detectives never asked that one question: "Are you a newsman?"

For a "tip," a club employe revealed that "the word is" that Goldwater would stay in his room until today.

* * * *

"I KNOW he plans a boat trip and some swimming," the employe said. "But I don't know much else . . . and don't tell anybody I told you."

Meanwhile, other newsmen cooled their heels a mile away at the Newporter Inn while Goldwater aide Nellor explained, "He just wants to be alone, I guess."

"Is he running for the presidency or from it?" an embittered newsman asked Nellor.

"Right now he's just vacationing," the aide explained.

THE ONLY statement from Goldwater during the day came through Nellor in reply to a comment from former President Harry Truman that "the damn fool" nominated by the GOP had put foreign policy into the political campaign.

Nellor quoted Goldwater as replying:

"In 1948 the Democrats nominated a damn fool at their convention and he turned out to be a pretty good President."

ON INDONESIAN SQUARE RIGGER

A Taste of the Dying Art of True Seamanship

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief, I-PT Washington Bureau

ABOARD THE INDONESIAN SQUARE-RIGGER "DEWA RUTJI"—The wind shifts and heads us. The bosun's pipe sounds and the Indonesian midshipmen clamber up the ratlines with agility and confidence.

They perch themselves precariously on the yard-arms and start to manhandle the sails. The heavy canvas doesn't come easily. The boys brace their feet against the rope which hangs from the yard and arch their brown bodies across the wooden beam as they struggle to furl the writhing sail.

RIDDER

The sun is setting to starboard as we move on engine southward down Chesapeake Bay. The ship and its crew are a long way from home. Several months ago the "Dewa Rutji" left its home port of Surabaya, Indonesia, to participate in Operation Sail, that gathering of square-rigged ships from all over the world which was a part of the New York World's Fair program. From Sweden and Denmark and Chile and Portugal and Indonesia and other countries they had come to make what was probably the last great assemblage of square-rigged sailing ships ever to be seen on this globe. They don't build them like that anymore and in this age of space who wants a sailing ship anyway?

* * * *

SO IN JULY when the parade of ships had ended, they dispersed and started the long voyage home. The "Dewa Rutji," a barkentine, sailed from New York to Annapolis and its crew spent a couple of days in this nation's capital. Most of the crew are midshipmen in the Indonesian Naval Academy and an alert, attractive group they are. They visited Washington, saw the sights, laughed and played and, like sailors from time immemorial focussed their attention upon pretty girls.

But the time of play had ended and the ship had started the first leg of its voyage back to Indonesia. It was sailing from Annapolis to Norfolk and this reporter had been invited to sail along. It seemed like a good way to forget for a few hours the Republicans and the Democrats and the hurly-burly of American politics and thus it turned out. The east and west shores of the Chesapeake were always in view, but the every-day world seemed far, far away as the three-masted vessel made her way southward.

Until the wind had headed us, it was old-fashioned marlinspike seamanship. The boys had grunted in unison as eight of ten of them hauled on the halyards to raise the sails; they had chanted something as they tugged the sheets to trim the sails; they climbed and shinnied up the lines with eye-popping speed and sureness.

On a square-rigger, it's team-play all the way. The ropes and lines are too heavy for one man to handle; the sails too cumbersome and too strong for a single individual. They climb up there 100 or 120 feet above the deck, eight or nine of them on a yard, and fight the canvas in. It is slow, pain-staking, and exhausting work. They cling desperately to the spar as it takes them an hour or so to get the top gallant snugly furled; they scurry down the ratlines to the mainsail and takes another hour before they have it subdued. The broken tip of the foremast, a casualty of an Indian Ocean storm, shows silently though eloquently that sailing on the vessel isn't always like gliding down the Chesapeake Bay.

* * * *

THE TWO BOYS at the helm keep their eyes fixed on the compasses. The upsweep of the deck prevents them from seeing ahead and they take their instructions from the navigator in the charthouse or from the officer on the midship conning tower or from the look-out posted high in the crow's nest.

A fore-and-aft sail gets caught as they try to lower it. A cheerful young midshipman takes a bosun's chair, lowers himself from the top of the mainmast and with the help of a marlinspike frees the canvas.

The inexpert observer has several thrills as the boy carries out this job, but the lad seems unperturbed.

"It is seamanship" of the highest order. The sails are furled and the motor is reluctantly turned on. The schedule calls for this ship to arrive at Norfolk at a certain time and in these busy modern days, a schedule must be kept. So the barkentine turns itself into a powerboat and moves slowly down the bay, but the passenger thinks back on that brief sail and is glad that in the latter half of the 20th Century he has had an opportunity to experience first-hand the joy of sailing on that almost defunct species of boat—the square-rigger.

15 Venezuelan Mayors Arriving

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mayors of 15 Venezuelan cities will fly here from New Orleans today for a month of study at the University of Southern California school of public administration.

The civic leaders will study the major problems they face in their own cities—housing, sanitation, city planning, land use, finance and budgeting.

The program is jointly sponsored by the Agency for International Development of the U. S. State Department and the Creole Petroleum Corp., of Caracas, Venezuela.

DALLAS (UPI) — Barber David Schrock refuses to give businessmen a crew cut to provide relief from summer heat unless the customers bring a note of permission from their wives.

Astronaut Cooper, Flying Housewife Win Air Trophies

NEW YORK (UPI)—Astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper Saturday became the first U.S. spaceman named to receive the Harmon International Aviation Trophy for his manned 22-orbit space flight last year.

He was joined by Santa Monica, Calif., housewife Betty Miller in receiving the 1964 Harmon awards. Mrs. Miller was honored for her solo flight from Oakland, Calif., to Sidney, Australia. Both the Cooper flight and Mrs. Miller's trip occurred in May, 1963.

Air Force Maj. Fitzhugh L. Fulton Jr., a leading test pilot, was named for the 1963 Harmon Trophy. On a Strategic Air Command (SAC) mission on Sept. 14, 1962, he piloted a B58 Hustler bomber "beyond its designed performance and set two world altitude and pay load records previously held by the Soviet Union," the awards committee said.

No aviatrix award for 1963 was issued.

The Harmon Trophy winners for 1963 were held up because of the assassination of President Kennedy.

President Johnson will present the winners with the trophies at White House ceremonies on Sept. 16.

The Harmon trophies have been issued since 1926 to persons named the outstanding aviator, aviatrix and aeronaut—a pilot of a lighter-than-air craft.

No aeronaut winner was declared for 1964. The 1963 Harmon Trophy recipient is Mrs. Nina Boesman, a balloonist of The Hague, The Netherlands. On Aug. 24, 1962, she took off in a free balloon from Murren, Switzerland, and crossed the high Alps directly above the famed Eiger Peak 13,036 feet above sea level to Gorduno, Switzerland.

L.B. Red Cross Bank to Collect Blood for Boy's Heart Surgery

The Long Beach Red Cross blood bank will collect 20 pints of blood Monday afternoon for direct use in heart surgery Tuesday morning on a 3-year-old boy at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital in Los Angeles.

This marks the first local collection of blood for direct use in a heart machine," announced Ike Sukman, chairman of Long Beach Red Cross Chapter.

"Decentralization of recruitment and collection of blood for open heart surgery from the Regional Blood Center of Los Angeles-Orange counties at 1130 S. Vermont Ave., the largest blood bank in the world, will be introduced with Monday's collection," he stated.

* * * *

RECRUITMENT of donors for the new Long Beach open-heart surgery blood program was introduced last week. Under direction of Mrs. Katherine Ziller, supervisor of blood recruitment from the Regional Center, a team of selected youths from the Long Beach Red Cross Student Council telephoned from a file of 5,000 former local blood donors. Mrs. Mary DeLone, vice chairman of Long Beach Red Cross Volunteer Services, was appointed as chairman of the new recruitment program for heart surgery donors, which will function weekly.

The 20 pints of blood to be donated Monday will be delivered that evening to the hospital, where technicians will prepare it for early Tuesday surgery. This blood must be drawn the night before surgery for use in a machine which acts as lung and heart for the patient while the surgeons may work in safety for as long as four hours.

"A record of 15,019 pints of blood for 937 open-heart surgeries was drawn at the Regional Center last year," said Sukman. "Long Beach Red Cross was selected as an assistant permanent center to make possible the enlargement of this phase of the expanding blood program."

German VTO Plane Passes Sound Barrier

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — West Germany's revolutionary vertical takeoff plane passed the speed of sound in a test flight, its developers reported Friday.

The two-jet VJ101 achieves its vertical raise by tilting its jets downward and then goes into forward flight by swinging them up to a horizontal position. It is being developed by the West German aviation firms of Boelkow, Heinkel and Messerschmitt.

476-lb. Shark Caught; British Record Set

FALMOUTH, England (UPI) —The Shark Angling Club of Great Britain confirmed that William Rogers, 23, set a British record by landing a 476-pounder on the first shark fishing trip of his life.

French Fire Rocket from Iceland Base

PARIS (AP) — A French Dragon rocket was successfully fired to an altitude of 275 miles Saturday from a base in Iceland, the National Center of Space Research announced.

Officials said the rocket, fired in cooperation with Icelandic scientists, carried instruments to measure the direction of travel of particles from the Van Allen radiation belt. The flight lasted 11 minutes.

Renewal Agency to Get Help

The Long Beach Apartment House Association will work with the city's Redevelopment Agency to help arrange a referral system to relocate families and persons when the West Long Beach redevelopment project is implemented in the near future.

President Arnold B. Berg of the apartment group said Friday in a letter to Director James H. Brubaker of the Redevelopment Agency that directors of the association had voted cooperation.

"The association is interested in this program of civic importance and will cooperate in an effort to help establish a referral system to relocate families and persons will will be affected," Berg said.

* * * *

"OUR association, in response to your invitation, will be pleased to have designated officials meet with you at a mutually convenient time and place to discuss the matter in more detail."

Brubaker, in a letter to Berg, had pointed out that the "execution" phase of the West Long Beach project will be started within the next few weeks.

Part of this phase will be the relocation of residents in the West Long Beach area as property is acquired for the project.

The director said the agency is hoping to assist residents in finding suitable living quarters within their means.

Registering Scheduled at LBCC

Pre-registration for fall semester day classes will continue throughout the month of August at the Long Beach City College Business and Technology campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., and the Liberal Arts campus, 4901 E. Carson St.

New students planning to enroll for seven or more units must file a formal application, residence statement and transcripts of high school and any college work in addition to taking the matriculation tests before registration.

* * * *

COLLEGE ABILITY tests for the new day students at both campuses are scheduled in the Liberal Arts campus library on Aug. 5 (1-5 p.m.), Aug. 11 (6-10 p.m.), Aug. 17 (8 a.m. to noon) and from 6-10 p.m. on Aug. 20, 24 and 27. Appointments to take the tests must be made in advance at the Carson Street campus counseling office.

According to Dr. Albert S. Derian, dean of admissions and guidance services at City College, "Many fall semester classes are already filled. New students are urged to complete all pre-enrollment procedures as soon as possible." Application forms are available in the admission office on either campus.

Advance registration for evening classes begins Sept. 1, and the fall semester opens Sept. 14.

Russia Asks Ceylon to Refuel Its Planes

COLOMBO, Ceylon (UPI) — The Soviet Union has asked Ceylon to refuel Russian planes flown to Indonesia under a military aid pact.

A reliable source said Ceylon, which has commonwealth links with Indonesia's bitter foe, the Federation of Malaysia, may refuse on grounds that this would violate its neutral policy. Ceylon used these grounds to refuse to let ships of the U. S. 7th Fleet enter its waters.

President Johnson made official last week what most political experts long had guessed. He will not tap Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, brother of the late President, as his choice for vice president in the Nov. 3 election.

Nor will he choose any other member of his cabinet or subcabinet confidantes such as United Nations Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson.

The President spelled this out Thursday in a public declaration, saying merely that he considered it "inadvisable" to recommend any member of his official family to the Aug. 24 Democratic National Convention.

* * * *

WHEN political pundits leaped upon this as a strictly stop-Kennedy maneuver, White House officials rushed into the breach. They said the President had ruled out Kennedy and other cabinet members because he did not want to break up what he regards as an efficient team. Johnson himself wanted it known that his bombshell dictum was not a lack of confidence in Kennedy or others eliminated from the vice presidential "eligibles," but rather a confirmation of confidence.

There has been powerful back-stage maneuvering to put the young head of the Kennedy clan on the presidential ticket—a drive that had been expected to boom uproariously at the convention.

White House sources said speculation had reached the point where the President felt it was neither fair nor honest to let it continue. Observers pointed out, however, that Johnson is a political realist.

* * * *

THEY SAID he knows that Kennedy is highly unpopular in the South for his pro-civil rights activities; that Southern Democratic leaders had made it clear that the chief executive could have hard sailing against GOP nominee Barry Goldwater if Kennedy were on the Democratic ticket.

Johnson's action, which now becomes official convention policy, sharply narrowed the field of vice presidential prospects. Immediately given top billing were Minnesota's two senators, Hubert H. Humphrey, a Protestant, and Eugene McCarthy, a Catholic.

Kennedy issued a statement pledging Johnson his support and calling on his own followers and those of his late brother to do likewise.

* * * *

BOTH THE Republican and Democratic hierarchies began clearing the decks for the election campaign which may—or may not—include head-to-head television debate between Goldwater and Johnson.

Goldwater organized his strategy team. He also announced a party "summit" meeting at Hershey, Pa., Aug. 12, to try and heal deep party wounds inflicted before and during the Republican National Convention. Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, who was his most outspoken rival, will be host.

But party harmony may continue to elude Goldwater. Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, self-styled moderate who broke with the Arizonan's conservative principles, said he was "holding in abeyance" a final decision whether to support Goldwater, but that in any event he would not compromise his own principles. Scott is among a moderate Senate bloc finding it hard to buy Goldwater's political philosophy.

With Johnson's benediction, the Democrats chose Sen. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island, one of their ace orators, to keynote their convention. Speaker John W. McCormack, Mass., will be permanent chairman.

* * * *

THE PRESIDENT shunted aside for the present a Goldwater offer to debate him on campaign issues over a nationwide television hookup. White House Press Secretary George Reedy said the matter would not be considered until the campaign formally begins. Reedy tossed back at Goldwater prior statements by the senator that he regarded it as "dangerous" for a President to subject himself to public debate.

Preliminary word on the Democratic platform was that, unlike the Republican platform, it would denounce political extremism, whether of the right or left, and may mention by name the John Birch Society, the Ku Klux Klan, and the Communist Party.

GOP vice presidential candidate William E. Miller said meanwhile that the Goldwater ticket would not reject support from any quarter so long as Goldwater's principles were not compromised.

* * * *

PLATFORM hearings will be held in Washington Aug. 17, 18, and 19 to avoid interference with efforts of Democratic leaders to wind up the 88th Congress before the convention.

In other news spheres, the United States vaulted ahead of Russia in space exploration. Ranger 7 "space eye," rocketed from Cape Kennedy, took thousands of close-up television pictures of the light side of the moon as it scored a bulls eye landing on the lunar body.

Described as "a magnificent achievement" by the President, the historic triumph gave American scientists photographic information they must know befor attempting to land Apollo astronauts on the moon.

* * * *

THE SUCCESS came after years of frustrating failure. Russia took the only other pictures of the moon from 37,000 miles away with Lunik 3 in 1959. Ranger 7 carried six TV cameras which transmitted more than 4,000 pictures across a quarter of a million miles—the last only two-tenths of a second before impact.

In New York City, Negro leaders of the nation's big four civil rights groups held a summit meeting and urged American Negroes to forego further racial rights demonstrations until after the election. The implication was that the white back-lash would swing votes to Goldwater though the leaders had praise for both Republicans and Democrats who supported the Civil Rights Bill.

They accused the GOP nominee of injecting racism into the campaign and appealed to all Negroes to work for his defeat. A joint statement read by Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of NAACP, said "the senator himself maintains that civil rights matters should be left to the states—clear enough language for any Negro American."

A second statement strongly denounced recent rioting and looting by Negroes in Harlem, Brooklyn and Rochester and rejected the support of "extremist groups such as Communists." But other Negro leaders served notice they would not abide by any such moratorium.

Goldwater headquarters had no immediate reaction. The senator flew to the West Coast for a rest.

President Johnson said he agreed with those who advocate "registration in lieu of demonstration." He appealed to all citizens to give the civil rights law as well as local ordinances against disorder or individual brutality a chance to work.

The political mood continued to be reflected in Congress. The House overwhelmingly passed a bill to increase Social Security benefits to 20 million oldsters. Omitted was Johnson's plan for medical care for the aged.

The Senate unanimously passed and returned to the House a $46.8 billion defense appropriation after overriding Republican charges that the administration was holding down military spending in a play for election votes.

The President praised the nuclear test-ban treaty with Russia. He declared that if the year-old pact ended tomorrow, the United States would be "safer and stronger than ever before."

EXECUTIVE JOB SEARCH

In today's dynamic economy, many executives in the $10,000 to $50,000 per year salary range are currently evaluating their present position in relation to outside growth opportunities. Some will decide to take the plunge ... resign ... and actively jump into the job market. Some will decide to "wait and see" ... hope a promotion comes along ... and stay on in their present employment. Others will discreetly (and confidentially) explore possibilities ... make a decision ... and take advantage of the opportunities available.

As professional Executive Career Managers, we specialize in the latter. Taking the plunge can adversely effect one's bargaining power ... and to "wait and see" may take years. The initiation of positive and aggressive steps is indicated. Individuals interested in increased responsibilities, growth potential, and higher pay will investigate our services ... and will progress accordingly! For years, executives from coast-to-coast have followed these positive and productive concepts and have secured job offers (or promotions) to correlate our services to your needs, call for a preliminary interview ranging from $10,000 to $100,000 per year.

An appointment will be set in complete confidence and without cost or obligation. Not an employment agency or resume writing house ... more than an executive search firm ... we are an unusual organization, unique in the field and dedicated to the merchandising of qualified and motivated individuals. No resumes, please—we sell people, not paper!

Costs Climb 400 Percent in Hospitals

CHICAGO (UPI)—The cost of caring for the average patient increased more than four times since World War II, the American Hospital Association reported Saturday.

In 1946, the AHA said, it cost a hospital $9.39 per day to care for the average patient. Last year the figure was $38.91, the AHA found in a survey reported in its 1964 guide issue of "Hospitals."

The AHA said labor costs in hospitals have increased 545% since World War II. In 1946, the AHA said, the average hospital needed 148 employes to care for every 100 patients. Last year the average ratio was 241 employes to 100 patients.

The average cost to the patient of a week-long hospital stay was $85 in 1946 and $298 last year.

Hospital Funds OKd by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed and sent to the White House Saturday an administration "must" bill authorizing $1,362,500,000 for an expanded five-year program of federal aid for hospital construction and rehabilitation.

The bulk of the money authorized would be in the form of grants, the remainder in loans.

The bill authorizes total federal outlays totaling $252.5 million in the current 1965 fiscal year which started July 1, compared to $220 million for the previous year. It also authorized $265 million for fiscal 1966, $275 million for fiscal 1967 and $285 million in each of fiscal 1968 and 1969.

* * * *

FOR THE FIRST time, the program makes specific provision for use of some of the money for renovation and modernization of hospitals and other health facilities.

The Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee in a report commending the bill gave this explanation of its terms:

It authorizes $680 million over the five years for hospital-health center construction, $160 million for modernization - rehabilitation, but would permit transfer of $530 million of the construction funds to the rehabilitation-modernization program if needed.

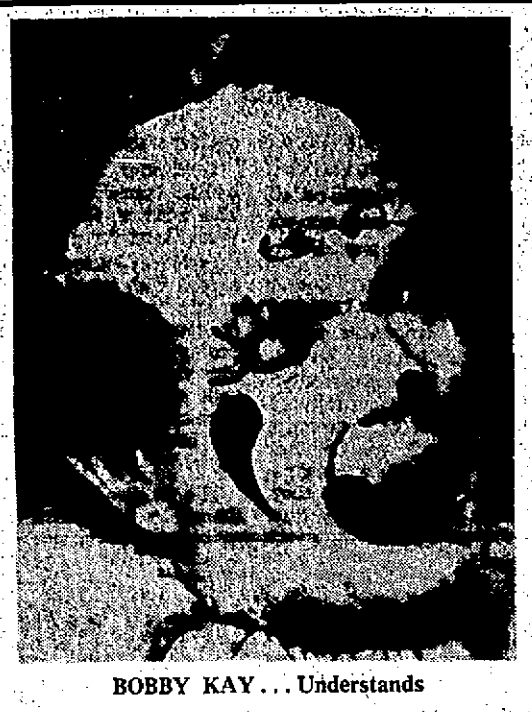

Alternatively, it would allow $70 million of the rehabilitation funds to be switched to new construction.

It also authorizes:

—$50 million for construction of nursing homes and chronic disease hospitals; $100 million for construction of diagnostic or treatment centers; and $50 million for construction of rehabilitation facilities, over the five years of the program.

—$2.5 million the first year and $5 million for each of the next four years of grants for area-wide facility planning, and permits states to use 2% of their allotments up to $50,000 a year to improve and strengthen state administration of construction programs. There provisions would require 50-50 matching of the federal funds by the states.

The program, originally launched in 1946, is known as the Hill-Burton Act. The bill expanding and extending it won voice vote approval, without dissent, from the handful of senators present.

BOBBY KAY . . . Understands

Blind 'See' Show as Clown Helps

By WILLIAM JONES

Laughter is in the heart of children, not their eyes.

And so for the past five years, the hearts of blind children have feasted on the fun of circus clown Bobby Kay.

"They all want to try on my size-14 shoes," Bobby laughs, "and touch my red-tipped nose."

The 56-year-old clown, who will appear in the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus when it opens for a four-day run Aug. 6 in the Long Beach Arena, said his interest in the blind goes back to his youth.

"I was about 6 or 7 back home in Pennsylvania and our neighbor was a blind man," Bobby recalled. "My brothers and I would take him to the movies and I would describe to him what was going on."

He learned then "not to pity, but understand the blind."

Five years ago, Bobby's interest led to the invitation of 15 blind children to the circus. Last year, the number swelled to 300 as guests of the "Greatest Show on Earth."

"I walk among them, sometimes using a hand megaphone, describing the scene before them. When I describe a man up in the air, their little heads go up.

"The blind can feel the color I describe. Yellow's bright, blue and green are cool and red is hot."

In between time, Bobby works as technical adviser or actor in motion pictures.

He has appeared in the films "Greatest Show on Earth," "The Big Circus," and the "Flying Fontaines."

In the water throwing scene of "Jumbo," Bobby doubled for Doris Day and it was he who had the dubious honor of receiving—full on—the bucket of water thrown by Martha Raye.

In his 40 years with the circus, Bobby said that "without being corny, my greatest reward has been to see the good quality in people.

"If you have some talent and you give of it, you get back the benefits. If you try to make somebody else's day better, it rubs off on you!"

INTERRUPTED BY APPLAUSE

Production of 'HMS Pinafore' Wins Audience's Enthusiasm

By RACHEL MORTON

It has been said that appreciation for the operettas of Gilbert and Sullivan requires a cultivated taste as so much of the humor is typically English. But when Henri Scanlon and Gilbert and Sullivan "get together" one needs no prior education.

The performance of "HMS Pinafore" in Long Beach City College auditorium Friday night won the audience from the rise of the curtain to its final fall. Spontaneous applause broke in upon the action frequently and folks came away whistling the well-known tunes. That is success.

* * * *

SCANLON is a genius at stage production, but still greater is his uncanny good judgment in selecting singers for the cast. Himself a singer of repute, he spent his early years touring the country as a "lead" in Gilbert and Sullivan productions. This accounts largely for the magnificent performance, which will be repeated Aug. 7 and 8. I came away with the feeling that there should be a repertory theater in Long Beach for Gilbert and Sullivan productions, with Scanlon at the head—giving perhaps four performances yearly.

One of the most glorious voices hereabouts is that of Lyn Carole, who sang the part of Josephine. Her voice soared in thrilling high tones—round, rich and powerful. It caressed the ear in sheer vocal beauty throughout its extensive range. She is an actress of great charm and whether in comedy or in the love scenes she made the part live.

* * * *

WHO COULD imagine a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta without Arthur Carah? His very entrance as Sir Joseph Porter was mirth-provoking. His subtle characterizations are right out of the D'oyly Carte traditions. His impersonation was by way of suggestion rather than heavy dramatics and that is the highest art. He was enthusiastically applauded.

The great surprise of the evening was Larry Laraway as Ralph Rackstraw. Heretofore he has been heard in nondescript roles which have hindered rather than helped him. But on Friday night he displayed a tenor voice of great beauty—full of a warm tenderness. His ringing high A-flats were brilliant. In looks and in acting he was persuasive and ingratiating.

* * * *

SILVIO BARTO gave a splendid performance as Captain Corcoran. His baritone voice was heard to splendid advantage in the solo, "Fair Moon to Thee I Sing." He, too, entered into the spirit of the comedy with sly humor and his comic scenes with Buttercup were choice.

A real comedienne was Ruth Anne Lorenzen as little Buttercup. She looked and acted the part to perfection. Another beautiful voice was that of Charles Raitch Jr. as Dick Deadeye. Its ringing bass quality shone in the number, "I've Important Information."

The audience roared with laughter when he blew his nose loudly in the midst of the stealthy, tiptoeing scene. He combined comedy and villainy admirably.

Millicent Treadwell was a very beautiful Cousin Hebe and Jo Pat Williams as the Boatswain commanded attention as a vivid and personable actor.

* * * *

THE MUSICAL direction was under the watchful eye of Robert Carlson. Charles A. Ruetschi at the piano was an orchestra in himself. He gave invaluable support to the singers as well as life to the music. He had a big share in the success of the operetta. There was also an organ accompaniment played by J. DeWitt Schwab.

Weather Blocks Air Search for Pair in Mexico

DUARTE, Calif. (UPI)—Bad weather over the central and southern sections of Baja California, Mexico, Saturday curtailed virtually all flying activities in the search for two missing Southern California teen-agers.

A spokesman for the Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Team, which has been coordinating the search for Steven Bunch, 17, Canoga Park, and Dean Slaght, 19, Santa Susana, said the tentative plans were to call back searching planes unless new leads were discovered today.

The pair left Canoga Park June 2 in a pickup truck for the 850-mile trip along the rugged Baja California peninsula La Paz, near the southern tip, collecting cactis. Although they did not return as scheduled on July 5 they were seen with their truck as late as July 14.

VISITS L.B. VA HOSPITAL

Woman Surgeon Is Paraplegic

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

Dr. Mary Verghese of Vellore, India, is a surgeon who operates from a wheelchair.

A paraplegic since 1954 as a result of an automobile accident, Dr. Verghese, 39, specializes in surgery of the hands and feet of leprosy victims.

Now she has broadened her interests to include the care of persons like herself: spinal-cord injury victims.

* * * *

SHE HAS JUST concluded a 10-day visit to Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, where she observed American treatment techniques at the spinal-cord injury service.

Dr. Roy H. Nyquist, chief of the service's physical medicine and rehabilitation section, says Dr. Verghese begins her prayers with the words, "Take my hands."

"She asks that God will direct her hands in her work," Dr. Nyquist said.

The words, "Take My Hands," are also the title of Dr. Verghese's biography, published last year.

Dr. Verghese came to the United States earlier this year to take oral examinations in Detroit for board certification in the medical specialty of physical medicine and rehabilitation. She took her written examination for specialization in 1962 at Chicago's VA Research Hospital.

Currently she is head of the new department of physical medicine and rehabilitation at Christian Medical College and Hospital, Vellore, Ind. The city is about 80 miles east of the seaport of Madras.

* * * *

"DR. VERGHESE has undergone several formidable operations since her accident," Dr. Nyquist says. "She well knows what the spinal-cord patient goes through."

She attended the Royal Perth Hospital, Perth, Australia, in 1957 for both treatment and training in spinal-cord treatment and rehabilitation. Two years later she was both patient and physician-in-training at Dr. Howard Rusk's Institute of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation in New York City.

Dr. Verghese, before returning to Vellore, will visit Warm Springs, Ga., Canada, England and France.

FORBIDDEN TO HITCHHIKE

Southland Teens Bike 3,000 Miles to Fair

Two Southland teen-agers are resting this weekend after a 3,000-mile bicycle ride they took because their parents didn't want them to hitchhike.

Peter Philpott, 18, of 1020 Orr and Day Road, Santa Fe Springs, and Rick Grimm, 17, of 11402 Crossdale, Norwalk, arrived in Wolcott, Conn., Friday after a 31-day trip to see the New York World's Fair.

Grimm said he took the trip because he wanted to see Michelangelo's Pieta, on exhibit at the fair.

The boys had planned to hitchhike, but their parents wouldn't let them. So they bought bicycles.

Cyprus Airport Sabotage Story Found in Error

NICOSIA, Cypress (AP)—U.N. Cyprus headquarters said Saturday night its claim that a Cyprus airfield had been sabotaged was mistaken.

What happened was that a Famagusta airport contractor had driven iron spikes into the runway in connection with resurfacing work and forgotten to inform the U.N., a spokesman said.

The spikes were discovered by a British army pilot as he was about to land early Saturday in a U.N. mail plane. He landed at another strip.

A report was made to the U.N. heaquarters here and a spokesman immediately dubbed the incident "sabotage," adding that a serious accident might have resulted.

Hard of Hearing!

It is now possible for many who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss.

So many have told us, we have tried everything and we are so discouraged that we hesitate to try anything else. Many who have tried this new and proven method are overjoyed. Just like magic in certain cases, they are able to hear without their hearing aid after the very first treatment.

The treatment is simple and painless, and takes about 45 minutes. If the hearing loss is due to a nerve condition, a special treatment is given. If the loss is due to catarrh a different treatment is given.

If you have a hearing loss no matter how slight or how bad, it may be helped. Why not find out?

We are one of the busiest offices in Southern California, so if we cannot help you, be assured that we will not take your case.

The total charge is $3.00 for the first treatment and the examination. And if you see no improvement from the first treatment, you are under no obligation to return. Assure your appointment by calling GA 6-6166 or GA 6-6167, 2067 Atlantic Ave., L.B. Dr. H. L. Hutchings, D.C., director.

5-ALARM FIRE IN PAINT PLANT
Detroit firemen fight a five-alarm fire which followed an explosion at the Ditzler Color Division of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. The plant was gutted, with damage estimated upwards of $1 million. Nobody was injured seriously, though several persons were cut by flying glass.

Spectacular Blast, Fire Gut Detroit Glass Plant Building

DETROIT (AP) — An explosion and fire ripped through a paint factory in northwest Detroit Saturday, causing damage estimated at more than $1 million and spreading broken glass over a 20-block area.

Fire Chief Glenn Thom, who made the damage estimate, said all of the six or seven men working in the Detzler Color Division of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. building escaped without injury. Several persons were reported cut by flying glass.

Thom said the blast apparently occurred in a mixing room, where "there is always a great potential for explosions." A small fire was reported continuing in the basement of the building. Firemen sprayed foam on the burning linseed oil and resin.

Earlier, a five-alarm fire sent a column of smoke towering hundreds of feet in the air and attracted thousands of spectators. The explosion was heard for miles, and glass was reported shattered great distances from the plant.

One woman, Mrs. Alzaie Hardy of Detroit, was reported cut by flying glass more than a mile from the scene.

One building in the paint company complex was severely damaged, as the blast tore huge chunks from the concrete, brick and steel structure and hurled them many feet. Other buildings in the area were reported damaged —with broken windows and scorched and twisted ventilators.

A nearby resident, Jerry Richman, said the explosion knocked down his wife and two children in their home, and knocked his dog off the porch.

Two lab assistants, Arne Lehto, 54, and Vince Gordon, 36, both of Detroit, said they were almost knocked from their feet by the explosion, which occurred about 200 yards from where they were working.

Lehto said they "pulled the fire alarm and ran for our lives. As we left the building, glass, paint drums, bricks and everything was flying. We're lucky to be alive."

5 Planes Join Reeves Search

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Five aircraft and a 500-man search party combed the rugged Tennessee hills Saturday for a missing plane believed piloted by country music star "Gentleman Jim" Reeves, a former member of the tragedy-plagued "Grand Ole Opry."

Reeves and his piano accompanist, Dean Manuel, were believed traveling from Batesville, Ark., at Nashville when their plane disappeared from radar screens during a thunderstorm.

The area where the plane vanished is situated south of Nashville and is known as "Old Baldy." It is dotted with sharp hill peaks, and woods are so thick in places that it is almost impassable on foot.

Reeves cut many hit records, including "He'll Have To Go," and "Four Walls," both of which sold over a million copies.

Another French Mine Survivor

CHAMPAGNOLE, France, Sunday (UPI)—Scratching sounds from a new section of the collapsed Mount Rival Chalk Mine electrified rescuers late Saturday and they immediately began drilling toward what they hoped was another survivor.

Fourteen men were imprisoned 223 feet underground six days ago in a vast cave-in. Nine of them have reported through microphones that they are alive, and tapping sounds have been heard from another section where two more men are believed trapped.

National Assembly Deputy Jacques Duhamel said the scratches were distinctly different from the tappings. Rescuers began drilling horizontally toward the location while two vertical probes began from above the mine.

The rescue contingent was saddened by the death Saturday of a worker who was struck by a rubber-metal coupling which fell 30 feet.

He died en route to a hospital.

6 Navajo Flood Victims Found

CHINLE, Ariz. (AP)—Six bodies were recovered and workers were searching Saturday for three other persons reported missing after a flash flood in this northeast Arizona community on the Navajo reservation.

Paul Krause, bureau of Indian affairs sub-agency superintendent, said the dead were in a car that dropped off a bridge, which had been torn apart by a 20-foot wall of water that roared down normally dry Nazlini Wash Thursday night during a storm.

He said four of the dead were members of the Peter Bitsui family—Jerry, 12, Lydia, 14, Delphine, 15 and Zelma, 16 or 17. Bitsui was missing. A fifth body was identified as that of William Bizardi, 21. The sixth victim, a man, had not been identified. All were Navajos, Krause said.

Saigon Bomb Wounds 5 Yanks

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Five U.S. servicemen and 15 Vietnamese were wounded, some of them seriously, when a terrorist's heavy bomb blasted a Saigon bar to rubble Saturday night.

One of the Americans and three of the Vietnamese were critically wounded.

Viet Reds in Bold Raid

VINH LOC, Viet Nam (AP)—A battalion of Communist Viet Cong guerrillas attacked this village only four miles west of Saigon Saturday, in a daring assault which followed several days of distributing leaflets warning they would strike.

Casualties were light and the Viet Cong abandoned the fight at daybreak. But the attack was significant because of its proximity to the capital. A Viet Cong battalion usually numbers about 500.

Harlem Speaker Attacks Whites

NEW YORK (AP)—A crowd of 400 persons at a Black Nationalist rally in the heart of Harlem cheered Saturday night when a speaker said "We have to stop white people from exploiting black people."

Some two dozen policemen stood by to prevent any outbreak of violence like that which shook the area two weeks ago. The Negro ghetto has been calm for more than a week.

Girl Lost 16 Hours Uninjured

KINGS CANYON NATIONAL PARK (UPI) — Eight-year-old Cindy Howe, who said she became lost while chasing a deer, was found alive and well Saturday after an intensive 16-hour search by an 80-man team.

"I'm feeling fine," she told her mother by radio telephone following her rescue. She was scratched but otherwise unharmed.

Cindy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Howe of Granada Hills, was found in rugged Redwood Canyon at 7:45 a.m. by John Etlanakai, one of 50 sailors from Lemoore Naval Air Station who joined the seach.

* * * *

SHE TOLD rescuers she saw a deer while she and her 10-year-old brother, Stephen, were on a short hike Friday and decided to catch it. She soon lost her way and began wandering about the rough, near-wilderness area in search of the rest of her family.

At dusk, she fell asleep, apparently about two miles west of where she became lost. The temperature in the area, at an elevation of 7,200 feet, fell to 45 degrees during the night and Cindy, who was wearing a light summer dress, said she was cold.

At dawn, she began wandering again and gradually worked her way downhill to where Etlanakai found her.

BRASS HATS HAVE BEEN MEETING 18 YEARS

Military Committee at U.N. Does Nothing

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Military Staff Committee, a unique group in the United Nations, held its 500th meeting the other day.

The committee has met every two weeks for 18 years, but has not even considered any matter of substance since 1947. The meetings are all secret.

This group is the only body in the world where generals and admirals of the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and Nationalist China sit down together at regular intervals.

It is the only military organ specifically provided for in the U.N. Chapter, but it has never had any part in directing the U.N. military operations, including those in Korea, the Middle East, the Congo and Cyprus.

Despite the fact that it does nothing, there has never been a proposal from any of its five members or from United Nations officials that the sessions be dropped.

The committee was set up in 1946 in accordance with Article 46 of the charter, which called for a creation of such a group to establish an international military force and to assist the Security Council in military matters.

The charter specifies that the committee be made up of the chiefs of staff of the five big powers or their representatives. The chiefs of staffs have never actually served on the committee, but it has had numerous big-name admirals and generals as members. These include such U.S. figures as Air Force Gen. George C. Kenney and Army Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

At present, Britain is the only one of the five powers which has no military representative attached permanently to its U.N. delegation.

85,000 Flee Pakistan to India in Month

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — More than 85,000 refugees from East Pakistan were counted crossing into India during July as one of history's great migrations continued unchecked.

A government spokesman said today the July inflow brought to 591,900 the number of East Pakistani refugees known to have entered the northeast Indian states of West Bengal, Assam and Tripura since the beginning of the year.

CARE Will Provide India Children Meals

NEW YORK (UPI)—CARE has announced the signing of an agreement to provide a meal a day to the 200,000 school children of Calcutta, the scene of food riots for the past two weeks.

The program will start in September, as soon as shipments of surplus United States wheat can reach India.

It will bring to 7 million the number of Indian children receiving food at school from CARE. This represents 15 per cent of India's elementary school population.

PRETENDED TO BE HELPING KING ALBERT

Germans Carried Belgium's Colors in 1914 Invasion

By FRED CHEVAL

GEMMERICH, Belgium (AP) — It was a fresh sunny morning on Aug. 4, 1914 when a company of German cavalry trotted through this border village in the green foothills of the Ardennes Mountains.

The first campaign of World War I had opened.

The Uhlans, despite their spiked German helmets, were flying Belgium's black, yellow and gold from their steel-headed, 12-foot lances.

Said the war manual of the German General Staff:

"The wearing of enemy uniforms and the use of enemy or neutral flags or insignia with the aim of deception are declared permissible."

Antoine Reynders is 75 now and still lives in Gemmenich. He remembers what the Uhlans looked like, and the strong smell of new leather from their belts and straps and saddles.

* * * * *

"WE WERE not expecting them," he recalls, "but we didn't believe them either when they handed out tracts saying King Albert of Belgium had asked their help to fight the French."

Nor had the king who just 25 hours earlier had turned down a German ultimatum, taken command of the Belgian army and ordered the bridges over the Meuse River to be blown up.

The following evening, Britain sent Germany an ultimatum of its own: Get out of Belgium or we fight. Theobald von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German chancellor, was angry with the British ambassador who delivered it. He accused Britain of going to war "all for just a word—'neutrality'—just for a scrap of paper."

The scrap of paper—a description that echoed around the world — was Belgium's peace treaty with Holland, signed 75 years before and guaranteed by all the great European powers, Prussia as well as Britain.

"Belgium is an independent state, perpetually neutral," the treaty said.

* * * * *

BRITAIN was bound to defend this neutrality and it did, though it was not pure indignation that drove Britain to fight. A successful campaign by the Germans would have put them in possession of the Belgian and French ports on the English Channel, an hour's steaming from the British coast.

Germany had been building up its navy to challenge Britain's. German command of the channel ports would have laid Britain wide open to invasion.

Bad German behavior in Belgium, diligently publized and often exaggerated by propagandists, added every day to the strong feeling aroused by the invasion.

The German troops had a neurotic fear of snipers. They also resented Belgian military resistance as a kind of affront, feeling that the Belgians should not have interfered with passage through their country to attack France.

Antoine Reynders remembers the "Death Head Hussars" — their insignia was a skull and crossbones —who came to Gemmenich two days after the war started.

* * * * *

"THEY KNEW the troops before them had met with strong resistance at Liege," he remembers "Gentleness and charm were gone."

During the first month of the war at least 5,200 Belgain civilians were executed and more than 25,000 buildings destroyed mostly by fire.

What brought world indignation to a climax was the destruction of Louvain, a university town, where German anger turned against bricks, books and art treasures.

The Germans razed Louvain, including the library of which nothing was left but ashes. They killed 218 people, including 20 women and 11 children.

The world reaction was one of horror, and the Germans felt moved to reply. The emperor explained that what his army had done in Belgium was the "result of the criminal and barbarous action of the Belgians." A group of world-renowned Germans issued a denial that German troops had brutally destroyed Louvain. They were not believed.

* * * * *

LESS THAN a week after the destruction of Louvain, the British, French and Russian governments signed a pact barring a separate peace. Belgium had clarified the issues.

King Albert carefully conserved his limited resources of men. He refused to have them join the Allied offensives and sent them forward only in the final, victorious drive of 1918. Belgium lost about 40,000 men in the war, but its percentage of loss was low compared to the major belligerents.

When it ended, Belgium was awarded 382 square miles of territory that had been held by Germany—the cantons of Eupen, Malmedy and Moresnet, not far from Gemmenich.

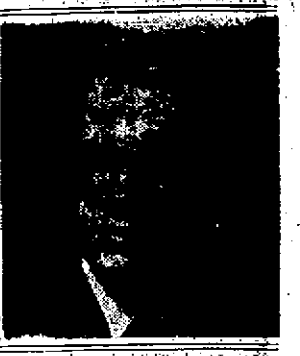

Alan Bails Himself Out of Nightmares

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Alan Golan is looking forward to sleeping better, without nocturnal phone calls for the first time in months.

He went to court as Allan Z. Goldberg and obtained permission to change his name.

A man called Allan Goldberg is a bail bondsman and is frequently called upon at odd hour to post bond for persons under arrest—but callers frequently mixed up the phone numbers.

L.A. to N.Y. Air Rights for Japan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Informed U.S. sources said the United States has offered Japan rights for its airline to fly from Los Angeles to New York on condition that U.S. carriers be permitted to fly from Tokyo to Osaka.

The U.S. offer, made during a two-hour conference Wednesday with Japanese negotiators, did not include the right for Japan Air Lines to fly beyond New York to Europe as requested, the sources said. This was somewhat disappointing to Japanese negotiators.

The Japanese embassy would not confirm the American offer.

Japan has sought revisions of the 1951 U.S.-Japan air treaty, which it contends has unequal provisions.

Japan presently has the right to fly to Honolulu, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle. Japan has not used the Seattle port of entry.

Brochures Offer L.B. Information

By GEORGE WEEKS

Newcomers who want to know something about Long Beach no longer will have to travel from office to office when they stop at City Hall for a few basic facts.

Just off the press is a folder-type brochure titled "Long Beach, California's International City—Its People and Government." It answers many of the questions most commonly asked, often by new residents, occasionally by visitors and frequently by elementary school pupils visiting the seat of city government.

Copies are ready for free distribution in the mayor's and city clerk's offices as long as the supply of 5,000 lasts. If necessary more will be printed, according to City Manager John R. Mansell.

TWO OF HIS AIDES, Harry Fulton and Leo Greene, assembled the information in the first handy publication of its kind issued by the city in many years.

For prospective voters in city elections, there is a map showing the boundaries of the nine councilmanic districts, with an insert identifying the councilman in each.

A section of historical background goes back to the early 16th century when, just 50 years after Columbus discovered America, Cabrillo and his crew of explorers anchored off the present site of Long Beach.

SOME LONG-TIME RESIDENTS, not to mention newcomers, may find out for the first time that Cabrillo named the area Bahia de los Fumos (Bay of the Smokes) from the happenstance that native Indians were burning grass and brush ashore in one of their rabbit drives.

Reinforcing the Long Beach claim to international character are the facts that its first great land owner was Manuel Nieto, holder of a vast grant dating to 1784, and its first real estate operator and subdivider was William Erwin Willmore, an Englishman who arrived in 1880.

If it's statistical data the public is seeking, some examples from the brochure are:

Beach Combing

With Malcolm Epley

IT'S A SORT of cartoon smorgasbord that our editorial artist, Dick Wallmeyer, produces for each Sunday's editorial page. (See today's B-2). Under the title, "The World's Week," Dick presents four or five cartoon commentaries on big events of the closed week—an exercise in brain toil and drawing board work which, you can be sure, consumes his every Friday.

I mention this because Wallmeyer's career as an editorial cartoonist began right here and is blossoming nicely, and I think our readers ought to know a little more about it. Wallmeyer cartoons from our editorial page are being reprinted around the country, and now and then in national publications, and if any of our readers are missing them, they should start taking a look.

FOR YEARS—all the years before Wallmeyer — we got virtually all of our cartoons through the syndicates. They were the work of top-flight men, but in the nature of things they followed by several days the news events to which they applied, and seldom if ever touched on regional or local subjects. And they seldom coincided in subject matter with editorial comment, produced here on a daily basis.

Then a couple of years ago we signed on Wallmeyer, who had studied graphic arts in Chicago, showed us some work that proved his skill, and was clerking in a store in the area pending the time he could get a post in the field of his choice.

So now we have, on virtually a daily basis, a staff-produced cartoon that is timely, often touches on the same subject as printed matter on the page, and can cover the field from world to local topics.

We still use Vaughn Shoemaker and other nationally syndicated cartoons a couple of times a week, and we think it all works out into nice balance for a feature which, the surveys show, is one of the chief attention-getters in a paper.

CARTOONING requires not only skillful pen work but an ability to produce ideas. Wallmeyer, I've noticed, spends about as much time reading and thinking as drawing, and we do considerable conferring on cartoon ideas, too.

Let's trace the history of Friday's cartoon (see cut) on the death of Sen. Engle, which drew a lot of praise.

In the morning I told Dick we were going to produce an editorial on Engle's sad case. It was a sombre subject for a cartoon, and that made it unusually difficult, with the customary humorous twist definitely out.

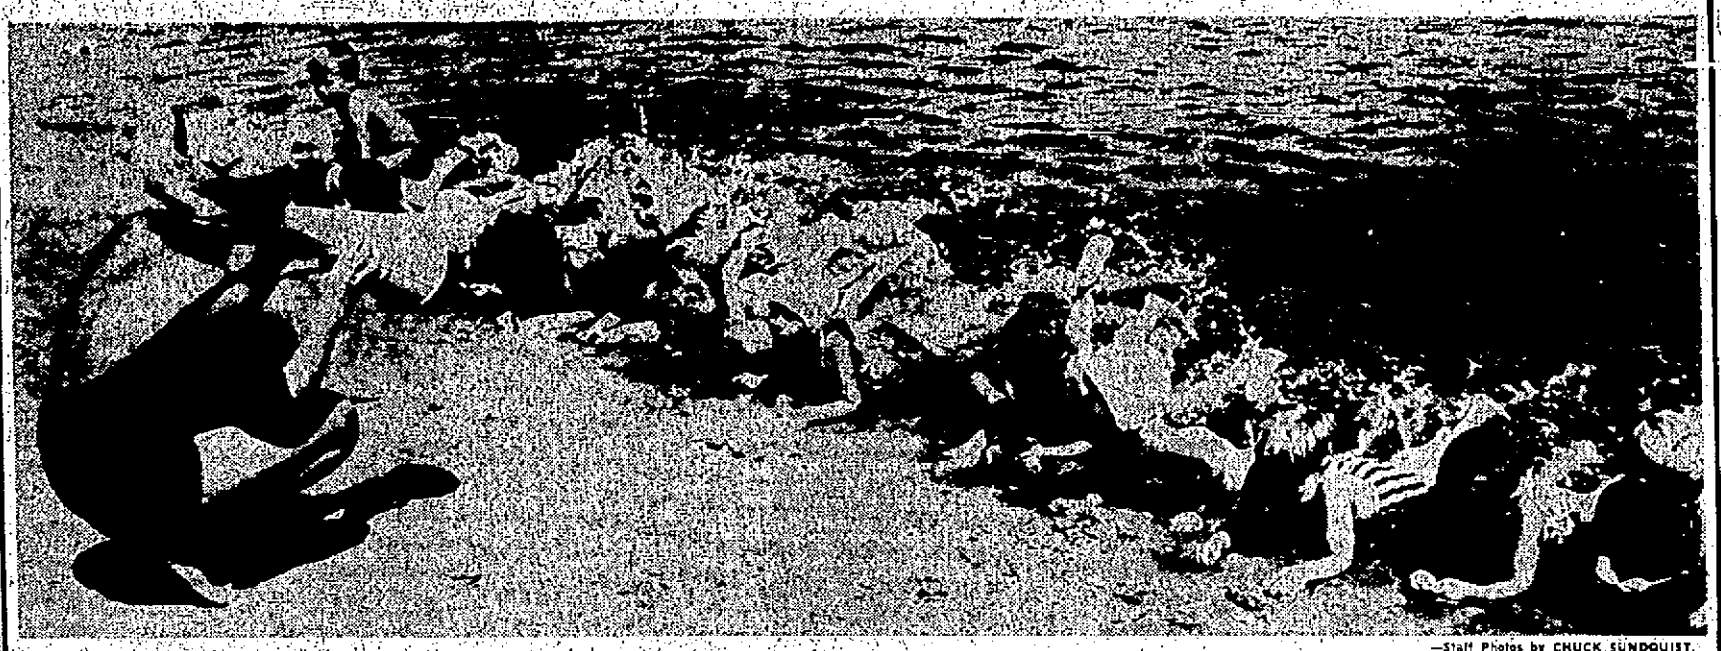

We tried to think of some trait of Engle's that would serve cartoon treatment. If he had been a cattleman, for instance, there could be the chaps hung up on the barn wall, or the empty saddle. Clair was a lawyer, and his legislative specialty was water, and neither suggested a suitable cartoon line.

THE idea of the book symbolizing 30 years of dedicated public service was thrown into the discussion and with that, Wallmeyer retired to his cubby hole and his drawing board.

It's his custom to bring a rough sketch on copy paper into the editorial sanctum before he starts a final draft.

On some days he may bring in several. After a while he came in with a penciled sketch combining the book and empty Senate chair ideas, all hands agreed that it met the objective, and Wallmeyer left us to produce his drawing while here we started on the editorial. Cartoon and editorial together presented a timely eulogy. Possible because we had a cartoonist right here to work with us.

Girl, 19, Can Teach Any Kid to Swim

TINY TOT SWIM CLASS AT COLORADO LAGOON . . . Gets Water-Splashing Leg Exercise

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Outdoor Editor

She's a gorgeous, blue-eyed blonde with cute dimples.

She fills a bathing suit so well that the beach-garment manufacturers should rush to cheer.

She's 5-5 and is 19 years old and is not engaged.

But she's going steady with 200 kids five days a week, and there isn't one of those 200 who doesn't love her.

Those kids, by the way, range in age from 2 to 13. Each one is a prospective candidate for a swimming certificate—some of the 4,000-plus that will be presented by the Long Beach Recreation Department at the end of this summer.

(Oh yes, the girl! She is Lauren McCulloch, as outdoorish as the ocean, the mountains, the streams and lakes. She is one of several swimming instructors hired by the Recreation Department each summer to instruct, free of charge, the youngsters of this sprawling city.)

★ ★ ★ ★

LAUREN, WHO HAS numerous trophies for her ability in the water and who won so many queen titles at Long Beach City College in the last two years that I hesitate to enumerate those here, is a most unusual girl.

She could be dating as often as she wished, but instead, she chooses to cast her lot with those who train boys and girls. In fact, that's going to be her immediate goal when she finishes three years of work at the University of Southern California.

She hopes to start teaching deaf children at the end of her USC term. Why? Because she has a nephew who was born deaf. She has gone with him often to a clinic and has become interested in helping such handicapped youngsters.

★ ★ ★ ★

LAUREN INSTRUCTS at the Colorado Lagoon under the supervision of Alban Reid, who himself, has a most interesting background. He has been chief instructor at the Lagoon for 16 years. He is vice principal of Miramonte Elementary School in Los Angeles, but chooses this type of work for his summers.

Others working under him at the Lagoon are Mike Smith and Chuck Morris.

Lauren is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. McCulloch of Lakewood. She rode the prize-winning Long Beach float in the 1964 New Year Day parade as a princess from Long Beach City College.

Appropriately enough, her mother, then Peggy Schuck, rode the first float ever entered by the City of San Marino in 1928.

She has an older sister, Lynne, now married, and a younger brother, Rick, who hopes to be on the Lakewood High School swimming team next fall. Lauren, always modest, takes no credit for teaching Rick how to swim.

★ ★ ★ ★

SHE STARTED swimming when she was 9 and in three years became interested in synchronized swimming, the art of water ballet. It was in that field that she won most of her trophies, all in the amateur field.

She teaches two classes daily at the Lagoon, 10 to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. There are the tiny tots class (2 to 5 in age), beginners (6 to 8), intermediate (7 to 10) and swimmers (10 to 13). If she'd just announce a class for male adults 20 through 50, there probably would be a stampede to the Lagoon.

The entire aquatic program is under the direction of Walter J. (Skip) Skibicki, who maintains an office at the Lagoon and whose enthusiasm for water sports rubs off on all who work with him.

Skip says that the aquatic program, which embraces swimming and sailing, started in 1929. Since that time, he estimates, 140,000 youngsters have learned how to swim there. In those 35 years 4 million persons have taken part in the aquatic program.

There is no charge for swimming instruction at any of the city's nine locations, but at school pools there is a 25-cent charge for use of the facility.

In addition to Colorado Lagoon, there are two locations in Alamitos Bay, Bay Shore, 14 54th Place, where Bob Cotter, Terry Gillis and Anita Hancock teach, and 59th Place, where Christine Steele teaches.

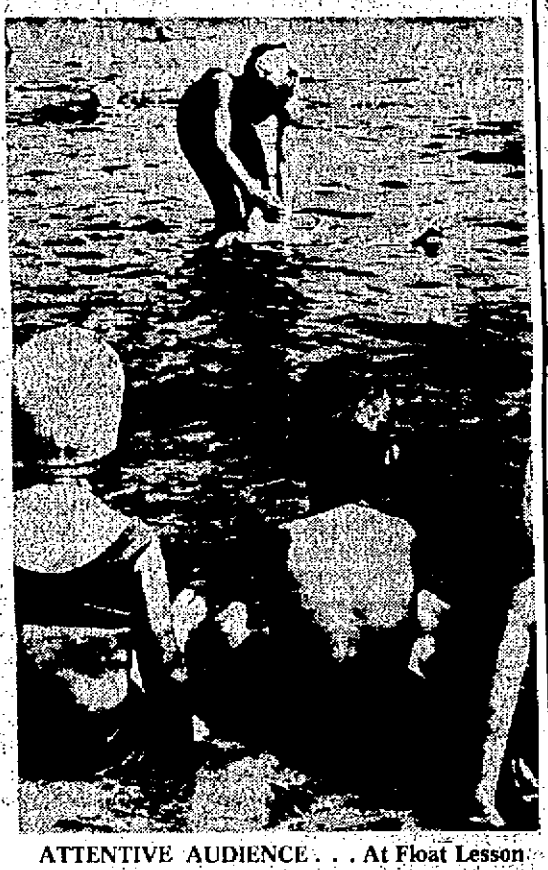

Other instruction points and their instructors are as follows:

City College pool, Bill Nicholson, Toni Glasco, Gay Van Wey and Christine Steels; Jordan High, Elaine Danaher, Ronald Harvey, Doug Taylor and

Indians May Get the Country Back

By KEN KNIGHT

Victor Roebuck, a full-blooded Choctaw Indian, does not think of himself as a symbol—but he is.

A high lineman, and a good one, Roebuck, of 13371 Golden West St., Westminster, represents the hopes of 65,000 Indians living in California, that the United States will keep a promise it made 76 years ago.

Roebuck also is a symbol of a fast approaching agrarian revolution that will rival anything that has occurred in Europe or South America, he says.

On Feb. 8, 1887, the U.S. Government set up the Indian Land Allotment Act permitting each Indian to claim up to 160 acres of vacant government land — but the Bureau of Land Management has never recognized the Indian's rights under the act, Roebuck says.

* * * *

TODAY, there are 770-million acres of government land —15 million in California— that can be claimed by Indians.

The Tribal Indian Land Rights Association (TILRA), intends to see that the government keeps its bargain.

Roebuck is president of the California chapter of the recently-organized TILRA which already is organized in Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and Oklahoma.

"The Bureau of Land Management has been ordered by the courts to take 'appropriate action' regarding the claims for land in Oklahoma" explains Amos A. Hopkins-Dukes, a Kiowa, executive secretary of TILRA and holder of Indian Land Claim No. 1.

With 15 million acres of land available in California and approximately 10,000 Indians in Orange County alone, it is inevitable many claims will be filed for the land.

Joseph R. Robedeaux, of 13061 Williamette St., Westminster, and his family of three have filed claims with the land office in Riverside for possession of one square mile of land, inside the Palm Springs city limits, which is used as a picnic ground.

There isn't any government-owned vacant land in Orange County, but there are 25,716 acres in Los Angeles County, seven million in San Bernardino county and 14-million acres in Riverside County. Only four of California's counties do not have land for which the Indians can file claims.

To file a claim, Indians must prove they are eligible, and their names must be carried on the records kept by the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Claimants must locate the property and properly identify it on the claims filed with the land offices located in either Sacramento or Riverside.

* * * *

EACH INDIAN man, woman or child, according to the act as interpreted by Hopkins-Dukes, is entitled to a choice of 160 acres of grazing land, 80 acres of farm land or 40 acres of land subject to irrigation.

"The act has been on the books a long time and was only recently uncovered. The government has certainly made no attempt to help the Indians out by letting them know about the act," Hopkins-Dukes said.

"Government officials say that 160 acres is not enough land to do any good, but a family can pool its claims and get enough land to work.

"The property may even be worthless, but to a man who has nothing now anything is something," Hopkins-Dukes continued.

"The Indian is not asking for civil rights. All he wants is his rights by law and what he has coming."

Civic Group Will Honor C. E. Wright

Charles E. Wright, Lakewood Village realtor and insurance man, will be honored by the Greater Lakewood Chamber of Commerce Monday noon at Hody's Restaurant.

He will be presented with a plaque by President Harold Posnaugh as one of the originators of the Lakewood Chamber. The presentation highlights a membership drive under way to increase chamber rolls by 100 business and professional firms.

Wright, 74, an early-day president of the chamber, moved to Lakewood Village in 1936. He started his career as a pharmacist in Minnesota.

Pets Released

A burglar who must have a soft spot for animals broke into King's Pet Shop, 1165 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., sometime early Saturday, turned loose all the animals in the shop and escaped with a Siamese cat.

New Jersey Picnic

The New Jersey-California Organization will hold a pot-luck dinner in the South Room at West Hollywood Park, 647 N. San Vicente Blvd., next Sunday at noon.

Downtown L.B. Thugs Assault Two, Rob Three

A gang of three youths pulled two strong-arm robberies near the Pike early Saturday morning, each time approaching the victim by first asking for a quarter, then assaulting him.

Max L. Livingston, 55, of 822 Magnolia Ave., told police the trio knocked him down then escaped with his wallet containing $120. Lucian W. Marlar, 57, of 1425 E. Ocean Blvd., said he was walking with his wife, Grace, when the thugs struck him and took his wallet and her purse.

Fair Action Outline

ON SCHEDULE for Tuesday's City Council meeting is consideration of City Manager John Mansell's report on proposals for city participation in the financing of the California World's Fair.

By accepting this report in principle the Council will be laying out guide lines for constructive action which, as we see it, is the only way to assure the success of the fair project—an objective we strongly approve.

In general, this action would follow two lines:

1. Strengthen the fair organization to win wider confidence in the Southern California business community. Specifically, this calls for placing a man of pre-eminent capability and reputation in the top executive post of the fair and bringing into the Executive Committee outstanding men of the regional business community.

2. As proof of this confidence, obtain assurance of substantial private financing for the fair construction program. This in turn can be the basis of partial financing by the city through guarantees or other methods.

Such a position by the council would put the next moves squarely up to the fair organization, where they belong. The city should not undertake any further commitments to the fair unless it can accomplish these reasonable objectives.

'Shooting' The Moon

TO MOST of us who can't take a snapshot of visiting relatives without chopping off their heads in the photo or blurring the image with an ill-timed twitch, the idea of taking close-up pictures of the moon's surface with cameras moving at 5,800 miles an hour is pretty dizzying.

But the people in America's lunar exploration program have done it. The Russians, with their Kilroy complex, may claim that they have been there first, but it's not a valid claim. True, they photographed the always-hidden backside of the moon, but the image was no better than that seen of the "bright side" of the moon through telescopes on earth. The picture was taken from 40,000 miles away.

But the cameras aboard Ranger 7 photographed an area of the moon as small as 60 square feet.

There are those who will say, "So what?" But the moon-probe program, long plagued by misfortune and failure, has taken a giant step with Ranger 7. Its mission was vital, because men will some day land on the surface the cameras photographed—and up to now, no one knew just what the surface looked like.

America has done what was possible only in comic strips a few short years ago, paving the way for the accomplishment of even more startling "impossibles."

Encouraging Signs

THERE ARE encouraging signs that the further unification of fund-raising drives in this community, coming this year under the heading of "United Crusade" is producing a most favorable impact on the generosity of contributors.

This is illustrated by an incident in the downtown area the other day, involving an old-time supporter of the previous general campaign to the extent of about $40 a year.

This man sought out one of the officials of the United Crusade and handed him a check for $500.

To the flabbergasted "crusader" he explained that his vastly increased gift was offered in appreciation of the move this year which combined the former United Way and the Red Cross campaigns.

He was one of those who have complained about "too many campaigns" and when something big was done in answer to that complaint, he felt it was his move. He, also, did something big.

United Crusaders are encountering other evidences of enthusiastic acceptance of the new idea. It is to be hoped that this public reaction will tend to encourage other fund campaign sponsors to come into the unified program next year.

While specialized phases of the United Crusade are getting underway now, the general campaign comes later in the year. But now is the time for all citizens to be planning for their participation. Financial planning now will make it easier to give more generously not only in support of many worthy agencies, but in support of a splendid idea.

All Kinds of Green

(Christian Science Monitor)

SO MANY GREENS to see or risk not seeing.

The dewy green of morning beyond the window sill; the demure, preening, tidy green of lawns.

And the now-you-see-it-now-you-don't green, swift as a dragonfly, of a boy's bicycle flashing past the weathered green gate; in insolent green of street corner dandelions near the bus stop; the chic green of city awnings; the hospitable, soothing, saving green of over-populated parks.

The green fingers (not thumbs) of pine and fir; the gold-dusted green of blossoming cedars; the shiny, dark green of holly hedges in bright sunlight; the soft green of lindens softer still with mists; the dark-red "green" of copper beeches and Norway maples; the blue-green of spruces.

The casual, unkempt, rebellious green of wild meadows; the gleaming green of parklands after rain; the tangy green of mint beside the kitchen door; pale, rococo-green of curly lettuce leaves in a cool pantry; the curious, important green of a clover leaf under a child's scrutiny.

The spearlike, yellowing green of rushes at water's edge; the flashing curving green of fish under the glass of a pool's surface; the gray-green of woody distances; the purple-black green of hillside forests at dusk.

So many greens to make a summer day. And to make our editorial point firm and clear: WE DO approve.

Race 'Truce' Worth Little to LBJ

WASHINGTON — Although the voluntary ban on demonstrations called for by the national leaders of Negro organizations at a conference in New York City on Wednesday is designed to help President Johnson by turning votes away from Senator Goldwater, it is doubtful whether the way chosen to achieve that objective will be as effective as it might have been if the political purpose and motive had not been emphasized.

LAWRENCE

The formal statement of the leaders of the Negro organizations called for "a broad curtailment, if not total moratorium, of all mass marches, mass picketing and mass demonstrations until after election day, next November 3."

Does this mean that the so-called "non-violent" demonstrations, which have so often resulted in violence, will be resumed immediately after election, no matter who wins? Will not "small-scale demonstrations," which some of the leaders said after their conference would be continued during the campaign period, furnish opportunities for the outbreak of violence? So long as there is a spectacular emphasis on race feelings, it may be questioned whether the emotions of the Negro communities will be quieted.

The threat to resume mass demonstrations after the election implies that only by such devices can progress be made even under Democratic administration and a Congress controlled by a Democratic majority of substantial proportions in both Houses. In fact, some Negro leaders have been quoted recently as saying, in effect, it was largely because of the tactics of intimidation exemplified by mass demonstrations that the new civil rights law was passed.

* * * *

THE STATEMENT issued by the Negro leaders and read by Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, said in part:

"In our view the election contest which is shaping up is a more imperative reason for a moratorium on demonstrations than any local or state condition that has confronted our forces heretofore . . .

"We believe racism has been injected into the campaign by the Goldwater forces. The Senator himself maintains his position that civil rights matters should be left to the states—clear enough language for any Negro American."

When asked whether this statement was a call for the defeat of Goldwater, Mr. Wilkins replied: "I think that's a safe assumption."

A critical view of all this was expressed, however, by various Negro leaders in different parts of the country, many of whom said they would continue to have demonstrations.

Representative Adam Clayton Powell, Democrat, who is not only a Negro preacher in Harlem but is chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor, said on Thursday, with reference to the statement issued in New York, that "the pronouncement cheapens the civil rights movement by equating it with politics." He said also that "it endangers the future of civil rights and civil rights legislation by making it (civil rights) a Democratic party monopoly." Mr. Powell declared that civil rights should be above partisan politics.

Senator Goldwater has not injected the issue into the campaign. In fact, he made a few days ago a special point of asking for a conference with President Johnson to seek to keep racial issues out of the campaign.

* * * *

THE BASIC problem of race relations was present long before the Republican National Convention nominated the Arizona Senator. It has been an open political issue ever since the voters in Philadelphia divided on a Negro and white basis in a local election last November. The same kind of race consciousness has been stimulated in various parts of the country by Negro rallies and race demonstrations during the last three years.

The issue in the forthcoming Presidential campaign for many voters will be not whether the Negro shall be given equal rights as provided by certain laws of the federal government and the states, but whether the benefits of those rights shall be sought by lawful and orderly methods or by mob violence that results in looting and bloodshed.

Goldwater May Be Short of Strong Support Candidates

WASHINGTON—Goldwater unity efforts are proceeding successfully with party organizers, but they are unlikely to produce any coattails he can ride in the electoral college race.

FLEESON

In a close contest, strong supporting candidates, especially if they are in big states, can make the difference. They were almost as important as the candidate himself in Harry Truman's 1948 triumph.

The Goldwater problem is, ironically, the circumstance which enabled his dedicated band to nominate him at San Francisco and gain control of the party. It is that Republicans have been a dwindling minority for some time and notably lacking elective officeholders.

Take the Senate. With a Goldwater vacancy to be filled, only eight Republican incumbents are standing for relection this year. The two from pivotal states, Kenneth Keating of New York and Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, and from a swing state, J. Glenn Beall of Maryland, instantly expressed misgivings and will run with a high degree of independence.

Two from widely separated outposts, Winston Prouty of Vermont and Hiram Fong of Hawaii, say they will support the nominee but have deemed it wise to explain that they do not always agree with him. Three others—Roman Hruska of Nebraska, Edwin Mechem of New Mexico and John Williams of Delaware—can live comfortably with Goldwater sentiment, as presumably the nominee's replacement can. The total of their electoral college muscle is still rather slight.

Then there are the governors, with seven of 15 running this fall. Only one, George Romney of Michigan, faces a large electorate, and he is playing it cool.

So is Gov. Chafee of Rhode Island, who doubts if he can get away to the unity summit in August. Again the remainder can live with Sen. Barry Goldwater, but their states carry little weight in the electoral college.

All this, of course, makes it easier to isolate the complainants against Goldwater policy. It also helps the new party leaders persuade the organization men that they have nothing to lose by going along with Goldwater this once.

Republicans will, of course, field candidates against incumbent Democrats, not all of whom in the Senate are strongly situated. But the challengers, whatever doubts they might have, will go along with the ticket, and anyway few of them are established vote-getters.

New York and California are special situations of great importance because they are the biggest states.

New York leaders, including Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, expect formally to endorse the ticket but will allow their candidates maximum independence. They will lavish praise on Keating and on Sen. Jacob Javits, who is not up this year, and remind voters how hard all hands worked for moderation until the final decisions were made.

In California, the Republicans are badly split and their Senate candidate, George Murphy, is given little chance to defeat Democrat Pierre Salinger. Incumbent Sen. Thomas Kuchel, their prize vote-getter, is not up and has not stated his position. The aggressive California Goldwaterites, angered by Kuchel's support of Rockefeller for the nomination, have tried—and failed—to force his hand.

How Would Senate Revision Affect Lawmaking Trends?

N-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO—One primary aspect of the legislative reapportionment controversy has been given only secondary consideration. The key issue: how a revamped Senate might affect the philosophy of future lawmaking.

McCAULEY

Deep-seated differences exist between today's rural-dominated Senate and the urban-run Assembly. Yet, the differences have been shrugged off by an over-concentration on North-South geographical rivalries.

Best tip-off how an urban-dominated Senate might affect the future course of legislation is to compare the recent voting records of the Assembly and the present rural-controlled Senate.

If the Senate is revamped so that its lawmakers are elected on a basis of population, it will be a carbon-copy of today's Assembly. The same urban pressures and philosophies would be likely to prevail — for better or worse.

* * *

UNDER THE APPARENT reapportionment philosophy of the U.S. Supreme Court edict, both houses are destined to be under control of urban areas. Both houses should be based on population, according to the court.

What does this mean? A good many capitol observers are flipping through the voter record book to determine how the rural-dominated Senate varied with the Assembly in recent years.

One theory: any bill that was defeated in the Senate but passed in the Assembly in recent years would have much better prospects for passage in a future reapportioned Senate.

HERE IS HOW the philosophies of the two houses varied on key issues in recent years:

TIDELANDS OIL—The Senate passed a bill to strip the Long Beach tidelands trust fund of all oil revenues in 1963. The Assembly beat the bill, then finally helped Long Beach negotiate a compromise settlement in 1964. Reapportionment would probably defeat some Long Beach tidelands foes.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT—The Assembly passed but the Senate defeated a bill for a moratorium on California's death penalty. Reapportionment could hasten legislation to abolish capital punishment.

WITHHOLDING TAX—The Assembly passed but the rural Senate defeated a bill to withhold state income tax from paychecks. Withholding is likely if a revamped urban Senate thinks like the urban Assembly.

PROPERTY TAX EXEMPTIONS — The Assembly generally is more disposed to pass such legislation, the Senate more likely to kill it.

PESTICIDE CONTROL—The Assembly passed a bill to curb and regulate. The farmer-dominated Senate killed it.

CIVIL RIGHTS — The Rumford Fair Housing Act cleared the urban Assembly easily in 1963. The bill was bottled up in Senate Governmental Efficiency Committee, and only was jarred loose after a Capitol sit-in of civil rights supporters. Also, both the White House and governor's office twisted a lot of Senate arms.

BILLBOARD CONTROL—The Assembly has favored in recent years, though the bill was killed in the Senate Transportation Committee.

STATE BUILDINGS — A disproportionate share of state buildings and institutions are in rural areas—especially in Northern California.

The Senate has the image of being more conservative than the Assembly, though it is questionable whether the image is justified on many issues.

FARM-AREA SENATE districts plug hard for expanding state services to agriculture. They tend to resist social-welfare programs in urban areas.

Lobbyists in the past have been more attracted to bankrolling Senate campaigns. They give more to Senators because they face election only once every four years. And there is only a 40-man Senate, compared to an 80-man Assembly. Assemblymen are on the ballot every two years.

The vastness of the 80-man Assembly makes it more difficult for a single lobby to seize control of a key committee. Also, the economy of an urban Assembly district tends to be more diverse—and it isn't as likely that an Assemblyman is beholden to a single lobbyist or interest group.

However, there are more similarities than differences between today's Senate and Assembly. Moderate leaders have dominated both houses. And except on a few issues like the withholding tax and capital punishment, the course of California legislative history probably would have remained the same even if urban areas had equal representation in the Senate.

* * *

BUT THERE IS A WHIFF of change in the air. Past Senate colleagues and friends are likely to be election-time rivals in consolidated rural districts. Urban Assemblymen will have new prestige. Many are likely to wind up with Senate seats.

One headache: it'll be difficult to tell the Assembly from the Senate in the years ahead. They will have similar interests, motivations and political bases.

New GOP Status Symbol

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Ex-Cmdr. Lyndon Baines Johnson of the U.S. Naval Reserves may not realize it yet, but he's practically a dead duck politically.

If the Republican convention at San Francisco proved anything at all, it was the obvious fact that you have no business in politics if you didn't serve in the Air Force.

The GOP nominee, Maj. Gen. Barry Goldwater, commands the 9999th Capitol Hill Air Force Reserve Squadron. Two other Republican nominees, Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania and Hawaii's Sen. Hiram Fong, are members of the outfit.

Another GOP nominee, Maine's Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, is a Lt. Colonel in the Women's Air Force Reserves.

And Sen. Peter Dominick, R-Colo., and Rep. Ed Foreman, R-Tex., who played prominent roles in Goldwater's victory, are also members of the 9999th Squadron.

When the Democrats catch on, it may be curtains for Navy man Johnson. Only politically redeeming factor in the President's war record is that he was awarded the Silver Star for heroism in the air over New Guinea.

But hard-core Democratic realists are already talking up Nevada's Sen. Howard Cannon, a brigadier general in the Air Force Reserves.

A NATIONALLY syndicated columnist, attending a private party after the Republican convention, was seated next to a large, dowager-type woman who asked him:

"Aren't you tired of being pushed around for the last 30 years? Won't you be glad to see a man of courage like Barry Goldwater in the White House?"

The columnist looked the lady in the eye. "Madam," he said, "you don't look like you've been pushed around for the last 30 years."

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Rightists Advised: 'Lie Low'

CHICAGO (NEA)—The word is being passed among many of this country's leading arch right-wing organizations:

"If you want to help elect Sen. Barry Goldwater as president, lie low and be quiet."

* * * *

BILLY JAMES HARGIS, head of the Christian Crusade, summed it up when intercepted briefly in Chicago: "The best thing I can do for Barry Goldwater right now is to go to Europe."

Hargis is indeed embarking on a European tour, and thinks other right-wingers ought to follow his example.

To the political realists in these groups, the case is plain. As the 1964 Republican nominee, their hero Goldwater is well-placed. In the light of all the furor over his "fringe" following, they are anxious not to embarrass him with a tight embrace.

The point was well illustrated in the two-day meeting here of the National Conservative Council, a Virginia-born group which has made third-party noises since its inception at Richmond last February.

In the Conrad Hilton, whose spacious corridors seemed to ache for a major party convention, Goldwater's name was on buttons, paper pennants, bumper strips and delegates' lips.

Yet the whole council effort was bent toward avoiding unseemly sounds that could hurt him. Reporters were barred from some sessions and improperly advised of others. A pro-Goldwater newspaper failed to staff the meeting altogether.

* * * *

ON THE FIRST DAY, the council's executive board whipped through motions supporting the Goldwater-Miller ticket and the GOP 1964 platform. There were only three dissents out of 16 states voting.

By the second morning it was clear the council was burying the third-party idea.

But the executive board's tight-lipped management of council affairs broke down somewhat the second afternoon. Hot-eyed delegates among the 170 from 33 states on hand for full sessions refused to ratify the board's support of the GOP platform and its no-third-party decision.

They rated the platform too liberal, and wanted a third party so candidates for lesser offices could run against "Socialist" Republicans.

The upshot of this nosiy dissent, conducted behind closed doors, was that all resolutions were tabled and the entire conference abruptly adjourned — the action canceling the third day's program.

Dissidents erupted when the doors opened. One glowering man walked about, muttering to anyone who would listen: "I just want to make it clear. These people are not speaking for me."

* * * *

A TANNED Iowa farmer spoke darkly of possible Communist influence at the session: "I think mayhe Khrushchev's sword came down in the middle of this room."

Another delegate could see nothing but good, however, in the fact that neat control of the council effort had failed in part. Said he: "This is better than San Francisco. This is real Americanism. You can say anything you like."

A lot was said, and a lot was heard, despite obvious attempts to confuse the press. Most delegates who spoke made it quickly evident. They regard the federal government as an enemy, hardly less menacing than Moscow. The tenor of things could best be judged from the warm applause which greeted a man who was introduced as the representative of the "Republic of Vermont."

Nevertheless, though these curious sounds broke through, the council's managers applied their noise-suppressors effectively at crucial moments. If the far-right's new program is to be "silence for Goldwater," the Chicago meeting helped launch it auspicously.

Should Defense Contractors Own TV?

WASHINGTON—It will be interesting to see whether TV and radio stations owned by the big defense contractors report on the waste of the taxpayers' money by defense contractors.

PEARSON

Some of the most important TV stations in the nation are owned by defense contractors and they have not been famous for rushing to expose the waste and inefficiency of their owners.

The National Broadcasting Company, for instance, is wholly owned by the Radio Corporation of America, which has defense orders totaling close to half a billion dollars a year. Westinghouse, another big defense contractor, owns the maximum number of TV stations permitted by the FCC; while General Electric and the American Aviation Company also go in for TV and radio stations, as well as big defense contracts.

One of the most interesting cases is that of Aerojet, which manufactures the Polaris missile and is owned by General Tire and Rubber, which, in turn, owns powerful radio and TV stations ranging from Washington and Boston to Los Angeles. Rep. Porter Hardy, D-Va., and his Armed Services Subcommittee have just exposed a $205,000 bill handed the American taxpayers by Aerojet for losses on a company cafeteria. The $205,000 is charged up to the cost of the Polaris missile during a 12-month period, 1962-63, despite the fact that an audit showed the cafeteria actually realized a profit of $71,000 in the same period.

"You don't come up with a $71,000 profit on the one hand and then turn around and say, 'No, I'm sorry, we have a $205,000 loss,'" said Rep. Hardy. "There is something funny about that kind of an operation."

"It is no surprise to us, sir," replied Air Force auditor John Mahoney, who checked the books of Aerojet. "We are prefectly aware of this."

"But you didn't say anything to Aerojet about it until after the General Accounting office called your attention to it back in June of this year. How come?" asked the congressman from Virginia. "It doesn't make any difference to you. Is that what you're saying?"

"I'm sorry if I conveyed that feeling," answered Mahoney.

"Well, you sure did," shot back Mr. Hardy.

The General Accounting Office also disclosed that Aerojet had charged the taxpayers $19,000 for hiring "coffee maids" for a few months in 1961. The excuse was that the ladies serving coffee were needed at the Aerospace Corporation plant in El Sgundo, Calif., in order to bolster morale. The maids brewed fresh coffee in "individual coffee rooms."

The president of Aerojet is charming Dan Kimball, secretary of the Navy under Truman.

This is not the first time Aerojet has been raked over the coals by the House armed Services Committee. In a previous hearing, congressmen revealed that the Navy Department had built $4,800,000 worth of government property on Aerojet's property near Sacramento at exactly the same time Dan Kimball was secretary of the Navy. While holding his government position, he retained his stock in Aerojet, thus benefited from any increase in the value of the company while he was heading the Navy.

After leaving the Navy, Kimball went back to resume his top job at Aerojet.

Because the buildings were placed on Aerojet property, the Navy had to sell them to Aerojet for a song. Obviously they could not be removed. Congressmen argued that they should not have been built on private property in the first place.

When this was exposed, no criticism of Aerojet appeared on any of the TV stations owned by the parent company, General Tire and Rubber. In fact, one commentator who had been critical of Aerojet was barred from KHJ, the General Tire outlet in Los Angeles.

It will be interesting to see whether any of the defense-owned TV stations report on the current waste of the taxpayers' money.

How to Pay for Poverty Program

EDITOR:

President Johnson has declared war on poverty. Too long the poor of our land have been neglected. Many of these folks have paid high taxes for years and deserve help. The question is, "Where shall we get the funds to provide for the needy?"

The United States of America is now helping 97 nations (at last report) with foreign aid. Some of those nations have balanced their budget, but continue to receive money from us. Why not cut off more than enough foreign aid to supply our need for the poor? "Charity ought to begin at home." When will these nations learn to provide for themselves? Many of them are prodigals.

Crime cost the fifty states 60 million dollars per day. Juvenile delinquency has increased 800% in a decade. How about a war to reduce crime? If the cost of dealing with the criminal could be reduced 50% (and it must be, and can be when we make the criminal pay), each state would have ½ million dollars a day and the Federal Government would have 4 or 5 million dollars per day.

Ninety-six per cent of our farmers do not want the government subsidy program. This should be eliminated and millions would be available for the war on poverty.

When a need arises in our family, we sit down and figure some way to cut expenses without borrowing money and going into debt. If it is good for the home, why not for the nation?

He's Proud to Be a 'Sand Thrower'

EDITOR:

I cannot pass by the opportunity to reply to that of Ginger Friedman in a recent forum. Let us examine her arguments.

She speaks of the values and ideals set down by our forefathers and reinforced by the blood of our heroes. Just exactly what she refers to here quite escapes me. A careful reading of all the historical documents so revered by Americans, from the Declaration of Independence, through the constitution, through each president's request to congress for a declaration of war, and all the literature by and about America leads one to believe that these values and ideals are in the direction of the freedom of the individual and of the government as the servant of the people.

She speaks of the fear that a bigoted few may be allowed to throw sand in our gears. I'm at a bit of a loss to understand just which gears she speaks of. If, however, the gears she speaks of are the gears driving this land of mine away from the free, capitalistic economic system (which brought this country from a wilderness to the richest, most powerful nation in all history) and toward welfare state socialism (which has never worked anywhere, anytime in all history), then you can count me among the proud sand throwers.

The final plea in her letter implores all who agree with her to rally behind Mr. Johnson so that they can truly be the cogs in the wheel of Washington. Now, this is strictly a matter of preference, of course, but if Miss Friedman relished being described as a "cog in the wheel of Washington," then I can readily understand why she would make her plea as she has. For myself, I prefer not to be thought of as a cog in any wheel, much less the wheel of Washington.

I feel that 1967 or 1968 is too soon for Long Beach to attempt a World's Fair. It would be too close to the New York World's Fair and I just don't believe it could come out in the black. The New York Fair, in fact, was too soon after the Seattle Fair.

Brokers Eye Auto Talks, Hesitant Market Fades

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market closed lower last week after five days of hesitant and frustrating trading on reduced volume.

Prices opened with a loss of 4.59 in the Dow-Jones Industrial average and sagged 3.70 in the following session. Three small gains followed but were not sufficient to erase the earlier declines.

Volume contracted in all but Thursday's session, which benefited from what brokers said apparently was an early clearing of books in preparation for the weekend.

* * * *

THE GENERAL economic picture continued to be fairly good, but brokers were keeping a wary eye on the auto industry's labor negotiations. Some brokers felt the racial and political news is beginning to play a role in the market.

Following the philosophy that all good things must come to an end, some analysts were watching for a major top to form. An increasing number of brokerage letters are less aggressive and optimistic than they were earlier in the upswing.

However, majority opinion is for a continuing of the bull market following a period of sluggishness. Few of the analysts, pessimists included, see signs of any major weakness.

Dow-Jones Industrial average lost 4.54 to 841.10 and rails eased 2.68 to 217.80. Utilities finished at 149.89 up 0.53 after touching an all-time high of 150.00. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dipped 0.28 to 83.18.

* * * *

TRADING shrank to 20,755,460 shares from 22,289,750 shares the previous week and compared with 16,687,250 shares in the same week last year.

Sunshine Mining topped the most active list with a gain of 1⅜ to 24¾ on 390,200 shares. The stock has been active on rumors that a group of investors is trying to buy into the company.

It was followed in activity by Texas Gulf Sulphur, up 2⅛ to 51⅛ on 319,500 shares, Pan American World Airways, off 1¾ to 34 on 278,600, Westinghouse, up 2 to 354¼ on 221,900 and Chrysler off ⅞ to 52 on 219,900 shares.

Steels were generally firm. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem, which both issued favorable earnings reports last week, rose ⅜ and ¾ respectively. Wheeling Steel sank 4¼ on news of lower earnings for the second quarter and first half.

* * * *

MOTORS were mostly lower as traders awaited some definite trend in the talks with the United Auto Workers. Chrysler slipped ⅞, Ford lost a point and General Motors gave up ¾. American Motors rose ⅛ despite lower earnings for the third fiscal quarter and nine months. Brokers said strength in the issue stemmed from hedge buying against the possibility of a strike since American's contract expires much later than that with the other major auto makers.

Chemicals shaded. Eastman Kodak lost 1¼ despite a good second quarter report. Du Pont dipped ¼ Allied 1⅜ and Union Carbide ⅜.

Oils were a mixed lot. Standard Oil (N.J.) advanced 1⅛ on record earnings and a dividend boost. Tidewater Oil rose 1⅜ on rumors British Petroleum will seek to acquire its West Coast properties. Mission Development, a large holder of Tidewater, rose 1. Socony Mobil dropped 1⅝. The first acquired Northern Natural Gas Producing, a subsidiary of Northern Natural Gas, in an exchange of stock.

* * * *

CONTROL DATA finished up ⅞ after profit-taking trimmed much of earlier gains run up after directors proposed a 3 for 2 stock split. IBM dipped 1¾. Beckman gave up 2½ and Zenith retreated 2⅛. Honeywell lost 3¾.

Among the rails, New York Central lost 1½, Chicago & North Western 3½, Norfolk & Western 1⅝, Louisville & Nashville 1⅜, Chicago Great Western 2 and Chicago Milwaukee 1⅛.

Airline shares were under pressure despite good earnings statements from Pan American, National and Trans World which dropped 1¾, 2¾ and 1⅞ respectively. In addition, Delta lost 2⅜, Northwest 1⅞ and Western 1½.

Stores also ran into selective selling. Sears Roebuck eased 1⅞, Korvette 3⅜, Allied Stores 3⅝ and Arlan's Department Stores 2⅛. Federated Department Stores rose 3 and Bullock's advanced 5. The two stores are about to complete a merger.

Mack Trucks tumbled 6½, most of it in the final session, after the Justice Department filed an anti-trust suit to block Mack's merger with Chrysler. Mack Truck denied the department's charges that the merger would restrict competition in the truck industry and said it would fight the suit.

* * * *

CALGON soared 10¾ after directors declared a 150% stock dividend and an increased cash dividend on the new shares. Bristol-Meyers advanced 4¼ on news it will seek American Dental Association recognition of its Ipana toothpaste with fluoride.

Texas Gulf advanced 2⅛ in fairly active dealings on a number of unconfirmed rumors. Curtis Publishing gained ⅜. Xerox sank 11 on rumors it would cut prices on its machines. Even an announcement it will show a major new product in October failed to stem the sell orders.

Polaroid eased 4½. Corning Glass gave up 6. Filtrol picked up 5¾. Westinghouse rose 2 with the aid of some institutional buying Thursday and Friday.

27 Years Too Long to Make Up Mind

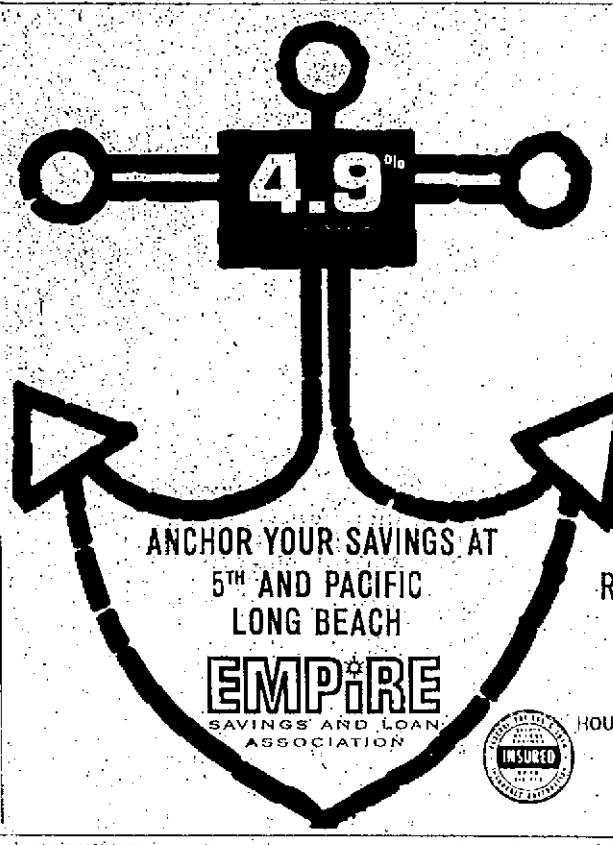

LONDON (UPI) — William Kendle, 48, lost his attempt to have his 27-year marriage annulled despite his claim that the marriage never was consummated. The judge said he "sympathized" with Kendle, but ruled he had waited too long to ask for the annulment.

Negro Women's Club Honors Stewart Udall

DENVER (AP)—The National Association of Colored Women's Clubs Inc. has named Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall as "citizen of the year."

Udall, who was honored at the association's convention in Denver, spoke in Washington June 25 at ceremonies when the association deeded the Frederick Douglass estate to the U.S. Park Service, which is in Udall's department.

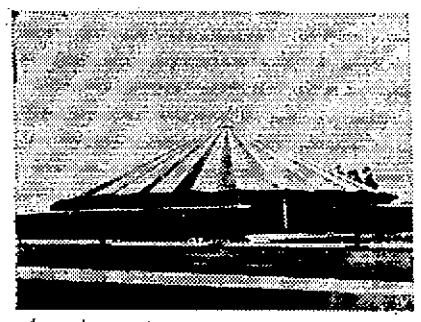

The estate is now a national shrine in memory of Douglass, a runaway slave who became a militant abolitionist prior to the Civil War. Douglass was appointed U.S. minister to Haiti after the war.

Back to the Colorado Lagoon and Lauren McCulloch:

Lauren says that she never has had a pupil who failed to learn how to swim. Many are nervous and often their parents are even worse, but once in the hands of Lauren or her fellow instructors, the children learn fast.

It's really fascinating to see the tiny tots put their hands on the bottom in shallow water and learn how to kick. Gradually they are worked into deeper water as they learn how to paddle with their hands. Then, with fear gone, it's just a matter of time until they are paddling everywhere in the lagoon.

Perhaps you wonder what Lauren does for relaxation after four or more hours in the water each day. Well, she certainly doesn't go for a swim. She is busy two nights a week taking a course in sociology. The other nights she really relaxes.

Her education and teaching career have priority over everything, even though there's a "very good boy friend" in the background. He is carving a career for himself at an out-of-state university.

DADDY OF ALL PICNICS!

Former Iowans to Convene

Natives of the Tall Corn State gather Saturday in Recreation Park for the biggest of the state picnics—the 59th annual Iowa Picnic.

Registration starts at 10 a.m. in the southwest corner of the park.

While the folks get acquainted, there will be music by two bands. James E. Son's Junior Concert Band plays at 11:30 a.m. and the Long Beach Municipal Band, conducted by Charles J. Payne with Linda Sue Marks as soloist at 12:30 p.m.

The main program begins at 1 p.m. when Boy Scout Troop 49 posts the colors. There will be musical numbers, a round of speeches and then a show featuring barbershop harmony.

Vice Mayor James A. Hayes will welcome the Iowans from all over California to Long Beach, and ex-Waterloo resident Lon Peck will respond.

Recognition will be given to the oldest man and woman, the youngest child, and the person traveling farthest to the picnic.

Mrs. Lucille Johnson, ex-Winfield Iowan, is emcee and the invocation will be Rev. J. R. McNichols, late of Waterloo.

Assemblyman C. George Deukmejian joins former Hawkeyes Jack Dillon (Centerville), Nelson McCook (Summer) and Tom Toborg (Ames) in a series of 10-minute speeches.

Deukmejian talks on "The Public and the Criminal," McCook on the California World's Fair, Toborg on the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce and Dillon on senior citizens.

Gang Pulls L.B. Man From Car, Beats Him

Angel A. Chavez, 32, of 1415 Molino Ave., told police he stopped his car for a traffic light at California Avenue and Anaheim Street at 9 a.m. Saturday when a gang of "eight to nine juveniles" yanked open his car door, hit him with a brick, dragged him outside and went through his pockets before escaping on foot.

AND CARY GRANT, TOO

Filmland Still Top Tourist Attraction

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is the season for visiting firemen and relatives — a time when a Hollywood reporter really finds out who and what is important.

If my experience with a flock of guests from Texas, Indiana and Pennsylvania is any criterion, the public most wants to:

1. See a movie being made, preferably with John Wayne, Jerry Lewis or Cary Grant.
2. Visit Disneyland.
3. Dine at Chasen's.
4. Dance at the Cocoanut Grove.
5. See Marilyn Monroe's grave.
6. See Rudolph Valentino's grave.
7. See a TV movie being made, preferably "Bonanza."
8. Hear a concert at Hollywood Bowl.
9. See the movie stars at Movieland Wax Museum.
10. See Tyrone Power's grave.

Grant, I found, has appeal for women of all ages—even the young ones.

Cheryl Love, a 17-year-old high school senior from South Bend, Ind., put Grant at the top of her must see list—even over a preview of the Beatles' first movie.

"Gosh," she explained. "He's so nice and gentlemanly—and so handsome."

Her mother sighed agreement.

Wayne is the male favorite while Lewis has big appeal for the kids.

On the movie set visits, only one feminine star's name came up—and everybody knew she wasn't in town. That would be Elizabeth Taylor.

One housewife commented: "I don't approve of Liz but I guess all of us get a vicarious kick out of her public-be-damned antics. She is a star, that's for sure."

Lewis Reinjures His Knee on Movie Lot

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jerry Lewis reactivated an old ankle injury during the making of "The Disorderly Orderly" and had to shut down shooting for a week.

His associates fear that the injury may force a change in his zany style of comedy. Jerry pooh-poohs that.

"If it'll get a laugh," says Jerry, "I'll break my neck."

All Systems Go! Angels to Anaheim

By ROSS NEWHAN

All systems are go.

The Angels will make their flight to suburbia official this week.

"Our talks with the city of Anaheim are strictly in the refinement stage," revealed President Robert Reynolds this weekend. "We are no longer negotiating. There are no longer any differences of opinion on the fundamental issues and I imagine we will sign a contract shortly."

REYNOLDS

In an exclusive interview with the I, P-T, the former Stanford grid hero tackled the subject of baseball from pay-TV to inter-league play, from Bill Veeck to Walter O'Malley, from Anaheim to Seattle.

"Since the city of Anaheim accepted our letter of intent in mid-April we have never actually disagreed on any issue which might submarine the project," said Reynolds. "It's in a go stage . . . as it's been all along."

With the signing of a contract, Reynolds will lateral the ball to Anaheim and the city in turn will sign a $20 million package with a contractor (undoubtedly Del E. Webb) who will attempt to prepare a 44,000 seat stadium for occupancy in April of 1966. That's only 20 months after the proposed Aug. 15 ground-breaking ceremonies.

Reynolds, however, red-dogged the rumor that the Angels have asked O'Malley for a one-year extension of their current lease which terminates at the conclusion of the 1965 season.

"We expect certain assurances from the contractor that the stadium will be functional by 1966," said Reynolds. "Our plans call for one level parking, entrances on the same level and very minor excavations and thus we do not anticipate any construction problems of the type O'Malley experienced. People point to the Oakland project which has a two-year timetable, but again that is a multi-level stadium."

There are, of course, by products of the actual construction which could cause numerous delays. The I, P-T has learned that the floating of bonds at 3½% interest has not caused any rush on the brokerage houses.

The signing of a contract will also make popular taxpayer's suits of which O'Malley is the accepted authority.

"We are, of course, fully aware of the exigencies which may occur," admitted Reynolds. "Six months from now we will probably know for sure if we will require interim plans. At this time I would prefer moving into a stadium which is half completed rather than ask O'Malley for an extension. However, if we must go to O'Malley I'm sure he will be amenable to our needs."

It is the very hand of the landlord, however, which is driving the Angels out of bondage. The reasons for the Angels exodus have been publicized, scrutinized and analyzed and will not be repeated in length here. Reynolds did reiterate:

"We are like a boxer whose hands are tied, we have not been able to get out of our corner in the fight for the baseball dollar. We have not been able to do the things for the American League or ourselves that we'd like.

"We have been restricted in the areas of promotions, merchandising, pay-TV and sponsors. We play in a park which advertises Union Oil. One of our sponsors is Standard Oil.

"We are a separate entity but we are cast under the Dodgers' shadow for as long as we remain in Chavez Ravine."

Reynolds denies that the Angels have insisted on Webb as the contractor fearful that if the Yankee president does not win the bid he will withdraw his support from the Cherubs' move which would require eight of the 10 league votes if such balloting is necessary in the first place. The I, P-T is aware of a letter which Reynolds carries in which Webb has promised six favorable votes.

"The decision on a contractor rests strictly with Anaheim," said Reynolds. "We are not bound to Webb in any manner and should he lose the bid we still feel he will vote in our favor. We do believe that his vast experience in the construction of stadiums would be a great asset in meeting our timetable."

Since the Angels are not leaving the territory, Reynolds does not feel a vote will be necessary. Such a decision will be reached when the league meets Aug. 10 in Chicago.

"I have not canvassed the owners and I have not dis-

Chance Tops Red Sox, 4-1, for 11th Win

By ROSS NEWHAN

Boston registered a moral victory Saturday night. They scored a run off Dean Chance.

The young dean of American League righthanders scattered eight hits as the Angels absorbed a 4-1 victory over the Red Sox before 19,863, only 12,190 of whom actually contributed to the raise Chance will receive next season.

Chance did not possess his best stuff, but what he did was enough to beat the stuffing out of the Red Sox. He threw 132 pitches but walked only one Beantown batter and fanned seven to augment his sixth consecutive conquest.

* * * *

BACK-TO-BACK homers by Willie Smith and Joe Adcock in the fourth inning featured a nine-hit Angel attack which allowed Chance some unique breathing room.

The 23-year-old ace of Bill Rigney's deck now boasts a league-leading earned run average of 1.69 and since the All-Star recess his credentials are as astounding as the accomplishments of Ranger 7 and certainly as heavenly.

Chance has made six starts since blanking the National League for three innings. He's completed five of those games, hurled shutouts in three of them and yielded but three runs in 54 innings for an ERA of 0.66. At Dodger Stadium, he's won six of eight decisions with an ERA of 1.00.

* * * *

"I MADE a lot of mistakes tonight," said Chance, which must be the case since he yielded a run. "I came to the park with a headache and I was just throwing, not pitching."

It was Boston which left with the migraine. The Red Sox actually owed a debt of gratitude to the groundskeeper for escaping Chance's seventh shutout.

A bad-hop single by Eddie Bressoud in the second, which was destined for Jim Fregosi's glove as the final out of the frame, sent Tony Horton to third and kept matters alive. Bob Tillman then drilled a liner off Chance's right leg and as Dean looked to the outfield for it, the ball bounced towards the third-base line and Horton raced home.

The Angels wasted no time in retrieving the run, scoring off Earl Wilson (11-6) in the bottom of the second on Bobby Knoop's bases-loaded fly to right. A walk, single by Buck Rodgers and drag bunt single by Lennie Green were the ingredients in the jam.

SMITH cracked his seventh homer into the rightfield seats to open the fourth and Adcock followed with a colossal belt which carried deep into the left centerfield pavilion. It marked Adcock's 14th homer and 297th of his career. It was also his second in Chavez Ravine, equalling Leon Wagner's production of last year.

The Angels spread some icing in the fifth. Albie Pearson kangarooed a bouncer off the plate and catcher Bob Tillman, threw the ball into the rightfield corner to break Al Oerter's discus record and send Pearson to third. Fregosi followed with his 100th hit of the season, producing his 50th RBI last season. Fregosi's 100th safety also came off Wilson.

'Big D' the Dupe of Phils' Bloops

PHILADELPHIA — There is a strong suspicion among the Dodgers that the Phillies sneaked in some helium-filled baseballs while waltzing to a 10-6 victory Saturday night.

The ball, about all that kept pace with the league-leaders, refused to come to earth while 10 Phillies batted and five scored in the second inning.

Victim of this disorder of gravity was Don Drysdale (who else?), which ran his losing streak against the Phillies to six games. Before that, in the days when the Phils endorsed a deodorant soap and still had to keep their distance from the rest of the league, Drysdale beat them 13 in a row.

* * * *

PHILLIES starter Jim Bunning didn't fare much better than Drysdale, except that he was taken off the hook. Bunning lasted only two innings and the ball took some peculiar hops while he was around. He was charged with four runs, two unearned.

Another oddity was that this contest became a slugging match because neither club had been able to score on its starting pitchers in 17 innings. Drysdale had been blanked by the Phils 2-0 and 1-0. Bunning was shut out 3-0 and trailed 1-0 after 10 innings in a game the Phils pulled out in the 11th.

* * * *

THE PHILLIES managed a total of 15 hits against four Dodger pitchers. The six hits in the second inning belonged in a circus side show. There were bloopers, dribblers, bleeders and chops. And Drysdale remained a lamb through it all.

With one out, Clay Dalrymple singled to center for the most legitimate hit of the inning. Cookie Rojas followed with a bloop hit behind second base. Ruben Amaro bounced a ground-rule double into the seats along the left-field foul line.

DODGER OF DAY

MAURY WILLS

Singled tripled and scored twice in Dodgers' 10-6 loss to Phils.

John Briggs batted for Bunning and chopped a ball over Drysdale's head to make it 4-2. Tony Gonzalez chopped one to shortstop and Maury Wills had time for a banjo lesson while waiting for it to drop. The score was 4-3.

* * * *

AFTER TWO were out, Drysdale walked Johnny Callison to fill the bases. He had two strikes on Wes Covington when Covington backed away from an inside pitch, but didn't quite make it. Covington practically stood on his ear when the ball struck his bat and sliced into left field for a two-run single that put the Phils on top 5-4.

The Phillies rally against Drysdale was so ridiculous that manager Walter Alston didn't signal for a pitcher to heat up in the bullpen.

Drysdale managed to hang around until the start of the fourth inning when gravity (or was it grabity?) again failed and brought on a nine-batter, four-run inning.

* * * *

GONZALEZ led off with a double. Richie Allen lined to Tommy Davis in leftfield, but the ball popped out of his glove for an error. Alston finally popped out of the dugout and decided it was time to rescue Drysdale, since no one else would.

Ron Perranoski absorbed the rest of the damage in the inning. It included a pinch-hit, two-run single by Alex Johnson that caromed off Nate Oliver's glove and another chop by John Herrnstein that made it 8-4.

The remainder of the game was only for laughs.

Herrnstein hit a solo home run, his fifth, for the winners and T. Davis hit his sixth.

T. Davis did succeed in knocking out winning pitcher Rick Wise, at 18 the youngest player in the league. But this wasn't too wise, either. Ex-

Gabriel Sparkles, Ram Offense Wins

By JERRY WYNN

Big Roman Gabriel more and more looks like the big man for the Rams this season.

Saturday, the sturdy 6-4 Carolina Cannonball was the whole show for Ram offense, 38-28, in the annual Chapman College Scholarship Fund game before an overflow crowd of 5,000.

Gabriel completed 12 of 19 passes for 221 yards and two touchdowns in the final tuneup for his starting pitching assignment against the Dallas Cowboys in the pre-season opener for the Rams at the Coliseum Saturday night.

And if Big Gabe needs relief, it appears that rookie Bill Munson will get the call over Terry Baker as second-string signal-caller. Munson spelled Gabriel Saturday while Baker remained on the bench for the second successive scrimmage.

Coach Harland Svare once again kept his troops working overtime as they ran off 104 plays, more than the customary scrimmage but less than the 112

A Young Girl and Karate

A 125-pound beauty from Hawaii — the only girl entered in the affair — plans to give more than 300 men all they can handle in the International Karate Championships tonight at the Auditorium.

Ruby Paglinawan, 25-year-old Filipino lass who stands 5-5, isn't the only one who thinks she has a solid chance to go all the way. The tournament directors—men who have seen (and are themselves) the best in the world — say Ruby has the same chance of victory against the 300 men as a sturdy filly like Silver Spoon in the S'Anita Handicap or Hollywood Gold Cup. A member of the distaff side has won those big events, you know.

RUBY PAGLINAWAN
Against 300 Men!

"Ruby has been one of the world's great karate artists for the past seven years," commented one expert. "She already has attained the black belt, highest degree of proficiency in karate."

Miss Paglinawan will compete in the lightweight division of the black belt competition. If she wins she'll go into the finals against the champions of the white and brown and the heavyweight black belt classes in competition for the grand championship.

(Even is she doesn't win, I think I'll ask her to visit Marlin McKeever at Orange. Unless the Rams' tight end stop slandering poor newsmen, that is.)

THE RAMS' CROP of rookies in Friday night's College All-Stars Chicago Bear contest in Chicago boast stirring credentials: all starred in a major post-season affair.

USC's Willie Brown from Long Beach was player-of-the-game in San Francisco's East-West fray . . . UCLA's Mel Profit was the leading pass receiver in the Cnaches' All-American Game at Buffalo (he hauled in seven) . . . Defensive back Jerry Richardson of W. Texas St. made two interceptions in the East-West affair. . . . Roger Pillath from Wisconsin, who'll play offensive tackle for the Rams, was the San Francisco game's line star.

Opposing the Bears, however, Harland Svare's young men will be up against horses of a different color. Following on the heels of Green Bay's defeat last year and the tragic deaths of Willie Galimore and Bo Farrington, the Bears seems in a psychological position to crush the collegians this time.

PARNELLI JONES and A. J. Foyt had every opportunity to drive rear-engined cars this year at Indianapolis, yet both decided against it. They went for the so-called "old fashioned" roadsters against the advice of their friends, their own crews and the press.

In a statement issued a few days ago by Foyt, and supported by Parnelli, here's why:

"We felt we could prepare a roadster so that it would be strong enough to finish and fast enough to win, given a couple of breaks.

"I'm not saying that a roadster is a better race car than a rear-engine car. I'm just saying that Parnelli and me PREPARED our cars to win. We went over 'em three or four times, fixing things, checking everything one last time, just making sure everything was right. We KNEW what we had to do to win and we were ready. I think people make their own luck—they made theirs and we made ours, and we won."

In a rear-engined car, I still think Foyt or Jones woud have won.

THE MAGAZINE, Car and Driver, takes a nasty poke at Mickey Thompson, whose driver Dave MacDonald had the misfortune to trigger that terrible tragedy on Memorial Day. Here's that slick's editorial reaction:

"Hopefully, we have seen the last of Mickey Thompson at Indianapolis. His cars were ill-conceived and ill-prepared and have permanently marred the escutcheon of America's hot rodders.

"Even with Ford taking full responsibility for maintenance of the twin-cam engines, Mickey was utterly unable to field anything like a team of raceworthy machines. They were ugly, which is not important. What is important, is that they were totally unaerodynamic, even with their 1937 space ship styling motif.

"It has become obvious that Thompson's skill as an entrepreneur exceeds his ability as a designer constructor.

"This year he managed to seduce both Ford and the Sears Roebuck Company, but we doubt that either organization is going to leap at another chance to further finance Thompson's Folly.

"In fact, we doubt if there are many prospective sponsors for hot rodding's enfant terrible left ANYWHERE.

"But like P. T. Barnum said. . . ."

Hindsight always is better than foresight . . . for the "experts." Thompson is a pioneer who is bound to make mistakes. In defense of Mickey, I ask that magazine why Thompson's cars were allowed to even approach the track if they were so ill-prepared.

They were revolutionary, but far from ill-prepared. I think Thompson will be back at Indianapolis, maybe even as his own driver!

Terry, Mantle Pace Yanks, 6-4

Birds Explode in 9th, Win 5-2

ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Righthander Ralph Terry hurled a three-hitter for eight and one-third innings Saturday and Mickey Mantle drilled a key homer to lift the first place New York Yankees over the Minnesota Twins, 6-4.

However, Terry needed help from Hal Reniff, who came in to stamp out a dangerous Twins uprising in the ninth to pick up his fourth win to go with eight setbacks.

With the Yanks ahead 6-3 in the ninth, Tony Oliva doubled to extend his hitting streak to 17 games. Harmon Killebrew walked. Reliever Reniff then came in and yielded a single to load the bases and gave a base on balls to Bob Allison to force home a run. He got pinch-hitter Earl Battey to pop up for the second out and ended it all by getting pinch-hitter Earl Goryl on a force play.

The only hits off Terry until the ninth were Jimmy Hall's two-run homer in the second and Allison's 26th circuit blast with two out in the seventh.

Mantle's 420-foot homer over the centerfield screen with Tom Tresh aboard knocked out starter Dick Stigman in the sixth inning. The blow was Mantle's 21st of the season and gave New York a 5-2 lead.

Terry, who fired a shutout in his last start, struck out seven and walked only two.

Bailey Stars as S.F. Bows

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bob Bailey scored three runs and slammed out a two-run homer, and Joe Gibbon pitched an eight-hitter Saturday as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the San Francisco Giants 6-1.

Gibbon, who won his eighth game, was never in serious trouble.

The Pirates got an unearned run in the third, when Bailey got on board on an error, went to second on an infield out and scored on a double by Bob Clemente.

Then Bailey started a four-run fourth with a homer that followed a walk to Dick Schofield. Bill Virdon and Clemente followed with singles that chased Giant starter Ron Herbel.

Billy Pierce relieved and gave up a two-run triple to Jerry Lynch.

★ ★ ★ ★

BAILEY scored the other Pittsburgh run in the sixth inning, when he walked and came home on a single by Bob Clemente.

The Giants got their only run in the ninth. Jim Hart tripled and scored on an infield hit by Jose Pagan.

Aaron's Homer Key in Braves Victory

CHICAGO (AP)—Hank Aaron hit relief pitcher Lew Burdette's first pitch in the eighth inning for a home run and the Milwaukee Braves went on to an 8-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

It was Milwaukee's fourth straight victory and sixth in the last seven, and the Cubs' fifth straight loss.

Aaron's homer, his 17th, broke a 4-4 tie. The Braves added a run in the eighth on Rico Carty's double, an error and a sacrifice fly, and added two more in the ninth. Wade Blasingame got the victory.

THE CUBS had pulled even with three runs in the seventh off starter Denny Lemaster and Reliever Warren Spahn.

Eddie Mathews homered for the Braves in the first inning.

Mets Snare Third in Row Over Colts

NEW YORK (AP) — Catcher Bob Taylor hit a two-run homer in the fifth and scored the other run after he doubled in the seventh Saturday, leading the New York Mets over the Houston Colts 3-2.

The victory was the third straight for the Mets over the Colts. The New Yorkers now have a 6-5 season edge over their fellow expansion team.

Al Jackson went all the way for the Mets, allowing five hits.

Musial Comes Back for Old Timers Game

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Stan Musial will come out of retirement Aug. 9 long enough to participate in an old-timers game with members of the Cardinals and the old St. Louis Browns of 1944.

The teams met in the world series that year, the only time the world championship was contested between two St. Louis teams.

Karate Kings Invade Aud

The greatest collection of karate fighters ever assembled will compete tonight in the International Karate Championships at the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium beginning at 7 o'clock.

More than 300 of the world's best karatemen will begin eliminations in the afternoon in hopes of winning spots in the evening's finals.

Contestants come from such places as Europe, Thailand, Hong Kong, Japan, Formosa, Okinawa, Canada and the United States. Members of the U.S. Army and Marine karate teams will represent the U. S.

In addition, one girl is entered. She is Ruby Paglinawan, a beautiful filipino who lives in Hawaii. She is 5-5, weighs 125 and has reached the highest degree of proficiency in karate — the black belt.

Titles will be won tonight in both lightweight and heavyweight divisions of white, brown and black belts. The division champions then will fight for the grand championship.

Some of the early favorites are Takayuki Kubota and Zenpo Shimabuki of Japan, Algen Caurillo of Hawaii, Quai Wong of Canada and U.S. entrants Pat Burleson and Al Steen.

In addition to the fighting, special demonstrations will be given by legendary teachers Jhoon Rhee of Korea, Bruce Lee of Hong Kong, Tsumo Ohshima of Japan, Anthony Mirakian of Okinawa, Ed Parker of Hawaii and Ben Largusa of the Philippines.

Dutch Count Badly Hurt in Prix Flip

ADENAU, Germany (AP) — John Surtees of Britain, driving an Italian Ferrari, won the pole position Saturday for today's Grand Prix of Germany on the Neurburgring course.

Surtess surpassed the course record for Formula One cars when he drove his red racer around the 14.17 miles in 8:38.4 for an average speed of 98.67 miles per hour.

One veteran driver, Count Carel de Beaufort of Holland, was seriously injured when his Porsche rolled over several times and he was thrown out.

Jim Clark of Scotland, defending world champion, made the second-best time of 8:38.8, an average of 98.42 m.p.h. Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif., driving a Brabham Climax, won the third place in the front row of starters with 8:39.3, averaging 98.3 m.p.h.

Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif. qualified with a time of 8:52.7 in a Cooper Climax.

APPEAL LIKELY IF TITLE TIFF BANNED IN 'VEGAS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Boxing promoter Jack Doyle Saturday said he may appeal directly to Nevada Gov. Grant Sawyer if the State Athletic Commission turns down his bid to stage the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston rematch in Las Vegas.

Doyle said he expects the World Boxing Association (WBA), of which Nevada is a member, to withdraw its suspension of Liston at the WBA convention Aug. 26-30 and to sanction the return bout.

Earlier this week, Art Lurie, chairman of the Nevada Commission, said he would rather resign than see the match promoted here. Later, however, he said the commission would consider the proposal if the WBA removed its objections and if "certain other requirements" were met.

Lurie said Liston would have to appear before the commission and explain his "poor showing" in losing the title to Clay last Feb. 25 in Miami and also assure the group that he had severed all financial connections with Philadelphia restaurateur Sam Margolis.

"Frankly," Lurie said today, "I understand (Egyptian President) Nasser would like to stage the fight in Egypt. That would be a good place for it."

Man to Man

CHANCE

By JERRY WYNN

A baby-faced Angel with a heavenly right wing, Dean Chance is streaking like a comet across the Southland summer sports skies.

The 23-year-old pitching prodigy has been so good that now you can read about him in the sports section instead of the financial, society and "help wanted" pages.

Chance has been so good that Angel fans are calling him one of Southern California's two* great pitchers.

Chance has been so good that Angel moneybags Gene Autry, thinking ahead to Dean's contract next year, is reported to be negotiating a loan from Rick Reichardt.

How are things on cloud nine these days, Dean?

"Things couldn't be better. We're just starting to make our move now, and I'm very, very happy with my pitching."

Has there been a key to your success this season?

"I think the main thing is experience. I'm not making the mistakes I once did. I'm more relaxed out there. I'm pitching to spots more and making the batters hit my pitch. And don't forget the help I've received from our double play combination, Jim Fregosi and Bobby Knoop. They're fantastic."

At 23 and with only 2½ years in the majors, when do you feel you will reach your full potential as a pitcher?

"I honestly don't know if I can ever pitch any better than I'm doing now. What's my ERA since the All-Star game? (Ed. note: 0.65.) I've been fortunate to get such a young start in the majors and to have such a good pitching coach as Marv Grissom."

Did you have any idols among pitchers when you were a boy?

"Yes. Bob Feller and Bob Lemon. I was born and raised in Ohio and was a fan of the Cleveland Indians. Both Feller and Lemon were great pitchers for them."

Who do you consider the best pitchers in the game today?

"Whitey Ford and Sandy Koufax. Ford's just fantastic and Koufax has more ability than any other pitcher."

Which hitters give you the most trouble?

"Al Kaline used to have my number and Carl Yastremski of the Red Sox and Pete Ward of the White Sox always are tough on me. Lou Clinton, when he was with the Red Sox, used to kill me."

Are you looking forward to the Angels shift to Anaheim?

"Yes. I think the people in Los Angeles have treated us very good, but this is O'Malley's ballpark. He was here first, and he's got the fans. When you are brought up with a club, like I was with the Indians and the fans here are with the Dodgers, your hearts are with them. I think in Anaheim, the Angels will have that same feeling of belonging. I think we will draw much as the Dodgers."

Bill Rigney has accused the Southern California press of being partial to the Dodgers. Do you agree?

"No. I think the Angels have been treated great. I know I have been. But as I said, when we have an identity of our own in Anaheim, we'll be treated better yet."

Your name is linked with Bo Belinsky as the stormy petrels and young rebels of the Angels. Do you enjoy this notoriety?

"All I want to do is to pitch. If I get my name in a headline, I want it for pitching . . . nothing else. The only trouble I've had is a personal salary dispute with Fred Haney. I felt I deserved a raised, and said it. I just wanted to do what I considered right. Now I have a pretty good raise and I'm very happy."

What do you think of Belinsky?

"I think he's just great. Bo's my best friend, and he's done more for me than anybody except my mother. After the season is over, we're going to go together on a billiards exhibition tour. Bo will play and I will narrate. We've got a million bookings lined up. It should be fun and relaxing for us and a good thing for billiards."

A great thing for the Angels in young Dean Chance.

BEARS, COLLEGIANS CLASH FRIDA

Halas Says 'We'll

CHICAGO (UPI) — Even the head coach of the College All-Stars football team, Otto Graham, won't predict a victory over the Chicago Bears Friday night, but the 31st match between the pros and collegians will be the opening gridiron spectacle for another packed house.

The usual 75,000 fans, the majority of them from out of the city, will pack Soldier Field for the annual tussle between the champions of the National Football League and the pick of last year's collegiate crop, coached for the seventh straight season by Graham.

The collegians have won only eight games of the 30 played so far and only once have won two in a row, in 1946 under the late Bo McMillin and in 1947, when Frank Leahy was coach. Thus the fact that Graham's team broke a four-game losing streak with a 20-17 win over Green Bay last year could be a bad omen.

But Graham had other reasons for pessimism. "We're not as big as last year," he said, "we've had more injuries, and we haven't progressed as far."

Added to this was the de-

GRID ROUNDUP

Hornung Shines as 27,000 Watch

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—Paul Hornung, Green Bay's slightly tarnished Golden Boy, made a spectacular return to action Saturday night by leading the Packers' offense to a 16-9 victory over the defense in the National Football League team's annual intra-squad game.

A crowd of 27,000 watched as Hornung kicked two field goals and an extra point, caught three passes for 64 yards and gained 60 yards rushing in eight carries.

HORNUNG

Hornung, who sat out last season after being suspended by NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle for gambling, looked stronger than he did the last two years he was with the Packers. Hornung seemed at least as fast as ever, and the knee he seriously injured in the 1962 campaign gave him no trouble.

The Packer offense was shackled to a great extent by a strong defense that scored one touchdown on a fumble recovery by rookie John Baker of Virginia Union at Norfolk, and on a safety when linebacker Lee Roy Caffey tackled quarterback Zeke Bratkowski in the end zone.

Quarterback Bart Starr, who came on strong at the end of last season after breaking his hand midway through the year, was also impressive, as he completed nine of 16 passes for 115 yards. Fullback Jim Taylor was the leading rusher with 61 yards in 13 carries.

* * * *

HORNUNG made an impressive start by carrying for 22 yards on the first time he took the ball. The second time he was involved in action he kicked a 47-yard field goal. He added another of 13 yards later on, and Allen Green booted a 47-yard field goal late in the game.

Other pro grid highlights:

49ers—John Brodie connected on 5of9 passes and Bill Kilmer ran for 37 yards and passed for a TD in a one-hour drill . . . The two quarterbacks showed no signs of last year's injuries.

Browns—Quarterbacks Frank Ryan and Jim Ninowski completed four touchdown passes in a 45-minute scrimmage . . . Flanker Clifton McNeil caught four passes, one for a TD.

Vikings—A doctor attending Tom Franckhauser, who suffered a brain hemorrhage last week, said the defensive back continues to show steady improvement . . . The former Ram was removed from the hospital's serious list.

Steelers—A 45-yard scoring pass from Bill Nelson to Ode Burrell highlighted a two-hour scrimmage.

Giants—A large crowd of 14,000 saw Aaron Thomas catch a 35-yard scoring pass from Y. A. Tittle and a 70-yard payoff pitch from Glynn Griffing to highlight a 90-minute scrimmage.

Lions—Traded Tom Kalil, a three-year veteran, and rookie Bruce Zeltmer of Winona St. College to Minnesota . . . Both are defensive backs.

Eagles—Quarterbacks Kims Hill and Norm Snead completed 19 of 41 passes in a wide-open 90-minute scrimmage which produced four touchdowns, three through the air.

4 BEEFY BEARS GET $50 FINES

RENSSELAER, Ind. (AP)—The price of beef is running high in the Chicago Bears football training camp.

Owner-coach George Halas fined four players $50 each Saturday for failure to reduce to the prescribed playing weights.

Halas would not reveal the weights, but fines were plastered on rookie guard Steve Barnett for being 11½ pounds overweight; end Ed O'Bradovich, 4½; halfback Billy Martin, 5, and tackle Herman Lee, 3.

"I'm tired of fooling around with these men," said Halas, preparing his squad for the All-Star game in Chicago's Soldier Field next Friday night.

"If any of them wants to save himself $50 a day, all he has to do is get his weight down where it belongs. Each day they are over the limit it will cost them $50."

Cowboys Romp Over Semipros

THOUSAND OAKS (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys held controlled scrimmages with two semipro teams Saturday, defeating each by the score of 34-0.

In the first game against the San Francisco All-Stars, the Cowboys' first-string quarterback Don Meredith completed 12 out of 14 passes for 247 yards, including one 50-yard touchdown throw.

Stars of the second game against the Orange County Rhinos were quarterbacks Sonny Gibbs and John Jacobs. Each connected with six out of nine passes.

COWBOYS NEXT FOR GABRIEL

plays consumed Wednesday.

"This team is in good shape," said Svare, "but I want to see how well they will play when they are tired. Things were better today than the last time, but still not what I want."

Gabriel's touchdown passes accounted for the only touchdowns. He connected with Dick Bass for 44 yards and Duane Allen for 32. The other offensive points came on field goals by Danny Villanueva of 20 yards and rookie Bruce Gossett of 16 yards and one point for each of 10 first downs.

The defense points were accumulated two each for stopping the offense without a first down and three each for two fumbles recovered.

The Ram ground attack fared poorly again, but only basic running plays were used and all are well known by the defense.

A slight laceration to rookie linebacker Marv Harris was the only injury. Statistics:

Yanks' Keystone Combo Best in Baseball

One of the most important keys to the continued success of the Yankees is their brilliant defense. Time and again, spactacular fielding plays wipe out threatening rallies by their rivals.

This was never more evident than in their series with the Angels the past week at Chavez Ravine . . . as both the infield and outfield turned in tremendous "saves" that led to two victories in three games.

BOBBY RICHARDSON
'Twins' With Tony

Even though Mickey Mantle has been slowed down by leg injuries, he and Roger Maris and Tom Tresh still form one of the top defensive trios in the game today . . . perhaps in the last decade.

And the infield is rated by some baseball men as being the equal, if not superior, to any on defense in the history of the game . . . what with Clete Boyer, one of the truly great fielding third basemen, and the fabulous keystone combination of Tony Kubek at shortstop and Bobby Richardson at second base.

There are many fine second base combinations in the game, but Kubek and Richardson must be rated head and shoulders above the others. For one thing, there isn't another duo in the majors who has played together as long.

They first teamed up at Denver in 1956 . . . and while both are thought of as "old veterans," Kubek is only 27 and Richardson 29. Barring mishaps, they should be around for another four or five years.

THE SECRET OF DEVELOPING a topnotch keystone cambination is getting to know one another. "It's the things you learn about each other that is important," Richardson explained while waiting his turn at the batting cage. "Little things," he went on, "that probably go unnoticed by the average fan. And you can't mesh these things together unless you've been at it a long time.

"When we first teamed up in '56 . . . well, it sort of had an air of permanence about it. We just seemed to click right from the start," Bobby said. "We made mistakes, of course, but we could feel we were getting better every day. I think that's because we worked so hard at improving our techniques.

"We talked a lot about the plays we had made. In fact, we'd hardly talk about anything else after a game. It was a case of living our jobs . . . going over the problems on the field as well as discussing new ways of improving ourselves. Those talks we used to have led to renewed efforts the next day on the field."

Bobby maintains it is not absolutely necessary for a second baseman and shortstop to play together for a number of years to gain extra quality in their play.

"IT'S JUST A CASE OF ONE GETTING accustomed to the ways of the other. If they're both real major leaguers, it won't take long for them to develop the kind of technique they need to get along together. One of the best new combinations I've seen in several years is the Angels' Fregosi and Knoop, who are in their first year together. But they're catching on fast.

"As for me and Tony . . . well, I can tell you just about how he will react on any given play. And he knows what I'll do. We know, for example, how the other is going to get rid of the ball on the various double play chances. More important, we know exactly how to time our runs to cover the bag so we can get there at just the right instant. And we know how to give the pivot man the ball so his throw to first base will get there with the most on it."

Richardson points out that the first thing any keystone combination must do efficiently is "to understand who is covering the bag once the pitching sign is given.

"Instinct also plays a big part once you have been together a few years, too. This leads to those fielding plays which the average fan would label 'impossible,' but which we can pull off because we know what the other man is going to do in what situation and where he's going to be to take the throw."

BOBBY ADMITS THAT he's so used to Kubek that when another man is at shortstop, there is a period of adjustment.

Joe DeMaestri, Phil Linz, Boyer and Tresh all have performed there on occasion during the past three years . . . "and while all are fine shortstops, the speed of their throws to me covering the bag were just different enough from Tony's to throw me off for awhile," Bobby reveals.

"No shortstop in the game makes the same play like the next fellow . . . and not getting rid of the ball just right may ruin a double play and cost you a game."

There are no other two fielding positions in baseball that depend so much on the other and as Bobby says, "good shortstops can bring out the best in a second baseman . . . and it's also true the other way around. Timing and togetherness. They pay off on the crucial plays—the ones that save games!"

King went three-for-three, including a double, to drive in two runs.

In the opener Aaron McGuire drove in three runs to give Rusty Disbro and Fullerton an easy 6-1 victory over Pico Rivera.

LONG DISTANCE RUNNERS LEAD WAY AS . . .

Lil' New Zealand Olympic Threat

By BRIAN HUMBERSTONE

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—With two Olympic champions back in form and with a strong rival for each, New Zealand's medal hopes for the 1964 Olympic Games at Tokyo center on the middle and long distance running events.

The largest team ever—68 athletes—will represent New Zealand in 11 sports. The highest hopes are pinned on such men as Murray Halberg, Bill Baillie, Peter Snell and John Davies.

Snell and Halberg were the winners of the 800 and 5,000 meters at the Rome Olympics four years ago. They have trained solidly through what is the winter season here.

Last summer Snell was troubled by a stomach ailment and had a poor season. His best effort was a 3:58.5 mile in which he beat Davies, who has made outstanding progress in the past year.

The selectors granted Snell his wish to be nominated for both the 800 and 1,500. He has given little indication which he will choose and might try for the difficult double.

A year ago it seemed unlikely that Halberg would make a serious bid for a place on the Olympic team. He formed an organization for crippled children and although this has taken much of his time, Halberg has shown he still is a great runner.

At an Auckland meeting, without any serious competition for 12 months, he clocked 27:32.8 for six miles. Later he ran an impressive 10,000 meters on a heavy track in 28:56. He has been selected for both the 5,000 and 10,000 meters.

Baillie, chosen for the same events, never has competed in the Olympics. Since his withdrawal from the six miles at the 1962 British Empire Games with a leg injury, he has had a remarkable string of successes.

He won the New Zealand cross-country championship, won in America over Jim Beatty and Bruce Kidd, took the 5,000 meters at the Little Olympics in Tokyo, and he has run the world's fastest 20,000 meters.

Davies no longer is regarded as an understudy to Snell but as a formidable rival to him over a mile or 1,500 meters. He had a good season in New Zealand and was too strong for the visiting American runner, Cary Weisiger.

Barry Magee, who won the bronze medal in the marathon at Rome, has not shown good form in this event and will be only a reserve behind his brother-in-law, Jeff Julian, Ray Puckett and Ivan Keats. Magee will concentrate on the 10,000 meters, in which he has had some good times.

Brightest prospect among New Zealand's four women track and field Olympians is Marise Chamberlain. She has beaten Australia's world record holder for 800 meters, Dixie Willie.

Ayis Porter in the 80-meter hurdles and 100 meters, Doreen Porter in the 100 and 200 meters and Valerie Young in shot and discus are consistent performers who possibly could take medals.

Other sports thought likely to yield medals for New Zealand are rowing, yachting and swimming.

New Zealand oarsmen have done well in Commonwealth Games competition, though they have had no success in the Olympics since the war. Yachting will have Peter Mander, 1956 Olympic Sharpie champion, in the Finn Class and Helmer Pedersen in the Flying Dutchman Class. Both have good international records.

New Zealand's leading swimmer is Vivien Haddon in the women's breaststroke.

RECORD 46.4 BY LARRABEE; GROTH LOSES

LONDON (UPI)—Mike Larrabee of the Southern California Striders set a track record of 46.4 seconds Saturday in winning the 400-meter run as a special guest running in the Ireland vs. England and Wales track and field meet.

The bespectacled Larrabee took the lead at the halfway mark and won by 15 yards over Graham Plows and Arthur Metcalf, both of the England-Wales team. Plows was timed in 47.9 and Metcalf in 48.0.

Morgan Groth of Oregon State lost a close battle to George Kerr of Jamaica in the 800-meter run. Kerr got in front in the last 10 yards and won in 1:47.7 as Groth was timed in 1:47.9.

202 Feet by Babka, Rambo 6-7

OXNARD — Field events highlighted the Oxnard Sports Festival track and field meet Saturday, and veteran discus thrower Rink Babka was voted the outstanding athlete of the meet.

Babka, of the Pasadena Athletic Association, got off a throw of 202 feet, 3½ inches. It was the second best of his career.

Hal Connolly, world record-holder in the hammer throw at 231 feet, 10 inches, had to settle for a best Saturday of 218-7.

Other top marks of the meet included John Rambo, Southern California Striders, 6 feet, 7¼ inches in the high jump; Larry Stuart, Striders, 253 feet, 11 inches in the javelin, and Ronnie Morris, Striders, 16-8, in the pole vault.

Osuna Gives Mexico Split With Aussies

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Rafael Osuna, the reigning U.S. singles champion, swept over Australia's Fred Stolle in straight sets, 6-2, 7-5, 6-4, Saturday and brought Mexico a split of the opening singles matches in their American Zone Davis Cup semi-finals.

Roy Emerson of Australia, generally considered the world's No. 1 amateur, got the Aussies off to a quick start with an 8-6, 6-3, 6-3 conquest of Antonio Palafox.

The doubles match will be held today, doubtlessly matching Osuna and Palafox against Emerson and Stolle. The final singles in the best-three-of-five eliminations are scheduled Monday.

* * *

THE OPENING match, in which Palafox was clearly out of his depth, lasted only 90 minutes. A crowd of 3,500, including President Adolfo Mateos, looked on.

Osuna covered the court like a cat and his placements kept Stolle off balance. His service was at peak fault, while Stolle double-faulted a half-dozen times, once losing a game because of it.

NITEHAWKS, BOMBERS VIE FOR 3RD PLACE

A trip to the International Softball Congress world's championship in Rock Island, Ill., will be the prize for the winner when the Long Beach Nitehawks and the Etiwanda Bombers meet in a sudden death playoff game tonight at 8:15 at Park Ave. Field.

The teams finished the season with a 17-11 mark, tied for third place. But third place must be determined before the ISC State tournament next weekend as the team finishing third will not have to participate in the state.

The Nitehawks have won three of the four meetings this year, but the Bombers have their ace Ritchie Stephen ready to hurt the big one tonight.

Lancers End Home Season

By FRANK WHITNEY

The Lakewood Lancers close out their 1964 Western Softball Congress home schedule by hosting the Oxnard Merchants at Mayfair Park tonight at 8:15.

Lakewood clinched second place by beating the Long Beach Nitehawks Friday night, 3-1. The Lancers' record is 18-6 as compared to front running Gardena's 21-4 so Lakewood must win tonight to remain mathematically in contention for the championship. The Lancers have four games to play while Gardena has three.

Art Bunge (5-2) is the probable starter for Lakewood in tonight's game. He sports the league's best ERA at .098.

Lakewood Wins in Pony Tourney

Mike Parks, whose brother Jim starred at Lakewood High and LBCC, hurled Lakewood to a 4-3 victory over Pico Rivera in the Pony League Regionals at Cabrillo Park in Rossmoor, Saturday.

Lakewood will meet unbeaten Long Beach today in the championship game at 2:30 p.m. If Lakewood wins another game will follow.

Stucker Hot, Salta Rips Compton

Joe Stucker hurled a five-hit shutout and his teammates jumped on two Compton pitchers for 13 hits as Salta Pontiac pummeled Compton, 14-0, in a Stan Musial League game at Juan Rodriguez Park Saturday night.

Stucker fanned nine, walked only one and had a perfect night with two hits in two appearances. The win was his second against one loss and he has now gone 12⅔ innings without allowing a run.

Al Goldberg drove in five runs with a double and triple, and Don Anderson hit his eighth homer of the year and had three RBI.

It was a revenge win for Salta over Compton. Coach Joe Hicks' nine was upset last Sunday by the Hub City team, 6-2. Salta is now 28-13 on the year and 10-7 in the league. Compton is 2-11 in loop action.

Angels Hope Park Available by 1966

tributed any propaganda," revealed Reynolds. "My belief that the owners will approve our move goes clear back to St. Louis when we were first granted the franchise. Even at that time the owners voiced concern regarding the difficulties facing two teams operating in the same stadium. Those concerns have been realized and I'm sure the owners will be happy to see us put an end to them."

While the Angels (and you must recall that the Rams' Dan Reeves is a voice in this organization and vice versa) have not swept head-long into the area of pay-TV, they are keeping a far-sighted eye on the boob tube.

"If we were currently interested in pay-TV our hands would be tied by O'Malley. We'd be forced to negotiate with his company (STV) under his terms and, of course, our financial renumeration would be nowhere nearly as great compared to our negotiating with a company of our choice on our own," stated Reynolds.

"We are patiently sitting and watching pay-TV's development," continued Reynolds. "We do not feel it's program content makes it sellable on a grand-scale yet. We certainly feel it will someday be an extremely lucrative area and we'd be foolish to say we're not interested. That day, however, is still a few years away."

It is Reynolds' opinion that baseball has yet to take proper strides with free-TV let alone the meter type.

"I can't see further expansion because too many owners are still burning over the players they lost in the last draft, but we must counteract pro football's use of a national vehicle (TV) by selling our product on a national scale," insisted Reynolds.

"We could do this by accepting inter-league play on a limited basis. What greater way would there be for us to restore the game to its national position than by presenting the fan in Houston with an opportunity to see Mickey Mantle and the fan in Cleveland with the opportunity to see Sandy Koufax.

"There are too many fat-headed people in baseball who talk of a national game and then turn their back on these ideas because it might take a dollar out of their pocket. I'd like to see Veeck stop talking of frying eggs on dugout steps and talk baseball sense.

"I also think the American League is out of its head if it doesn't relocate one or two teams on the coast. Seattle is ready. The league and the Angels need such a rivalry. I think you might see some action in this regard at the Chicago meeting."

Don't be surprised if the Seattle Indians open the 1966 season against the California Angels in a half-completed Anaheim stadium.

DODGERS UNLUCKY IN LOSS

Dodger Ed Roebuck entered and set down the last eight without yielding a hit.

* * * *

THE DODGERS, now 10 games back and in seventh place, send rookie Larry Miller (1-2) against John Boozer (1-1) this afternoon. It figures to be a tough assignment for Miller. The Dodgers have defeated the Phils only three times in 10 matches this year and Sandy Koufax has had a hand in all three. He won two, one a no-hitter, and saved the other, a shutout for Joe Moeller.

DIS AND DATA—Phils second baseman Tony Taylor, hit on the mouth by a bad hop bouncer Friday night, was given the night off. Taylor's upper lip was swollen considerably and he complained of a sore jaw, but his teeth were intact. He may be able to play Monday night . . . Wills ran his to 11, but Oliver was stopped after nine games. Paid attendance was 32,030, the third-largest turnout of the year and the largest for a single game.

Three More World Swim Records Fall

LOS ALTOS (UPI). — Three more world records toppled Saturday under the drive of American swimmers as they finished their third day of competition in the men's and women's combined national AAU swimming championships.

It brought to eight the number of official world records that have been smashed. The final group of events is set for today.

The biggest record shattering performance Saturday was by 17-year-old Marilyn Ramenofsky, a a Russian-Polish girl born in Phoenix, Ariz. She bested the world mark in the 400-meter freestyle with a timing of 4:41.7 against the old mark of 4:44.5 set by Chris Von Saltza in 1960.

Don Schollander of Santa Clara, making big gains on the turns, shattered his own world mark in the 200-meter freestyle when he was timed in 1:57.6. His old mark, set last year, was 1:58.4.

* * * *

SHARON STOUDER of the City of Commerce trimmed an All-Star field to break the world mark in the 100-meter butterfly for women in 1:05.4. The world mark, held by A. Kok of the Netherlands was 1:06.1 set last year.

Schollander beat some of the finest sprinters in the world en route to his victory. Roy Saari of of El Segundo was second in 2:00.1; and Murray Rose, the talented Australian, was third in 2:01.8.

"I won it on the turns, said Schollander. "I rocketed out of the turns every time and that made the difference. I had hoped I would do it in 1:57."

It was Schollander's second world record of the meet. Saturday he set a new international standard in the 400-meter freestyle.

* * * *

MISS STOUDER, a powerful little blonde, also ran away from All-Star field. Donna de Varona of Santa Clara and Sydnee Arth of Anaheim, deadlocked for second but they were nearly three seconds back at 1:08.1.

World record-holder Tom Stock of Indianapolis failed to qualify in the finals of both the 100 and 200- meters during trials.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Another Marlin Record in Atlantic

John Battles, of St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, apparently has set a record for blue marlin in the Atlantic. He got a billfish weighing 814 pounds in a Virgin Islands tournament last Sunday. He fought the fish for one hour, five minutes on 80-pound-test line.

It was 13 feet, 8 inches long and 69 inches in girth. It topped by four pounds an Atlantic blue caught off Hatteras, N.C., by Gary Stukes in 1962. That fish was 13-1 in length and 68 in girth.

The International Game Fish Association draws a fine line between blue of the Atlantic and the Pacific blue. As a matter of fact, the IGFA calls the east coast fish just a "blue marlin," but it adds "Pacific" to the one that is caught off Hawaii.

Jack Whaling, Glendale, turned that little trick just two months ago off the Kona Coast when he landed a world-record Pacific blue (1,095 pounds) in 90 minutes on 110-pound-test tackle. The Hawaiians laugh at you if you try any line that is lighter.

The annual Hawaiian International Billfishing Tournament is just a few days away and there will be 67 to 70 teams competing Aug. 10 through Aug. 15 off Kailua-Kona, Hawaii. George Hoag II and wife, Patty, will be representing the Balboa Angling Club for the third time.

DR. PAUL SOUTHGATE, chairman of the Southern California Tuna Club's inter-club albacore tournament today and that's for today only—is hoping the longfins will show in numbers for the 10 teams which will be fishing, but he, like others, has doubts about it.

The albacore picture today is obscured by about 200 to 300 miles of ocean, which means that few boats, even the big private cruisers, will be able to run that distance and return. Even if they could, the fish would be illegal for the SCTC tournament because the boats would be in Mexican waters, not those of the U.S.

J. E. (Mac) McClintock, Pierpoint's general manager, gave the Tuna Club a rundown on the situation at its luncheon last week. As everybody knows, the longfins moved into the area around the 43-Mile Bank last weekend and all boats from every landing capable of making the run scored with heavy catches, both jig and bait.

The water temperature changed practically overnight and the albacore, not liking the 70-degree stuff, sought cooler areas. On Thursday and Friday those cooler areas, said McClintock, were 20 miles west of the Dumping Ground, which is west of Todos Santos Island, off the Baja California coast.

One bright spot in the situation turned up at midmorning Friday when Cookie Cook, skipper of Pierpoint's America, radiotelephoned that 40 passengers had 49 longfins aboard. He was 90 miles from Long Beach on a course 150 degrees from San Pedro Light, well within Mexican water, and were then six hours out.

HARRY AND FRANCES BUFFUM had the time of their lives at Boca Grande, a resort on Gasparelli Island off Fort Myers and Sarasota, Fla., catching tarpon for 15 days.

Harry told the Southern California Tuna Club about it at the Thursday luncheon. He said that Vaile G. (Bud) and Marjorie Young joined them for five days.

In those five days each angler averaged 4½ fish a day, one-half a fish down from what the oldtime experienced anglers do. Mrs. Buffum caught the largest—a 125-pounder.

They fished the shallow between the island and the mainland and Harry said that he believed the tarpon to be equal of any fighting fish in the ocean.

"The tarpon is a mighty and splendid fish while you are fighting him," he said, "but is not worth anything once in the boat. Nobody bothers to keep any unless it is for pictures or a mount. Practically all fish are released to fight again."

He is having a mount of a small 33-pounder done for the SCTC room in the Lafayette Hotel.

Oddly enough, the charter-boat skippers use a live bait, called the squirrel fish. If that is not available, a crab about the size of a dollar is used on a 4/0 hook. It's up to the angler to use whatever rod, reel and line he may choose.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—Paul Miller, former graduate and sailing coach of the United States Naval Academy, has returned to Long Beach and has established an Academy of Sailing at San Miller's Sailboats, Long Beach Marina (Bazaar Building). He also has started a sailing course at Holiday del Rey, Marina del Rey.

Paul is offering the courses to adults and children seven days a week with accelerated programs to families on vacation. He says that even though yacht clubs are conducting sailing courses, there are just too many persons asking for instruction and that there are just not enough teachers to go around. He and his wife, Peggy, plan to make Long Beach their permanent home.

The Kern River, both above and below Isabella Lake, has been yielding some lunker trout to residents of this area, says Barbara O'Donnell, of the Kern Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Some of the catches: Wayne Ferrin, Lomita, 5-pound, 1-ounce brown at Camp James; Dick Hansen, Long Beach, three rainbows, largest 5 pounds. An 8-year-old Kernville girl hooked a 7-pound rainbow at the Kernville bridge and her 10-year-old brother had to land if for her. Several anglers got limits of nice trout in the Brush Creek area.

Fish learn to recognize and avoid lures, but often a big old lunker falls for an oldtimer that has been on the market for years. Also, never underestimate the value of a gob of worms or a lively night crawler.

Newport Paddlers Set Pace

By DAVE TAYLOR

The Newport Outrigger Club dominated a field of five canoe club entries in the first State Championship Outrigger Regatta at Long Beach Marina Stadium Saturday.

The regatta, sponsored by Kalifornia Outrigger Assn., was originally to have been held in the ocean just north of Belmont Pier. The event was moved to Marina Stadium at the last minute when Long Beach City officials and the KOA ran into insurance snags.

Newport Outrigger Club's senior six captured the state championship by paddling the two-mile senior men's sprint in 13 minutes, 31 seconds. Santa Monica Outrigger Canoe Club was right behind at 16:32. Balboa Outrigger Club crewmen finished third.

* * * *

IN ALL, Newport Club paddlers took first place in five of the seven regatta events, while Santa Monica captured two first places.

The Newport and Santa Monica oarsmen took the spotlight as favored Southland crews to meet the challenger of Hawaiian clubs that will field boats in the sixth annual Channel Race from Catalina Island to Newport Beach scheduled Aug. 23.

Final standings:

Novice Men (half mile)—Newport Outrigger Club, 3:45; Santa Monica Outrigger Canoe Club; Balboa Outrigger Club.

14-Years-and-under (half mile) — Newport, 4:05; Santa Monica; California Canoe Club of Marina del Rey.

Miss Madison Sets Diamond Cup Pace

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP) — Miss Madison joined Miss Exide and Miss Eagle Electric as first-place winners of Saturday's three heats at the seventh annual Diamond Cup unlimited hydroplane race here.

Miss Madison, with Buddy Byers bearing down from the start, logged the fastest time of the day—but just barely.

Byers hit an average speed of 106.656 miles per hour in the final heat of the day. Miss Exide won heat 1-B at 106.508 mph with Bill Brow at the controls and Norm Evans guided the Miss Eagle Electric in Heat 1-A at 102.837 mph.

Bill Muncey, in charge of the Notre Dame, jumped the starting gun with the Tahoe Miss as 1-C got under way. He had to make an extra lap but finished at 82.291 mph and with a fat 300 points as Chuck Thompson saw his Tahoe Miss go dead in the water on the third lap.

* * * *

MISS Smirnoff, with Bill Cantrell at the wheel, had trouble at the start of 1-C and conked out.

Miss Exide and Miss Eagle Electric gained 400 points each for their first place efforts.

Second in heat 1-B was the Miss Bardahl with Ron Musson up. Bob Schroeder piloted the Miss Budweiser to third place and Fascination, with Bob Gilliam, aboard, was fourth.

Harvard Crew Wins by Length

NEW YORK (AP)—A Harvard University four with coxswain shell captured the feature race Saturday as nine finals were contested in the second day of the 90th National Rowing Championships.

Nine more finals today will complete the three-day regatta on Orchard Beach's 2,000-meter Olympic course.

Rowing with four men and the coxswain from its eight-oared crew, Harvard defeated Philadelphia's Schuylkill Navy composite by one length in 6:33.1.

Poly Five Unbeaten

Poly High remains unbeaten in the Dominguez High summer league with a 5-0 record. The Rabbits, led by Trent Gaines' 18 points, knocked Glendale from the unbeaten ranks in their last contest, 61-39.

SAD MORAL OF HORSE RACE BETTING:

You Can Win, But Still Lose

NEW YORK (AP) — The recent disqualification of the first three finishers in a race at Delaware Park emphasizes the hazards of betting on horses.

"You can win, but still lose."

This fact has been generally overlooked with the recent big payoffs in the twin doubles, such as the $132,232.80 April 28 at Roosevelt Raceway, a harness track in Westbury, N.Y.

This is the world record pay-off for a $2 bet, but don't think the group that collected bet just $2. It could happen, of couse, accounting for the interest of the small bettor in the TD. But ordinarily you have to bet a bunch of combinations at two bucks per to hit the jackpot.

In the case of the $132,232, the seven men in the group revealed they had bet $160 worth of combinations.

On top of everything, you have to be lucky, too.

For instance, there was a man who had four winners one night and still didn't cash a ticket. He didn't bet the horses straight but just played them in the daily double and twin double. He had one-half of the DD and three of the four winners in the TD. He won but still lost.

In another case, a bettor had four winners and collected on each—but he lost, too. It was a simple case of having only $2 on each winner and $20 on each losing race.

There is another case on record of a bettor who hit a five-horse parlay—ask any horse player the odds on that — but didn't collect a nickel. Why? Another easy answer—the last horse was disqualified.

And how about the player who collects a $20.20 daily double but loses $3.80 because he bet 12 combinations for $24?

The bettor accepts these hazards as part of the game, however, as attested by the steady increase in betting and attendance in the annual year-end surveys by The Associated Press.

In 1963 a total of $3,927,324,774 was bet at the nation's thoroughbred and harness racing tracks by 56,976,363 people. The various states collected in revenue $316,570,791 from this nearly $4 billion. Another $150 million or so went to the tracks, leaving $3.4 billion returned to the bettors.

If anyone shows a yearly profit betting the races, he understandably keeps it quiet. Usually the money that goes back to the bettors in effect passes around as in a poker game with 15 cents being taken out of each pot for refreshments. Sometimes someone hits a streak, but if he keeps betting, eventually he will lose.

The New York Racing Commission banned the daily double on thoroughbreds in 1946 because "it had assumed the proportions of a gigantic numbers game." But it was restored after a year because of popular demand.

Few horse players fail to grin at this story related years ago by Toney Betts of the defunct New York Mirror.

A friend marked the program for a newcomer to the tracks. In the first race he circled No. 10, "a cinch." In the second, No. 3, "you can borrow money on this one." In the third, No. 7 "will win by 20 lengths."

In the fourth it was No. 1, "a copper-riveted certainty." In the fifth No. 8 "will lead all the way." In the sixth No. 9 "as sure as death and taxes." In the seventh No. 5, "shift in weights make him a standout." In the eighth No. 2, "can't lose."

For the ninth and last race the pick was No. 4 "GET EVEN WITH THIS ONE."

Sizzling Win by Soldier Girl

16,238 See 3-Length Triumph

JOHNNY LONGDEN
Aboard Distaff Star

By ERNIE MASON

An elusive filly stole the glory from her male counterparts at Del Mar as Mr. and Mrs. John Tusquellas' Soldier Girl "double-timed" to an easy victory in the second division of the Oceanside Handicap before an impressed throng of 16,238, largest "first Saturday" crowd in this seaside track's history.

Soldier Girl, piloted by John Longden, negotiated the six-furlong distance in 1:08 4/5, a full second faster than the time registered by Royal Eiffel in capturing the opening section of the event for three-year-olds.

The swift daughter of Guerrero, lone distaffer in either division, blazed to the front a few steps after the start and improved her position thereafter, hitting the finish three lengths in advance of Sir Echo. Timely Pie was third.

* * * *

SOLDIER GIRL, owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Tusquellas, was the 3-5 favorite and returned $3.40, $3.20 and $3, while Sir Echo, ridden by Eddie Burns, paid $4.60 and $3.40 and Timely Pie paid $5.60.

Royal Eiffel's victory was accomplished in reverse fashion from Soldier Girl's, the Eiffel Tower colt rallying from well off the pace to win by 1½ lengths over War Helmet, with Emphil's Lodge third.

Royal Eiffel, a 6-5 favorite, was in sixth place early as Emphil's Lodge and Me 'n George duelled for the lead. Jerry Lambert, Army private on leave from Ft. Ord, urged Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hart's colorbearer into contention rounding the far turn, moved between horses in the stretch to take command and was drawing out at the end.

* * * *

ROYAL EIFFEL rewarded his backers with $4.40, $3.20 and $2.40, while War Helmet paid $4.60 and $2.80 and Emphil's Lodge paid $2.80.

Bold Experience Shatters String by Queen Empress

Compiled From Wire Reports

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP) — Bold Experience, a daughter of Bold Ruler from C.T. Chenery's Meadow Stable, got a measure of revenge Saturday when she snapped Queen Empress' string of victories at six and won the $100,000 Sorority Stakes for two-year-old fillies at Monmouth Park in record time.

The Meadow filly went into the six-furlong race with a record of three victories and three seconds in six starts, but she twice had bowed to the Queen.

Queen Empress, even-money favorite of the crowd of 30,717, had to settle for third money in the field of seven as Mrs. Milton Erlanger's Rhodie finished second after setting the early pace. Bold Experience, under the lashing drive of Bobby Ussery, scored by 2½ lengths with Rhodie another two lengths in front of Queen Empress.

The winner, earning $60,000 to boost her bank account to $130,340, paid $8.20, $4 and $2.40. Rhodie, also previously unbeaten in three starts, returned $3.40 and $2.40. Queen Empress paid $2.20 to show.

* * * *

STANLEY CONRAD'S Old Hat, scoring the greatest triumph of her career, completely scrambled the championship filly and mare picture Saturday at Delaware Park when she captured the $121,930 Delaware Handicap by 1¼ lengths.

Old Hat, ridden by Buck Thornburg and carrying the lightweight of 113 pounds, paid $36, $10.20 and $6.20. Miss Cavandish, meeting older stars for the first time, returned $4 and $3 and Waltz Song $11.60. The time for the 1¼ miles was 2:04.

* * * *

LAUGH ALOUD, a son of Tom Fool with a liking for grass race courses, closed with a rush in the Saturday for a two-length decision in the $29,450 Lexington Handicap at Aqueduct. Time was 1:43.

The crowd of 50,103 made Laugh Aloud the second choice. He paid $8.60, $5.20 and $3.80. Gun Boat paid $27.20 and $15.10 and National returned $5.60, Frenchbred Point du Jour, the favorite, was fourth.

FIRM FOUNDATION for this ROUND TOWER

BACKTRACKING IN TIME, above picture shows intricate web of steel forming 130-diameter foundation mat for 34-story Tower apartment building under construction at 660 E. Ocean Blvd. More than 385 tons of Bethlehem Steel Co. reinforcing bars were placed by Rebar Contractors to strengthen this mat, now covered with concrete and inner core of round high-rise being built by Henry Sassoon. Foundation picture was taken some weeks ago. Now, (see photo at right) core has been built nearly 300 feet high. Steel framing work is under way. Tower will contain some thousand tons of reinforcing bar supplied by Bethlehem. In photo at right, the 600 E. Ocean apartment building recently completed by Sassoon is seen at left of Tower. At far right stands Villa Riviera, long a coastal landmark in Long Beach. Angle from which photo was taken makes Tower appear much higher than the Villa; but actually they will be about the same height—a little over 300 feet above beach level.

IT TOOK two weeks of round-the-clock work to slip-form the 34-story inner core of The Tower, now under construction at 660 E. Ocean Boulevard by owner-builder Henry Sassoon.

The $7.5 million, 126-foot-diameter round building will contain more than 1,000 tons of Bethlehem Steel Co.'s reinforcing bars to strengthen the foundation mat, floor slabs, and inner and outer core walls.

Construction of the outer core wall will be with the slip form technique. Circular post-tensioned floor slabs will be poured in place by a "drop slab" method.

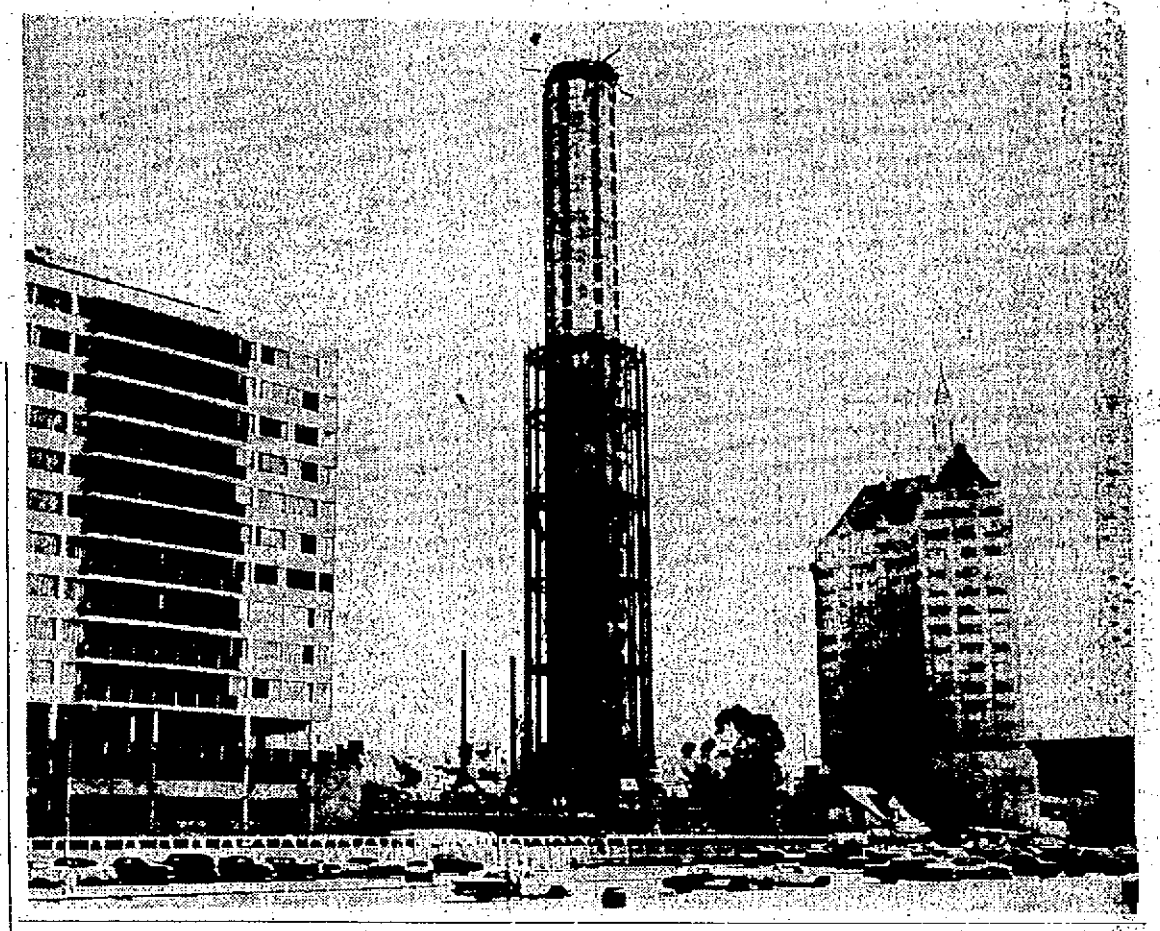

In this technique the first slab is poured at lobby level then raised to a predesignated floor. There it becomes a form for that floor's slab. The initial slab is lowered to act as a form on each succeeding floor level, until it reaches the first typical floor again.

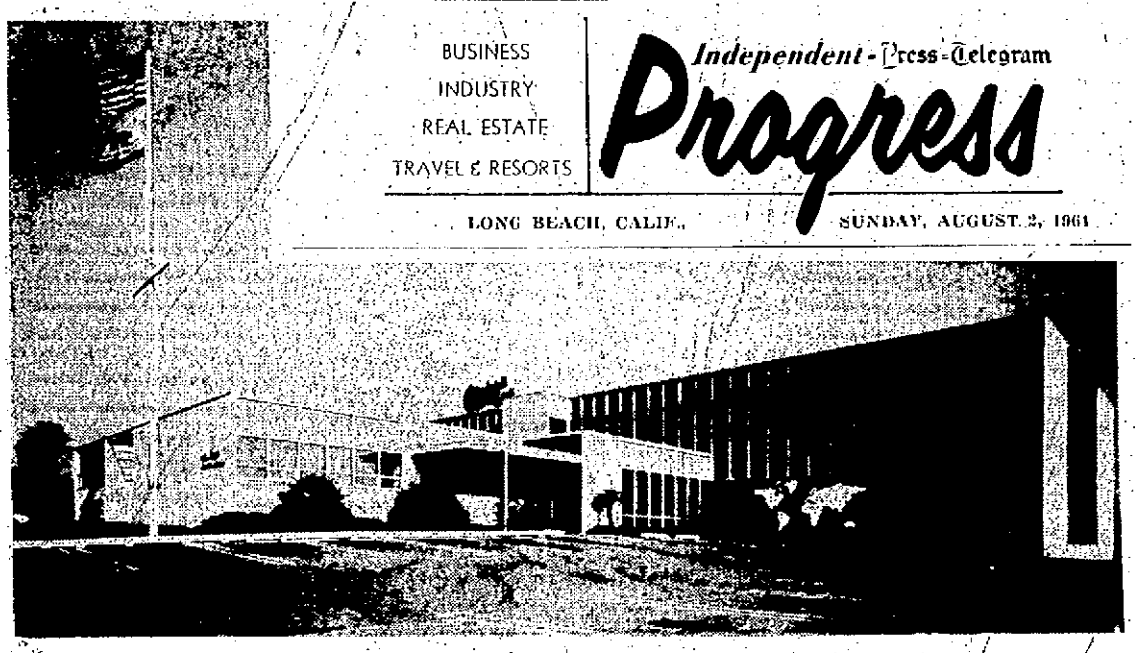

Floor slabs above the original predesignated level are poured in the same manner.

Designed by Carl B. Troedsson, architect, The Tower will have four garage levels with a 216-car capacity, one lobby floor, 25 typical apartment floors for 200 apartments, one penthouse floor for four apartments, plus a roof and machinery level. A helistop is planned for the top level.

VAN CAMP HEADQUARTERS, PORT OF LONG BEACH

WORLD'S LARGEST TUNA CANNER

Sea Food Company Notes 50th Year

By VERN ANTHONY
Editor of Progress Section

Van Camp Sea Food Co., with international headquarters at 840 Van Camp St., Port of Long Beach, is celebrating 50 years of leadership in the United States tuna industry.

The firm, world's largest tuna canner, began packing tuna June 6, 1914, in a plant located near its present cannery facilities on Terminal Island.

* * * *

TODAY, the Long Beach offices direct a constantly expanding worldwide organization employing more than 5,000 persons.

From its beginning in San Pedro, the company has expanded operations to include facilities in Puerto Rico, American Samoa, Ecuador, Peru, Sierra Leone, Ivory Coast, Palau, Indonesia and Aden, with others planned within the near future.

During these 50 years its brands have become the world's most popular tuna, with an annual consumption of more than 200 million cans.

* * * *

THE FIRST long-range bait boat tuna fleet was sponsored by Van Camps in the mid 20's. They also were the first to encourage the use of refrigeration to insure the highest possible quality and increase the vessel range.

Van Camps introduced purse seining for tuna on the Pacific Coast and were the first to pack light meat tuna—now the most popular tuna packed.

They were the first to launch a world wide network to find the best possible tuna.

* * * *

THE MAN behind the men who wrote the 50-year success story was Gilbert C. Van Camp, Sr., who was honored last week with a 50-year service award, presented by Gilbert C. Van Camp, Jr., who assumed the presidency of the company in 1957.

The Van Camp Sea Food Co. became a division of Ralston Purina Company, St. Louis, in July, 1963.

50-YEAR SERVICE AWARD

"The man behind the men" is symbolized by a 50-year service award presented to Gilbert C. Van Camp Sr. by Gilbert C. Van Camp Jr., president of the Van Camp Sea Food Co. This special award was made during celebration of the 50th anniversary of Van Camp Sea Food Co., Port of Long Beach. The company, now the world's largest tuna canner, began canning tuna in the Long Beach-San Pedro area June 6, 1914.

Retired Rear Admiral Named to Supervise Shipyards Work

SAN PEDRO — A retired Navy rear admiral has been employed by Todd Shipyards to supervise the company's construction of 14 destroyer escorts.

John T. Gilbride, company president, announced in New York that Leroy V. Honsinger has been named manager of shipbuilding, effective Saturday, to coordinate engineering, planning, procurement and production in the project announced last week.

* * * *

SEVEN of a total contract for 26 destroyer escorts of a new DE-1052 class will be built in the company's San Pedro yard, and seven more will be built in its Seattle yard. The Seattle division will be the "lead yard" in the program and will build the prototype, Gilbride said.

Honsinger's 40-year career in the Navy included a stint as commander of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard in 1954 and 1955. He spent more than 20 years in shipyard assignments of an industrial management capacity and 10 years in Washington, D.C.

Since his retirement, he has been with a Watertown, Mass., firm as manager of production and purchasing.

Employes Share in Cost Savings

Employes at the Kaiser Steel plant in Fontana received an extra $291,909 last month as their share of cost savings made in steelmaking operations during June under the Kaiser Steel-United Steel workers Long Range Sharing Plan, it was announced by company and union officials.

The $291,909 was distributed among 5,191 participating employes and averaged 34c an hour. The 34c an hour was divided into cash payments averaging 23c per hour, with 11c an hour going into the wage and benefit reserve earmarked for employe benefits negotiated since the start of the plan.

Employes' total share of the cost savings was nearly the same as May, but double the April share of cost savings.

Condominium History Made as Residents Assume Management

A milestone in Southern California real estate history was passed last week when, for the first time, management of a major privately financed condominium project was turned over to its individual home owners.

Developer Ray Watt of Hawthorne announced that management and administration of the $19 million community of Scottsdale Town Houses now is in the hands of the condominium residents.

Scottsdale Town Houses, a 600-home development, is at 23400 Avalon Boulevard, corner of Sepulveda, in Wilmington. The maximum population is expected to be approximately 3,000, making Scottsdale a city within itself.

* * * *

THE TRANSFER of authority and control come after an organization meeting of the residents, held in accordance with the management agreement signed by condominium owners at the time each home was purchased.

A 15-man board of Governors, all residents of Scottsdale, was elected by majority vote of the home owners.

At the organization meeting and election, held in the Scottsdale Town Hall, Watt traced the steps which led up to the history-making action to the more than 800 adults.

* * * *

"THERE WAS VERY LITTLE precedent for the steps we have taken and are taking," Watt said. "We have pioneered together in determining both the legal requirements and practical plans necessary to make your home ownership and hopefully your lives at Scottsdale Town Houses the rewarding experience we all wish them to be.

"When this concept of a privately financed, owned and operated condominium community was first advanced two years ago," Watt recalled, "we immediately began planning for this final step. The management agreement was prepared to assure you that you would indeed be administering your own affairs here, and at a pre-determined time.

* * * *

"DURING THE PAST several months, we have worked closely with you in the formation of your many committees and groups to give you the opportunity to work together and prepare for the management responsibility."

Heart of Scottsdale Town Houses is its Town Hall, which serves both as a recreation center and a meeting place in the tradition of the Old New England Town Hall meetings.

Prior to the organization meeting and election, members of Watt's legal staff and other corporate executives

ELECTION CAREFULLY PLANNED

Developer Ray Watt (left) explains advanced planning that went into preparation of ballots used for election of the first Board of Governors at Scottsdale Town Houses. Direct interest was shown by Mrs. Verna Warner, chairman of the Scottsdale Women's Club; Howard Frantom, chairman of the Residents' Nominating Committee, and Jack Moyer, management agent. Management of condominium project of 600 homes was turned over to individual residents last week.

Matson Again Pares Hawaii Freight Rate

Another Hawaii freight rate reduction which, in effect, wipes out the 9.8% increase that went into effect March, 1962, has been announced by Stanley Powell Jr., Matson Lines president.

This rollback will save Hawaii rate payers $3.5 million per year.

"This reduction coupled with other rate adjustments made by Matson since 1962 will save Hawaii's rate payers $7.2 million a year," Powell said.

A comprehensive series of rate reductions covering almost the entire range of consumer items will be filed July 27 to become effective August 27, Powell said.

* * * *

THE LOWERED freight rates will complete the cancellation of the last across-the-board rate increase which took effect March 9, 1962, and will include substantial reductions of joint through rates with mainland carriers, Powell explained.

"Matson's ability to effect these significant downward adjustments in rates is directly related to the improvements which have resulted from the investment of over $30 million in the company's container system and freight fleet," Powell said.

"It is a continuation of the trend of lowering Hawaii's freight bill in recent years which has been accomplished through containerization and the development of other specialized services for the Islands."

* * * *

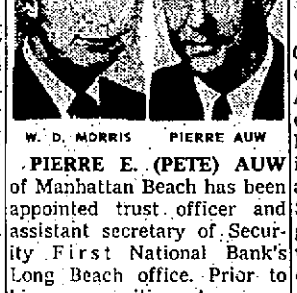

ANOTHER FACTOR of importance to the company in supporting the decision to pass on savings of this magnitude was the recent decision by the Secretary of Commerce which ruled that Matson's unsubsidized operation would not have to face added competition from a subsidized operator, Powell said.

"The sharing of financial improvements with Hawaii's rate payers is particularly gratifying in view of the continuing upward pressure of wage costs and other products and services the company must pay for," Powell said.

Matson launched its containerization system for Hawaii in 1958. Since that time, in addition to the $30 million already invested in the container system and other fleet improvements, the company has earmarked another $14 million to provide sufficient container capacity to accommodate 100 per cent of Hawaii's containerizable cargo.

Easterner Shows Confidence in L.B. Area--Buys Mortgage Loans

Expressing strong confidence in mortgage investments in the Long Beach-Orange County area, Richard E. Hale, president of First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Boston, during a visit to Southern California last week, agreed to purchase $2 million of government insured (FHA/VA) mortgage loans from City & Suburban Mortgage Co., approved mortgagee, headquartered in Long Beach.

"Favorable yield, attractive security, and home buyers of good habits and credit standing, all add up to a healthy real estate market in this area. This commitment to purchase an additional $2 million brings our total investment being serviced by City & Suburban Mortgage Co. to over $6 million, and certainly is indicative of our confidence in the investments offered," said Hale.

* * * *

JAMES A. EDMONDS, JR., president of City & Suburban Mortgage Co., took Hale and Vice President Robert G. Ingraham on an inspection of the metropolitan areas where the mortgage loans purchased by First Federal are located, bringing the officers up to date on current real estate developments, industrial growth, population increase and employment stability.

Edmonds stated that delinquencies were at a minimum—another indicator of the stability of mortgage loans as an investment for eastern and midwest investors.

City & Suburban Mortgage Co. originates conventional and insured residential loans, along with commercial, industrial and special purpose loans in Los Angeles and Orange counties, for life insurance companies, savings and loan associations, savings banks and other institution investors.

LBJ Subscribes to Lad's Paper

BELFRY, Ky. (UPI) — Ten-year-old Terry Keesee's newspaper is small by most standards—a two-page weekly, circulation 150.

Its list of subscribers is impressive, though, for among them is President Johnson.

Terry's father managed to get press credentials to enable the boy to meet the President when he visited in Eastern Kentucky. Later, the President's office wrote and requested a subscription.

met in the Town Hall tradition with Scottsdale residents on three occasions to discuss the many ratifications of the transfer of management.

On many other occasions, Watt executives met informaliy with special groups in preparation for the transfer.

BECAUSE of the importance of the election of the first Board of Governors, the Beverly Hills firm of Kenneth Leventhal & Co., certified public accountants, was retained by Watt to serve both as pre-election consultants and to conduct the election, count ballots, and certify results. Leventhal staffers served as election clerks and ballot counters.

In sequence, an informal election notice was sent the residents. A nominating committee of residents canvassed the entire community and interviewed persons interested in serving on the Board of Governors. A formal election notice was mailed, together with an application for a ballot, a nomination petition, an acceptance nomination statement (which had to be notarized), an election fact sheet, proxy instructions for those who might not be able to attend and a proxy form.

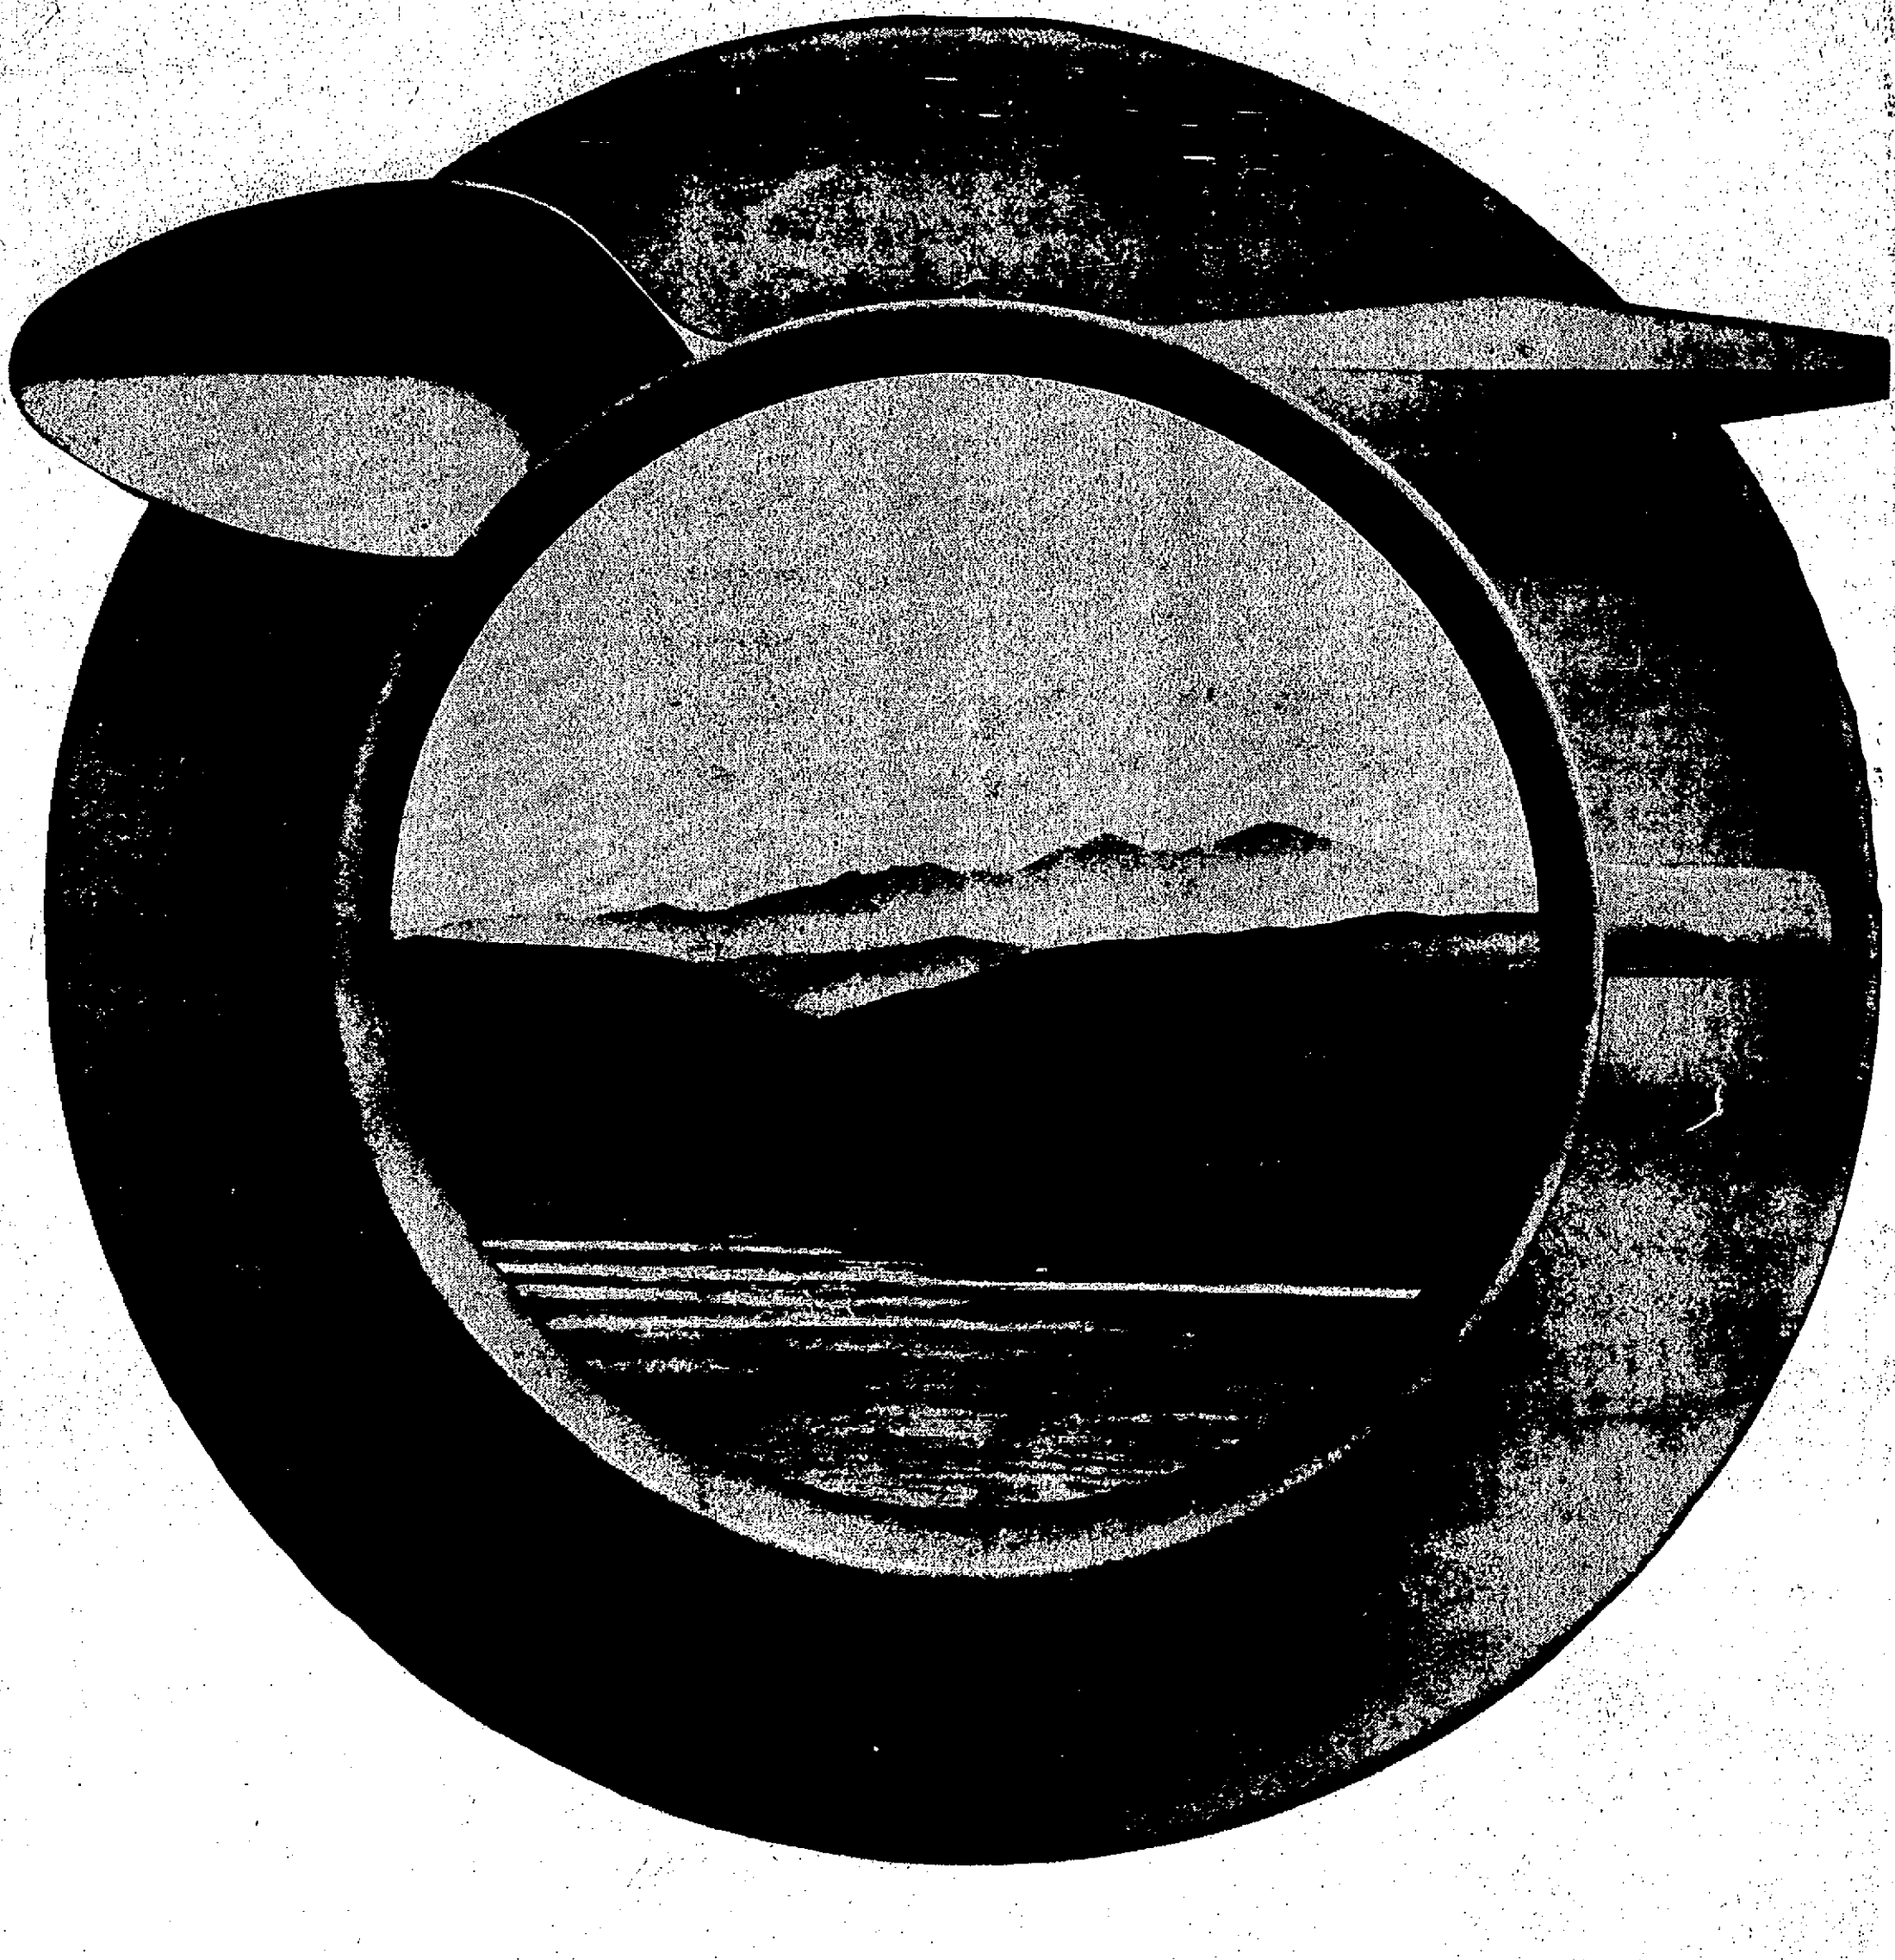

* * * *

WATT EXECUTIVES called a special meeting the week before the election at which time 30 of the 31 candidates for the board expressed their views or "platform." Prior to this meeting, sample ballots were distributed, and a form even was provided for use in the event of a lost ballot.

Watt was high in his praise for the qualifications of the candidates for the Board of Governors. Included among the 31 nominees for the 15 seats were a banker, a municipal financial consultant, a project engineer, a compensation administrator, a cost controller, a realtor, an insurance broker, a minister and several engineers and sales executives.

Ballots resembled an official municipal ballot, and voting booths and other election paraphernalia were rented from the County of Los Angeles for the occasion. Election results were posted within an hour and a half after the polls closed.

Sales of Little Cigars Soaring

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sales of cigarette-size little cigars are showing a sensational rise, according to the Tobacco Merchants Association of the United States. In April, they totaled 132.5 million, compared with 16.1 million in April, 1963. Sales of little cigars for the first four months of the year rose to 479.5 million, up almost 600% from the first four months of 1963 and more than for all of last year. One firm (Stephano Bros.) has a complete family of little cigars—plain tip, filter mouthpiece and a filter-tip with a light menthol taste.

CONTEST OPEN TO PUBLIC

Name Sought for Harbor Pilot Boat

A public contest to name a new $172,788 Port of Los Angeles pilot boat has been announced by Bernard J. Caughlin, port general manager.

Now under construction in Stockton, the all-steel hull craft, which will replace the 33-year-old "Stephen M. White," is 66 feet long, 18 feet wide and will be radar and fathometer-equipped. She is expected to be delivered to the pilot station in September for time trials and christening.

A second boat, the smaller "Amos A. Fries," will be kept in service.

* * * *

"THE NEW BOAT," Caughlin said, "will be used to help ferry 17 port pilots to and from more than 8,000 ocean-going vessels arriving and leaving the Port of Los Angeles annually."

"Our civil service pilots perform one of the most important and responsible duties of any in the harbor and the new boat will help improve this vital service," Caughlin emphasized.

Prizes for the winner will be a $50 globe transister radio, symbolizing the great world trade role which the port plays, and the first official ride on the new pilot boat.

* * * *

DEADLINE for receiving entries is Tuesday. Any person may enter by mailing one boat name only, his name, address and telephone number to:

Port of Los Angeles, Public Relations Division, P.O. Box 151, San Pedro.

Caughlin said that boat names may be based on geographical locations, historical and/or important personages, or any other category which is pertinent. Entries will be judged on aptness, brevity and imagination.

* * * *

CLIFFORD LANGE
Speaker from Anaheim

"Invasion of Privacy" to Be Topic Tuesday

"Invasion of Privacy"—including wiretapping—will be discussed at the Tuesday breakfast meeting of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, it was announced last week by Les Vaughn, program chairman.

Speaker will be Clifford Lange, president of Lange Industries, Anaheim. His firm sells electronic surveillance equipment to cities and industries. Lange is said to feel that wiretapping is unnecessary in this scientific age.

The breakfast is at 7:15 o'clock, at the Crown Cafeteria.

Census Gives Lowdown on Commuting Workers

One out of every four of the more than 40 million workers residing in the nation's metropolitan areas is a commuter, according to a survey made by the U.S. Bureau of the Census. More than a quarter of the commuters are women.

Commuters are suburbanites who work in the central city or outside their own metropolitan areas, or in reverse are city dwellers who earn their livelihood outside the city limits.

Residents of the suburban ring who work in the central city make up by far the largest single block of the 10 million total of commuters.

The Census Bureau tabulation based on the 1960 count of the population lists 7½ million of these who from the popular point of view make up the public image of the typical suburbanite.

* * * *

SEVEN out of every eight of the suburban commuters work in the central city around which they make their homes. Many of the others work in a neighboring metropolis like New York around which are clustered a number of heavily populated areas in New Jersey and Connecticut with their own metropolitan ranking.

While the early morning rush of suburbanites into the city is going on, some 2½ million others are outward bound. These are urban dwellers whose paycheck comes from a job outside the city proper, mostly in the suburbs.

* * * *

THE LONG Beach and Los Angeles area, with its complex of space and electronics establishments in the surrounding ring, has an unusually large number of these.

Particularly high proportions are found in a handful of smaller metropolitan areas in the South and West around which sizable military installations are located.

The Census Bureau survey covers 190 metropolitan areas with 100,000 or more inhabitants. Taken together, these areas had a population of 111 million in the last census, or more than three-fifths of that for the country as a whole.

* * * *

THE FIGURES show that population size is not an automatic determinant of a metropolitan area's position in the commuting scale.

Washington, for example, smallest of the Big Ten, ranks first as a commuting center on a proportional basis. More than a third of the workers residing in and around the nation's capital were reported as commuters in the census data, and the ratio is just under half for its suburbanites alone.

Even higher proportions of commuting from the suburbs are found in a significant number of metropolitan areas in various parts of the country, led by Rochester, Winston-Salem, Durham, Muskegon, Baton Rouge, and Honolulu.

* * * *

NEW YORK, despite its size, was particularly low in the ratio of overall commuting with only about one of every eight workers in its metropolitan area qualifying. Its proportion of one-third for suburbanites alone was lower than the national average.

However, its standing in this and other respects is affected by the fact that the Census Bureau definition of the New York metropolitan area excludes the big number of commuters into the city from adjoining states.

With its large number of reverse commuters, the Long Beach-Los Angeles metropolitan area had a commanding numerical lead over all others. Its 679,000 commuters in the census count topped both New York and Chicago by over 200,000.

30c Dividend by Broadway

Directors of Broadway-Hale Stores, Inc., have declared a quarterly divided of 30 cents a share on the outstanding stock payable Aug. 31, to stockholders of record Aug. 14, without closing the stock transfer books. This compares with recent quarterly dividends of 25c per share. In announcing the increase, Edward W. Carter, president, said, "Today's dividend action reflects the company's favorable sales and earnings results to date and the directors' confidence in the prospects for the balance of fiscal 1964."

Tropical Drink for Canadians

LOUISVILLE (UPI) — Add unlikely business sites: an orange juice plant in Hamilton, Ontario.

New Rod Memory Computer 'Faster'

First commercial computer with a revolutionary "thin film" main memory said to be up to eight times faster than previous models was made available recently by National Cash Register Co., it has been anounced at the NCR office in Long Beach at 2760 Atlantic Ave.

George E. Carson, area manager, said the new computer, designated the 315 RMC (Rod Memory Computer), operates at a basic speed of 800 nanoseconds (billionths of a second).

The Rod Memory Computer is the newest addition to NCR's 315 data processor family, Carson said. He noted that the computer was designed to expand business data processing applications extending from payroll accounting to instant inventory control. It is available, he said, with a wide range of supplementary equipment.

COMPUTER'S MEMORY IMPROVED

New NCR 315 RMC (Rod Memory Computer) shown above stores data on tiny wire rods plated with a magnetic thin film. Here, Marie Coates displays several of the hair-like rods which—inserted through a stack of solenoid coil planes—form a memory module (shown on the desk top). The new computer memory, half the size of a standard 315 core-type memory and eight times faster, can store up to 240,000 digits of information and execute some 100,000 instructions a second.

Hawaiian Gardens to Have New School

Construction is expected to begin in several weeks on new Del Amo Intermediate School at Hawaiian Gardens, it was disclosed last week.

Low bidders on the project, at $689,500, were Albert Reingardt and Frank Smoak, a joint venture, of 3631 Atlantic Ave., Long Beach. Completion is scheduled by May of 1965.

The school was designed by the firm of Duffy & Dreher, AIA, of 2631 Atlantic Ave. It will include an administration building and three classroom structures.

* * * * *

EACH BUILDING will consist of six standard classrooms surrounding a multi-purpose room large enough to accommodate all the students in the adjacent classrooms.

In one classroom building a kitchen will be installed to provide hot lunches for students. The lunches will be delivered to the other buildings by the use of electric hot food carts.

The present project will provide for 540 students. The ultimate enrollment is established at 900 students when two more classroom buildings are completed.

* * * * *

THIS PROJECT provides for new streets, water and sewer mains, landscaping and fencing the entire site of 20 acres. The project will relieve the half-day schedules in the Bloomfield District.

The Bloomfield School Board has commissioned the architectural firm to design a new kindergarten to sixth grade school which will be located in the southern part of the district where many new apartment buildings are under construction.

Belmont Savings Declares Dividend

The Board of Directors of Belmont Savings and Loan Association last week declared a 20c per share cash dividend to the stockholders of record Aug. 4, payable Aug. 18.

William J. Crawford, president of the association, stated this payment, together with a similar cash dividend paid in February, brings the total distributions declared for 1964 to 40c per share.

Hutton Issues Report on Mutual Fund Study

Profit-taking and selectivity marked the market action of the nation's top professional portfolio managers last quarter.

The purchases and sales of common stock by 52 of the country's leading mutual funds and investment companies are the subject of a well-know quarterly study by E. F. Hutton's Investment Research Department which Charles Barrington, manager of E. F. Hutton's Long Beach Office, released last week.

Barrington, whose office is located at 219 East Broadway, had this to say:

"Changes in the holdings of the largest investment companies are often indications of trends taking shape in the market."

* * * * *

HE POINTED to recent profit taking in American Telephone & Telegraph and du Pont where several funds sold off large blocks, taking advantage of the upswings in these issues without totally eliminating their holdings. Profit-taking centered in the airlines, too, where sales outbalanced purchases. Airlines have been moving briskly in the market this year.

The Hutton study also shed light on the fund's interest in public utilities. If fund activity is any indication, things may be looking bright in this industry. Still, fund moves were thoroughly selective.

Purchases in Southern California Edison, for instance, contrasted with sales in Florida Power and Light. Barrington noted that the largest single fund purchase of the quarter in numbers of shares was in public utilities where a major fund increased already sizable holdings in Central Illinois Public Service.

* * * * *

A STAND-OFF prevailed in the steel group. Buying and selling was well-paired, but the leaning definitely was toward the buy side in terms of number of shares purchased.

On-balance selling in the office equipment stocks continued a trend started in the previous quarter, emphasized by profit-taking in Xerox, a growth favorite.

"All in all," Barrington said, "Hutton's newest study of fund buying and selling in the market proved once more that we have a market of stocks and not a stock market. Like so many of us in the market, the smart money is profiting where it can today and looking for the bright lights of tomorrow."

California Seen as Biggest Life Insurance State by '68

New York continued during 1963 to have more life insurance in force than any other state. But California, in second place, had by far the largest dollar increase in life insurance.

Many other states showed larger percentage increases than either New York or California.

The Institue of Life Insurance reports that New York ended the year with nearly $83.4 billion of life insurance in force, an increase of $4.9 billion or 6.3% over 1962.

* * * * *

CALIFORNIA'S total was nearly $72.5 billion at year-end, an increase of $6.3 billion or 9.5%. The Institute estimates, that, if present trends continue, California will overtake New York as the biggest life insurance owner by the end of 1968.

For a nation as a whole, total life insurance in force climbed to $730.6 billion at the end of 1963, an increase of $54.6 billion or 8.1%. California accounted for about 11½% and New York about 9% of the nation's increase.

* * * * *

NEW YORK'S $48.7 billion of ordinary life insurance protection was well ahead of California's $39.1 billion. But California's $27.1 billion of group insurance nearly equaled New York's $27.9 billion. California may become the biggest group life insurance owner during 1968.

California's $4.6 billion of credit life insurance was well ahead of New York's $4.1 billion at the end of 1963.

Pennsylvania had by far the largest amount of industrial life insurance, over $3.5 billion. Ohio, with over $2.4 billion, also outranked third place New York, which had slightly less than $2.6 billion.

Shipbuilding Gains; Japan Holds Lead

In the latest returns issued by Lloyd's Register of Shipping, the well-known International Classification Society, it is reported that for the quarter ended June 30th, 1964, there were under construction throughout the world 1,454 steamships and motorships of 9,673,963 tons gross; an increase of 187,423 tons since the last quarter.

Sharing in this upsurge, the United States had increased its volume to 487,082 tons, an advance of 131,081 tons over the March 1964 quarter.

Thus, American shipyards have overtaken Norway and Spain over the last three months.

* * * * *

JAPAN continues to overshadow the achievements of other countries, with a total of 2,353,232 tons, an increase of 151,905 tons over the March quarter.

For Great Britain and Northern Ireland the shipyards had under construction 171 ships of 1,543,533 tons gross, which is 62,574 tons less than the previous quarter. A new record also has been established for Sweden with an aggregate of 874,570 tons. A late entrant into the shipbuilding industry, Brazil, in a space of four and a half years is now producing 129,080 tons gross.

Due to an unusually high figure of completions, Italy's total dropped to 579,942 tons from 678,959 tons in the March 1949, with a total of 229,743 tons gross.

First Western Chief Named

The board of directors of First Western Bank & Trust Co. elected Stewart Cosgriff of Los Angeles president of its statewide branch banking system; Josef Beles, comptroller; and Robert B. Shears, vice president.

S. COSGRIFF

Cosgriff, former vice chairman of the board, joined First Western in 1961.

He is a director of the Potash Company of America and American Crystal Sugar Company and a former member of the board of directors of the Denver branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City.

A banker for 40 years, Cosgriff, prior to joining First Western, served as president of the Denver National Bank and when the Denver National and United States National banks merged in 1959, he was named chairman and chief executive officer of Denver U.S. National Bank, the combined organization.

Port Board Lauds Todd

Todd Shipyard, San Pedro Division, was congratulated and commended in a letter from the Los Angeles Board of Harbor Commissioners recently on the yard's new $75,029,930 contract to build seven destroyer escorts.

In lauding the company, the board and staff of the Harbor Department said the contract will be a "great economic lift" for Harbor area communities and for the Los Angeles area as well.

The letter also said that it is gratifying to know that Todd Shipyard has such "outstanding competitive ability" in bidding against yards from the Atlantic, Gulf and Great Lakes areas.

The board and staff letter also commended the yard for its previous construction projects.

'Copter Sales by Hughes Gain

LOS ANGELES — Hughes helicopters accounted for an even 50 per cent of all U.S. commercial 'copter deliveries during the first quarter of 1964.

Rea E. Hopper, vice president of Hughes Tool Co.'s aircraft division, also announced that sales of the company's compact helicopter accounted for 41 per cent of the industry total during the calendar year of 1963. That was up from a 27 per cent share of the market for 1962, the first full year of sales activity for Hughes helicopters.

THROUGH MID-1965 AT LEAST

B of A Economists See Nation's 41-Month-Old 'Boom' Continuing

The nation's 41-month-old economic "boom" — one of the longest in history—will continue through at least the middle of next year, according to a special mid-year report prepared by Bank of America's Economics Research Department.

The 19-page report prepared for internal bank use only, outlines expected developments in the economy of the nation and of California, and in specific areas of the economy which reflect those developments.

* * * *

HIGHLIGHTS of the trends expected during the next 12 months include:

—A continued sustained rise for California's economy, with a slight decline in the unemployment rate, more consumer spending, some decline in construction activity and another big year for agriculture.

—Growth of the Gross National Product from $600 billion in the fourth quarter of 1963 to $639 billion in the last quarter of 1964, an increase of 6½ per cent.

—Slower expansion during the first half of 1965, but with the economy still climbing.

* * * *

—PLANT AND equipment expenditures during 1964 to be about 12 per cent above the 1963 level.

—Not much likelihood of renewed inflation, because the projected combination of increased business and consumer demand is not likely to press hard upon the capacity of the economy to produce through mid-1965.

—A more rapid increase in employment than in recent years, and some improvement in the unemployment rate. However, unemployment is not expected to be much below 5 per cent by mid-1965, and will still be far short of the 4 per cent level widely accepted as "full employment."

* * * *

—CONSUMER SPENDING to reach record levels during 1964. This should include a record year for auto sales, as well as increased spending on other durable goods.

—Continued high activity in housing construction during 1964, but new housing starts are expected to decline moderately from the highs of early 1964.

—Slower increase in government spending.

—Smaller deficits on balance of payments.

—Not so much danger of sharply rising interest rates as seemed likely earlier this year, although an upward pressure is expected to develop as 1964 progresses.

INDOOR POOLS MORE POPULAR

Indoor swimming pools are rapidly gaining in popularity all over the nation, reports the National Swimming Pool Institute. The covering, with exposed beams as shown here, is not too expensive for such a large area and with such an improvement summer relaxation, fun and fitness are possible all year. In the Southern California area where outdoor swimming is possible all year, pool owners are taking to the coverings to cut down on pool maintenance costs. Sliding glass doors and some roof vents allow air flow during hot months. A generous deck area will permit gracious entertaining at poolside the year around.

U.S. Plants Make More Use of Automatic Control Systems

Out of the 31,800 manufacturing plants in the U. S. with 100 employes or more, some 20,800—two-thirds of them—are involved with automatic control systems.

Control Engineering, McGraw-Hill publication, in explaining this survey, declares that the figures do not mean that two-thirds of U.S. plants are automated. It does mean that these plants use automatic control systems, a highly specific means to automation.

* * * *

AUTOMATION, as the word is commonly used, means making an end manufacturing process more automatic or mechanized. A control system measures and controls specific variables in a given machine or process.

It was found that some 4,400 of the plants incorporate automatic controls into end products—and many of those are machines designed for another company's automation.

But nearly all plants involved with control systems —20,300 out of the 20,800— are applying them directly to plant operations.

Pacific Island Village Homes Go on Display

One of the first planned communities with fully coordinated architecture is Pacific Island Village which will stage its public open house today.

A project of the Douglass Construction Co. of California, Pacific Island Village is unique in that the architectural stylings of the series of homes are a matter of coordinated unity instead of a mixture of stylings.

Don L. Ward, project sales manager, announced 111 homes will be constructed in the first unit with homes in the Monterey Villa, Contempia Court, Imperial Garden and California Ranch series.

* * * *

WITH MODELS now open, Ward also announced that the moving of 1.5 million yards of earth will allow the Pacific Island Village homes unobstructed views of the ocean and mountains. He said 99% of the homes will have views.

Pacific Island Village, located within the 7,000-acre Laguna Niguel master community, is built atop a coastal plateau between 700 and 900 feet above sea level. When the community is complete, its 222 acres will hold 700 dwellings.

The master plan calls for six swimming pools, active party areas and other recreational facilities.

* * * *

INDIVIDUAL homes are from two bedrooms with one large bath to four bedrooms and 2½ baths. The homes selling conventionally from $244,500 are one and two-story structures.

The $22 million community is planned and developed for anyone over 18 years of age. A neighborhood shopping center and the Pacific Island Club with its recreation, dining and social activities will be constructed soon.

Ward said residents are eligible to join the El Niguel Country Club, the El Niguel Riding Club and the Monarch Bay Beach Club.

Pacific Island Village's models are reached via the Santa Ana-San Diego Freeway to the Crown Valley Parkway turn-off or Pacific Coast Hwy.

11,730 Paid $40.5 Million at Fullerton in Six Months

FULLERTON — The six largest industries in Fullerton paid nearly $40.5 million in wages and salaries during the first six months of this year, the Fullerton Chamber of Commerce disclosed last week.

David E. McNabb, manager of the booster body's business development department, said the six firms employed 11,730 workers during this period.

Hughes Aircraft Co. ground systems group, with 4,800 employes, is the city's largest employer. Beckman Instruments, Inc., also an electronics plant, had a payroll of 3,000.

Hunt Foods and Industries, Inc., employed 1,449 regular workers and 1,000 seasonal help.

Kimberly-Clark Corp. had 525 on its payroll; Autonetics had 500 workers; and Fruehauf Corp.'s military systems division had 465.

McNabb said that for every 100 payrolls, 65 jobs in service industries can be created.

Needs for Successful Urban Renewal Told

"The most successful urban renewal disposition program is one that has been preceded by a sound planning and acquisition program that has created a saleable product, with site conditions and urban renewal controls patterned to what the local market is buying."

This advice to local public agencies of the Urban Renewal Administration is contained in a special report by the Urban Renewal Advisory Committee of the Society of Industrial Realtors issued recently to all such agencies throughout the country.

* * * *

"URBAN RENEWAL marketing activity must be both imaginative and realistic in its interpretations of the potentials of the real estate market," the report states.

Published in pamphlet form, the report was prepared by the society's committee in response to a request from Commissioner William L. Slayton of the Urban Renewal Administration.

KEN McCAFFERTY
Retires After 35 Years

McCafferty Ends Career With Sears

Ken McCafferty, advertising assistant in the Sears, Roebuck and Co. group office, covering the 16 stores in Los Angeles and Orange Counties, retired Friday.

McCafferty, a Long Beach resident for the entire time, had been with the company more than 35 years. He is 59 years old and resides at 5630 Walnut Ave.

He was one of the persons who helped open the Long Beach Sears store in September, 1928. Thirty years of his service were spent in the local store. In 1958 he was promoted to the position from which he retired, in the group office in Los Angeles.

While advertising manager for the Long Beach store McCafferty served as president of the Long Beach Ad Club and president of the Long Beach Council of Service Clubs. He taught advertising in the adult division of Long Beach City College at one time, and has authored technical articles on color and layout in national publications.

* * * *

HE SERVED as chairman of the Promotion Committee of the Long Beach Retailers and as a member of the Advertising Advisory Committee of the Better Business Bureau.

He is a 32nd degree Mason and a life member of the Long Beach Consistory. He was one of the original group that conceived the idea and started El Bekal Shrine Temple, of which he is a charter member.

He has served as a member of the Salvation Army Advisory Board, the board of directors of the Long Beach Association for Poliomyelitis, the Physical Education Committee of the YMCA and has worked in many other civic activities including the Community Chest and local PTAs.

325% Increase in Earnings

LOS ANGELES — Clarence J. Woodard, president of The Rucker Co., announced the electro-hydraulic systems firm has shown a substantial increase in both sales and earnings in the second quarter of 1964 over the first quarter of 1964, as well as for the first six months of 1964 over the same period last year.

Sales for the six months ending June 30th totaled $5,227,636, compared with $3,421,268 for the same period in 1963, representing an increase of 53%.

Earnings of 33c per share for the first six months ending June 30th represented an unusual increase of 325%.

Another Expansion for Walker & Lee

Opening of a new Walker & Lee, Inc. resale office to handle all real estate sales for Ventura County and northwest Los Angeles County, was announced by Frank R. Hart, executive vice president of the growing company.

He also announced appointment of John Johnson, formerly manager of Walker & Lee sub-division sales in the Torrance area, as supervisor of all sales activity for the office.

The new headquarters, located at 166 Moorpark Rd., Thousand Oaks, will be staffed to "bring the same high degree of individual service to the area that has characterized the firm's activities in Los Angeles and Orange Counties for 23 years, he said.

* * * *

THE COMPANY'S new "guaranteed home sales" plan will be instigated within the area immediately. Hart explained this plan enables families, wishing to move into new homes, to use the equity in their present home as a down payment in these newer areas.

He said that because of Walker & Lee's 16 other resale offices this trade-in plan guarantees each home's sale and relieves the home owner of having to go through the sale of this old home before being able to purchase the new.

"We believe we are the only real estate sales company in the Southland who has such a highly developed referral system," Hart said.

* * * *

WALKER & LEE is not a new name in Ventura real estate circles. To date the company has sold more than $20 million in the area.

Hart's announcement comes on the heels of the company's first six months report for 1964, claiming house sales of more than $49,870,000; acreage department's escrows of over $14 million; commercial and industrial, and residential investments and income properties at $2,607,000.

Total 1964 sales picture for the 23-year-old company through June is $56,900,000. Since its founding, the sales firm has sold more than 59,000 homes.

Locale Is Ideal for Retirees

A mild climate is the goal of the thousands of retirees who enter California each year, states James K. Leishman, sales manager of a $25,000,000 retirement development in Oceanside.

Oceana and the North County San Diego area boasts the No. 1 climate in the United States, he continued. The cooling ocean breezes and smog-free sunshine of Oceana has proved to be the greatest sales feature to many out-of-state buyers at the development.

Oceana is a complete planned community including some 1100 garden-type apartments, recreational facilities, shopping center, motel and restaurant. The development is located in the rolling coastal hills within the city limits of Oceanside.

* * * *

FIVE MODELS are available in a moderate price range from $11,495 to $17,495. Floor plans include homes from one bedroom, one bath, to two bedrooms, den, and two bath models.

Oceana may be reached via 101 freeway, taking the Mission Blvd. exit in Oceanside. The site is three miles east of downtown Oceanside and set high on the hills overlooking the San Luis Rey Valley.

Colony Cove Homes Value Up Sharply

Colony Cove, planned community one mile north of San Clemente, may set a record in Orange County for the rapid increase in value per home, says Dave Laughlin, sales counselor.

Laughlin said many residents of Colony Cove had purchased an extra home just for an investment with value increases of the homes up to 15%.

Colony Cove, a project of the Douglass Construction Co. of California, is an architecturally-planned community for adults with children 16 years of age or older. It has its own swimming pool, clubhouse, two putting greens and a tropical brook and waterfalls among its aesthetic and recreational features, Laughlin said.

* * * *

SITUATED ATOP a bluff with a spectacular ocean view, Colony Cove offers homes with two and three-bedrooms. Homes are financed conventionally from $22,500.

Laughlin said Colony Cove, designed by San Clemente architect Chris Abel, has received wide attention for its impressive architecture and construction features.

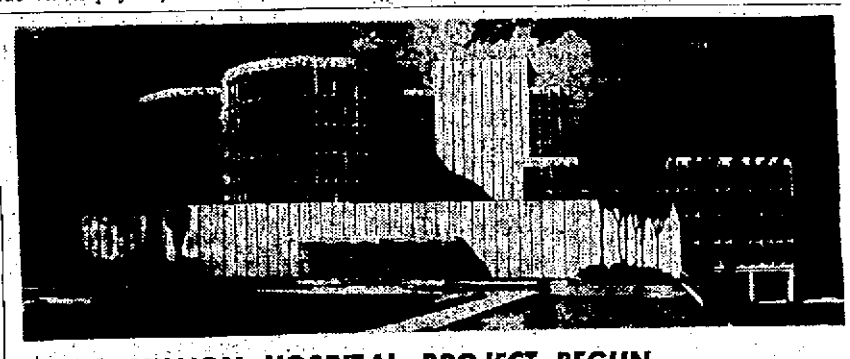

Furnished in Danish, modern, Oriental and ranch decors, models are open from 9:30 a.m. until dusk. Colony Cove is reached via the Santa Ana-San Diego Freeway to the U. S. 101 Alternate off-ramp and the Pacific Coast Hwy. At Pacific Coast Hwy., visitors may turn left or south two miles to the gateway entrance of Colony Cove.

INTERIOR APPEALING
This view in a Lake Park Home showing the dining area, breakfast bar and kitchen. The homes are priced from $21,950 and 12 new exterior stylings are available.

Lake Park's Location Is Prime Attraction

Location has been cited as one of the prime attractions at Lake Park, the $40 million, 2,000-home community near Lakewood, it was reported by Michael L. Tenzer, vice president and marketing director of Larwin Co.

Tenzer noted that Lake Park's Phase II "is only minutes away from the major employment, commercial and industrial centers of the area."

Tenzer also attributed the summer sales success to the fact that Lake Park "offers not only the widest selection of two-story homes in Orange County, but also the lowest priced two-story models in the area."

* * * *

PRICED FROM $21,950, Lake Park's Phase II features three, four and five-bedroom homes with two and three baths. Twelve, all-new exteriors with three floor plans including a den or family room and fireplace, are included.

All models feature breakfast bars, built-in kitchen appliances, disposals, double sinks, ceramic tile, sliding glass patio doors and wood-grained paneling.

Another popular extra at Lake Park is the over-size two-car garage, with extra room for workshop and storage space.

* * * *

THE GRAMERCY two-story model, priced at $25,950 includes five bedrooms, three baths, fireplace, master bedroom suite with private terrace and large family room.

Close to the Santa Ana Freeway, model homes may be reached from the Valley View turnoff to Lincoln and west to Moody.

To reach Lake Park from the Long Beach-Lakewood vicinity, drive east on Carson to the model homes east of Moody.

LUXURY HOMES PLANNED
Looking over site of 43-acre section of famed Banning Ranch, Newport Beach, being acquired by Volk-McLain Communities Inc. for development of single-family luxury home community, are Robert McLain and Kenneth Q. Volk Jr., principals in the developing company; and Hancock Banning III, vice president and general manager of Beeco, Ltd.

West Newport Beach Area Housing Development Set

A 43-acre West Newport Beach segment of historic Banning Ranch is about to be transformed into one of the south coast's most modern single-family luxury communities by Volk-McLain Communities, Inc., Los Angeles.

Part of the 600 acres still owned by the heirs of famed California pioneer Phineas Banning, the land originally was iniluded in the Rancho Santa Ana grant to Antonio Yorba and Juan Peralta in 1810.

Phineas Banning and his wife Mary acquired 4,077 acres of the "Santiago" portion of the old Rancho Santa Ana in 1874, of which the 600 acres remain in the family.

* * * *

HANDLING THE $1.7-million sale, one of the largest blocks of land sold in recent years in Newport Beach, was Hancock Banning III, a great-grandson of Phineas Banning, who paid $17,500 for the original 4,077 acres.

Banning is vice president and general manager of Beeco, Ltd. His cousin, William P. Banning, is president of the land investment company which owns the Banning Ranch.

Kenneth Q. Volk, Jr., a principal in the developing firm, said 236 luxury homes in the $35,000 price range are to be constructed on the site, following completion of escrow. The land is adajacent to Pacific Coast Hiway, overlooking Newport Bay.

VOLK SAID the new community of homes would be in strict compliance with overall planning for the development of the 600-acre tract which is located in the city of Newport Beach and Orange County.

Grading has already been started on Bluff Road, which leads from the main entrance on Pacific Coast Highway through the development, with the three and four-bedroom homes scheduled for completion in early 1965.

Volk-McLain Communities, Inc., builders of more than 10,000 homes in California during the past 15 years, are developers of the luxurious apartment building, "The Newport," on Bayside Drive, Newport Beach.

Various suites are being remodeled to meet the needs of firms and the building has available up to an entire floor, 6,000 square feet, for lease.

Garden Park Estates Real Success Story

Garden Park Estates in Garden Grove can aptly be described as a "success story." Since opening, the community has witnessed consistent response to the "value" homes offered by the builders.

"We believe this warm reception is attributable to a number of pertinent factors," a spokesman said. Location, durable and solid construction with only quality name-brand materials, a wide variety of designs and available floor plans, and strong artistic appeal are among the components he listed for their success.

The builders developed the community in the recreation center of the Southland-Orange County. "It is also one of the fastest growing areas in the state where every day we witness the birth of new electronic and manufacturing plants." Employment opportunities are increasing in Orange County, with predictions being made for even further growth.

* * * *

"OUR CLIMATE IS IDEAL too," he added, "with gentle ocean breezes keeping the thermometer from soaring to sizzling heights."

Good schools are claimed for the Garden Park district, and complete shopping districts are within convenient reach of residents. "Here, the shopper will find a vast selection of home, hardware, food and clothing supplies," the spokesman said.

Throughout the many years of constructing shelter for Southland families, the builders of Garden Park Estates have maintained high ethical standards and residents are assured of many years of solid home comfort, relatively maintenance free.

* * * *

CREATIVE ARCHITECTS were retained to draw up the floor plans for the homes. Geared for busy families, the plans produced are both attractive and totally functional.

Now available are one and two-story homes with three, four and five bedrooms. Some include formal dining rooms and family rooms.

Moderately priced from $20,450, veterans can move in with nothing down except costs and impounds. Non-veterans can use lowest FHA terms.

A furnished model display is open every day at the corner of Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Freeway in Garden Grove.

Investing Becomes Emotional Experience as Anxiety Gains

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first of Property Investments," written exclusively for and copyrighted by Scientific property investments.)

By G. L. DAVENPORT
Counselor Psychologist

Anyway you look at it, investing is an emotional experience.

There is the case of Armand, who had, through the years, saved a small amount of money over and above his expenses and he decided to invest it. As the time grew near he began to show all sorts of symptoms unique for him. Usually a kind, reserved and sober man, he became irritable, especially toward those close to him. He was not as much in control of himself and he drank a little too much. The prospect of investing gave him a number of anxiety symptoms. After investment, which was in the form of stock in a small company, his anxiety was relieved.

* * * *

PSYCHOLOGISTS are very familiar with these symptoms, as are investment people. The psychologist, however, would explain it differently from the way the investment people would go about it. The psychologist would say that in some subconscious way the money to be invested was equated with a part of the man, such as his arm or some part of his body, and that in putting the money into a strange and unknown place, as the company was, he became understandably concerned. The money which he had protected for so long might be lost. It was similar to anticipating the loss of an arm.

The investment salesman would say rather simply that the guy was nervous. To many people money means something other than a means of barter. It means to them more than it really is. That is one of the reasons why people procrastinate in making investments, and eventually end up losing what little security they had started out with. Thereafter they turn out to be bitter and even envious of their friends and neighbors who did invest.

* * * *

IT MAY TAKE a psychologist to help such people conquer their fears, and it would be worth it to them. However, many people in knowing that their fears are rooted in a misconception of the real role of money can solve their own problems for themselves.

To ease their tensions many people may find investments in land a great help. The land, because it appears to be so solid and substantial, because they can stand on it and it won't slip away from under their feet, because it is something which will be here for ever—"land immortality" as it were—gives its owners a feeling of unshakable security, a commodity most needed by beginning investors. As these beginners mature in their investing, or receive proper initial investment counseling, the decrease of their tensions goes hand in hand with a substantial increase in their investment return.

* * * *

THE PERSON who does not invest when he has money, as little as it may be, probably ought to look deeper into his reluctance and vaccilation, and if he cannot do so, himself, he ought to seek help.

Yet even the mature investor ought to look at money investments for what they are, namely a means of improving economic security and therefore to continue to refine his investment knowledge constantly. Ongoing investment in land property may and ought to be a lifelong pursuit.

Due to the non-stop increases in population upon essentially limited and exhaustible expanses of land, if properly researched, monitored and sold, is an investment which will attract all types of investors.

In the next articles we shall try to explore some of the methods of conquering the fears of investing, to present in some detail the technical knowledge required for the evaluation of a good investment and to differentiate the various types of successful investors, so that our readers may acquire the necessary insight and knowledge upon which to base their individual decisions.

Opening Sales Good on Ballerina Homes

Preview showing of Ballerina "Ocean Series" Homes in Huntington Beach attracted 500 people last weekend. The large crowd and subsequent reservations for the homes far exceeded expectations.

Realistically and spaciously plotted, this 64-home community is composed of one and two-story, three and four-bedroom homes. Ballerina Homes were designed by L. C. Major & Associates, Inc., architects and designers of thousands of homes in Southern California. The three models have been decorated and furnished by W&J Sloane of Beverly Hills.

* * * *

TED HUDSON of Buchanan-Hudson Development Co., one of the builders and developers of Ballerina Homes said, "The tremendous enthusiasm shown by the public is very gratifying. We have long recognized the fact that people want a home that incorporates both excellence in basic design for ease of upkeep and liveability and the luxury touches that make a home so enjoyable."

* * * *

IN ADDITION, Ballerina Homes are ready to live in—100% Sculptured Nylon carpeting, fences and front landscaping and sprinklers are all in. Homes range from a big 1517 square feet to a gigantic 2500 square feet, all planned with generous interior and exterior leisure areas.

The homes are in Huntington Beach, on Bushard St., just off Brookhurst.

64 Custom Homes to Preview Today

Grand opening of the new 64-home unit at King's Forest, East Orange, will be held today, Dick Murray, of Murray Realty Co., Anahelm, announced. Refreshments will be served all visitors to the grand opening of the new unit.

The custom homes, Murray said, are completely "turn key" which means they include extras in the basic selling price which eliminate additional move-in expenses.

Included in the King's Forest basic price of $25,900 are such features as wall-to-wall carpeting, custom draperies, vinyl-asbestos floor covering, high-low light switches, fenced rear yards, rear yard patios, concrete driveways and flood lights in front.

* * * *

KING'S FOREST, a project of Robert E. Moore Jr., builder-developer, offers three and four-bedroom homes with two baths, plus formal living rooms and family rooms.

The floor plans and six one-story architecturally-embellished exterior elevations also incorporate dining areas, central entry halls, master bedroom suites with private baths, and secluded sun decks reached via sliding glass doors. Patios are off living and family rooms.

Kitchens are designed in popular U-shape and L-shape styles, each with breakfast bar. Each all-electric kitchen has built-in range and oven, dishwasher and disposal.

* * * *

OTHER "EXTRAS" include recessed lighting, built-in TV antenna, heat or sun lamps in baths, one-piece fiberglass showers, Moen diverter valves, and natural wood-grain plastic kitchen cabinets which are easy to clean and never need refinishing.

Central air conditioning is an optional feature.

The wide range of exteriors include the use of woods, masonry, mosaic tile, stucco, decorative panel screens, glass, wood roofs with wide overhangs and heavy tough-textured stained woods.

King Forest's 64 new houses may be visited by driving the Newport Freeway to Chapman Avenue and east to the homes in East Orange.

Sales Gain, Earnings Up

Kaiser Cement & Gypsum Corp. recorded increases of 13% in sales and 34% in earnings, not including a special credit, during the first half of 1964, compared to the same period last year, it was announced by Peter S. Hass, president.

Net sales and operating revenue for the six months ended June 30 were $43,649,000, compared with $38,750,000 recorded in the first half of 1963 on sales of its cement, gypsum and insulating board products.

Consolidated net earnings for the period were $4,594,000, including a special credit for a non-recurring utility refund of $423,000 after federal taxes.

* * * *

NET EARNINGS before the special credit were $4,171,000, equivalent to $.65 per common share, as compared with $3,101,000 and $.46 per common share earned in the first half of 1963.

Hass pointed out that the special refund credit, amounting to $.07 per common share, had the effect of increasing earnings to the equivalent of $.72 per common share.

Garden Home Facing Golf Course

Only two of the ground-level garden homes facing on the golf course remain unsold at New Horizons-South Bay Sales Director Bob Norton reports.

These homes directly overlooking the sweeping fairways are in the choicest location in New Horizons, Norton said, and are available on a first-come, first-served basis. Prices of New Horizons homes start at $19,995 on a liberal financing plan.

* * * *

NEW HORIZONS - South Bay is Ray Watt's beautiful adult recreation community of garden homes centrally located in Torrance. Residents there own their own nine-hole golf course, two heated swimming pools, $150,000 Town Hall and separate Recreation Center with dozens of recreational facilities.

Ownership of the New Horizons garden homes is limited to couples where one spouse is 35 or over, or to single persons at least 35. No children under 18 may be permanent residents.

To see New Horizons-South Bay, take the San Diego Freeway from the north or either Crenshaw or Hawthorne boulevards from the south. New Horizons-South Bay is on Sepulveda Blvd. between Crenshaw and Hawthorne. Furnished models are open from 9:00 a.m. 'til dark daily.

Record Drugs

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's pharmacists filled a record 741,401,000 prescriptions last year, up 5.6% from 1962. The total bill was $2.4 billion, up six per cent from 1962.

Dolphin Terrace Unit 2 Will Open

Dolphin Terrace II in Fountain Valley will hold its grand opening next Sunday, according to Robert E. Plumleigh president of Santa-Oceana Inc., the builders. There will be 83 homes, with styling and features similar to the original Dolphin Terrace, a 17-home custom-type development opened recently in Fountain Valley.

It will feature the "Dolphin Suite," a large finished extra area which the homeowner may use or convert to his own needs at his leisure. Builder Plumleigh said that the "Dolphin Suite" increased the area of the homes to as much as 2400 square feet.

* * * *

DOLPHIN TERRACE II will offer from three to 6 bedrooms, two baths, family room and formal dining area, in a price range starting at $26,950. Thirty-year financing is available.

Robert E. Plumleigh is also president of the R. E. Plumleigh and Associates, a real estate brokerage firm with offices in Santa Ana. His brother, T. N. Plumleigh Jr., is vice president of Santa-Oceana Inc. and has charge of the actual construction of Dolphin Terrace II and other company projects in the Southland.

Both brothers gained early insight into the construction business as sons of a builder father, T. N. Plumleigh Sr. Both brothers were educated at the University of Southern California, and have been active in the subdivision and development of over 1,000 homes and lots in California and Nevada.

Sales Record at Westinghouse

PITTSBURGH — Sales of Westinghouse Electric Corp's consumer products reached an all-time high during June, it was disclosed by Harry M. Kane, vice president and general manager of Westinghouse Appliance Sales and Service Co.

"Westinghouse increases are substantially ahead of those of the industry as a whole, and the industry itself is well ahead of last year," Kane said. As an example, he pointed to the company's air conditioning line where sales are up 88½% over 1963, compared with an industry sales increase of 40%.

BROTHER BUILDING TEAM

R. E. Plumleigh (left) and T. N. Plumleigh Jr. look over plans for their new Dolphin Terrace II development in Fountain Valley. Due for Aug. 9 opening, it will contain 83 homes. Sons of a builder father, Plumleigh brothers formed the Santa-Oceana Inc. and plan to build over 300 homes in Fountain Valley area.

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

The success of our recent advertising series prompts me to congratulate your newspapers for a job well done!

You may recall our teaser campaign simply consisting of a photograph of our premium tire, the "ULTISSIMO" and the words "WE'RE EXPANDING". I hesitate to use a superlative to an advertising man, but the response was incredible. Our phone lines were jammed and our sales promptly increased despite the fact that neither our name, address nor phone number was included.

This confirms our belief in consistent advertising and proves that the Independent, Press-Telegram has created a favorable image of the "Ultissimo", which your readers have come to associate with the Richardson Tire Co.

Please convey my sincere thanks to all concerned and rest assured of our continued advertising in your fine newspapers.

Rio? A Breeze!

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

If you have been thinking of visiting South America, and have given up the idea because the distance is too great, well—think again.

You can now leave Los Angeles International Airport after dinner and arrive in Rio de Janeiro in time for lunch next day.

This has been made possible by a new Pan American jet route that links California with Brazil with two long-range flights, each exceeding 3,000 miles. Flying time: 12½ hours.

The 7-970-mile route, stretching a third of the way around the world in distance, links Los Angeles, Panama, Rio and Montevideo. W. A. Elsaesser, Pan Am's district sales manager, explains that without changing planes, passengers boarding the big jets fly the 3,160-mile nonstop route to Panama in six hours and then cut 3,325 miles diagonally across South America to Rio in 6½ hours. From Rio, the Clippers zoom 1,145 miles to Montevideo in two hours, 40 minutes.

Thus, despite the four-hour time difference, you still get to Rio for lunch after leaving Los Angeles after dinner the evening before.

WHAT IS REPUTED to be the only dude ranch travel trailer park in the United States has been opened in the heart of the recreation area of the Los Padres National Forest 16 miles northeast of Santa Barbara.

The Rancho Oso Travel Trailer Park is situated within the privately owned 310-acre Rancho Oso Fun Ranch and will remain open the year around.

The park is designed to enable travel trailer clubs and groups as well as individuals to experience all the activities of a genuine Western ranch, according to Robert F. Jamison, coowner.

"In many respects," says Jamison, "the ranch on which the park is located retains the same character it had when it was known for its fine stock. Cattle still graze in the pastures, the riding stables and corral are still a focal point, and the wranglers are veteran cowhands."

Rancho Oso Fun Ranch has lodge, cabin, tent camping and picnic facilities for non-trailering guests arriving in groups or as individuals. Other facilities include a heated pool, active sports and game areas and horseback riding. Trailerites also participate in planned recreational activities, such as Sunday morning breakfast rides, old-fashioned hay rides, chuck wagon dinners and square dancing.

* * * *

AND SPEAKING of trailers, the Wally Byam Around the World Caravan — 104 Americans circling the globe in 44 trailers—has reached Teheran.

After leaving Los Angeles last September, the trailerites have visited Honolulu, Yokohama, Hong Kong, Singapore; overland up the Malay Peninsula through Malaysia, Thailand, Cambodia, an 11-week tour of India and Nepal; Pakistan, Afghanistan and Iran.

The trailerites expect to be gone a year.

AN INVITATION to visit and tour Long Beach has been extended to motorists by the Allstate Motor Club in its new 220 page vacation guide.

J. H. Twiss, regional manager of the Allstate Motor Club, said many tourists should be attracted to visit Long Beach because of the interesting and extensive coverage of the area in the guide.

The new vacation guide, with its new approach to planning that "perfect vacation," vividly illustrates North America's outstanding vacation areas with nearly 200 full color photographs and describes and locates 1,200 vacation spots for the traveler.

The vacation guide employs a new concept in road maps through its use of "Stop—Go—See" maps. A quick look at the map allows the motorist to choose between the fastest or most scenic roues across country, in addition to having the outstanding points of interest clearly marked.

DISCOVERY of new claimants to the title of world's tallest living things — a grove of redwoods over 367 feet high—has focussed fresh attention on Northern California's Redwood Empire.

The lofty trees are near Orick, north of Eureka, on private lumber company land. Groves of their almost as-tall cousins are on public display in state parks, stretching from San Francisco Bay north 400 miles into Oregon. These are readily accessible over a modern network of highways.

The Redwood Empire Association, 476 Post St., San Francisco, (94102), promptly answers inquiries about this region with free illustrated pamphlets describing sequoia sempervirens and other attractions in this coastal vacationland.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"We are planning a trip to Puerto Rico in December and would like moderate accommodations for a family of five. . . ."

THERE'S a small monthly booklet by the Chamber of Commerce that you find (free) on all hotel desks. Among ads for night clubs, tourist shops etc., you'll find ads for smaller hotels and rooms with kitchens. But I wouldn't order one at long distance. Move into a big hotel for a couple of days. Take a taxi and shop around.

"What is the best way to sightsee the island?"

RENT A CAR and drive around. Takes about four leisurely days. If you want more, you can crisscross on some fine scenic mountain roads. There are good hotels everywhere. It's a beautiful, tropic island and not too expensive.

Lot of English spoken. But more Spanish. Roads are well marked. But speed limits are in miles and distances in kilometers. The island is bursting with people. You are seldom outside of sight of houses. Swimming is wonderful—the sea is warm and painter's blue. Old San Juan is a great historic fortress. No outstanding shopping. But some very fine restaurants. Prices medium to expensive.

"We are planning a first trip to Europe and wonder where to start a file of information. . . ."

START WITH ALL the airlines that run to the countries you will go to. Send them your route. Ask for any information. Airlines give you a great deal of action on this kind of query. I would ask them all because—though they overlap—they all have specialties.

Second, write the national tourist offices. (All have New York offices. And some have branch offices in larger American cities.) These won't be too good—national tourist offices are usually run by the government and staffed by political appointees. I rarely go to these people. But try them; it only costs a stamp.

Third, go to a travel agent and plot some comparative prices. Especially airline prices. All airlines have similar fares, fixed by their own international price-fixing organization. But there are all kinds of complicated reductions: Flying on weekdays instead of weekends; special excursion fares; family rates. Travel agents should know the best one for you.

"Do you advise credit cards—Diner's and American Express—for a trip to Europe?"

THEY'RE a convenience I use them a lot for that and for tax records. With American Express you can cash your personal check into traveler's checks up to $300. (You can run into a lot of frustrating red tape, too. But generally it works.)

You'll also find the shops taking credit cards are the most expensive in the town. And obviously, they've had to mark up the 7 to 10% the credit card people charge them.

"We are a young and adventurous couple. We have enough money to get to Europe. But once there, we must keep daily costs down."

HERE'S AN IDEA for you. Nearly all countries now have a "meet-and-live-with-the-people" program. In other words, you eat and sleep in a family home. Get this program from the national tourist office. (And check it again when you arrive. New York and home offices don't always agree.) Supposed to be a way to live for very little. Say $3 a day for a couple.

August Offers Beauty

August is a month of beauty for Southern Californians.

There is the traditional International Beauty Parade of girls from 60 countries—Borneo to Brazil, Scotland to Singapore competing for the "Miss International of 1965" title during the International Beauty Congress in Long Beach, starting Wednesday and concluding Aug. 15. The beauties first in the parade along Ocean Blvd. and then in nightly showings and contests.

One of the most beautifully costumed parades is El Desfile Historico, the colorful historical parade of the Old Spanish Fiesta Aug. 12-15 at Santa Barbara, once the social capital of the old Spanish California. Some of the gorgeous Spanish costumes of riders and passengers in old coaches and ox-carts come from the trunks of old Spanish-Californians. Almost as beautiful is El Desfile de Los Ninos, the costumed parade for children.

Beautiful again is the Ondo parade of hundreds of kimona-clad girls, dancing as they wind down the street, during the annual Nisei Week Festival in the Li'l Tokyo section of down town Los Angeles Aug. 14-23. The area will be lighted up by hundreds of Japanese lanterns. There will be Judo, karate and kendo (sword) tournaments and a Cha-No-Yu tea ceremony.

LUXURY IN BEACH AREA HOME
Shown is a portion of the large living room in a Dutch Haven Marina Series of homes in Huntington Beach. Locaiion close to the beach is a big selling factor in the development.

Dutch Haven Marina Series of Homes Cooled by Sea Breeze

With peak summer temperatures now a reality, more and more families searching for a new home are discovering the unique advantage of cool, smog-free ocean breezes at the new Dutch Haven Marina Series in Huntington Beach.

The marked surge in sales that followed the approach of hot summer weather has continued, Tom Rochelle, Dutch Haven sales manager, commented, stressing that location close to the beach is a definite asset at any time of the year.

Located in the heart of a nationally known resort area renowned for its ideal year-round temperatures, the Dutch Haven Marina Series is situated on Edwards Ave. in Huntington Beach.

* * * *

OTHER ADVANTAGES are the many beaches, some of Southern California's finest, located just a few minutes away. All offer excellent facilities for swimming, surfing, boating and picnicking. Marinas are situated at Huntington Beach, Long Beach and Newport Beach, with an abundance of public and private golf courses also situated nearby.

Homes at the Dutch Haven Marina Series are three to four bedrooms with up to two full baths. Prices start at $18,950. VA, FHA and Cal-Vet financing are available. Move-in terms to Vets are $95.

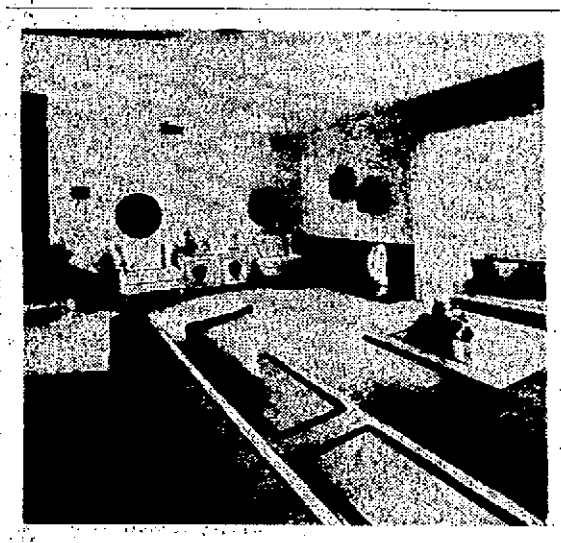

There are no hidden charges, second mortgages or balloon payments. Improvements such as street lighting, sidewalks, streets, curbs and utilities are covered in the original cost.

* * * *

AMONG THE MANY luxury features are complete Medallion kitchens with built-in dishwasher, range, disposal, oven and range hood, family rooms, separate dining areas, decorater fireplaces with log lighters, custom hardwood paneling, wood shake roofs with large overhangs, master bedroom suites, forced-air heating and complete color coordination with decorator wallpaper.

Four furnished model homes are open daily from 10 to 9.

To visit the Dutch Haven Marina Series: Drive south on Santa Ane Freeway, to Beach Blvd., turnoff. Go south on Beach to Warner, right on Warner to Edwards, left on Edwards to model homes.

EL DORADO PARK ESTATE
Spacious living room shown is a furnished model home at El Dorado Park Estates in Long Beach. Focal point is handsome black marble fireplace.

Homes Are Adjoined by El Dorado Park

Residents of El Dorado Park Estates in Long Beach appreciate the immediate conveniency to a beautiful park. Adjacent to the expanding El Dorado City Park and Golf Course, parents of small children can use it as supplementary play space.

"There is also an excellent golf course here, with 'walk-to' convenience," a spokesman said.

The homes now presented are spacious one-story, two-story and split-level dwellings with three, four and five bedrooms — "Ideal for growing families," he added.

The essence of informal California has been captured at El Dorado Park Estates, in combination with tasteful elegance. "We believe the quality and design of the homes are attractive to those looking for more than the ordinary," said the spokesman.

* * * *

ENTERTAINING in the grand manner, or small informal backyard barbecues are both possible in a residence at El Dorado Park Estates. Many plans feature a formal dining room, plus large rumpus room.

Of particular note in the homes are the unusual and attractive fireplaces. They are available in a variety of materials, including painted jumbo brick, white marble face, Palos Verdes stone and many others.

Convenience to schools and shopping is available from the community, in addition to the park and many other recreational facilities.

Prices start from $29,950 with excellent financing available.

To view the comprehensive model display, from Long Beach drive east on Spring St. across the San Gabriel River to El Dorado Park Estates at Claremont, just east of the park.

Another Record

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Consumer Finance Association says households in the United States with two or more cars set a new record in 1963. It says 8.7 million, or more than 15.6% of all households have more than one car.

Rural Atmosphere Has Great Appeal

"An out-in-the-country atmosphere with the convenience of a metropolitan, in-town location at a reasonable price." These are the three most sought after attributes with Southern California home shoppers, according to Tom Coughlin, president of KRIC Enterprises, developers of Hillview Regency Townhouses.

Located in uptown Santa Ana at the top of Sherry Lane, three blocks north of 17th St., Hillview Regency is a 10-acre in-town project designed for the leisure-minded home buyer.

* * * *

TO CREATE a true country club environment, three acres are devoted to recreational facilities. A large, luxurious community center building provides a Sauna Bath, billiard room, card room, ping-pong, a nine-hole putting course with sand traps and shuffle board courts also is offered. Landscaping along with the surrounding orange groves join to create a refreshing countryside atmosphere.

Coughlin pointed out that the Townhouse concept of living costs less than most individual homes or own-your-own types.

* * * *

THE BUYER finances individually, reserving the right to sell or refinance at any time. He enjoys all standard interest and tax deduction advantages.

The home shopper is offered a wide choice of two and three bedrooms, single-level studio units, two bathrooms, sunken living room, fully carpeted and draped, dining area and Caloric gas kitchens.

Over-all, the homes include up to 1,300 square feet of living space under roof and up to 350 square feet of fenced patio. All Hillview Regency homes also include such quality features as GE air conditioner and dishwasher, forced-air heat and vinyl tile floors.

Pull-Tab Cans on Soft Drinks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The pull-tab can, which captured 50% of the canned beer market in less than two years, has been introduced to the consumer for soft drinks by the Continental Can Co.

Cans now account for about 6½% of the soft drink market, according to Ellison L. Hazard, Continental's president. He predicted that canned soft drinks will attain more than 10% of the market by 1965, largely because of the new pull-tabs.

A World of Style

THE GREAT AMERICAN LOOK . . . at home anywhere in the world, reflecting the international flavor of today's fast-paced jet set. Top, local mannequin Luise Conn sets the pace in a Chanel-inspired triple-tiered skirt and serpent belt . . . center, Luise and Sue Rebol borrow fashion influences from Spanish señoritas—the black lace and flamenco skirt, the dazzle of crystal paillettes . . . and, lower, Sue tops her British-styled suit with an Adolfo-designed copy of the Canadian Mounties hat. All fashions pictured will be shown in Miss International Fashion Show Luncheon sponsored by Ebell Juniors and presented by Buffums'.

One World of Fashion . . .

That—appropriately—will be theme of Ebell Juniors' eighth annual Miss International Fashion Show Luncheon to be held Aug. 12, 11:30 a. m., at the Lafayette Hotel.

Opening the festivities will be presentation of the world's most beautiful girls . . . the 45 contestants in this year's International Beauty Congress . . . who, in a lend-lease moment of glamour and pageantry, will parade the ramp in their colorful, often flamboyant native costumes.

Miss American Beauty (she's scheduled to be selected the night before) will be introduced. And the 34 other U. S. representatives also will be on hand to add pulchritude.

Marvin Cloud will be master of ceremonies; music will be provided by Paul King.

This year, for the first time (and for audience second-glances) the international beauties are scheduled to stay on for the luncheon and fashion show. Seated on a raised platform near the show ramp, they'll provide colorful contrast to the preview of American-designed fall-winter fashions.

AND AMERICAN-DESIGNED fashions there will be. Worlds of them!

Presented by Buffums', the fashion extravaganza will make the most of "the beautiful American" fashion image—the look that is at home in Singapore or Saskatchewan, Paris or Pakistan.

It will also prove that in this fast-moving country-hopping jet age, American fashions have more foreign accents than a general assembly at the U. N.

These words from show commentator John Hersey of Buffums'—who, incidentally, can parlez vous fashionese with the greatest of ease; no matter what the accent:

"Today, even Parisienne couturiers design with the American woman in mind . . . for her fashion image is known, recognized, admired and emulated the world over. . . .

"But American fashion, today crossing all international boundaries, is taking its influences from the far-flung corners of the earth. The world has never before seen such a lend-lease program of fashion give and take."

HERSEY NOTES that there will be Latin-inspired

...some show-stoppers!

SMALL-BODIED COAT from Paris, by Nina Ricci collection. The 1964-isms: its rising band collar and arched waist seam.

Chanel's never-before slacks, Heim's knee-length tunics over provocative breeches and Dior's feminized versions of the Russian Cossack were among the fashion trends unveiled last week in Paris.

As everyone expected, there were, in fact, a record number of show-stoppers during that twice-annual circus, the Paris fashion showings.

One such was Louis Feraud's answer to the topless dress—a purple suede sleeveless creation slit widely from neck to waist.

Below the waist was a wide belt of pink cobra to match the mannequin's pink mesh stockings—and when she walked, it was apparent that was all she had on.

Another was at the house of Lanvin, where Jules Crahay startled onlookers with the wickedest "baby dress" ever to glide down a runway.

It was long, peignoir-shaped, of sheer black cloque organza—and the girl seemed to have absolutely nothing on underneath. She did—flesh-colored leotards.

What made it a baby dress?

A tucked white organdy bib with Peter Pan collar, all edged in fine ruching.

BUT THOSE were the shock treatments—the side shows, so to speak.

Getting down to the serious business of influencing what women the world over will be wearing next season, Paris designers presented the sexiest, softest clothes in the past 10 years.

Most couturiers featured the animated silhouette—clothes that seem to move with the wearer, giving a vivid

Their Props Are Apropos

By Iola Masterson
L P-T Women's Editor

THE OLD ADAGE—if you want a job done, ask a busy person to do it—is going to be proved again, in duplicate. In this case reference is to persons (very capable types) Carolyn (Mrs. Jack) Stanaland (left, below) and Ida Frances (Mrs. Frances M.) Lowry. The props are very apropos, as I'll explain in half a mo'.

To each her own, props have a vivid meaning.

Ida Frances, despite the traumatic experience in store this month of engineering the weddings of two daughters (thus the bells), has graciously agreed to substitute for Ponnie (Mrs. Herman) Ridder as United Crusade area residential chairman. And this is true dedication since she has already served three separate times as LB residential chairman in past Community Chest drives. But when Ponnie's sad but necessary obligations in the east, settling the estate of her late mother, made it impossible for her to continue, Ida Frances stepped in.

For instance, it was imperative that Ponnie leave Friday for Rye Beach, N.H., where she anticipates her presence will be required for five weeks or more.

Now, as for Carolyn's "props," she is vice president and full time manager of Bellflower's Equitable Savings and Loan. Despite her daily dollar duties, she has taken on the job of organizing a Crusade women's committee to serve the new joint United Way-Red Cross appeal.

So far she has enlisted the help of such well known women as Mayor Gladys Iliff, Paramount, councilmen's wives Nedra (Mrs. Woodrow) Smith, Lakewood; Marvel (Mrs. Bert) Bond, L.B.; Mary (Mrs. Ted) Mosier, Paramount; Lee (Mrs. J. Kimball) Walker, wife of the mayor of Bellflower, as well; Evelyn (Mrs. Lloyd) Whaley, Nancy (Mrs. William) Cree, Ina (Mrs. Willard) Harris, Long Beach; Del (Mrs. Eugene) Comer, Lakewood, and Virginia (Mrs. R. D.) Boggs, Bellflower. The way she's been getting around, it's evident Mrs. Stanaland should be known as Caroming Carolyn!

BOASTING a toasty tropical tan (that's almost as hard to negotiate, vocally, as Peter Piper picked a peck of, etc.) is normally fair-skinned Marie Mowery. If not, she's been cheating under big hats, parasols and sun glasses. Marie arrived in Honolulu Tuesday for an indefinite stay after a great vacation in Tahiti, Moorea, Raiatea and Bora Bora.

MARRIED in Germany and now honeymooning in Switzerland are Jo Dee (nee Boyle) and Lt. Anthony Pettine III, of Philadelphia, Pa., a "wonderful fellow!" The latter a direct quote from new mother-in-law, "Jo" (Mrs. Lawrence) Boyle who was present for the wedding last week.

Jo Dee, Poly High and Whittier College grad, has been teaching at the American School in Dexheim, Germany, romantic location considering that's how she met Tony, Army stationed nearby. They'll be back Stateside in September when Tony will take post-graduate work at his alma mater, Drexel Institute of Technology in Philly.

LIGHTS DANCED on Alamitos Bay and feminine conversation, to the decibel level of 32 femmes in convivial mood, wafted out on the balmy summer air Wednesday from the waterfront home of Shirley Caldwell. Shirley, Barbara Clark and Deenie Conway were co-hostesses at a bridal shower for Pam White. Pam will become the bride of Hal Horrocks Jr. on August 23.

Special guests, naturally, were Pam's mother, Marilyn; Hal's mom, Pat. Others, a few, in the oh and ah crowd (let's face it girls, we all do at such affairs) were Betty Daniels, Ellen Landis, Udell Green, Kay Nesbitt, Nina Matthews, Bessie Crosby, Hope Cunningham, Pat Webb, Phyllis Norris, Gladys King and Win Nott.

Wild Waves Say...

"HOME" again is Lillian (Mrs. Tom) White with daughter, Christine. Unfortunately, far as a whole rooting section of friends here is concerned, trip is just for summer vacation from current home in Oklahoma City. Lillian and Christine are staying with Ina and Willie Harris when in town or with the senior Whites in Norwalk until they can move into their house in Seal Beach.

In a few days the two Toms, dad and son, will arrive from OC to join the family for August vacation on the seacoast.

HERE'S one case where good luck was the direct result of good, hard work. John MacInnis won a top salesman's contest (Cormier) and, as a result, he and Isabel are off on an all-expense trip to the N'York fair and to the Bahamas. Son and daughter, Tony and Laurie, are keeping house while they're gone. What makes this bonus trip doubly exciting is that the entire family just recently returned from a great vacation in Mexico City.

PLAY DAYS in Hawaii, followed by more play on the Lurline, ended Sunday for Gloria and Richard McWilliams and their daughters, Diane and Pamela, with the ship's docking here last weekend.

The family foursome, candid camera caught on shipboard, are pictured herewith. But why so sad, Dick? Going back to work THAT fearsome?

Part of the fun in the islands was a mammoth surprise. Pat and Joe De Giorgio flew over ahead of the McWilliams, unbeknownest, to be on hand at the airport to greet Gloria, Dick and daughters on arrival. The De Giorgios, who had tried to talk them into a trip last fall, did it as a gala lark, but were only able to spend five days in Hawaii.

A ship docks—and, alas, a vacation ends.

AN OLD fashioned spelling match, which became an out and out laughing match, was highlight of the night when Rosie Nicholson had a surprise cocktail dinner party for "Hap" Appleton's birthday week ago last night.

Guests proved they knew their Ps and Qs about having fun—but not necessarily (for the majority) their ABC's about spelling. Honoree "Hap" left below) admits he was one of the first to get stung in the bee, going down in hilarious defeat. Hs is seen in post-spelling conference with team captains Susie Virgilio and Adm. "Casey" (Clark L.) Green.

Actually, "Casey" and his wife, Mary, just couldn't be beat; didn't flounder on a single word. Others there to test memories on whether it was "i" before "e" or vice versa were Loraine and "Doc" Miller, Markle and Darry Neighbors, Pat and Walt Gilkie, Camille Kendall, Mary Smith, Jim Wilson, Linda Goodwin, Bill Brady, and hostess' daughter, Susie Broz.

Lost composure over words like equanimity.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Marshall of 1876 College Circle, and the bridegroom's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Firth of Phoenix, Ariz., are formerly of Long Beach.

A charming Cahill original gown of Swiss organdy with embroidery edged butterfly sleeves and skirt and a gathered train was worn by the bride, and she carried a cascade of white daisies.

Attending the couple were Mrs. Carl Marshall, sister-in-law of the bride and matron of honor; Mandy Marshall, a sister, and Debbie Firth, sister of bridegroom, bridesmaids; Charles Firth, best man; Bob Kirkpatrick and Gene Hoffman.

* * * *

THE NEWLYWED pair will be at home at 315 Obispo Ave. on Aug. 10 following a honeymoon at Idyllwild.

The former Miss Marshall was graduated from Millikan High as was her husband, and she attended California State College at Long Beach where she was a member of Gamma Phi Beta. The bridegroom served with the U. S. Air Force.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hodges of Rossmoor. His best man was Larry Templeman, and seating the 400 guests were Dan McKenzie, Doug Carol and Howard Woodward, brother of the bride.

For her marriage, the bride wore a gown of sheer organza over taffeta styled with a chapel train. The appliqued lace-paneled front of the skirt was adorned with pearls and a matching crown of lace and pearls held an elbow-length veil. White orchids, lilies of the valley and stephanotis were mingled in the bridal bouquet.

impression of mobility.

Waistlines varied, but generally were high with small bosoms and long, tight sleeves.

Necklines, which last season took daring plunges, most often rode high and close to the throat.

And hemlines, the burning question every season, were just a little shorter in collections by the younger designers. The average, however, still just covered the knee.

Generally the 1965 silhouette is romantic, emerging from the disembodied, unfitted era. Jackets and dresses softly follow body contours, defining but not stressing the waist and natural shoulder line.

The "sportive look" is completely outmoded.

MUCH OF THE fall-winter Paris fashion news is in pants.

Even Chanel put trousers on ladies—the first she's shown since she began designing in 1914.

But men needn't fret too much. Chanel made it very clear that they are not for racing around outdoors or to wear behind a desk at the office.

The Chanel pants are elegant—most often in flannel with gold-shot matelasse tops. They are wide and sit straight on the hips with a flat sailor-style panel across the front that makes pockets at the sides. The legs are wide and tubular.

Chanel also included capes for the first time in her collection.

Since she's probably Paris' most copied designer, it appears likely that women from Tokyo to Tennessee will be wearing Chanel hostess pajamas and cape outfits next winter.

SOME HIGHLIGHTS from other collections:

The Christian Dior woman for this winter is a Russian—either a peasant in billowing skirt and babushka scarf or a Cossack in fur-trimmed tunic.

Included in the collection by Marc Bohan were tall Russian fur hats, tunics and jackets banded in Russian sable and fringed scarves nearly hiding the faces.

Skirts all but vanished in Jacques Heim's collection. This designer showed knee-length tunics from under which peeped provocative breeches or pantaloons of mink for daytime and of lace and sparkling jewels for evening.

Shorter tunics were his second shocker. They were like boys' shirts but in fur or jersey and worn with waist-high striped stockings or leotard tights.

GERARD PIPART, designing for the house of Nina Ricci, concentrated on suits with long, high-waisted jackets ending at the bottom of the hip.

Balmain clothes had fewer collars on coats, suits and dresses; bulky tweed coats and lots of deep ruby red, particularly for evening.

Soft bulk and fur facings characterized the slim, tubular silhouettes of Jacques Esterel and Ferrera. Both showed long jacket suits. Esterel's were straight, often banded in fur and worn over low, flippy pleats. Ferreras' were more fitted, worn with slim skirts.

Feraud, Madeleine de Rauch and Esterel showed slack suits for street wear, a fashion idea that showed up in last spring's Paris collections and appears to be snowballing.

But even slack suits are femininized for the coming season.

It's a season when a lady will be a lady—even when she's wearing the pants.

FOR OLYMPIC TRIM

Just Let Little Willie Walk

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—More use of shank's mare would increase for everyone that physical fitness the government is concerned about, say a husband and wife who were on Olympic teams nearly half a century ago.

Both Richmond and Alice Landan, who competed in the Olympics in Antwerp in 1920 and are still part of the U.S. planning for the world competition, advocate walking as the nearly perfect exercise. They urge that parents walk and see that children do too—every day. And, they suggest that the U.S. government further its fitness campaign by spending for additional recreational sites so both adults and children can get in more outdoor activity.

"Walking uses most of the body's muscles," said Landan. "It's good for the lungs, for circulation. It's one exercise almost everyone can get." His wife, once a champion swimmer, added that swimming is "probably the best all-round exercise" but pools or beaches aren't accessible to everyone.

"I'd tell parents to start having little Willie walk that half mile to school every day," said Landan.

"I walked the three miles each way from home to Hotchkiss (a preparatory school) every day without giving it a thought," he said. Landan, who went on to become a Yale graduate and track champion, grew up in Salisbury, Conn.

* * * *

AT YALE he held intercollegiate titles for the high jump and won a gold medal for the United States in the 1920 Olympics. His six feet four and one-quarter inch mark then was an Olympics record. He also at one time held the world indoor record of six feet, five and one-half inches.

Now, he said, the world records are held by a Russian, Valery Brumel, whose high jump mark indoors is seven feet four and one-half inches; outdoors, seven feet, five and one-half.

The Landans first met during the '20 Olympics and were married two years later. They have a married son and daughter and five grandchildren. All are interested in athletics, they said, but not in competition.

Mrs. Landan, 62, a pretty woman with a trim figure, grew up in Westchester County, N. Y., suburbs and studied at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in Manhattan. She recalled that her father, an attorney, was so strong an exponent of walking that he put pedometers on his six children and saw that as they grew up they also got in at least 10 miles on foot each day.

* * * *

"SOMETIMES," she said, "we'd do as many as 100 miles a week. Father once planned for all of us to walk across the country, but mother spiked THAT. She didn't want to see the family publicized. After the Olympics when my picture hit the Police Gazette she nearly died."

Mrs. Landan held "all the records" of the Women's Swimming Association of New York at one time. She also was a national junior champion and member of a team which held the world record for free style swim relays.

In the 1920 Olympics, however, she lost out in high dive competition to a 13-year-old member of the U.S. team.

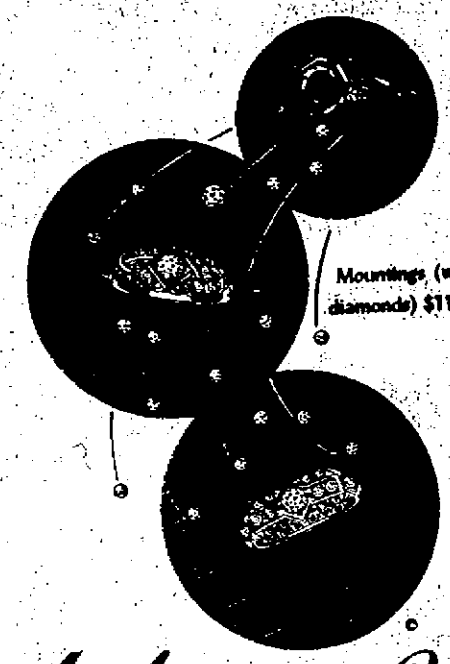

The Landans long since have quit competition but their enthusiasm for the Olympics goes on. Landan, 65, now a sales executive with the Bryan Elliott Co., an exhibit and display firm in Queens, serves as representative to the Olympic Committee of U.S. Olympians. This is an organization of former Olympians, plus coaches and others associated with the games, who continue to promote U.S. participation.

* * * *

MRS. LANDAN is active in the supply and equipment division of the U.S. group. For the games of the 18th Olympiad in Tokyo Oct. 10-25, the 400 men and 100 women athletes and the officials from the United States will be wearing donated apparel valued at $500,000, she said.

Contributions by textile and apparel firms were arranged by Burlington Industries and the Chemstrand Co., coordinating members of the apparel committee. Both the athletes' and officials' clothes including parade dress and travel-leisure outfits are built on the red, white and blue theme.

Mrs. Landan said all have sent in individual measurements but each will get a final fitting before departing for Tokyo.

flamenco hemlines and sizzling colors . . . an Americanization of the Canadian Mounties hat (so stylish this year) . . . slithery discotheque dresses (a direct steal from Paris where New Jimmie's started it all), the greatest new after-five-not-formal fashion . . . also this season's see-through fabrics, ruffles and plunging necklines, the revival of a sexy trend for which France must assume responsibility.

Also in the international flavor: evening elegance with a Spanish accent—the froth of black lace, the flash of jet, the swish of a mantilla . . . a translation of the English country look in controlled tailoring, bulky tweeds and textured hose . . . and the staccato of jungle prints and glimmering reptiles vibrating from the jungles of darkest Africa.

"Today we're enjoying a wonderful ONE world of fashion," Hersey notes. "No matter what the activity, no matter what time . . . what's fashion here is fashion anywhere in the world."

DOORS at the Lafayette Ballroom will open at 11 a. m., according to Mrs. Harry M. Minor, Ebell Juniors president.

Food will be served at 11:30; IBC contestant introductions will begin at 11:45.

Sorority Alumns Summer Fete

Members of the City Panhellenic board will be special guests when Long Beach alumnae chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi entertains at a dessert-bridge Thursday at the home of Mrs. James W. Wood, 4416 California Ave. Delectable cakes and pastries, prepared by members, will be enjoyed at umbrella-shaded tables around the lawn and swimming pool area.

Honored guest will be Mrs. Verne W. McKinney of Los Angeles, past national president of Alpha Omicron Pi, who leaves later this month for an extended world tour. Invitations have also been accepted by members of the board in 1941, during the year of Mrs. Wood's presidency, who have been playing bridge together since then.

Other previous boards to be represented will be Mrs. Epley's 1950 group who have also been meeting regularly through the years, as well as the 1963 board.

The buffet will be set in a covered patio with a Venetian glass fountain as centerpiece and white gladioli arranged in urns on white pedestals at either end.

Oswald Jacoby
Impossible Dilemma

One of the great short stories of the nineteenth century was Frank Stockton's "The Lady or the Tiger." In this story the hero was given an impossible dilemma to solve.

You are South. West opens the five of hearts against your three no-trump contract and East plays the queen. You wish you had found your way to a safe five-club contract, but you are in three no-trump.

If you rise with the ace and East obtains the lead with the ace of clubs he will lead through your jack of hearts. If hearts break 4-4 everything will be fine, but if they break 5-3 you will be set. On the other hand, if you hold off twice in hearts and it turns out that West holds the ace of clubs and five of hearts you will be set that way. Who has the ace of clubs? Is there a correct play or are you faced with an absolute guess?

* * * *

THE ANSWER is that you have about as close a thing to a guess as possible. At first glance you note that if West holds five hearts and East holds three, that East has 10 cards, any one of which may be the ace of clubs. West has only eight clubs, so that East is more likely to hold the ace than West.

Against that, you have the possibility that East started with queen-ten-nine of hearts. In that case, if he held the ace of clubs, you would still make the hand. You would cover the 10 with the jack and the nine would block the suit.

Williams-Smith in Garden Rite

Karen Ann Smith and John Herman Williams were married Saturday in the garden of the Lakewood residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace B. Smith.

The bride wore an imported Irish linen sheath fashioned with Alencon inserts and a chapel train trimmed in Alencon lace. Her veil fell from a linen and lace ring decorated with pearls.

Her attendants, all gowned in orange linen, included her sisters, Kristi and Kerri Smith, maids of honor; Nancy Tisdale, Pam George, Mary Carson and Mrs. Leslie Stewart.

Reese Williams attended his brother as best man. Larry Burnight, James Chalker, Tom Hermstad, Don Klubnik and Leslie Stewart seated guests.

* * * *

THE NEW Mrs. Williams graduated from Lakewood High School and the University of Arizona, where she was president of Gamma Phi Beta.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Williams, graduated from Jordan High School and California State College, Long Beach, where he was Sigma Alpha Epsilon president.

The couple will reside in Long Beach on return from a wedding trip to Mexico City and Acapulco.

WHY GROW OLD?
A Check List to Keep You in Shape

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The following is a list which you might use to check up on yourself every few weeks. We are all so prone to procrastinate, to allow less important things to rob us of self-improvement efforts which may not seem essential at the moment or show results immediately, but pay such tremendous dividends in the long run.

It is the day by day small investments which count up in an astounding way, like compound interest. It isn't the big periodic splurge in exercise that counts, or the frantic effort to eat as one should or the sudden concern about skin lubrication between long times of neglect.

* * * *

DID YOU cleanse your face twice today—more if it is oily?

Did you use a lubricating cream if you are past 30 or have dry skin? Did you allow it to soak in for an hour or so?

Did you get any exercise other than that your regular work calls for?

Did you take any little rest periods?

Did you massage your scalp or brush your hair in such a way as to stimulate the circulation in your scalp?

* * * *

DID YOU give any serious thought to the food you ate today? Did you make it a point to get all of the food elements so essential to health?

Did you have a good laugh?

Did you do something you are really interested in?

If you did all of these things you probably have a lot of happiness ahead of you. If you missed many you would be wise to heed the warnings.

Joan Eggart Bride of Spencer Green

Atlantic Avenue Methodist Church was the setting Saturday evening for the wedding of Joan Marion Eggart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wray J. Eggart, 2055 Dawson Ave., and Spencer Harris Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger L. Green, 2060 St. Louis Ave.

Preceding the bride to the altar were her sister, Elizabeth Eggart who was maid of honor, and Paula C. Johnson, Christine Russell and Carolyn Armstrong. John F. Green served as his brother's best man, with Wray J. Eggart Jr., bride's brother, Bob Cole and Ronald Childers as ushers.

A chapel length gown of bombazine and Chantilly lace with a tiered bouffant skirt and trimming of seed pearls and sequins was chosen by the bride. A pearl crown held her veil and her bouquet was composed of orchids, carnations and stephanotis.

* * * *

BOTH YOUNG people were graduated from Polytechnic High School. The bride was graduated from Long Beach Business College as a dental assistant and attended Long Beach City College. The bridegroom was graduated from Long Beach College of Commerce and is now attending LBCC.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Green will be at home at 4346 La Cara Ave. on Aug. 15 following a honeymoon at Grants Pass, Ore.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Don't Hold Your Breath

DEAR ABBY: My wife is going to leave me and my two children in the near future. I would like a nice-looking woman beween 30 and 40 to keep house for me and the children. I am very lonely and in need of female companionship, and maybe I could fall in love with her. I can't get married again because of my religion, so I had better make that plain, but I am sure there are many women who wouldn't mind living like that. She would have to be about five feet two or three. No taller, and not too fat. But I would prefer one a little too plump to one who is skinny. She'd have to be a good cook and housekeeper, and in good health. I can't stand to hear a woman complain about her health. She would have to like baseball, football and roller skating. I can't pay much, but I have a nice home, automatic heat and a power lawn mower. Thank you very much.—WAITING.

DEAR WAITING: If you expect to find a good-looking cook, housekeeper, companion, playmate and nursemaid, who will work like a horse in exchange for a roof over her head, forget it. No woman in her right mind would assume all the responsibilities of a with none of the benefits.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: For the past four years my husband has been wearing a hair piece. As far as I know, nobody has ever kidded him about it, although I would just as soon he didn't wear it, and so would our children. Lately he has become very self-conscious about it. He doesn't want to associate with anyone. When someone comes to the door unexpectedly he runs to the bathroom and locks himself in. When we go any place he always wears a hat, no matter how hot it is, and he never takes his hat off. He is getting so unfriendly he's not fit to live with any more. Can you help me?—WORRIED WIFE.

DEAR WORRIED: Apparently your husband has developed a fixation about his hairpiece. Try to convince him that he looks better without it. If he's unconvinced, perhaps he has been kidded about it, in which case he should shop around for a better one. If that fails, do him the kindness of steering him to a doctor. Could be it's not what is ON his head, but what is in it that is really bothering him.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion on something that has caused a big argument between my mother and me. I am 19 and my boy friend is 20. Sometimes he and I will sit in his car right in front of my house and talk for a little while before I go into the house. I am not saying that he has never given me a good night kiss in the car, but we DO NOT sit out there and neck up a storm. We talk mostly. We don't do anything in his car that we wouldn't do in my house. My mother says that the neighbors are getting their eyes full, and they will gossip about me and ruin my reputation. I couldn't care less what the neighbors say. Can you settle this?—CLEAR CONSCIENCE.

DEAR CLEAR: "Avoid the appearance of evil." As long as you don't do anything in his car that you wouldn't do in your house, do it in your house. A girl's reputation should be as clear as her conscience. Don't muddy yours needlesly.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CONCORDIAN": Don't stay away from church because there are so many hypocrites. There's always room for one more.

MAJOR & MINOR NOTES

'Fed Up,' Realtor Creates Festival

By RACHEL MORTON
I.-P.-T Music Critic

Remember the old adage, "Too many cooks spoil the broth?"

In an article in the New York Times of July 19 entitled "Getting Long Island together," Theodore Strongin writes about how "A Festival is Created by a Realtor Intent on Coordination." The realtor is Norman Blankman.

"I got fed up," he stated. "Fed up with 150 or so known organizations dealing with arts in Long Island, New York. That meant 150 separate demands for funds, 150 separate schedules of events, 150 different audiences, 150 set of officers."

"Blankman, a large scale realtor, is a man of action, quick spoken and throbbing with carefully controlled energy—just the man, in short, to 'get fed up' and do something about it.

"Long Island," he said, "like the rest of the nation is smitten with the cultural bug, and even if much of it is superficial, some good does rub off on us.

* * * * *

"BLANKMAN and his wife, a Martha Graham pupil of the dance, served on some of these committees but gradually they came to feel that there was serious waste involved in the dissapation of effort.

"So they got everyone and everything working together under their guidance with the result that Long Island's Art Festival opened recently with the New York City Ballet, and is staging 30 performing arts events and seven concerts by the Philadelphia Orchestra. Thei Philadelphia Orchestra. Their successful efforts were recognized by a Nassau County executive, Eugene H. Nickerson, who appointed Blankman as head of a newly formed Arts Commission and last May he made available $25,000 in county funds to help stage the festival.

* * * * *

"NORMAN Blankman foresees the Center as a year-round operation and negotiations are being completed with Alfred Wallenstein to head a fully-professional Long Island Philharmonic Orchestra on a year-round basis."

Long Beach might profit by the experiences and successes of the Long Island Arts Festival.

In my opinion, the reason our May music festivals have been disappointing is that too many people were involved. Likewise, the dim prospect of our ever having grand opera in Long Beach is that too many want a "finger in the pie."

I attended a meeting recently where the subject of having grand opera in Long Beach was discussed. But there were so many divergent ideas and so many "fingers in the pie" that I came away very discouraged. The only way to have grand opera in our city is to interest some public spirited citizens of wealth and have them buy a "package deal" that would bring to Long Beach a reliable opera company already established.

Film Probes Loneliness of Old Age

"Umberto D" was withheld from American theaters for nearly five years because its theme, the loneliness of old age, wasn't regarded as "box office" by the experts.

Directed by Vittorio de Sica, the film is a probing character study of an old man alone in the world except for his mongrel dog and of his attempts to sustain himself and his pet.

"Umberto D" will be presented in the Little Theater of California State College, Long Beach, Saturday at 7 and 9 p.m. It is the sixth of nine films in Long Beach Film Society's summer series. Tickets will be on sale at the box office.

Finalists Compete for Prizes

Finalists in a competition held earlier that day will vie for top awards Aug. 14 at Southwestern Youth Music Festival's third annual banquet at 7 p.m. in the Elk's Club, 4101 E. Willow St.

A $100 war bond will go to the first place winner. Lavoy Halle, executive director of the festival, will present trophies to second, third and fourth place winners. Cash awards will be given in the composition category.

* * * * *

JUDGES for the amateur championship competition will be Charles Ruetschi and Leroy Carlson.

Dr. Jennings Davis Jr. will deliver the evening's address. He received his B.S. at David Lipscomb College, his M. A. at Ohio State University and his Ed.D at Teachers College, Columbia University.

Banquet reservations may be made with Mrs. K. L. Harkey, 5836 Rogene St.

Summer Drama Bill at Horseshoe

Sutton Vane's "Outward Bound" will be presented Thursday through Saturday by Long Beach City College summer drama students at the Horseshoe Theater on the Business and Technology campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway. Curtain time is 8 p.m.; and there is no admission charge.

Set aboard a luxury liner bound for an unknown destination, Vane's symbolic drama begins to unfold as the oddly assorted passengers realize that they are all dead and headed for Judgment Day. Despite the somber theme, the play is filled with humor and whimsical insights into human nature.

Herbert Caesar directs. The cast includes Lawrence Easley, Karla Roberts, Scott Hagee, Steffi Gould, Christine Corrigan, Loren Laridon, Steve Brothers, Ken Anderson and Robert Giles. Joan Coachems is stage manager.

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

The winners of the recent Barnsdall All-City Outdoor Festival are an extremely interesting cross section of what is current in art in this area. The 22 paintings and graphics, and 4 sculptures are on display in the Tower Gallery of Los Angeles City Hall.

The site itself is fascinating to visit. On the 25th floor, its windows and balconies command the entire Los Angeles basin and surrounding hills. It is open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Fridays and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

* * * * *

WHILE it is hard to generalize about so many different works in different media, all are fresh and unhackneyed; there is a prevading sense of the mysterious. With a few exceptions like assemblage, "found" objects, and pop art, most of the leading, current trends are expressed.

Hammersley's blue, black, grey, and white "Matched" is a dynamic example of immaculate hard-edge. Strombotne's "The Man" is, essentially, a black painting with two enigmatic figures, one in a beribboned military tunic. Hansen's recent pursuit of "The Dome" in black and white duco with resist is awesome.

* * * * *

IT IS GRATIFYING to see Dick Swift's "The Creation of Eve" the major winner in graphics and two of his students, Cliftton Cline and Betty Saar also awardees. Cline's work is strong influenced by Swift, though he eschews reference to representation in his "Amen-Ra."

Saar, on the other hand, is an individual departure. Her rollicking steer on the left hand is transposed into raised, embossed cuts of beef on the right with consummate skill.

Joyce Tremaine's "Is This Araby" in poisonous green and livid pink is an aged and fattened odalisque with a chortling camel and a beturbaned speaking head coming out of the woodwork. Very puzzling, strange, and disturbing.

* * * * *

AMONG the sculptures, James Basler's "Totem" is to me the most exciting. Others are either cast bronze or welded sheet and wire, and while they are all fine, they are not unusual. Basler constructs in seemingly random lumber which has been brazed, which gives the graining rich dimension.

This exhibit, which continues until Aug. 12, is an excellent opportunity to appraise some of the leading Los Angeles area artists. It is not too large, so that the viewer can thoughtfully consider each of the works.

It's the Way That You Do It

By CURTYNE DRISCOLL

"We can tell pretty well how much experience a girl has had by the way she puts the paper in the typewriter," said Barbara Jones, vivacious manager of Western Girl Inc., Long Beach office.

"A superior attitude toward taking tests often means a superior attitude on taking a job. And neatly typed references are indicative of basically neat girls."

"How you act when confronted with a job application blank is as important as what you write on it, when it comes to getting a job," she continued.

Mrs. Jones admits that she peeks at job hunters in her outer office—and what she sees gives her a head start on deciding whether or not to hire a girl.

PRACTICALLY every employer does the same thing, she says, whether a temporary employment service like Western Girl or the personnel department of a large company.

"The way a girl acts when she thinks she is unobserved is often a greater clue to her personality than the answers she might give in a formal interview. And personality is as important as job history or stenographic skills in determining how she will get along in an office," Mrs. Jones explained.

Personality factors are more often the reason for a girl not being employed than lack of skills, she said.

Western Girl Inc. is an organization that employs girls to fill temporary jobs. During the peak period from April to October (vacation time) the Long Beach office has about 100 girls out every week.

The girls seem to like the challenge of temporary work and changing jobs, according to Mrs. Jones.

Young women new to the area find it a good way to job shop. Many Navy officers' wives find it a good way to spend the six or seven months their husbands are away in West Pac. (Employers love them because they want to work Saturdays and Sundays, the loneliest days of the week.) And mothers of small children find it a good way to keep their stenographic skills without being tied down to a full time job.

WESTERN GIRL has about 100 offices throughout the U.S. and issues "travels cards" to its employees to identify them where ever they may go. The card carries the girl's test scores and rating so she can be placed immediately.

Oh, yes, Western Girl has report cards, too. When the temporary situation is terminated, the employer is asked to fill out and return a card rating the Western Girl's performance.

Ratings, in order of appearance on the card are: promptness, appearance, personality, cooperation and efficiency, indicating the importance of attributes other than being the fastest typist ever.

In card after card, the girls were rated as excellent on all points. (Ooops, watch that promptness, girls!)

And an amazing number of them carried a hand written plea, "Please send back!"

SOME DO'S AND DON'TS for job hunters from Barbara Jones:

DO

Read the entire application blank over quickly—so that you can put the correct information into the correct spaces.

Be ready with references, dates of employment, social security number, etc.

Sit up straight, write quickly and act businesslike.

Be prepared to be tested. For instance, have your glasses ready, and, if you think you might be given a typing test, be sure your nails are filed to a comfortable length for typing.

DON'T

Spread the contents of your purse all over the office—or practically empty your purse in order to find your social security card.

Light a cigarette while making out your application.

Ask questions in a loud voice, disturbing other applicants.

Make nervous remarks when confronted with a test (such as, "I'm very nervous," "I'm not used to this make of typewriter.")

Putting a job applicant at ease, friendly Barbara Jones, manager of Western Girl Inc., says personality is as important as job skills to prospective employers. Annalee Ela (top photo) typifies the poise and charm that impresses at interviews.

Western Girl Carolyn Turrentine shows how an overstuffed hand bag can lead to disaster just when a girl wants to appear at her very best . . . looking for a job.

Green Eyed Monster Threatens Happiness

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have been married almost two years. This is a second marriage for me and for my husband; he has one child, I have three; they are all with us.

We are both very jealous. When I found out it made him jealous, I quit doing those things (mostly dancing).

My husband, on the other hand, tries to make me jealous. He tells me about girls he has gone with, takes me to their homes where he talks a mile a minute with them, leaving me to listen to their reminiscing about old times. I've told him I don't like it and threatened to leave. He says he's sorry, but soon he is doing the same thing over.

I love him very much. How can I make him stop deliberately hurting me?

—VERY UNHAPPY

DEAR UNHAPPY:

Stay jealous if you must, but for goodness sake stop showing it. If you must listen to reminiscences, PRETEND to be terribly interested. That will fascinate him.

When you can tactfully avoid it, don't go where you are exposed to these get-togethers that irritate you.

When he sees he actually isn't hurting you (can't hurt you)—or so you must make him think—the fun of trying will speedily die out. All the best!—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My 13-year-old sister went to the store with a friend and never came back. I'm hoping she will read this and call us or write us. Mother is failing fast and this is just one more try to find Wanda.

Please, Wanda, let us help you whatever your problems—just let us know where you are. I write in love and desperation, as your sister: Margaret Southard, 4753 Canehill, Lakewood, Calif.

* * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Playboy husbands! I wonder if there are other wives with husbands who are as stupid as mine?

My dearly beloved (ha! ha!) goes to union meetings or whatever kind of meeting he can think of on paydays, stops at a particular bar to have a beer with the fellas (the kind that wear lipstick and skirts!). It takes him till 3 or 4 a.m. to get home. Hubby is so elated with events of the night he fails to remove the lipsticked cigarette butts from the car ashtray; and some of "her" belongings are usually left in the car.

He also forgets to remove slips of paper with the names, addresses and phone numbers of his friends. I find them when I do the washing or dry cleaning.

The only thing dumb hubby doesn't know is that this supposedly unsuspecting wife has seen her lawyer in regards to getting rid of him (so he can really be a playboy!), plus a support order because she is tired of footing the bills and responsibilities while he is out spending his paycheck with the "fellas" (???)

—KNOWING, IRATE WIFE

DEAR KNOWING:

Perhaps if your husband reads this, he will do an about-face. You've let him get by with his little game so long, he probably thought he had it made! Little does he suspect that his number has been called and that he'll have to bow out of the playboy game or watch the curtain go down on a once-happy marriage.

Let's hope he settles down and behaves himself so you don't have to go though with your divorce (or separation).—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am 16, have been married almost two years, and have a darling little girl almost a year old. My problem is I don't love my husband; I love someone else.

This other man is 30, married and has three children but he is better to me than my own husband. He's everything a girl could want. To top it off, his wife and I are good friends.

A few stolen moments while his wife is away is just like a beautiful dream. But now I'm waking up and I think I'm about to have his child.

Where will all this end ??

—BETTY BLUE

DEAR BLUE:

Where indeed! The whole mixed-up business is such a pudd'n'head mess that it can't help but get messier. And probably the sooner it all blows up the better.

If you do find you're going to have this man's child, then better make a clean break of it NOW, as judging from your letter, it's all bound to come out sooner or later anyway.

In the letter above I remarked that "telling all" is sometimes self-indulgence—but in this case I'd say it was about the only way to wipe the slate clean.—M.M.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Cooking No Labor for Him

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L.I.P-T Food Editor

"If it's smoking, its cooking. If it's burned, it's done."

This is the tongue in cheek description of the cooking know-how of most of the Chefs of the Week . . . or perhaps men in general.

Thus it is noteworthy that the cooking capabilities of President Johnson's official family qualify them to preside over any range. They each have a favorite recipe, too!

Today's Chef of the Week, W. Willard Wirtz, secretary of labor, has mastered Beef Brochette. His imaginative abilities have combined the cubes of beef with cubed eggplant, cherry tomatoes and canned small onions.

Barbecued Beef Kabobs is the favorite of Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, recommends his Marinated Steaks, while Luther H. Hodges, secretary of commerce, and Stewart L. Udall, secretary of interior, want none of the marinating-basting-barbecuing bit. They prefer to do theirs as-is, with the true, succulent flavor of the beef still intact.

W. Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Labor

* * * *

SECRETARY Wirtz was appointed secretary of labor by the late President John F. Kennedy in August of 1962, was confirmed by the Senate without hearings, and sworn into office at the White House in September. Prior to that he had served as under secretary of labor, engaged in the private practice of law, and had been a full professor of law at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. Earlier in his career he had taught law at the University of Iowa, and English at Kewanee, Ill., High School.

Born in DeKalb, Ill., Wirtz attended Northern Illinois State Teachers College in DeKalb, the University of California in Berkeley, and Beloit College in Beloit, Wis., from which he received a BA degree. He entered Harvard Law School in 1934, and was graduated in 1937.

Since assuming office, his principal concerns, apart from the everyday administration of the Department of Labor, have centered around the nation's broad unemployment problem in all its ramifications — long-range economic development, employment aspects of the civil rights question, and the problems imposed upon the field of labor-management relations by the country's advanced industrial technology.

* * * *

IN HIS capacity as secretary of labor, he also bears major responsibilities on several governmental committees independent of his department.

Sharing his cooking interests are Mrs. Wirtz, the former Mary Jane Quisenberry of St. Louis, Mo., and their sons, Richard, 23, and Philip, 14.

FAVORITE beef cookout entree of Secretary Wirtz is beef brochette—tender cubes of beef strung on metal skewers with cubes of eggplant, cherry tomatoes and canned small onions.

Secretary Wirtz likes the beef cut in 1-inch cubes. Ditto for the raw eggplant. And he says both the meat and eggplant cubes should be marinated in olive oil and garlic for at least three hours before putting them on skewers alternately with the tomatoes and onions.

Start the charcoal fire early, is his advice also. And don't overcook the beef or vegetables. Here are his directions:

BEEF BROCHETTE

Marinate 1-inch cubes of tender beef and 1-inch cubes of raw eggplant for at least 3 hours in olive oil and garlic. On skewers, alternate beef cubes with eggplant cubes, small red (cherry) tomatoes, and canned small onions. Cook over hot coals until meat is browned evenly.

BARBECUED BEEF KABOBS
Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Labor

Take ½ cup olive oil or salad oil, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon rosemary or oregano, 1 pound tender lean beef cut in 1½-inch cubes, 2 large onions cut in wedges, 2 large tomatoes cut in wedges and 8 pitted ripe olives.

Combine oil and reasonings. Add meat cubes and let stand for several hours. Using four skewers, place ¼ of meat cubes, vegetables and olives on each skewer. Broil over charcoal until brown or about 12 minutes, turning to brown evenly. Provides four servings.

MARINATED STEAK
Robert S. McNamara Secretary of Defense

McNamara likes a tender sirloin steak, at least 1½-inches thick, marinated at least four hours in the following sauce: 1 part wine vinegar, 2 parts olive oil, lots of salt and pepper, garlic and a dab of ketchup. He cooks it over hot coals, 10 to 15 minutes for rare, or 15 to 20 minutes, turning once, for well done steaks.

Luther H. Hodges, the Secretary of Commerce, prefers steak for a cookout—the best cut available—broiled over charcoal and seasoned only with salt and pepper.

Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall likes his steak without barbecue sauces. He wants it cooked "as is" so the true, succulent flavor of the beef comes through.

Southland

OUR COVER

Southland today pays tribute to Long Beach as an international center of feminine pulchritude with a cover photo of Gudrun Bjarnadottir who came to this city last year as Iceland's loveliest representative and left with the crown of Miss International Beauty for 1964. She returns in the waning days of her reign to witness the selection of and to crown her successor. A native of Keflavik, Iceland, Gudrun speaks English and Icelandic and attended Pitmans College, London. She aspires to a theatrical career and will have that chance this year in the filming of a motion picture to be made in Hawaii. For those who like to make an advance selection of her successor, Southland also presents some interesting data on selections of prior years, with which to make a possible forecast as the girls take the spotlight in the 1965 pageant. NEXT WEEK

A famous Southern California planner-architect has started some penetrating studies of a long-range plan to develop Santa Catalina Island for 16,000 permanent residents. This would necessitate some rather startling changes on the island, which are discussed next week by writer Lou Jobst in an article titled "Cardboard Kingdom."

HARBOR AREA

Tour trams now carry the public through the Universal studios and past such sets as this Paris street scene.

MOVIES

Ticket to Movieland

By Al Kreig

NO LONGER need you know someone who knows someone before you can see the inside of a movie studio. At Universal City, just three miles from Hollywood and Vine, the West's most famous corner, the world's largest movie studio five times each week day throws wide its gates.

Heretofore, Universal Pictures portals have been closed to all but such as Cary Grant and his black-and-beige Rolls and some 3,000 to 6,000 assorted stars, extras, script girls, directors and others necessary to the production of movies and television films.

Your pass to the glamour world of moviemaking is a ticket on one of the three-car trams that make the 2¼-hour tours of the huge studio tucked between San Fernando Valley and the Hollywood Hills. Your guide aboard the candy-striped caravan is a candy-striped girl who looks ready to be discovered by a talent scout right in his own back yard and be swept away to fame.

MOVIE JARGON comes easily. You learn that the 400-acre studio has a front lot, a back lot and some variously defined areas. Universal is mostly back lot. The back lot is the "world" of the movies. Here are recreated on the half-shell the streets of Paris, New York, Hometown, U. S. A., jungle and desert, South Seas and Cut 'Em Off Pass.

The tram snakes its way past some of the 40 barn-like sound stages, one of which houses the 40-year-old "Phantom of the Opera" set; past the offices of Gregory Peck, Sandra Dee, Marlon Brando; past Gina Lollobrigida's dressing room which has no windows; past the music department where dubbing and looping go on (really).

"You're welcome to make snapshots and movies of anything you see—the tram moves slowly enough.

IN THE TECHNICAL area, one of a pair of outsize Quonset huts is entered. This is a scene dock where architectural exteriors and interiors are stored, broken down into flat sections: A Japanese tea room, the inside and outside of a French farmhouse, prison bars, cocktail lounges. Similar buildings house the properties.

THE TRAM passes a lagoon with a Singapore waterfront flavor, rumbles by another lake and a waterfall whose height is adjustable, and winds up through stagecoach robbing country to Visitors Village for a rest and refreshment stop. Here on the heights the visitor has a panoramic view of the studio.

Returning to the front lot, the tour stops for a look inside a sound stage, but never one that is in action. You will probably see film being shot somewhere along the route, however, although you may not wander among its actors under its Klieg lights.

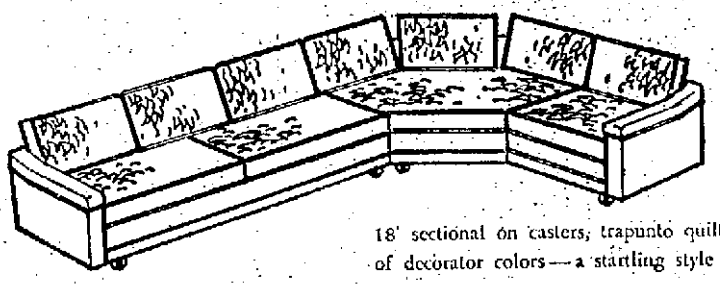

The finale occurs at the new studio commissary building where one lucky lady guest per trip is made up by Perc Westmore or one of his grease paint staff. Here, too, are various costume and photo displays.

The trams operate daily except Sunday. Adult tickets cost $2.50; children under 12, $1.25.

Sorry, girls, no screen tests; your candy-striped girl guide was here ahead of you.

Science Spies on Davy Jones

By Lou Jobst

U. S. Navy Photos

Stereo cameras and strobe lights are part of equipment devised for scientific look at miles-deep floor of sea.

SCIENCE, blind as a bat where most of the ocean bottom is concerned, is using 3-D photography, a motion picture industry gimmick a few years ago, to shine some light in the darkest ocean deeps.

Stereophotography, a process in which two overlapping and almost matching photographs of the same area are made to create the third dimension, depth, is enabling oceanographers to get a "first hand" look at the ocean floor without the necessity of expensive manned dives.

These "stereopics" provide data on floor textures, materials, depressions and marine life. They also size up everything they see and can provide exact measurements down to fractions of an inch (by using special viewers or projectors).

THE NAVY Electronics Laboratory at San Diego has developed a 500-pound deep sea research instrument package which is built around a pair of stereo cameras. Other instruments in the package can take sediment samples, sea floor cores, water samples, temperatures and water current velocities and directions.

Pressure-tight cases for the cameras and the electrical equipment are pre-tested for depths of 36,000 feet, deeper than any known bottom. Tripping mechanisms and pre-setting devices operate the cameras and other gear including the electronic flash equipment. The frame is ballasted to keep the 2¼-by-2¼ cameras, which use unperforated 70-mm. high speed film, vertical.

Echo soundings are used to determine the camera distances from the bottom. Deeper trips down may take more than two hours.

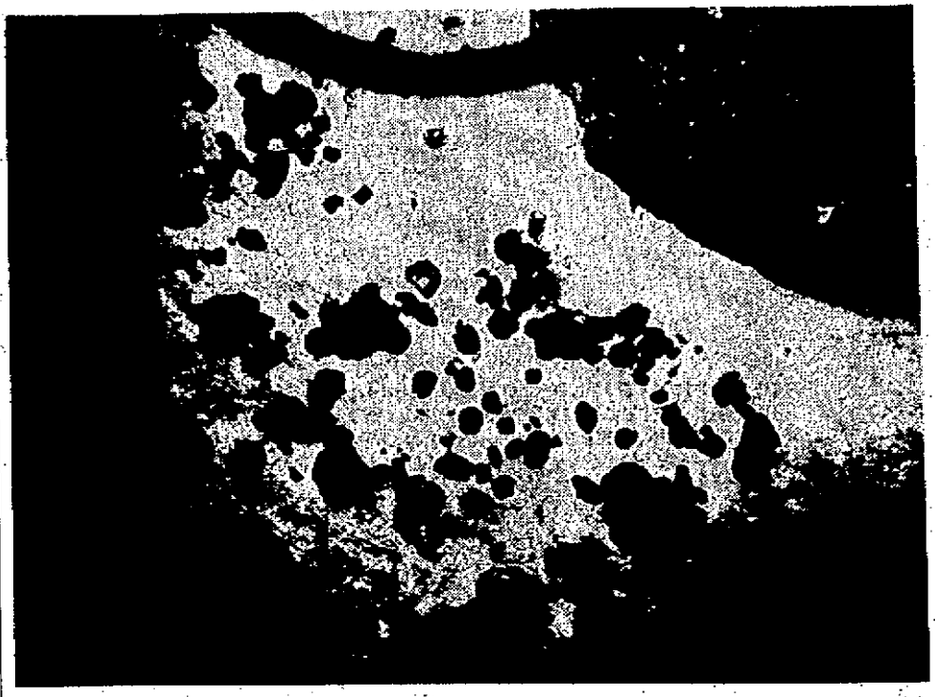

WHILE STILL a relatively new device in ocean research, stereopics have already made some important findings. Ripple marks found on the bottom have established the presence of deep ocean currents, a departure from traditional belief that deep water was still and virtually motionless.

Cameras have also discovered the presence of ocean bottom mineral deposits including vast fields of manganese nodules and phosphorite. These deposits, which represent great reserves of commercially valuable minerals, can be surveyed and even "claim staked" by camera.

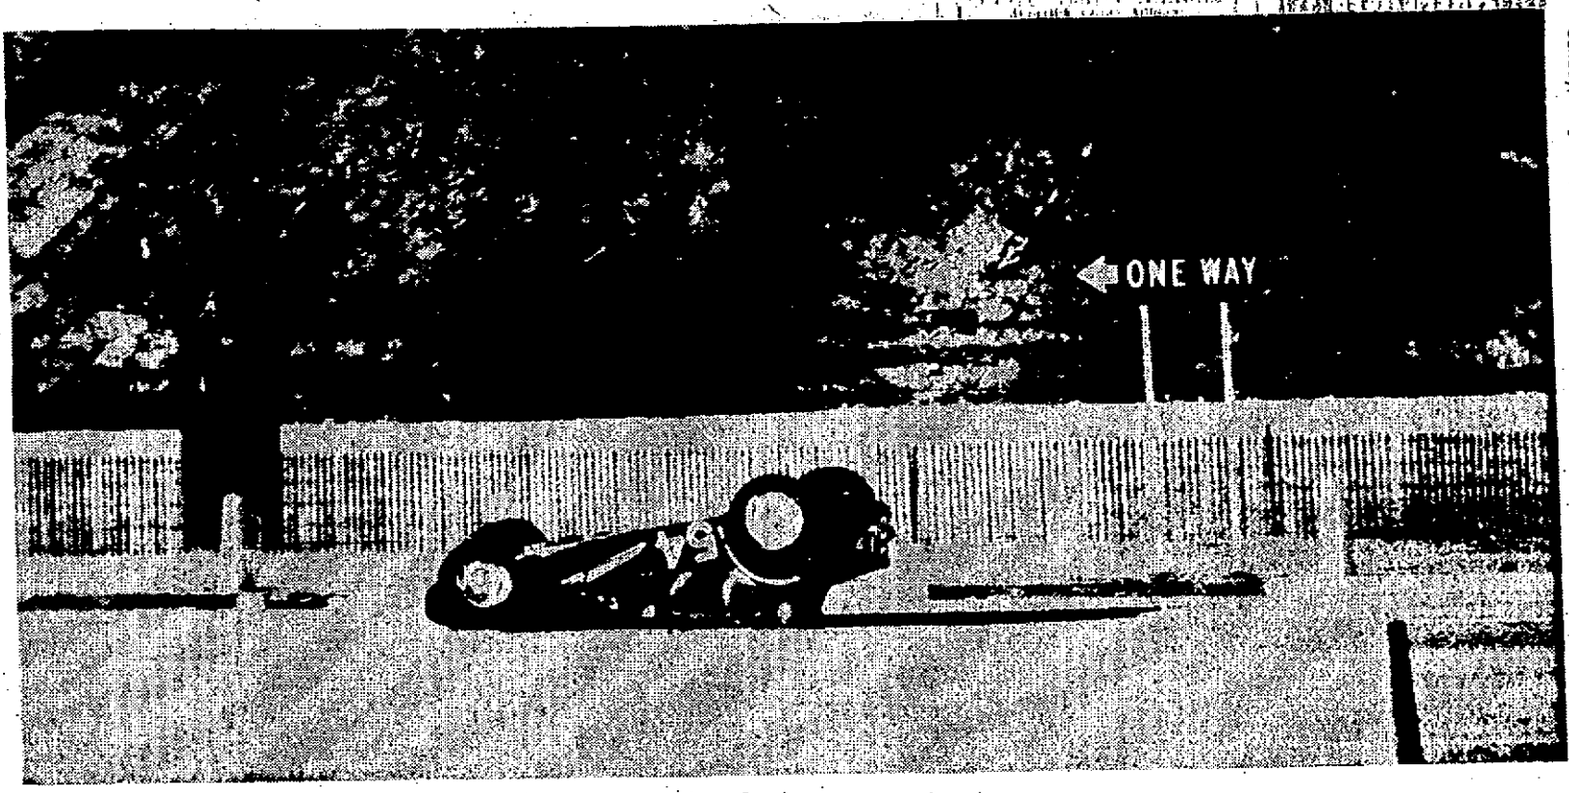

And, occasionally, the cameras have made pictures of slow-moving invertebrates and other forms of animal life including fish and crustaceans.

The cameras have also been used to study the homes and habitats of these rarely seen bottom creatures.

The cameras may even discover forms of life man does not now know exists.

Bottom of the sea, more than 3 miles down, off the California shore: Dark rocks of varying sizes are manganese nodules. Flat pictures get depth by use of 3-D viewers.

Sprawling green giants died that new beauty may be born

—Photos by ROGER COAR

The Park With 1,000 Gardeners

By Lana C. Phelan

THREE YEARS AGO, sprawling green giants lay dying in the warm Long Beach sunshine as rows of tall Washingtonian palms and ancient eucalyptus were rudely uprooted in downtown Lincoln Park. Progress, in the form of the Lincoln Park Underground Parking Garage, was under way—but progress was nearly drowned in the tears of the public as the big trees went down.

Now, the underground garage is completed and in use, and a most unusual transformation has taken place above ground behind the library building. Flanked by the new roque and shuffleboard courts and ringed about by palm trees and brightly blooming beds of geraniums is a strange and lovely garden that is presently the focal point of the assorted talents of a thousand gardeners.

Ten steps inside the park brings the visitor suddenly into the Orient. A 15-foot umbrella of Nicoli Bird-of-Paradise shelters the legend, "Yokkaichi, Japan-Long Beach, California —Sister Cities."

Designed by Don D. Obert, park director, as a tribute to the sister city of Long Beach, a Japanese garden is springing into life and beauty. It is centered with a low waterfall, bubbling from a volcanic feather-rock base and channeled into a sparkling, busy stream, flowing musically and coolly over a mossy rock bed wandering in a circular path, finally passing beneath an arched red and black Japanese bridge. There, one can stand watching the stream widen into an irregular pool beyond.

A SMALL GRANITE pagoda stands solemnly in the pool, guarding the stepping stones that march across the north end. Here, in the pool, in a mysterious fashion unobserved by viewers, the water is reclaimed and returned to retrace its route.

Grouped around the waterfall, along the stream and bridge and reaching out to surround the pool is a fragrant, pastel confusion of azaleas, abelia and tiny star jasmine. Stone and metal Japanese lanterns (reinforced at night by amber spotlights) guide visitors along the neatly kept walkways where bamboo benches are placed invitingly for meditation. A tea ceremony ablution bowl is at hand for utmost convenience. Red and green nandina bloom erect and feathery above piles of pale gray lava rock.

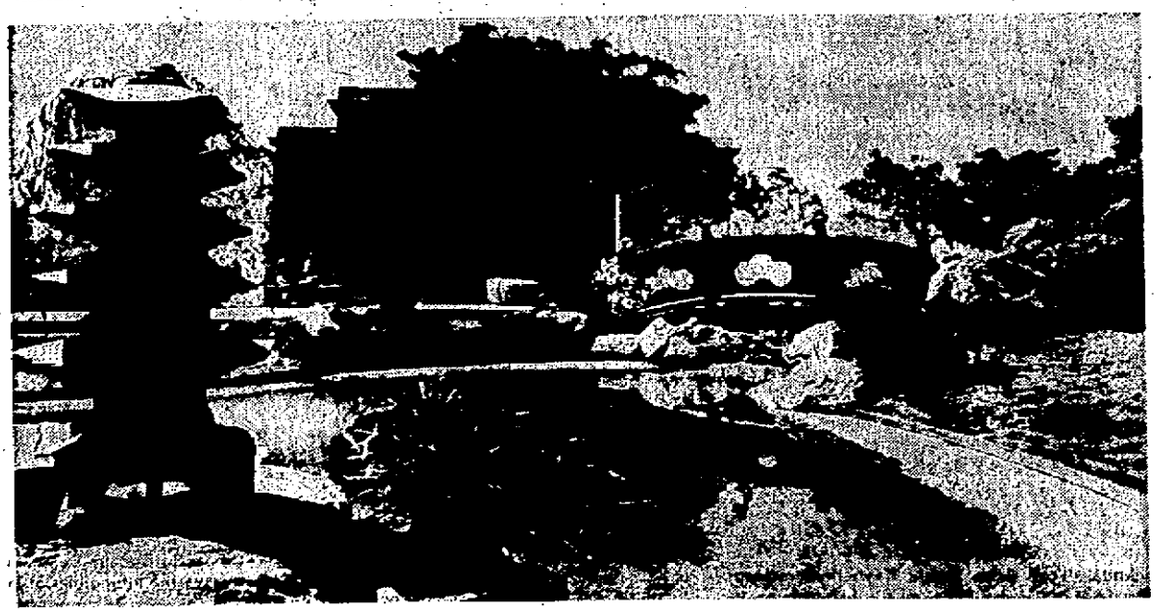

Throughout the park, new trees have been added, tall and beautiful: olive and coral, evergreen ash, magnolia and Italian pine, already 15 to 20 years old at time of planting, have been carefully placed in raised mounds of earth, designed to supplement the barely three feet of soil now separating the park and the underground garage below. The carefully tended grass is velvety, and beds of mosses in two shades of green kitten-fur bank the pool area. The Japanese pigeons closely resemble the local variety.

CLARENCE DUTTON, head gardener at Lincoln Park, grinned amiably and told about the garden and its many gardeners. "We don't dare let a weed show. We have too many Iowa farmers who are expert Oriental gardeners. Every day our senior citizens inspect this place, and heaven help us if anything isn't done right."

He stopped to answer a question from an oldster. "They really take a personal interest in it; the garden belongs to them," he said. "The Irish

What Beauty Queens Are Made Of

—NBC Photo by Gary Nail

Sugar and Spice, Certainly, But What Else?

By Herm Lewis

SUGAR and spice, certainly, but what else? What are beauty queens made of?

In this age of statistical analysis, pollsters and computers, perhaps even beauty can be reduced to coldly impersonal perforations speeding along on tape.

If the slide rule adherents were so inclined, they might correctly predict the winner in this year's International Beauty Spectacular by analyzing all the statistics pertinent to winners of the past. They might devise a silver slipper statistical formula, then search through this year's entry blanks, find the girl the slipper fits, then name her queen. All, of course, in advance of the real judging.

BUT, COMPUTER OR NO, the past does hold some valid information about the quantity of sugar and spice that goes into the making of a beauty queen.

A survey of records kept on the past 12 winners in Long Beach would lead a mathematician to predict that this year's queen will be 20 years of age. Youngest of the queens named thus far was 18, the oldest, 22.

Going further out on the limb, he might hazard guessing her height at 5 feet 6 inches. This is the average height of all 12 winners. The shortest was 5 feet 3 inches, the tallest last year's Gudrun Bjarnadottir at 5 feet 8½ inches. Good things might come in small packages, but beauty, it seems, comes in big ones.

In the weight classification, beauty queens are a far cry from their emaciated sisters who model for the fashion magazines. Reversing the popular trend, they seem to believe they can eat their way to fame, fortune, and beauty. Their average weight is 122½ pounds.

And, all of them would have been attractive, regardless of the changing styles in bathing suits. They averaged 36 inches in the bust, with last year's "Miss Iceland" and 1960's "Miss Colombia" setting the pace at 37½ inches.

SLIM WAISTS would seem to be a must. They average 23, with only a 2½-inch variation in 12 years. Christine Martel, the 1953 beauty, squeezed into 22 inches and Stella Marquez, 1960's "Miss Colombia," the girth champion, was a bare 24½ inches.

Hip measurements are another constant. With only a few exceptions, they were 36 inches, with none narrower than 35½ and two at 37½.

The eyes have it, if they're blue. Blue eyes won out two-to-one over brown, the nearest rival.

And, a prince charming with a real—not statistical—silver slipper, better gamble on size 7½. No shoe sizes were smaller than 5½ or larger than 8.

Summing up, if the winner crowned Friday night, Aug. 14, in the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium, fulfills the average, she will be 20 years of age, 5 feet 6 inchs tall, weigh 122½ pounds, have a 36-inch bust and hips, a 23-inch waist, blue eyes, brown hair and will wear a 7½ shoe.

None of these take into account, however, poise, posture and the indefinable thing they mean when they say beauty is more than skin deep.

TO PEER BENEATH the statistical exterior a panel of nine judges has been assembled for this year. Robinson A. Reid, president of the Board of Harbor Comissioners, heads the

In the Interests of Friendship

JAYNE STARK
Welcome for IBC's Miss England

MARDEE (SHERLOCK) WILSON
"Watson must be here somewhere . . ."

By Irma McCall

WOULD YOU be surprised to see Sherlock Holmes, Mamie Van Doren, Sir Walter Raleigh and Queen Elizabeth, and Winston Churchill marching down Ocean Boulevard? Well, these famous Britishers (in miniature) will form a unique escort for Miss England at the International Beauty Congress parade at 1 p.m. next Sunday. Members of the International Children's Choir, will also represent a Beefeater, a Grenadier, a London businessman, and an English school boy and girl.

These young citizens are dedicated to promoting world peace. A bright-eyed grandmother originated the choir. Six years ago Mrs. Easter Beekly aspired only to direct her children's dance studio in North Long Beach. Then, one day, a letter spun her life into orbit, when the postman delivered a song "Let There Be Peace on Earth, and Let It Begin With Me."

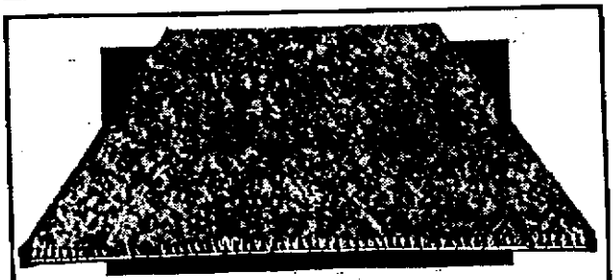

MRS. BEEKLY had always closed dance recitals with the ballerinas and tappers warbling a popular tune. Realizing that this new song would further understanding among nations, she taught it as a finale. One afternoon as the children performed outdoors at a Lakewood U.N. celebration, she noticed the flags fluttering behind the singers and the great inspiration struck. Each child would be a nation!

Boys and girls of appropriate family background, ages 3 to 14, were chosen to represent 92 nations. Pint-sized Liberia was born there, and a Korean orphan couldn't be more real.

Some countries, including Paraguay, Iceland and Ceylon, donated valauble costumes. The secretary of a USSR Youth Group wrote: "Let us know, please, the size of the costumes and we will send a pattern and samples of the clothing of our people. With friendly regards." From Hungary: "We think the realization of your idea will be a contribution to the friendship of nations and are only too glad to promote this project."

FROM THE START every audience has loved the children. TV greats have featured the choir: Sinatra, Crosby, Edie Adams (three shows, one with the theme "Love Around the World," Burt Lancaster in a Freedom's Foundation benefit. The children brighten the lives of patients in veterans' hospitals. They sing in prisons, universities, churches, clubs. They delight affluent banqueters paying $100 a plate for a cause. Women at a recent WAIF benefit in Beverly Hills declared, "The choir was the highlight of the afternoon!"

For six summers the youngsters have contributed to the "sisterhood" of nations in a gracious and appealing ceremony—the presentation of a friendship bracelet to each IBC girl by the child representing her country. The last Miss Scotland wept when 2½-year-old Kerri Shuttleton gave her the golden talisman. As a result of these symbolic gifts several lasting friendships have developed.

La Reina Rule

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif., 90812, for origin and meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you publish data on BARRITT.—F. B., Long Beach.

F.B.: BARRITT is a form of the English surname Barrett. The cognomen evolved in Britain from an early French-German hero named "Bero-walt", meaning "mighty as a bear." The bear was symbolic of strength in battle. A tenant-in-chief named Beret, a baronial land owner, was the first recorded member of this family, listed in the Domesday Book of 1066. Two centuries later John Baret was a Lincolnshire resident. The Barrett or Barritt shield granted in 1383, is red, emblazoned with a silver stripe across the top. The shield has a blue border.

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you inform us on RIVERA. —G.R., Santa Ana.

G. R.: RIVERA, when traced to its Spanish source in the Middle Ages, is revealed to mean "resident on the riverbank." The Rivera coat-of-arms granted in old Spain is a shield colored silver on the upper half, red on the lower half, divided by a wavy line. Diego Rivera, noted Mexican mural painter, was among many illustrious members of this lineage.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on SANDERS and SAUNDERS.—H.B., Mrs. S., Long Beach.

H.B., S.: SANDERS and SAUNDERS were contracted to their present form in medieval England and Scotland from the Friscan-Dutch baptismal name Aleksander (Alexander) meaning "protector and defender of men." Somerset records of 1327 list William Saundres. Shropshire lists of 1273 note Richard, "Brother of Sander." The Saunders and Sanders shield is black, emblazoned with three silver bull heads. John Saunders settled at Salem, Mass., in 1628; John Sanders was a legatee in the will filed at Newberry, Mass., in 1647.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze JEWELL. — D. H., Long Beach; G. J., Garden Grove.

D.H., G.J.: JEWELL is an English spelling variation of the ancient Biblical Hebrew baptismal name Joel meaning "Jehova is God." The Jewell shield from Salisbury has three silver gillyflowers on a blue background. Thomas and Grissell Jewell were citizens of Braintree, Mass., as early at 1642.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give information on REDBURN.—B.J., Anaheim.

B.J.: REDBURN is taken from an English locality originally called Hrcod-burne, meaning "reed-filling brook." This ancient Saxon phrase evolved as the surnames Redbourn, Redbourne and Redburn. The family shield, held by the Redborne branch, is covered with checkered gold and blue squares and crossed by a red chevron.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain PENALUNA.— B., Long Beach.

B.: PENALUNA, a phonetically spelled Cornish surname, is from southwest England. It began as the ancient Cymric phrase "Pen-lluan" meaning "resident at the glistening headland." Penaluma can also be from a Spanish landmark called [illegible]

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on LUCE or DE LUCE.—M.B., Long Beach.

M.B.: LUCE and DE LUCE descended from an old French given-name which evolved from the Latin "Lucius" meaning "light or wisdom." [illegible] Luce was introduced to England by 11th century French ancestors. In Ireland and Scotland, Luce had a separate source, from the archaic Celtic term "Llwys" meaning "clear, pure river." Old Favorites Come to a Party

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

THAT FAVORITE family standby for generations, corned beef and cabbage, gets a culinary face-lifting and puts on a party dress when it is combined in a festive and elegant molded salad. A two-layer beauty, Corned Beef and Coleslaw Party Mold unites a variety of compatible flavors, offers cool and satisfying eating, and makes a striking appearance on the buffet or sit-down dinner table. It makes 10 to 12 servings.

When unmolded, a thick layer of delectable pineapple coleslaw sits atop a thinner layer of jellied beef. There's good reason for the varying thickness of the layers. The creamy molded cabbage salad is light and airy, so that a sizeable serving is in order. The meat layer, being loaded with the full-seasoned beef, can well be smaller so that it will be completely satisfying without being overly filling.

The mold is a large one, and the greens will look more attractive in the center than around the edges, and at the same time the serving plate will not look crowded. For extra color, add cherry tomatoes and green pepper rings to the greens, if you wish. Dressing to spoon over the salad is optional; however you might like to offer a choice of French or coleslaw dressings.

Canned corned beef turns many other favorite summer salads, as well as coleslaw, into main dishes. Add it to potato, macaroni, rice, and mixed vegetable salads, or let it replace the cottage cheese usually served with fruit salads. It provides the complete protein of beef economically and most conveniently. There is no need to thaw it, no rush to use it up before it "turns"; a can on the pantry shelf or in the refrigerator keeps indefinitely, and the meat is ready to eat or to use in plain or fancy dishes the minute the can is opened.

Corned beef and coleslaw are the principals of this large, tasty and eye-appealing ring mold for a party.

Corned Beef and Coleslaw Party Mold

Coleslaw Layer:

3 to 4 cups chopped green cabbage
1 cup crushed pineapple, drained
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
Juice from pineapple, plus water to make 1 cup
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon salt
½ tsp. prepared mustard
¼ cup chilled evaporated milk
2 teaspoons lemon junce

Corned Beef Layer:

2 cans (12-oz. each) corned beef, unchilled
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
½ cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon grated horseradish
1 teaspoon grated onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

For the coleslaw layer, combine cabbage and pineapple. Soften gelatin in cold water. Heat pineapple juice; add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Blend in 1 tablespoon lemon juice, mayonnaise, salt, and mustard; stir into cabbage mixture. Refrigerate until slightly thickened. Whip evaporated milk with remaining lemon juice until stiff; carefully fold into thickened cabbage mixture. Turn into 2¾ or 3-quart ring mold, refrigerate until set.

For the meat layer, flake corned beef with fork. Soften gelatin in ¼ cup water; heat over hot water until gelatin is dissolved. Add to mayonnaise; blend in remaining ingredients and mix well. Turn into mold on top of coleslaw layer; refrigerate until firm!

To serve, unmold onto large plate. Center of ring may be filled with mixed salad greens in bit-size pieces, to be spooned onto plates before topping with servings of molded salad. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Recipe of the Week

ALMONDS' delicate flavor is part of this week's $5 prize winning recipe submitted by Mrs. Lee Hubbard, 1608 E. 27th St., Anchorage, Alaska. The recipe:

Mocha Almond Mold

¼ cup almonds, chopped fine
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup sugar
1½ tblsp. instant coffee
¼ tsp. salt
1½ cups milk
1½ cups heavy cream, to be whipped
2 egg whites, to be beaten

Chop almonds and set aside. Combine gelatine, sugar, instant coffee and salt in small saucepan. Gradually blend in milk; heat and stir constantly until solids dissolve. Stir in almonds and set aside to cool, then chill in refrigerator until mixture begins to set. Butter 8" square baking pan. Whip 1 cup heavy cream. Beat egg whites until they hold soft peaks. Gently fold in cream and egg whites to gelatine mixture. Turn into buttered pan, chill until firm. Loosen sides with spatula, unmold onto dish. Whip remaining cream. Trim a square-cut serving on each plate. Serves 4.

Passport to a Campus Wardrobe for Fall

Blending neo-classic and contemporary, the Americana Look is represented here in a bulky turtle neck sweater sparked with giant hound's tooth checks in a fluffy mohair, and Bobbie Brooks teams it with a classic slender skirt made of a soft wool flannel.

This fall's campus-bound fashions for the All-American jeunne fille include a world of sportswear with an international flair. From the Continent, the British Isles and the U.S.A. come looks which have been translated into coordinates for class-time and "apres school" activities.

A passport to these looks can be booked from a collection of internationally inspired sweaters by Bobbie Brooks. From the Continent comes the popular Italian mohair sweater in pullover and cardigan styles. Traveling north, we find the influence of the Scandinavian ski sweater in colors bright and clear as the northern lights.

From a selection of color palettes, each with one bright and one deep tone (occasionally white is added for a third color), these internationally inspired sweaters are designed to match or contrast with patterns or solids in skirts and pants.

For example, a brown, red and white tweed skirt has coordinating sweaters in each of these three colors. In reverse, a red and brown check sweater has coordinate skirts in solid brown or solid red. And the fashion adventurist will enjoy "scrambling" her colors and wearing one solid-bright sweater with another solid-deep color skirt.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Study Can Be Fun

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: "My father used to think that if we were having fun, we weren't learning or accomplishing anything. He didn't want to see any smiles until the book was closed or the garden weeded. This thesis seems so grim that I've always hoped it was really not true. Does drudgery, itself, have something to do with impressing a lesson on a child? Does the medicine have to be bitter to do any good?"

ANSWER: Learning is often wearisome, but that doesn't improve its quality.

There is no proof that a lesson learned under pleasant circumstances is learned less readily or less effectively than one that is drilled grimly into the brain by "good hard work."

We know a father who taught his preschool youngster the basics of arithmetic by playing darts with him. The child eagerly learned to calculate scores from the numbered circles on the board. His arithmetic is excellent, even though he enjoyed learning it. He never realized he was "studying."

Imaginative devices such as the dart board system actually promote learning, while the dull and uninteresting routines retard it. This would seem so obvious as to need no emphasis.

In education, as in medicine, there's nothing wrong with sugar-coating the pill.

QUESTION: Do all geniuses have a touch of madness?

ANSWER: Not long ago the National Association for Gifted Children conducted a study of the childhood of 400 outstanding persons of the 20th century. Only one of the 400 could be described as mad, and the frequency of mental illness among the 400 was found to be below that of the general population.

Other findings: The most common quality among the 400 was love of learning. Most of the 400 came from small towns and rural areas. Most of the 400 had had some serious disturbance—death of parents, broken homes, desertion, financial hardship—in their childhood.

The Temper of the Cold War

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

LEON URIS completes a loosely integrated, but monumental German-Jewish trilogy with "ARMAGEDDON" (Doubleday, $6.95).

Although Uris' fourth novel deals specifically with the Americans and the genesis and first battles of the Cold War in central Europe, it bears an obvious kinship to "Mila 18," the story of the Warsaw Ghetto, and "Exodus," a postwar classic dealing with the rise of Israel.

The California writer, whose first best-seller, "Battle Cry," was written while he worked as a newspaper circulation worker in San Francisco, searches the causes of anti-semitism in Germany.

He probes the German pysche, the ethnic, social and historic origins of national traits of fanaticism, blind obedience, paganism, hero worship, machine-like precision and lack of non-native compassion which, many believe, gave rise to Hitler and the unspeakable mass murder of six million European Jews.

But Armageddon is also a story of German courage, nobility and honor and a blossoming love of freedom as exemplified by the Berliners.

It tells of the great struggle for Berlin, beginning with its rape, destruction and occupation by the Russians in 1945, through the four-power occupation to the incredible air lift of 1948.

The hero is Sean O'Sullivan, an Irish extraction American occupation officer who has an undying hatred of Germans because both of his brothers were killed by them in the war.

Other major characters include Ulrich Falkenstein, the anti-Nazi German who becomes a force in the democratization of West Germany after the war; Col. Igor Karlovy, the Russian officer torn between eye-opening experiences with western freedom and his love of mother Russia.

Armageddon sets the tone and temper of the continuing Cold War, exposing Communism as an anti-human menace as much as Nazism.

NOTHING brings out the good and bad, the courage and fear in people so successfully as the stress induced by overpowering crisis.

John Masters, best known for his novels about India, sends a catastrophic winter storm to isolate a town of 2,200 on the tip of Cape Cod and lays bare the stories of many of these New Englanders as they face their challenge.

"TRIAL AT MONOMOY" (Harper & Row, $4.95) introduces its many characters through the issues and caste differences that divide them. The basic split concerns the future of a dune property, which old-timers and do-gooders want declared a national park and bird sanctuary, while business and political interests pull for a housing subdivision.

There is the aristocratic town matriarch whose family once owned the property and whose son brings home a Negro fiancee; the suspended school teacher who leads the campaign for the bird sanctuary; the greedy real estate developer who tries to force in housing; the local politicians; the Coast Guard chief responsible for the town's safety, and some daring air-sea rescues; the town delinquents; and a lot of others.

When the town's hotel becomes the communal shelter for the endangered populace, secrets and old scandals become intertwined community property, popping many bubbles — a Hollywood formula for drama and excitement.

TWO NEW BOOKS are designed to help women be prettier, or at least better dressed (probably on the same money they now spend, or possibly even a little less.)

"LOOK YOUR BEST" by Candy Jones, cover girl and fashion authority (Harper & Row, $4.95) tells how to recognize the current "look" in fashion, and how to dramatize good points and minimize figure flaws. Avoid the expensively dowdy, cutie-pie doll, Bohemian and sex-boat looks, she warns. She covers proper attire for office, parties, church, beach and sports. She includes a chapter on professional make-up tricks, and an amusing (and eye-opening) section on how men like their women to look—and why.

"ELEGANCE, A Complete Guide for Every Woman Who Wants to Be Well and Properly Dressed on All Occasions" (Doubleday, $5.50) by Genevieve Antoine Dariaux, director of Nina Ricci's salons in Paris, teaches women to read fashion magazines and columns and shop in salons and in bargain basements. She is against boots, sunglasses (except in bright sunlight), exposed knees, belts on waistlines over 28 inches, suede shoes in the evening, harlequin eyeglasses and curlers in public. She also opposes gloves, shoes, hat and handbag of the same color. Her nomination for the most versatile year-around dress is a white one in a dull fabric of very simple design. And she likes white felt hats that can be worn in every season with almost every ensemble.

MEET PIGTAIL, red-haired heroine of C. Y. Lee's new novel of Hong Kong Bay, "THE VIRGIN MARKET" (Doubleday, $4.50). Lee is the author of the well-known novel, "Flower Drum Song," and other books.

REMEMBER Pierre van Paassen's "Days of Our Years," a best seller in the 1940s? The author has written an autobiographical memoir which covers his life to that period in "TO NUMBER OUR DAYS" (Scribner's, $7.50).

Van Paassen began as a preacher, became a journalist and lecturer, and throughout his life has advocated many causes. He describes his early years at mission stations in Canada, his service in Canada's Corps of Guides in World War I, his life in Paris at the end of the war.

Long an adherent of Socialism, he attached himself to anti-Fascist, anti-German, anti-military causes. And he became one of the first non-Jews to promote Zionism.

ESSAYS, lectures and articles by Sir Julian Huxley, scientist who became a philosopher—and a good one!—are combined in "ESSAYS OF A HUMANIST" (Harper, $4.95). The first five essays are on the main theme of his idea-system which he calls Evolutionary Humanism. Basically, the core of his thinking is the concept that we are in a revolutionary age resulting from accelerated evolution, and have reached the point at which mankind is beginning to take charge of its own evolution and that of the whole world.

He considers the direction science is taking, aims of education and potential results of education. Other subjects include the humanist approach to religion, the population explosion—and diverting pieces on bird watching.

MOST READERS will remember Leonard Wibberley's delightful chronicle of a pocket-size duchy that stumped the larger world of science and military might, in "The Mouse That Roared." And its sequel, "The Mouse on the Moon," which spoofed the satellites.

He products fantasy-satire —perhaps this time it is more satire than fantasy — in "A FEAST OF FREEDOM" (Morrow, $3.95) about Omo Lau, a Pacific island dependency of Great Britain. For the sake of international diplomacy the tiny colony is given its freedom. Omo Lau asks for annexation to the United States. And American generals decide it is a fine test range for nuclear missiles.

"Moon Missile," as this project is called, provides what the professionals refer to as "creative play."

By Bill Meyerriecks

THE NEW look in playgrounds around the nation is what architects and designers term "creative play." A current example of this is the newly opened John F. Kennedy Playground in Washington, D.C. It features real jet planes, some trolleys, a Marine obstacle course, a fire engine and other appealing diversions for the youngsters to climb on and enjoy. In Kansas City, the city fathers set up a magnificent woodpile in sand that is a popular attraction. A Philadelphia playground sports a 25-foot high rocket that kids can climb up and return to earth via a slide.

Sketchbook this week turns you into a playground designer and builder. It presents the "Moon Missile," plan S-170, that can be built in your own backyard. This excellent exercise climber, with the creative play theme, is not a difficult project for Dad to tackle. It is made from standard lumber and tempered hardboard sheets and no special tools are required. The 50-cent Sketchbook plan illustrates and explains all steps of construction plus all details, parts and materials lists to follow.

FOR THE YOUNGSTERS, it's strictly fun and fancy. The missile base legs hold the 8-foot-high housing steady and firm; inside there is a ladder to climb to reach the second stage platform. The missile is light and airy since the portholes cut in the sides are large enough for an eight-year-old to slide through. It won't take much for the space-minded boy (or girl) to imagine a landing near some lunar crater once they're aboard. And with Dad following the Sketchbook plan instructions for painting the moon missile, it almost looks real enough to just take off into space.

To obtain the easily followed plan, specify "Moon Missile" S-170 and send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812.

Asthma Linked to Autumn

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

COMING of cold weather in the fall months produces a significant increase in asthma attacks.

The finding is that of Dr. Leon Greenburg of Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York. He studied emergency clinic visits for asthma at three New York hospitals — Bellevue, Metropolitan and Harlem.

He suspects that cold air acts as a physiological triggering mechanism in susceptible persons.

Other considerations: It may be that one or more air pollutants not now measured are responsible, such as those released when a heating system is fired up for the first time in the fall. Or perhaps the increase has something to do with the dust that has been lying dormant around a radiator. Still another possibility: the low indoor air humidity brought about by heating during the first spells of cool weather.

HIGH SCHOOL pole vaulters who misuse or abuse fiberglass poles risk serious injury from falls or impalement.

The warning comes in a joint statement issued by the Committee on the Medical Aspects of Sports of the American Medical Association and the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations.

Too often, in an attempt to achieve a whiplike action, the athlete turns to a vaulting pole lighter than that specified for his weight, the statement notes. If poles are overloaded, breakage is apt to occur, and injury may result.

PROPER APPLICATION of adhesive tape can prevent irritation from the tape, a researcher says.

True sensitivity to tape is rare, says Dr. Howard E. Dorton, Lexington, Ky. When irritation does occur it usually is due to improper application.

Blistering from tape often occurs when it is improperly applied by continuous forceful traction on distorted skin, he says. In correct bandaging, tension is applied evenly away from the midportion of the tape.

The report is in the journal Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics.

TWO DOCTORS urge caution in the use of petrolatum products to prevent sunburn.

Patients, they say, should not rub such sun-protective substances into the skin vigorously. If massaged into the skin, such compounds can produce photosensitization, a condition in which the skin reacts abnormally to sunlight.

Petrolatum sunscreens, such as "red vet pet," should always be applied gently, say Drs. E. Kocsard and F. Ofner of New South Wales. Their report is in Archives of Dermatology.

IF A PREGNANT woman has hemorrhoids, the best time to remove them is immediately after she delivers, two rectal surgeons contend.

In fact, they even recommend that the operation be performed as she lies on the delivery table.

The suggestion is that of Drs. James M. Hampton of Baylor University and Fidel Ruiz-Moreno of the University of Mexico.

Their contention is that increases in blood volume and venous blood pressure in the lower extremities during pregnancy promote rapid healing after rectal surgery. Paradoxically, these are the same physiological factors that play a role in making hemorrhoids a complication of pregnancy, the doctors report in Medical World News, news magazine for physicians.

"Healing is so rapid you can almost watch it take place," says Dr. Hampton.

Dr. Ruiz-Moreno points out that a woman's blood supply increases about 25% by the fourth month of pregnancy, but has returned to normal 10 days after delivery.

Healing time is 20% to 30% faster than usual, Dr. Ruiz-Moreno says.

New Interest in Summer Skiing

By Jerome Hall

Summer skiing is a new sport for Southlanders, among them Angela and Lynn Flaherty of Long Beach, above.

MOST people don't suspect it, but skiing is a year-round sport.

From November to May it is just a 2-to-8-hour drive to snowy slopes. From May to November it takes a little longer, because the slopes are in the Peruvian Andes.

This, obviously, cuts deeply into the active roster. For years ski resort operators in Southern California and all the way around the northern hemisphere, have been searching for an answer to the May-to-November dilemma.

As a substitute for snow, some resort operators have covered their slopes with straw and invited the skiing public to enjoy the sport of princes in the good ol' summertime.

But this has not been a satisfactory substitute, and other slopecovers have been tested at great expense to the management.

HILLSIDES have been splattered with plastic chips. To cover a modest area of 100 by 300 feet cost $40,000, and then it was discovered that about all the skier could do was point the slats downhill and hope for the best. Falling on plastic chips at high speed was not a pleasant experience.

It has been, it's plain to see, an arduous and expensive search for a way to shorten that trip to summer skiing grounds and fatten the pockets of the ski tow people.

The answer may have been found.

In Southern California's mountain resort area there is a test of a new subsitute snow under way that is attracting ski people from all across the United States and from Europe, which is just now recovering from that crushed almond shell experiment.

At Snow Valley in the San Bernardino Mountains, barely two hours drive from Long Beach-Orange County, a ski slope has been spread with Snow-Go. The management prefers not to reveal what Snow-Go is made of (is it cotton seed hulls, a soft waste product of cotton?) and is searching for a way to control its use in summer skiing.

"I KNOW we can't get a patent on cotton seed," says George. Roberts, who came upon the idea by recalling his boyhood days in the Carolinas when he slid down mountains of it before he'd even heard of skiing.

"It just doesn't seem fair, though, that we take all the chances testing Snow-Go and others just step in and cash in on it."

Jim Duncan, partner with Roberts in the summer operation at Snow Valley, says he doesn't care how many ski resorts jump into the Snow-Go. "There are 9 million people down the hill looking for something different to do this summer, so I'm not the least bit worried that we'll get our share," he says.

Several other Southland ski operators say they are convinced this is the long-sought answer. Verdict of those who have tested the slope is encouraging. "It looks better than we hoped," says Roberts.

CROWDS over the early summer weekends were large, though the project is almost completely unknown outside the inner circle of the ski business.

(The cost is startlingly low, by resort standards. Rental of boots, skis and poles, use of rope tow and the hillside is $3 for all day for adults, $2 for children. Lessons start at 50 cents.)

General verdict is Snow-Go is the next best thing to snow. "It packs just like the real stuff," claims Roberts, and the sight of skiers doing a slalom down the hill bears him out.

And best off, the squirrels won't have a thing to do with it.

Art Comes to South Street

Alice Mealemera Photo, Courtesy Bowling News

Art holds top interest in the life of Stan Riner, seen touching up a painting at a nook in his father's store.

By Mickey Gastwirth

SOME artists need the atmosphere of a Paris garret or a Greenwich Village studio to inspire them to do great work, but Stan Riner gets his inspiration in his dad's liquor store at 2028 E. South St., which is a center of cultural activity of sorts, and the gathering place for many who enjoy good music, books, art, and cribbage.

Soon after dawn breaks, this shop opens its doors. The first item of business is to turn on the Hi-Fi. Throughout the entire day and evening there is the stereophonic flow of continuous good music. Visitors may browse for a while, watching television, listening to the ball games, playing chess, checkers, or cribbage. Yet, much of the conversation and interest centers on Stan's art gallery.

Spread amongst the wines and liquors, along the walls, and in every available empty space in the store is an amazing display of Stan Riner oil paintings. Stan began his first oil painting last January, has just completed his 28th picture, many of which are now hanging in his "gallery."

THE PAINTINGS are rich in color, and his form is pleasing to his many daily critics, the patrons of the store. Because expert critics acclaimed his work, he was recently honored by having a one-man show at the Artists Theater in Garden Grove.

Always experimenting, and looking for new fields to conquer, Stan recently finished his first painting on velvet. But with the zest and fervor of a temperamental artist, always looking for perfection . . . he tore it up . . . and began a new one, which is now displayed with his oil paintings.

Stan's formal art education has been limited to an art class at Franklin Junior High School, and a class at Poly High School. His parents, Jack and Celia, recognized his talents early, when he would "scribble," draw, and sketch with pencil. They recall with pride his first "masterpiece." It was a poster entered in a second grade class at Stevenson Elementary school, which not only won first place, but was sent to the state finals and is now hanging in the archives of the Washington, D. C., post office.

IN LATER years, between football sessions at Poly and Long Beach City College, Stan continued to draw and sketch; yet, not seriously. He was encouraged to enroll in a private art school, but lasted only one day. He simply refused to listen to instructions on how to paint, determined to use only his own imagination and techniques.

Stan's older brother Bernie also has tried his hand at painting. He paints for therapy, while Stan paints for "fun." However, this fun has brought other compensations. Just for kicks, he put "ridiculous" price tags on the pictures. To everyone's amazement, especially Stan's, the paintings have begun to sell at the asking prices!

It's a long, hard day for Stan Riner, working in the store, painting, and continuing his other hobbies. Stan carves little figures out of avocado seeds, and bowls in his spare time.

Long Beach's Nickel Movie Days

By Maymie R. Krythe

LONG BEACH had its first chance to view the new invention of motion pictures soon after the first Southern California showing in July 1896 at the Orpheum Theater in Los Angeles. The opportunity was offered through the medium of several store spaces on the Pike that were converted into nickelodeons—and the admission was just one nickel!

One early house advertised as follows:

"DON'T MISS WONDERLAND! BEST SHOW ON THE PIKE"

Their program then included the films, "Lion Hunting" and "Changing of Souls." Of course, the audience joined in the customary popular song (illustrated with slides), such as "She Waits by the Deep Blue Sea."

Another nickelodeon, the Art, in 1908, offered thrills with such reels as "The Witches' Kiss," "A Red Hot Day," or "The Miser's Hoard." The Wigwam featured cowboy films to the delight of the youngsters, who after the show could refresh themselves with five-cent hamburgers.

THE LYCEUM'S bill for one week consisted of "The Bargeman's Daughter," "Volunteer Betrothal," "Sheep Industry," "An Angelic Servant," with the ballad, "Somebody Is Waiting 'neath the Southern Skies."

A "strictly first-class" house was the Ryde-A-Wyle, near Hotel Virginia. Its opening was reported April 2, 1908, in the Long Beach Telegram:

"The prettiest, coziest homiest gem of a theatre in Long Beach opened its doors to a big throng . . . a very much improved edition de luxe over the old theatre . . . a pretty foyer, an inclined floor, proscenium boxes, and loges, a large stage, gallery, and a family circle, and a roof over all are some of the features that go to make up the swellest little show house outside of Los Angeles."

Manager Clark of the Ryde-A-Wyle presented current films and "top" vaudeville numbers, with an orchestra.

THE THEATORIUM, on the Pike, just west of the old Pine Avenue Pier, advised:

"SEE THE OTHERS,
OF COURSE, BUT
SEE THEATORIUM FIRST"

This house was very popular because of daily performances from 2 to 5:20 p.m., at five cents; also because of film showings on Saturday and Sunday evenings. It is said that some residents never missed a program, which changed three times weekly.

In 1911, William J. Fahey and William Raymond bought the Theatorium, and showed films made by such companies as Biograph, Vitagraph, Lubin and Pathe.

When the partners sold out, Fahey became owner of Joyland, at the west end of the Pike, and introduced Paramount films there, including pictures starring Mary Pickford. A big hit at Joyland was Geraldine Farrar in the movie version of Carmen. An orchestra was added to this movie house and the price was raised to ten cents.

On Dec. 12, 1912, Raymond held the "Grand Opening" of his movie house, Fairyland. This "absolutely fireproof" building was on the Pike below the present Breakers Hotel. It had 600 seats, at a nickel each; besides films, it offered variety acts.

Otis Hoyt arrived in Long Beach in 1915 and soon became prominent in movie and theatrical affairs. At one time he owned and operated several movie theaters, including the Liberty (now the Roxy) on Ocean Boulevard, and the Hoyt (later the Strand) on the Pike.

FOR SEVERAL years the local center of amusement had been along the seaside. However between 1915 and 1920 some theater men established houses in the business district. In October, 1916, Fahey opened the Palace on Pine Avenue near Ocean. The place seated 800 persons and movies featuring Norma Talmadge, Mary Pickford, Elsie Ferguson and other leading stars of the day were shown. (In 1929, Fahey brought the first sound picture to Long Beach and theatergoers lined up for more than a block for the showing at the Palace.)

The Loew Corporation of New York, in 1918, opened a new and luxurious theater, the State, on Ocean. Fahey bought this house in 1922 and showed some of the biggest hits of the era there—"The Volga Boatman," "Coquette," and "Five-Star Final." Fahey also brought distinctive vaudeville acts to Long Beach, including Ginger Rogers and a noted Russian troupe.

Movie houses were well-patronized in the early days of Long Beach and most of the theaters were converted Pike structures. Best of the early theaters may have been the Laughlin, built in 1916 at Fourth Street and Pine Avenue, where the owners feared for a time that they had built too far from the main business district.

The Laughlin was damaged in the 1933 earthquake but was repaired and reopened some months later as a motion picture theater. In the following year it was converted into a drug store, and, in 1956, made way for the Woolworth store.

For those with nostalgia for the "Good Old Days," the Laughlin recalls thoughts of an "800-seat shrine of the gods of the celluloid kingdom" standing "proud and handsome as the finest theater of its day."

To Tell of Time

—Illustrated by Clyde Winslow

Down through the ages, time has become important to man and ways of telling time include many interesting ideas.

By Enola Chamberlin

IT DOESN'T seem to matter if we set our clocks ahead an hour or back an hour, most of us still don't have time enough. Like quicksilver, time runs through our fingers. We look at the clock, it says 4 o'clock when we know it should be no later than 2. This being so we wonder what it was like in the "good old days" when there weren't any clocks to look at. We don't have to go too far back in time to find out.

Regardless that man's resience on earth can be marked in thousands of years it is only in the past few hundred years that we have had clocks with which to measure time. Before that the hours were marked in various ways. Sun dials functioned when the sun shone. But they have been in use since Babylonian times. Banded candles, a band for each hour burned were fine unless the keeper of the candles went to sleep. Drip clocks worked all right, so much water dripping from a vessel in an hour. But someone had always to be refilling the bucket. Seems like in those days they had no time to do anything but keep track of time.

AND IN SPITE of all the effort expended they knew nothing of the minutes and seconds which were ticking eternally by. And nothing really kept time. All people could say was that it was so many hours since the candle was lighted or the water was set to dripping.

The first clock was operated by a weight attached to a cord or chain. This turned a set of gear wheels which kept a pointer or hand traveling around a dial on which the hours were marked.

And then, a little less than 400 years ago, came Galileo. From watching a lamp swinging back and forth in a cathedral at Pisa, Italy, he came up with the idea of the pendulum. It would mark off, not just the hours, but the minutes and seconds as well. And we still use the pendulum in some of our clocks.

About 50 years after Galileo's death, the first spring clock was brought out in Germany. From that day on time took over. Watches came into existence. They, like the clocks, had to have keys to wind them. Later, and it seems Madame Pompadour had the first one, they were made with attached buttons for winding. Napoleon wore one which was kept wound by his walking.

THE NEXT break through on time was the electric clock. Much later, in 1957, the electric watch. It is powered by a tiny battery which will keep it running for a year.

It would seem now as if we'd given enough time to time. But no, we must go on to the Atmos clock. This is a timepiece powered by the variations in the atmosphere. Two degrees of temperature change will wind its main spring enough to keep it running for 48 hours. We'll find this even in our thermostatically-heated houses. Its makers say it will never stop, will run for centuries, because of lack of friction in its moving parts. They also say it will keep accurate time to the end of its Methusalah-life.

And still we are not through taking time with time. We have the Henri X. Corbat timepiece. One of these is located at Palm Springs. The power that runs this clock can never be turned off. Twenty silicon solar cells convert light energy into electricity. A battery stores this electricity for use at night and during heavy overcast. This clock maker says these solar cells will work efficiently for 300 years.

As if we really care. Seems as if they'd have helped us a lot more if they'd invented something to stretch our day so it would reach to the end of the things we have to do and have something left over for the things we want to do.

Lincoln Park

and Scotch mosses worry them most, as they feel the light green ones must not be getting enough something or other. We sure get a lot of inquiries on whether the mosses can stand the sun, or freezing, or do they need lots of water (yes, to everything)."

He indicated a carefully reinforced switch of peach tree nearby. Perhaps 30 small green peaches graced its branches. "There's a lot of speculation over the peach crop. They're real fruit experts." Then, ruefully, "I'm afraid the peaches are going to be bitter."

WHEN ASKED about the work of maintaining the garden, Dutton agreed that a lot of hand trimming was necessary, but was quick to add that he and the "paid" staff felt the interest in the unique little park justified the extra work. "The Japanese Citizens' League is going to help us authenticate our planting, so we look forward to that. Also, this month Mayor Sukenori Hirata of Yokkaichi is coming to help us dedicate our park.* So, you see we are growing!" He excused himself as a group of "gardeners" descended upon him.

Regretfully it is time to leave, and ten steps later, the visitor is back in Long Beach.

Downtown Lincoln Park will be dedicated from 4 to 4:30 p.m. next Sunday, immediately following the International Beauty Congress parade.*

Deep Six for the Paint Brush

By Jack Baldwin

After preparing boat surface for glassing, cover with glass cloth and fit it carefully to hull conformation.

—Photos by the Author

When bonding coats have been applied, add special wax to last coat to avoid tackiness during final sanding.

TOUGH new fortified plastics three times harder than concrete offer the promise that boat owners of the future may deep six paint and varnish brushes to Davy Jones' locker. They may even come to wonder what they were for!

The rugged and versatile new polyester plastic can be applied over new or old wood, steel, or glass cloth—and it never needs painting. Clear material applied over grained mahogany can create a transparent finish as smooth and as beautiful as the finest hand-rubbed furniture.

The orthalic resin-based coatings also are available in a wide variety of colors. Development of a new patented process for adding pigment to base material overcomes a weakness found in many earlier polyester type plastics, laboratory tests show. Pigment blocks the harmful effect of the ultra-violet rays of the sun which causes many types of plastics to continue "setting" and eventually become brittle.

BOTH THE clear and pigment fortified plastics can be finished to either a glass-smooth surface or abrasive material can be combined with the liquid to create a non-skid surface for decks, companion ways, and ladders.

The material under development for the past 10 years by Prep-Rite Plastic Inc. of Long Beach, is not affected after setting by solutions commonly used aboard a boat. It cannot be dissolved or stained by high octane gas, oil, battery acid, salt water, fish blood, spilled pickle juice or an overturned Scotch and soda.

It is 100 per cent non-porous, independent laboratory tests reveal.

A TORTURE TEST by the Twining Laboratories of Southern California shows that the material when applied in combination with glass fibers resisted the direct flame of a blow torch for three minutes. Gasoline spilled on the surface and ignited left no visible mark, the report stated.

The orthalic resin-based polyester material when applied over a wood surface will create a bond stronger than the wood itself, the tests proved.

Use of the newly developed coatings when spread over glass cloth on a hull can create an armor-plated surface that the manufacturers claim will outlast the life of the boat—and never need protective painting.

While the application of "glass" demands strict attention to instructions and careful workmanship the extra care and expense as compared to repeated springtime scraping, sanding and painting is well worth the effort.

For boat owners who are contemplating recovering the bottoms of their present boats or are building new boats here are step by step instructions on how to create a coating as tough as nails, smooth as glass, and one that never needs elbow greasing.

FIRST STEP in glassing an old boat is to remove all old paint down to bare wood or metal with the aid of a disc sander — available at most tool rental agencies. Recommended is an open coat, 80-grit sanding disc on a sander of not more than 2,000 r.p.m. —about 1,750 is best.

When covering an old wooden boat check for rotted areas. Use a needle-pointed tool such as an ice pick or awl and probe entire bottom for soft spongy spots, paying particular attention to darkened areas. Replace rotted sections.

Fill hollow spots and dented areas with a non-oil based filler putty. The author used P/R Filler putty, a polyester material which when activated by a small amount of catalyst sets up sanding hard in five to 10 minutes. Putty can be drilled, sawed, or sanded to a feather edge without risk of chipping.

(Caution: When adding catalyst to any polyester base follow directions of manufacturer implicitly. Mix only enough material to be used in less than 10 minutes. Unlike adding thinner to paint the more catalyst added to base material the faster the set-up time. Material can set as hard as concrete in seconds if too much catalyst is added.)

Oil or grease spots on the hull must be removed with solvent or strong detergents.

WHEN THE hull is sanded smooth, drape bottom from stem to stern with six- to eight - ounce glass cloth. Smooth out all wrinkles. Cloth may be overlapped if not wide enough to cover entire bottom. Overlap at least three inches. Seam will later disappear. Trim away overhanging excess cloth with scissors. Slash cloth to aid in conforming to compound curves at the bow. Make a V-shaped notch at corners of transom and overlap.

Protect painted areas not being resurfaced with butcher paper and masking tape. Avoid use of newsprint as paper will let solutions bleed through to painted areas beneath.)

Dip or pour polyester base into a clean metal container. Do not put any container, roller, brush, or any tool which has even a slight trace of catalyst on it into the raw polyester.

MEASURE accurately the correct amount of catalyst as recommended by the manufacturer — usually about one ounce to a gallon. Add to polyester, mixing thoroughly and quickly.

Pour a small amount of liquid over the glass cloth. Roll liquid into cross-hatched pattern of cloth thoroughly. Use only a roller with phenolic core cover as chemicals will dissolve covers commonly used with water or oil-based paints.

Cloth will become invisible as it becomes saturated. Spots where pattern of cloth are discernable indicates the cloth is either not saturated or not in firm contact with wood surface—or both! When applying the liquid over cloth always use a clear, unpigmented polyester for the first coat. Its transparency will permit you to detect air bubbles trapped beneath the cloth.

For inside corners and smaller areas, use a pure bristle (not nylon or other synthetic type) brush. Rinse immediately in acetone before polyester hardens. Rinse roller in acetone between coats.

Second and subsequent coats can contain pigment. Apply when previous coat becomes tacky. Four or five coats are recommended.

TO THE POLYESTER used in the final coat add approximately five percent of a special wax recommended by the supplier. Wax will eliminate tackiness of the final coat and prevent clogging of sanding disc. Use an open coat 100- to 120-grit sanding disc for final finishing if desired.

Hand sand corners and small areas not accessible with the sander.

The boat is now ready for the water.

As for those paint brushes: give them away, throw them away or give them the deep six. You won't be needing them again!

Famous Last Words

GROVER CLEVELAND
Tried so hard to do right . . .

By Hoyt McAfee

BLUNT-SPOKEN Harry Truman supposedly once told some ministers who visited him in the White House: "A man's last words usually reveal much about him. When I die, I hope that mine will be: 'I gave the Republicans hell and had an interesting life. Thank you, Lord!' "

Those words are in character. They certainly sound like Truman. As to the nature of a man's last utterance on this earth, much depends upon how he dies: whether peacefully, in pain, or suddenly and violently.

Final words of U.S. presidents, shown in research, reveal that, on their deathbeds, most of these leaders voiced concern about: (1) their loved ones and friends, (2) about their country, (3) or voiced expressions of a spiritual nature. Most surprising of all, perhaps, were the last words of rough-and-tumble Andrew Jackson.

His deathbed utterance was one of tender solicitude for his family.

He said: "I hope to meet each of you in heaven. Be good children, all of you; and strive to be ready when the change comes."

Almost equally surprising was the last comment of the greatest free thinker ever to occupy the White House — Thomas Jefferson. He identified himself with no religious group. To paraphrase one of his expressions—"I have ever thought religion a concern purely between our God and our conscience. I consider myself directly accountable to HIM — not to the priests, preachers, or rabbis. A man's deeds are the true measure of his religion: not his WORDS or whether he does, or doesn't attend church!"

SO, NOW, ponder his dying words: First, he asked whether the date was July 4. It was. Then, in a fading voice, he said: "I resign my spirit to God, my daughter to my country."

George Washington's head slumped down on a pillow and he uttered one brief sentence: "It is well." John Quincy Adams, the only president's son ever elected America's chief executive, died as peacefully as Washington. He remarked: "This is the last of earth. I am content."

President Martin Van Buren opened his eyes a moment and began this sentence: "There is but one reliance"—. At that point his voice broke and he slumped into death. Likewise for President Grover Cleveland. He had completed saying, "I have tried so hard to do right," when his voice trailed off and he could speak no more.

After a bullet from John Wilkes Booth's pistol entered Abraham Lincoln's head, he lingered in the throes of death for hours. Only incoherent mumblings came from his lips. It was different with James A. Garfield, the second U. S. President to meet death at the hands of an assassin (Charles Guiteau).

SHOT AND WOUNDED in the Washington, D.C., railway station, on July 2, 1881, Garfield lived till Sept. 19 of that year.

On his dying day he suffered agonizing pain. In a hoarse whisper he bade his Chief of Staff, David Swain, to lean closer. Garfield murmured to him: "Oh, Swain — there is pain here. Oh, oh!"

On Sept. 6, 1901, a crazed anarchist joined the line of persons moving forward to shake hands with President William McKinley at Buffalo's Pan-American Exposition. Suddenly he brandished a pistol in his bandaged hand and fired, point blank, at McKinley. For eight days thereafter the wounded U. S. President lingered on.

WILLIAM McKINLEY
. . . God's will be done . . .

Death finally overtook him on Sept. 14. In an emotion-choked voice he spoke these words: "It is God's way. His will be done. We are all going, we are all going, we are all going!" Benjamin Harrison was another president who died in acute pain. He asked: "Are the doctors here?" One stepped forward quickly. Harrison groaned: "Doctor — my lungs!" Then a convulsive shudder shook his body and he died.

ROUGH RIDER Teddy Roosevelt made this final request on his deathbed: "Please

JAMES BUCHANAN, the only bachelor president in U. S. history, murmured this prayer: "Oh, Lord God Almighty—as thou wilt." President Zachary Taylor mustered the strength to declare: "I have tried to discharge my duties faithfully. I regret nothing, but am sorry to be leaving my friends."

Two U.S. presidents spoke words of love (for their wives) in their dying moments. President James K. Polk: "I love you, Sarah (Polk). For all eternity, I love you!" President Rutherford B. Hayes: "I know that I am going where Lucy is" (that being a reference to his wife).

President William Henry Harrison, Indian fighter and hero of the Battle of Tippecanoe, won the presidential election on this slogan: "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too." On his inauguration day (held out of doors in miserably cold weather), he caught pneumonia and died one month later. His last words, spoken to Vice-President John Tyler, were: "Sir, I wish you to understand the true principles of government. I wish them carried out."

President Millard Fillmore took a bite of food, called it "palatible nourishment," then lapsed into death. President Warren G. Harding, as reputable historians have recorded, had a torrid, illicit love affair with a spicy young blonde (named Nan Britton) during his White House days.

Yet when sudden death struck down President Harding in San Francisco, after his trip to Alaska, his wife was at his side. She began reading to him. His final words to her were: "That's good. Go on — read some more."

There's a plant of some kind blooming in Southern California every season of the year. Grow your own. The garden columns of Southland Magazine will help you.

Courage That Walks on Four Legs

By Eleanor A. Price

No breed monopolizes heroics, but German shepherds get nod for guard training. One here and toy pug are owned by Amy Blech, a member of Hollywood Dog Obedience Club.

ENTRIES for the German Shepherd Dog Club of Orange County match today at La Palma Park, Anaheim, have closed at 200 dogs in breed and 100 in obedience. There are classes from ages 2-4 months up, just so the dogs have no championship points. Eleanor Waskow, M.D., is judging breed; Bob Penny, obedience.

The German shepherd dog is often called police dog, war dog, scout dog, attack dog, protection dog. He does excel in these things, but for plain heroic home pets, he is equaled by the collie, according to surveys. And even these two breeds have no monopoly on rating the headlines when it comes to heroics. Toy dogs and even mixed breeds have shown courage in the clutch.

And names don't mean a thing. There are just as many heroic Queenies, Kings, Sams, Ladys, Beggars, Pennys, Trixies as there are dogs with long and fancy names among those competing every year for Ken-L Ration gold medal awards and other awards.

FOR ACTUAL training of dogs to protect person and property, the first choice is the German shepherd dog followed closely by the Doberman pinscher. The dog should not be a naturally mean bully in the show-off sense, but he must be very intelligent, of superb temperament, tough, courageous. His training usually starts just before he is one year of age, but there have been cases of dogs up to three years of age which accepted the rigid training readily.

Training a dog to be an aggressive guard and patroler is a job for an expert trainer, one who can really discipline a dog to perfection. For example, the dog is trained to attack either on command or at the sight of a weapon, yet he must stop even in midflight if the weapon is a knife and the person drawing it from his pocket calmly uses it on his fingernails rather than as an instrument of combat. Some dogs are trained to patrol alone in a locked building or walled or fenced area, and in this case he attacks and continues to attack until his prey remains motionless. Then he stands guard until his trainer arrives to take over. Certainly no place for the novice trainer here!

IN MOST CASES, the trainer is the only person who feeds, grooms, talks to and plays with the dog while the animal is in training. The trainer must be patient and not abusive, for a dog that learns to hate or fear is worthless. On the other hand, punishment should not be token. A clip on the jaw is acceptable, but beating, raging, and screaming are out.

A person has no real love for the dog at all if he chains him on the premises the dog is to guard. The body of many a loyal chained dog has been found in the early morning with a bullet through his head or his skull caved in.

EVENING TRIAL of Valley Hills Obedience Club at Sepulveda Sports Center in Encino is set for Aug. 15. Secretary is Joe Carr, 5156 Otis Ave., Tarzana. Silver Bay Kennel Club show and trial is Aug. 23 at Balboa Park, San Diego.

Cabrillo Kennel Club has scheduled a sanctioned match Aug. 16 at Recreation Park, Oceanside. Entry fees of $1 per dog, 50 cents for extra class, may be sent to Route 1, Box 785E, Escondido, or may be paid at the rounds until noon.

South Bay Kennel Club has a breed match (no obedience) today at Alondra Park, Manhattan Avenue at Prairie Avenue, Lawndale. Entries until noon, judging to start at 1 p.m.

Hibiscus is one of the Southland's most showy shrubs, providing landscapings with bright splashes of color.

By Joe Littlefield

LANDSCAPINGS throughout the Southland are liberally splashed with color through the planting of hibiscus and the most popular variety of these shrubs, and the one with the longest season of bloom, is the evergreen Hibiscus rosa-sinensis. The urn-shaped flowers with protruding, gold-tipped styles furnish lots of showy flowers in tropical effect, offer a wide range of colors. The leaves, too, are shiny and fresh looking, even in the smog areas.

This hibiscus may be planted in coastal, interior, and foothill areas of Southern California where temperatures don't go too low.

Planted now in sunny locations where shrubs are needed for color, they'll grow fairly fast, and become well established by the time cold weather rolls around.

ALL THE VARIETIES are lovely and are favored. Three that seem to stand out above the rest are Kona with fully double rosy-pink flowers the petals daintily frilled, the stamens deeper rose color. Crown of Bohemia double blossoms are a showy burnt-orange color. The plant blooms nearly year round, but is slower to reach maturity and bloom. Be patient with this variety.

Ross Estey has large single flowers, the petal edges of orange shade to a glowing rose center. The tufted, ruffled flowers usually last three to four days. The glossy green foliage is thick and leaves are larger than some of the other varieties.

Agnes Gault hibiscus is vigorous and no doubt the largest grower of them all. The single rose pink flowers are attractive.

IF HIBISCUS in your locality freeze easily, you'd be wiser to plan Hibiscus syriacus, "rose of Sharon," because this husky grower stands cold down to about zero degree! A deciduous plant, it is popular in the eastern and southern states. The hollyhock-like blossoms in single or double shape flowers are white, pink or lavender, and bloom during the summer season. The plant may be trimmed and trained to grow into a low tree around 10 to 12 feet tall. Time to prune Althea, generally, is during the winter when the plants are dormant.

Garden Clubs

Long Beach Amateur Orchid Society will hear a talk on "Semi-Albas, Their Breeding and New Developments" by Leo Holquin, orchid hybridizer and commercial orchidizer, at a meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in Long Beach Silverado Park Clubhouse. plants in bloom will be displayed. The public is invited.

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week . . . Stop by your nursery and check out the summer flowering shrubs, abelia grandiflora, the common myrtle, oleanders and others. Now you can see the bloom before you buy.

If you will have a late vacation, be sure to soak your garden thoroughly before leaving. Take note to leave written explicit instructions to whomever is going to watch over your garden.

Cut back delphiniums when the flowers fade. This will encourage a new crop in many areas, says California Association of Nurserymen.

Primroses may be divided now or next month. Rework the soil with generous amounts of leaf mold and a good fertilizer before replanting.

DR. CARL Q. CHRISTOL
Space Law Expert

Space Age to Need Space Lawyers

By Lou Jobst

LIKE lunar landings, space lawyers are just around the corner.

This is the view of Dr. Carl Q. Christol, chairman of the USC political science department and a foremost authority on international law.

The Southland educator says a body of law to govern man's activities in the hostile regions of outer space is already emerging.

This general consensus for special jurisprudence includes these points:

1. The various world powers may not interfere harmfully with radio broadcasts to, from and through outer space.

2. Mass destruction weapons and nuclear testing should be prohibited in these extra-terresterial regions.

3. Space vehicles and their passengers should return to their port (or country) of registry and nations will be held liable for damages to other countries caused by the space apparatus or machines.

4. Nationality of space stations and vehicles will be recognized as are the nationality of ships on earth oceans.

Dr. Christol also believes it will be legal for the military to build space stations as long as the "military use is for a peaceful purpose."

He believes the U. S. has been and will continue to be a leader in the development of international law for international

"WHILE THE U. S. most certainly would look to its own security in outer space as elsewhere, it has acted to lessen space dangers, achieve order under law and secure for mankind a more orderly and stable world."

Dr. Christol warns there will be no development of outer space without law.

BILL WELCH

Part-Wizard

TO MAKE progress in the restaurant business these days, you've got to be part-genius, part-wizard and part-scholar.

And that explains why Rex Welch and his brother Bill have turned the glamorous, expensive-looking Tenderloin Restaurant, 4363 Atlantic Blvd., into one of Long Beach's most popular and successful dining establishments. They did it by carefully studying the eating habits of their guests and determining that many were unable to eat all of the delicious prime rib au jus they ordered because the serving was too large.

Rex, who owns the restaurant, and Bill, who manages it, decided to decrease the size of the meat portion—and the $4.50 price. This decision, made last May, resulted in a fabulous upswing in the restaurant's popularity. The prime rib, now $1.95, is still the same quality of delectably tender beef, beautifully roasted and served by skilled waiters working in an atmosphere of elegance and refinement. The serving of beef is certainly sufficient for most appetites and the rest of the fine dinner has been unchanged. Included are a marvelous salad, mixed by the waiter at the table in a huge bowl on a bed of ice; outstanding baked potato stuffed with sour cream and chopped bacon or served with melted butter; dark and light sourdough breads and choice of beverage. For huge appetites, a $3.90 cut of prime rib is available.

Also featured are such splendid entrees as braised sirloin tips, prepared with a touch of wine for $1.50; fresh trout with chopped almonds, $3.50; sauteed sand dabs maitre d' hotel, $1.75, and the succulent lobster-N. Y. steak combination, $4.50.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE EVENING NEWS AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

BUT SHE'S SERIOUS ACTRESS

Tina Louise Doesn't Fight 'Sex-Goddess' Image

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just when you figure that lotta-girl Tina Louise is all set to decorate the New York eye-line for a lengthy period, away she goes to Hollywood.

"I don't fight it any more," said the titian-haired, statuesque actress concerning the sex-goddess image that nature has inflicted on her and which is responsible for her taking a job in one of the new television series for the fall.

"That doesn't mean I like it, but I'm resigned to trying to make it work for me. My interest is in serious acting. But you go where the money is when it comes along with the idea that it will help you do what you really want to do later."

* * * *

MISS LOUISE is not one of those beauties who just talk about serious acting to make conversation. She kept out of circulation for well over a year to study in the private classes of Lee Strasberg, the maestro, the law-giver of the oh-so-serious and dedicated and famous Actors Studio. And, a few months ago, she achieved what many players do not—she became a permanent member of the studio itself. It ain't easy.

"Achieving that goal made it possible for me to go on accepting, for the time being, the sort of roles with which people naturally associate me," Miss Louise said. "I proved something to myself, and I can afford to wait."

* * * *

WHAT SHE DID was to accept the important featured role of a sexy dish, fancied by a Hollywood producer, in the smash-hit musical "Fade out—Fade In," starring Carol Burnett. An attractive job, good for a year, at least.

"But we hadn't been open in New York for more than two weeks before I had this offer to become one of the regulars in the new CBS television series Gilligan's Island,' " she explained. "Fortunately, I had an escape clause in my show contract. The television offer was too good to pass up. I'm ambitious, but it doesn't hurt to be practical."

So "Gilligan's Island," a comedy series headed by Bob Denver and involving an assortment of persons in adventures stemming from the ineptitude of a charter-boat skipper, has Miss Louise's services in the role of a glamorous movie star named Ginger.

MISS LOUISE started her show business career as a singer in the chorus of a revue called "Two's Company," starring Bette Davis, in December, 1952. She had singing and bit assignments in another revue, "Almanac," a year later. Her most impressive Broadway appearance was as Appassionata Von Climax in the "L'il Abner" musical hit of 1956-57.

The movies took her after that success, and her best role was as the beautiful Griselda in "God's Little Acre." She is currently to be seen in United Artists' "For Those Who Think Young."

No other refrigeration warranty gives so much protection for such a long period of time . . . because only Amana has the quality to back up such a claim . . . unmatched by any other maker of refrigerators, freezers and room air conditioners.

So you can forget about major repair bills when you purchase an Amana. Amana's warranty assures trouble-free enjoyment of your appliance. Ask your dealer to show you the chart comparing competitive promises . . . prove to yourself that Amana's warranty gives much more comprehensive coverage.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

Good Old Summertime Makes TV Fine for Wally

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Wally Sherwin is as rare as a hot dog without mustard.

Wally, you see, likes summer TV.

The coincidental fact that he is programming director for KHJ-TV (channel 9) has considerable to do with his attitude.

"We build our new audiences in the summer," said

WALLY SHERWIN

Wally. "Viewing habits may be a little later, but the number of sets still in use is fantastic—maybe 2% off from winter."

Channel 9's programming devotes 56% of its air time to movies and a good portion of their films are first-run during the summer months.

The reasoning behind the first-run summer-months' billing is competitive. It's competition aimed at the networks.

* * * *

"THE NETWORKS reason that they have to get their money back on making a series by re-running it during the summer," said Sherwin.

It's reasoning figured on the production cost of a 26-episode series and compared with the advertising returns. As Sherwin points out, the networks frequently don't get into the black side of the ledger until the money rolls in from the repeats.

"I think the networks' reasoning is good—for us," he said.

"We make our biggest ratings during the summer. People are just as selective during the summer as in the winter—any they're selecting us in preference to repeats."

In addition to quite a number of first-run Sunday night and weekly "Million Dollar Movies," channel 9 this summer also launched its highly rated Saturday "Gladiator" films.

Sherwin describes the strong-man Herculean film as "sword, sandal and spear spectacles."

* * * *

THE HOST gladiator, David Draper, sometimes chides the action. When, for example, a Samson-type character may be wrestling with a lion, Draper is likely to comment: "Aw, come on now."

The chiding is Wally's idea and started with spooky movies shown earlier Saturday before "Gladiator" airtime. He feels "more kids wait around for the cracks" during the spooky movies than may be there to watch the picture.

It is Wally himself who is the off-stage "Hello, dere" voice of the spook spoofer. His favorite off-stage crack: "This thing better start getting spooky, soon or I'll turn the lights on."

THE LIGHTS are turned on go-green for his summer programming and fall, too. Channel 9 recently acquired several package-buys of late-release movies including some "adult films which we'll run late at night."

Competition in purchasing is becoming more intense since the networks entered the film-airing picture.

Wally feels it will be extremely difficult to buy any quantity of movies for television in three or four years.

What does he plan to do then?

"Punt," he answered.

But before he has his back to the goal line and is forced to punt, there's a couple of new ideas he may want to kick around.

And an old idea that he'll stick with—people really do watch television in summer.

Double TV Duty

Andy Griffith joins the list of stars who will have a regular nighttime once-a-week show on the air while re-runs of his old episodes go into a five-a-week daytime schedule. The re-runs will be at 11-11:30 a.m., Mondays through Fridays, on CBS, starting in the fall, when Griffith's nighttime program begins its fourth season on CBS.

When is Reed Hadley coming back in another television series?

J.T. Goulder, Long Beach

Reed says, "I wish I knew."

He told me there had been one good possibility that had fallen through. Now he is waiting for something better to come along.

In the meantime, his old series, "Racket Squad" and "Public Defender," are still sporadically aired in re-run form around the country.

Could you tell me why Tom Kennedy and Jack Narz have different names? I'm very fond of both of them. I watch their shows every day. Are Jack and Tom married?

Sheryl Halpin, Lakewood

Maybe we'd better make it clear, Sheryl, that they are brothers and the family name is Narz.

Seven years ago Tom changed his last name to Kennedy because both he and Jack were running into "sponsor conflict."

One Narz brother would be plugging Brand X soap and the other Narz would be advertising Brand Y soap.

The sponsors thought this was a dirty deal and the brothers felt they had to clean up the situation.

So Tom became a Kennedy.

Tom is host of channel 4's daily "You Don't Say." Jack is emcee for channel 5's daily "Seven Keys."

Tom is married and has three children. Jack is available.

KMPC should be commended for finding such a hilarious like disc jockey as Bob Arbogast.

His show would be even funnier if Jack Margolous was on it. How could I let KMPC in on this?

Audrea Kloese, Long Beach

You've just let KMPC in on it through this column. Now let me in on who is Jack Margolous.

'My Living Doll' Isn't--She's a Robot

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Bob Cummings is unveiling his fourth television series this fall, a show which he's kept shrouded in secrecy lest unscrupulous video thieves steal it.

Television has its share of idea bandits, but Cummings is the type of fellow who can keep a secret.

Bob's plans for his new CBS-TV series "My Living Doll" have been in the works for months. When quizzed some time ago on his future plans, Bob would answer in generalities—or else change the subject to flying, something he can talk about for days. He's an expert pilot.

Bob explained his security wraps recently when he spoke of the mad scramble for jobs in Hollywood.

"IF YOU SAY you got a call from a studio offering a job, somebody else will call the studio and say they've got an actor who'll do it for half what Cummings will do it for, or nothing," he said. "There are only so many parts around and three television networks."

In "Living Doll," Cummings co-stars with Julie Newmar and Jack Mullaney. Miss Newmar, a statuesque beauty, portrays a human robot. Cummings is a doctor.

The idea is out of this world. Miss Newmar is the only leading lady on television who operates on solar batteries.

This show is Cummings' fourth television series. His first, "My Hero," was something that Bob felt would damage his career. He then went into "The Bob Cummings Show" and struck it rich.

The series ran for six years and Cummings fattened his bank account.

AFTER THAT, he stayed off television for a while before trying another series which turned out to be an ill-fated venture.

The new show is produced by Jack Chertok, who also films "My Favorite Martian." He's well-grounded in out-of-this-world subject matter.

"We have a wonderful idea," Cummings said. "The secret of this show is in the believeability of the robot which they have built into the likeness of one of America's most beautiful women. If we don't believe in her, we won't believe in anything.

"The robot is one of the most testing roles I've ever seen. Every action that anybody ever learned doesn't work. The robot doesn't initiate action of its own. It must be programmed."

You need a new WINEGARD COLORTRON ANTENNA

You need a more powerful TV antenna to clear up that picture. One that takes more of the signal from the airwaves, and amplifies it before it reaches your set. When your set receives a strong, clean signal from the antenna, your picture becomes sharp, clear, bright... more enjoyable.

Model for model, Winegard's new electronic Colortrons are the world's most powerful antennas. Distant stations come in clearer and sharper. Snow and interference are reduced or eliminated.

For color or black & white, you can't own a finer antenna for best reception. Priced from $64.90. Antenna without electronic amplifier $21.95 up.

A. Edward VIII reigned for 327 days. The Duchess of Windsor has never been received by any member of her husband's family, not even unofficially.

Q. Will Henry Ford II marry Christina Austin? Didn't he announce that in London recently?—F. R., Lansing, Mich.

A. Ford, 46, said nothing about Christina Austin, 37-year-old widow of a British naval officer, when he was recently in London. What he did say was, "I am here to talk with Lord Rootes about an automatic transmission system for his Ford-engined car, the Tiger."

Q. Film star Stewart Granger married a Belgian beauty queen a few weeks ago. How old is Granger? How old is his new wife? Is Granger washed up in Hollywood films? — Lois Jenkinson, Los Angeles, Calif.

Q. Elizabeth Taylor and Eddie Fisher adopted a little German child a few years ago. Have they returned her to her parents?—Vivian Henry, Jacksonville, Fla.

Q. I read in a Canadian magazine that a nuclear bomb was dropped on the U.S. by an American pilot named Charles Woodruff. Is this true or fiction? If true, how many people were killed, and why was the story hushed up?—Kenneth Labiere, Montreal, Que.

A. On March 11, 1958, a B-47 in the 308th Bomb Wing of the U.S. Air Force's Strategic Air Command accidentally lost a nuclear bomb from its bomb bay as it was flying over Mars Bluff, S. C. The three-man crew of the plane, called The City of Savannah, consisted of Capt. Earl Koehler, the pilot; Capt. Charles Woodruff, copilot; and Capt. Bruce M. Kulka, navigator. The bomb was "noncritical," meaning there could be no nuclear reaction, no nuclear blast. There was, however, an explosion which destroyed the home of Walter Gregg of Mars Bluff, S. C., but there were no casualties. The accident was reported by the press.

Q. How much does screen star Natalie Wood earn per year?—Dora Gertner, Newark, N. J.

Q. Can you reveal anything about a young woman named Laila Baalbaki, who has caused a social revolution in the Near East?—D. Boggs, Chapel Hill, N.C.

A. Laila Baalbaki is a 28-year-old Lebanese novelist, the most popular and best-known modern Arabic writer. Recently she was charged with pornography because in a novel she told the dull truth of Arabic women trying to live in the outmoded Moslem social structure. Her first novel, I Live, published in 1956, when she was 20, brought Miss Baalbaki overnight fame. American publishers say her novels are too tame, conservative and even "adolescent" for publication in this country.

Sunflowers—MONET

The 19th century gave birth to a joyous, dynamic new art-form called Impressionism. Canvases suddenly were bathed in sunlight and came alive.

Here are four of the most magnificent impressionist paintings, reproduced to beautify your home.

Vincent Van Gogh (1853-90), one-eared eccentric Dutchman, painted swirling yellow-gold "Sunflowers" against a pale lemon background, one of the most glorious flower paintings ever created.

"White Lilacs and Roses" by Edouard Manet (1832-83) contrasts 3 fragilely-tinted red and pink roses and white lilacs in glass container with a strong, dark background.

Pierre Renoir's (1841-1919) "A Large Vase of Flowers" delicate toned spring nosegays are as reminiscent of a Dutch still life as the delft vase in which they are placed.

Sensuous "Sunflowers" were created in characteristic short strokes by Claude Monet (1840-1926). A sunburst of orange and yellow flowers are set off by masses of green leaves, in a white vase that stands on a red cloth.

Each picture is covered with unbreakable plastic and framed in passepartout with a wood-like finish. Ready to be hung. Over-all size 11 x 14 inches each. Full set of four pictures makes a glorious grouping. To order for immediate delivery mail coupon now!

BEATLEMANIA IS COMING

The Beatles

HOW LONG WILL THEY LAST?

by LLOYD SHEARER

For the next 50 days an epidemic of Beatlemania will scourge this continent.

The Beatles' first motion picture, a plotless, innocuous 90 minutes of filmed nonsense called A Hard Day's Night, will be released early this month. A few weeks later the Beatles will tour the U.S. and Canada in a series of one-night stands at $25,000 per night against 60 per cent of the gross, whichever is higher.

Already multimillionaires, this likable quartet of British mopheads will pick up another million by the time they depart New York on September 21.

In the hectic, colorful history of show business there has been nothing or no one to rival their fantastic success.

No act, no single entertainer, no group has garnered so much publicity, played before such tremendous crowds, earned such enormous amounts of money, sold so many recordings and by-products in so short a period of time.

In the past 6 months, for example, the Beatles have sold 10,000,000 albums at a royalty of 17¢ each. Last February when they first came to America, they sold more than 1,000,000 copies of a single record in one day. By the end of 1964, Malcolm Evans, who handles their by-products—everything from wigs to wallets—estimates that more than $50,000,000 worth of their products will have been sold. The Beatles' share: 15 per cent.

As for exposure, they have appeared on TV and stage before some 300,000,000 people. Wherever they've rocked and rolled, they have prompted riots, faintings, swoonings, screamings, impassioned female outbursts of love and near-violent demonstrations of teenage hysteria.

Publicity-wise, only one event in the past year—the assassination of President John F. Kennedy—has been accorded more space by the world press.

A few weeks ago Brian Somerville, 33, the press agent who has handled their public relations since they were unknowns in their native Liverpool, quit his job and took an advertisement in the London Times, seeking a new one. His explanation: "There is nothing more I or any other press agent can do for the Beatles. They have had total and constant exposure in the press. All I can say is that it has been a most incredible and exhausting experience."

How long can the Beatles maintain their unprecedented popularity?

Alistair Taylor, their general manager, says, "I agree that they have waned somewhat in England. There are several reasons for that: one, they established so high a peak they had to slow down a bit; and two, they have crossed the teenage barrier into the adult world. Everybody, regardless of age, in England likes the Beatles. Now, when adults like an act that teenagers discovered, the teenagers become suspicious, and their enthusiasm begins to wane.

"But what you must not lose sight of," Mr. Taylor declares, "is that the Beatles now have a great future as film stars. In addition they are all talented musicians, and several are excellent composers; as you know they compose their own tunes.

"I should say they will remain on the show business scene as a top attraction for many, many years to come."

LOOK WHAT HAPPENED TO ELVIS

Colonel Tom Parker, manager of Elvis Presley, a forerunner of the Beatles, believes the quartet will last "just as long as they continue to project the image of being nice, pleasant, unpretentious, fun-loving young fellas.

"A lot of people," Colonel Parker avers, "say the Beatles are a phenomenon, that they'll pass just as quickly as they came on. Reminds me of what they told me about Elvis. 'He's a passing fancy,' the wiseguys explained to me in 1955, 'can't possibly last.' Well, Elvis has been around for almost 10 years now. He's become a full-fledged movie star. I predict the same thing will happen to the Beatles. They're blessed with what we in show business call 'star-magic.'"

The executives of United Artists apparently held the same belief 10 months ago, before the Beatles set foot on American soil. They signed the boys to a three-picture deal, shot the first film outside London this past March and April. The demand for its release in this country has been so strong that United Artists has been able to sell tickets in advance, an unheard-of procedure for a regular-run film shown at ordinary prices.

Since dozens of other pop groups, many with similar Buster Brown haircuts and tight Edwardian suits, have become their aggressive, competitive imitators, the Beatles hope motion pictures will afford them a new lease on life. They anticipate that the medium will bring them a wider, more literate, serious, sophisticated audience than the pop-disc and teenage public they now have.

In line with this they quietly, two months ago, bought their own motion picture studio a few miles from London. Once their United Artists deal expires, there is no doubt but what they will produce their own films. Their personal manager and discoverer, 30-year-old Brian Epstein—"We call him the Fifth Beatle," they say—is not one to miss any financial opportunity. Reportedly, Epstein gets from 20 to 25 cents of every dollar his Beatles earn.

The Beatles' first movie, named by themselves, A Hard Day's Night, is basically a showcase for their rock 'n' roll act. Its story line, if it can be called that, deals with four happy Liverpool lads called Paul (Paul McCartney), John (John Lennon), George (George Harrison) and Ringo (Ringo Starr), who play their music all over Great Britain, generally pursued by hundreds of screaming girls. Into the company of this foursome comes Mixing John McCartney, Paul's grandfather, played by Wilfred Brambell, who is dedicated to the principle of divide and conquer.

The production deals with the attempts of Paul's grandfather to louse up the Beatles' act in the course of 36 hours. The Beatles play themselves, sing six new numbers, are each given a stretch of film in which to shine as individuals.

ON LOYALTY ALONE

Regardless of what the critics do to it, A Hard Day's Night, which cost only $750,000, will probably gross from $5,000,000 to $15,000,000 on a world-wide basis, with Epstein and his boys taking an estimated 50 per cent of the profits.

"On the basis of fan loyalty alone," says David Picker, vice-president of United Artists, "we expect the picture to do smash business. The loyalty the Beatles inspire is incredible, especially in America."

What is the basis of the Beatles' fanatical fandom? And fantastic appeal? Ask the teenage girls who swoon and scream at the sight of these young long-hairs, age 21 to 24, one of whom, John Lennon, is married and the father of a 13-month-old baby, and they come up with such assorted answers as: "They're cute . . . They're tough . . . They're the most . . . When I listen to them, I just quiver all over . . . I love them because they're so nice . . . Underneath their hair a girl knows, she just knows, they're gentlemen . . . We girls love their beat, their sound. They're something new. Maybe they're English and maybe they aren't teenagers, but they belong to us."

WORSHIP OF AN IDEAL

A British psychologist, John Gabriel, author of Children Growing Up, defines the teenage cult of Beatlemania as "adolescent idealism." He says: "Perhaps most adolescents must worship an ideal and realize that such worship is nebulous before they are able to love an ordinary human being and accept him despite his imperfections."

According to Gabriel, adults should not sneer at the teenagers' mass love crush. When they scream at the Beatles, he believes, they are proudly announcing to the world that they have discovered their ideal or perfect human being. Shy and insecure because of their age, they find safety in numbers and conformity, contagion in the enthusiasm generated by their girl friends who admire the Beatles.

American psychiatrists offer a different explanation as to why the four young men who've played their way from $15-a-night stands to the top echelon of the entertainment world, arouse such intense fever in the American girl.

Dr. Ralph Greenson, who treated Marilyn Monroe and dozens of other Hollywood personalities in the past 25 years, says flatly: "In appearance the Beatles present an impression of sexual ambiguity [the truth, of course, is that the Beatles are swingers who have lived in Paris and Hamburg, love, know and cultivate the society of women, all sizes, ages and shapes].

"In teenagers," Greenson goes on to say, "there is difficulty in getting involved with a completely masculine figure. Girls of 12, 13, 14, 15 and even 16 are fearful of getting involved with a man of 23 or 24. Whether they know it or not, these girls are using the Beatles as a compromise. The Beatles seem so young and kidlike and feminine with their long hair and youthful ways, they pose no sexual threat. There is something of the baby about them. And that's why the teenagers are attracted."

Another psychiatrist, who prefers to remain nameless, says: "Just examine the pop-singers who have excited our young women. Rudy Vallee was thin-voiced and fragile-looking. Frank Sinatra, before he became snarling and tough, was as thin as a pipe-stem. When Elvis Presley first turned up, what kind of motions and gyrations did he go through? They were bumps and grinds and pelvic motions. Basically these are female motions, the kind of gestures female dancers use.

"The Beatles perhaps are truly masculine," this doctor continues, "in real life. But on stage, with their long hair and tight suits and Cuban heels, they seem to engender important feminine ingredients. The girls sense this. They identify with it just as their mothers unconsciously identified with Sinatra and their grandmothers with Vallee.

"In my opinion the Beatles will last only as long as they engender that identity. Let them cut their hair, and they'll lose half their following overnight."

Fred Martin, former public relations director of Capitol Records, traveled with the Beatles on their last tour. "I don't discount the psychiatric explanation of their success," he states. "But the fact is that these four guys have the best rock 'n' roll act in the business. They're not phonys. They know music.

"Their success is relatively new and sensational. But they've been around a long time. They've played England, Germany, France; they've played with other groups. They know harmony and counterpoint.

"They were poor, came from the wrong side of the tracks in Liverpool. They're down-to-earth. They put on no airs. They're good-natured and polite. Audiences establish an immediate rapport with them. They're successful because they're good. In my book it's as simple as that."

Whatever the explanation, be warned: Beatlemania is on its way. The Beatles make their feature film debut August 11. After that—bedlam.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

Because of volume of mail, PARADE cannot answer queries about this column.

FACT-OF-MEDICINE. Only 1 American doctor in 10 charges for medical advice given over the phone.

RICH SEAS. The sea is richer than you think. An oceanographic commission meeting in Paris recently explained that the sea is one of the richest natural resources available to mankind. It can provide enormous amounts of food and minerals. As an example the commission pointed to the successful dredging of beaches drowned in the ice age. In South Africa, at the mouth of the Orange River, more than $10,000 worth of diamonds are being recovered each day. In Alaska and Malaysia, dredging has produced goodly supplies of gold and tin.

RUSSIAN DILEMMA. Nikita Khrushchev is in serious trouble with the Soviet satellite countries. More and more they refuse to follow Russian advice. Khrushchev advises the Soviet bloc not to trade with the West -- yet Russia, to solve its urgent agricultural problems, is compelled to do business on an ever-growing scale with the Western powers, ordering bulk supplies of grain, chemicals and fertilizers. Yugoslavia has come to no harm with her Western trade arrangements; neither has Poland. Now Rumania comes along with a U.S. trade agreement. Can Czechoslovakia be far behind?

CAR AGE. The average American car is six years old. In 1964 an estimated 5,000,000 of these too-old vehicles will be junked.

FRAUD. Scotland's whisky and textile producers are trying to stop phony imitations of their products. In Greece and Argentina large amounts of local woolen products are sold with Scotch trade names. In other European countries tourists are being offered Scotch at reduced prices which is not Scotch at all.

REAL SISTER SOURIRE, AT FICHERMONT CONVENT.

NUN DEBBIE. A film version of the life of Sister Sourire, the Belgian nun whose recordings have become international best-sellers and whose biography was first written up in PARADE, will be photographed next year. Most prominently mentioned for the leading role of the singing nun: Debbie Reynolds.

WIFE'S CASH VALUE. How much is a 20-year-old wife and mother worth to her husband? In Miami, Fla., recently, Wright Sarvis, 24, sued a railway for $350,000 because his wife Cheryl, 20, was killed by a train. Dr. Roy Lassiter, economics professor at the University of Florida, testified that such a wife was easily worth more than $400,000 to her husband. He based his computations on the expected life span of the husband, another 46 years, and on the combined replacement wages of a domestic servant and schoolteacher for that period of time. The professor declined to estimate the cash value of a wife's love and companionship. The jury awarded the husband $250,000.

PLAY-FILMING. Cheapest way to produce a feature film is to photograph a Broadway play while the actors are going through their nightly chores on-stage. Warner Brothers is trying out the method on Richard Burton's Hamlet. If Warner's can sell that one to movie houses, they will photograph more and more Broadway plays.

OFF-SHORE TELECASTERS. Pirate ships completely equipped with radio and television transmitters have anchored themselves in European waters and are beaming programs to countries where broadcasting facilities are owned by the government. They obtain their revenue from sponsors who are prohibited from advertising on government-owned radio and TV stations. Latest such pirate ship is the Global Adventurer, anchored in the North Sea, six miles off the Dutch Coast. The Global Adventurer will start transmitting test TV programs on August 15, begin regular programing September 1. The Dutch government, furious, can do nothing about it. Off the British coast are ship stations, called Radio Atlanta and Radio Caroline.

How 2^{67} for The National Observer Changed Our Lives

Thousands of families are now getting more information and more reading pleasure from this new kind of national weekly newspaper. The following account gives some idea of what you can look forward to, if you take advantage of our very special trial offer. To do so, use coupon below.

By a Subscriber

FOR YEARS I was shy in groups, even at home. Didn't enter into conversations easily. By the time I'd collect my thoughts to venture an opinion, the group's talk would pass me by.

"A few months ago, I sent for a trial subscription to The National Observer, that wonderful new weekly put out by The Wall Street Journal people. I hoped that regular reading of such dependable and varied information would give me more self-assurance and poise. I hoped for all this—but didn't really expect it. After all, what could a mere newspaper do for me? To my surprise, I have discovered that The National Observer more than lives up to my desires.

"There is a wealth of significant, useful and entertaining information every week. It is authoritative, wholesome and unslanted...written so interestingly that when I finish an issue the information is mine. I easily take part in almost any discussion of politics, science, books, movies . . . keep up-to-date on theater, art, medical findings, fashions, household problems, economic events. (These are only some of the many subjects reported regularly in The National Observer.)

"Busy as I am with other chores, I don't get behind on my reading, for The National Observer very wisely gives me all this information in concise form—in relatively few pages that I can manage very conveniently.

Wives love it

"And I'm not the only one who gets a lot out of The Observer. Just the other day my wife clipped an Observer item describing 12 fund-raising ideas for clubs and organizations and took it to her club's finance committee meeting. Last week she stood up in P.T.A. and asked if our own school system shouldn't consider year-round schooling divided into three semesters—another idea she got from The Observer. She stopped correcting our little Billy's baby talk after The Observer told her why experts advise parents against it. She says it's the most helpful news publication she's ever read.

Teen-agers use it for school

"Not only that, our teen-age boy and girl enjoy it and use it in their school work. It's a pleasure to be able to pass along to them a paper filled with clean, constructive news, free from sensational crimes and scandalmongering. John was quite impressed with the new facts brought out about auto seat belts at The Stapp Car Crash Conference. Betty was tremendously interested in what college presidents and deans had to say about the point of a college education for women. And they're always clipping items for their Social Studies homework—such as the story of how the Louisiana constitution has been amended 407 times, and the one about the weighted vote plan adopted by New Mexico's state legislature.

"And you should hear the whole family chattering away at the dinner table these days. We have so much more in common to talk about now. Sometimes we're still lingering long after dessert, discussing whether or not you can eliminate poverty by passing laws . . . whether carpets in the classroom are a frill or an economy... whether teaching machines can also be used to teach better human relations....

"We're just a changed family since we discovered The National Observer."

SO MANY National Observer families are talking like this. Why don't you join them?

The National Observer is published by Dow Jones, the same worldwide news-gathering organization that publishes The Wall Street Journal.

Differs from other news weeklies

Because The Observer is printed simultaneously on high-speed newspaper presses in several of the Journal's own modern printing plants across the country—and because newspapers can be "made up" and printed faster than magazines—last minute stories can be included only hours before the paper comes off the press.

You get more news—in a compact, full-size, single-section newspaper. And you get more out of it. The large newspaper format permits not just one major "cover story," but five or six. Inside pages are important news pages too—there's no "letdown." Well-written headlines let you learn a lot quickly and invite easy browsing for the stories that interest you most. More than 50 excellent pictures, reproduced with sparkling clarity on our own special crisp-white newsprint, open windows not only on the people, places and events in the headlines but also such amusing sidelights as a 5-year-old boy washing his St. Bernard dog in the family bathtub ...or the ingenious statuettes a Westport man fashions out of railroad spikes.

Many enjoyable special features

Each week, too, The National Observer brings you more than a dozen special features that add to your enjoyment or broaden your knowledge in important areas. "The Week in Washington," for example, can be read in seven minutes or less, yet brings you up to date on significant happenings in Congress, the White House, Government agencies, the courts and politics. Similarly, "How's Business?" fills you in quickly on important trends in industry, the performance of the stock market, and other economic indicators.

For Bridge enthusiasts, there's "Better Bridge"; for crossword fans, a really challenging puzzle; for recipe collectors, a gem or two almost every week in "Food for Thought." "A Chat With the Doctor" brings you helpful medical hints on subjects ranging from snakebite to hiccups. And the whole family will enjoy the dry humor of "Grass Roots Philosophy," culled from the home-town press. ("Keep smiling! It makes everyone wonder what you've been up to.")

Send no money...just mail coupon

PARIS.

This is the month when Parisians move out of Paris for their vacations and turn the city over to the Americans.

The French leave behind, however, a hard core of Parisians to serve the tourists.

Unfortunately, the word "serve" can all too frequently mean gyp, swindle, abuse and victimize.

Officials of the French Government Tourist Office will scream denials, but the truth is that for years some of the Parisians have been "taking" American tourists like Delilah took Samson.

Last year a PARADE reporter polled 150 returning Americans at Orly Airport on how they had been treated in Paris. Approximately 85 per cent said they had been cheated—or thought they had been cheated, which is just as bad—and an even higher percentage agreed Paris was the most expensive city in Europe.

When the PARADE reporter relayed this information to a French tourist official, he was told: "You think Paris is bad? You should see what happens to European tourists when they hit New York. They are completely victimized by everyone."

To check the validity of that allegation, PARADE last September assigned a reporter to the S.S. Canberra of the P&O-Orient Lines on its return trip to Europe. In New York it discharged a boatload of foreign tourists for the Labor Day weekend. Some 150 of these visitors were asked the following questions as the Canberra steamed homeward:

Q. From your experiences during your short stay in New York, would you say that Americans (shopkeepers, taxi and bus drivers, restaurateurs, etc.) were honest, friendly and co-operative, or cold and grasping, eager to charge as much as they could?

A. Honest and friendly — 95%
Cold and grasping — 5%

Q. Do you feel you were cheated or taken advantage of in any way?

A. Yes — 8% No — 92%

Q. Did the prices charged for services and goods seem reasonable to you?

A. Yes — 64% No — 36%

Q. Were the police and other city officials helpful in lending guidance when asked?

A. Yes — 97% No — 3%

Paris is one of the great cities of the world. Every tourist should see it, but many are now frightened away because of the high costs and the fear of being taken for financial rides.

How is one to avoid being gypped in Paris?

Here are a few simple rules:

1. Before leaving the U.S., write to the French Government Tourist Office at any of these addresses:

610 Fifth Avenue, New York 20, N.Y.
9418 Wilshire Boulevard, Beverly Hills, Calif.
18 South Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.
323 Geary Street, San Francisco, Calif.

Ask for literature on 450 selected international tourist hotels and for the booklet on economical, comfortable hotels in Paris. The Parisian hotels are rated 1-star, 2-star, 3-star, 4-star and Luxury. The 4-star and Luxury hotels are the most expensive and usually crowded with Americans. Avoid these if you're traveling on a budget.

Ask also for the booklet on the Paris subway (Métro) and for the list of more than 1,000 establishments in Paris and the suburbs where meals are served at from 5 to 7 francs ($1 to $1.40).

Go to your local bank and buy $5 or $10 in French currency so you can recognize the various denominations. Try to learn some basic French sentences from a phrase book. It is much easier for an ignorant tourist to be taken advantage of than one who has even a little knowledge of the language and currency.

2. When you arrive in Paris by air, be sure to save $5 for the return trip. The French government this past June 1 quietly increased the airport embarkation tax charged all passengers on long-distance overseas flights to $5, the highest airport user's tax in the world. You must pay it or you can't leave the country.

3. Try to avoid taxicabs in Paris. Not that the French cabbies aren't honest—it's just that many of them know how to spot the typical American tourist. "Generally, monsieur," one cabbie told me, "we can tell an American by his clothes, his camera, his accent or his dark glasses." Occasionally a cabbie succumbs to the temptation of charging an American tourist the the night rate for a day trip, taking him for an unnecessary ride or giving him too little change.

If you prefer taxis to the marvelous Paris subway, which constitutes a much more adventurous travel experience and costs only 8¢ a ride, you can ask the cabdriver for a receipt—"Je voudrais avoir un reçu." He may give you a slip of paper on which is printed his hack number and the Paris taxi prices for day trips, night trips, baggage charges, etc. Inasmuch as Paris is so tourist-conscious, it would be helpful if these regulations were translated into English and other languages. The American tourist would then know exactly what he is paying for. In any event, if you ask a cabdriver for a receipt, he will think twice before cheating you.

Do not let any cabdriver "steer" you to a restaurant. Almost always he will collect a tip from the owner or doorman for bringing you. Much better to follow the recommendation of your hotel concierge.

Do not hold out to any cabdriver, particularly one who says, "tip," or "tip for me," a handful of French coins. He is likely to take most of them, and the action is complete evidence of your ignorance. Look carefully at the taxicab meter before you pay the charges. Do not get panicky. Don't let yourself be bullied.

4. Avoid night clubs. As in most cities, these are the biggest gyp-joints of all. In Paris the standard procedure is to charge a tourist anywhere from $15 to $25 for a bottle of champagne. Most of the night club shows and revues are awful. There is nothing in Paris that equals the shows now staged in Las Vegas, Nev. If you're intent upon night clubs in Paris, however, reconcile yourself to getting clipped.

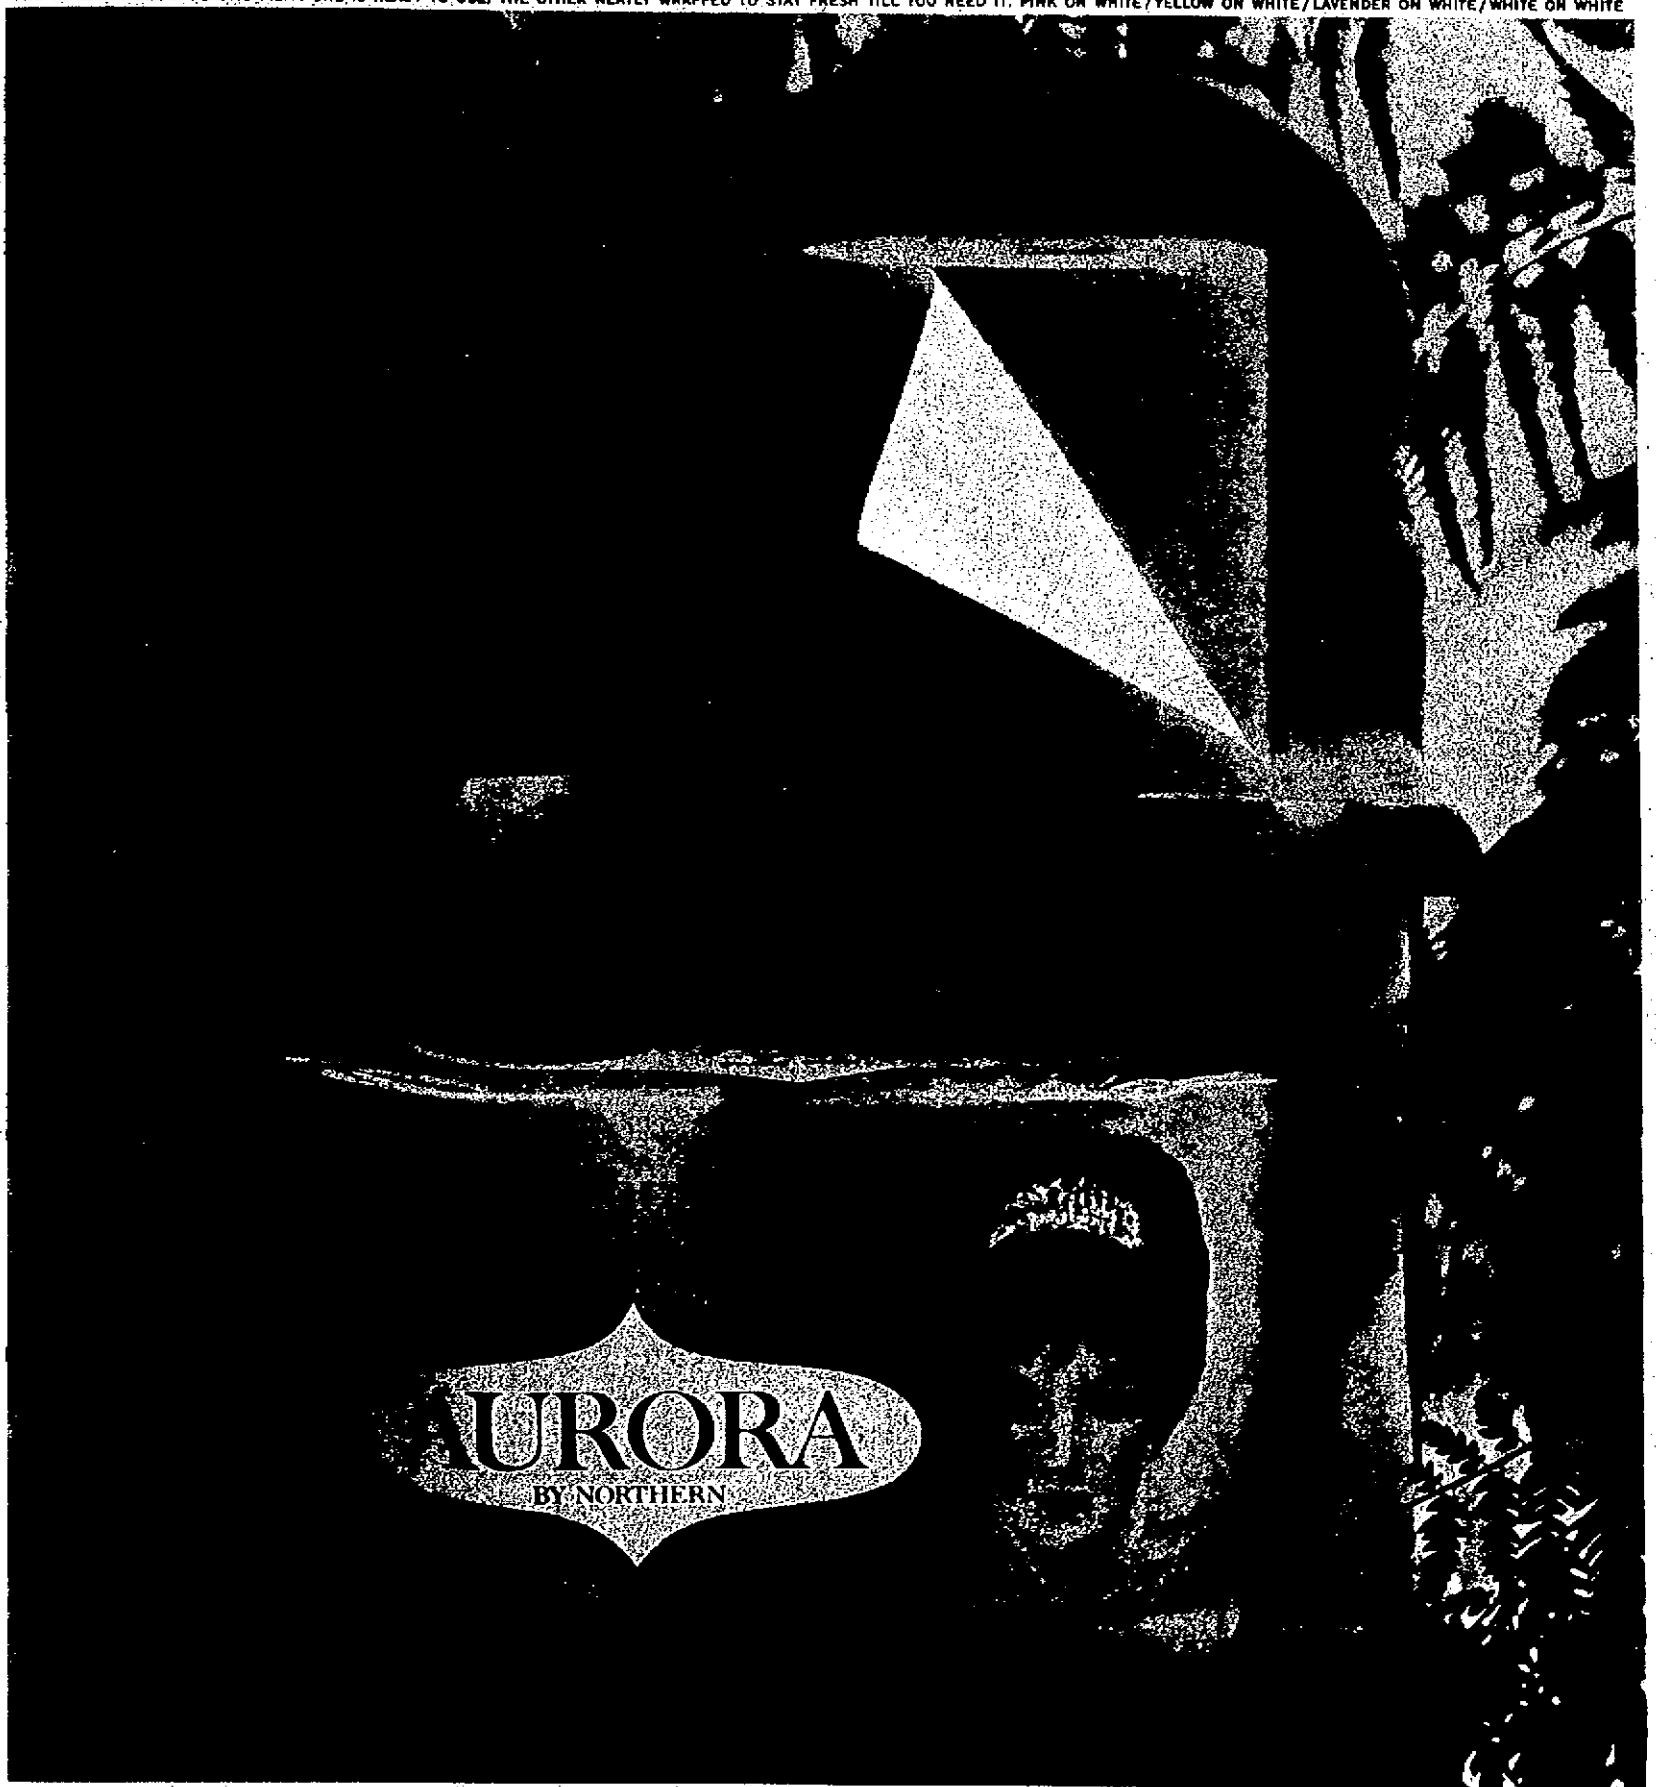

5. French restaurants are the best in the world. Avoid the expensive ones. Like the hotels, restaurants throughout Paris are classified by 1, 2, 3 or 4 stars. A round enamel disc near the door indicates their category. Those in the first three categories serve a special "fixed-price" meal from $1 to $3.60, including cover charge, hors d'oeuvres, a main dish plus vegetables, cheese or dessert. And the menu for the meal of the day is usually hung in the window. This is the best buy. Don't let yourself be switched to expensive à la carte dinners with champagne. The tab can very easily mount to $40 for two. If you want wine, ask for the house wine, or vin ordinaire.

6. Visit the French Bureau de Tourisme at 8 avenue de l'Opéra, its branch office at 127 avenue des Champs-Élysées or the office of "Welcome" at 7 rue Balzac, just off the Champs-Élysées. These are the tourist offices whose personnel will prevent you from being cheated if only you will ask for help.

The French have become most sensitive about their tourist-cheating reputation and are doing everything possible to reconstruct the image of Paris as a tourist mecca. Tourism is France's third-largest industry in money earned, and the French are mightily disturbed over the current tourist trend to avoid Paris or to cut short a vacation there. They want American dollars badly, and for the first time in a long while they are willing to take pains to get them.

Remember: Your most valuable address in Paris is 7 rue Balzac—Office of the Paris Hostesses. It's open every day except Christmas from 9:00 A.M. to midnight. Pretty English-speaking girls provide information on every aspect of tourism. No charge.

Patio supper

by BETH MERRIMAN
Parade food editor

Late supper on the patio or porch can be a relaxing meal for both hostess and guests with this superb recipe for chili cooked and kept hot in an electric buffet cooker. A basket of hot corn bread—made with a mix—is a perfect complement to chili; so is a cold, crisp salad. Serve lemon sherbet and tall glasses of cold milk, iced tea or coffee as finishing touches to an easy-to-make and inexpensive company or family supper.

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 large onion, chopped
2 lbs. ground beef
2 cans (1 lb. each) tomatoes
2 cans (10½ oz. each) condensed tomato soup
1 teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon cayenne
1 bay leaf
2 tablespoons chili powder
1 garlic clove
1 teaspoon salt
2 cans (1 lb. each) kidney beans
Corn Bread*

Melt butter over medium heat. Add onion and meat; cook until brown, stirring often. Add tomatoes, soup, paprika, cayenne, bay leaf and chili powder. Simmer 1 hour, adding water if mixture gets too thick. Mash garlic and salt together; stir into mixture. Stir in beans (do not drain). Heat thoroughly. Serve on squares of hot corn bread. Makes 12 servings.

CORN BREAD: Prepare 2 pkgs. corn muffin mix as directed on package. Bake in well-greased oblong pan, 8 x 11 x 2 inches, at 350° for about 35 minutes, or until golden brown. Cut into squares and serve piping hot with chili.

MARINA OSWALD

WHAT WILL SHE TELL HER CHILDREN?

by SID ROSS

Suppose your husband had allegedly assassinated the President of the United States?

What would you tell your children? Would you tell them the truth or would you avoid the entire subject?

Would you leave the city of his alleged crime?

Would you change your name?

How does Lee Harvey Oswald's widow, Russian-born Marina Oswald, feel about Americans—and about America? And how do Americans feel about her?

Recently Mrs. Oswald sat in her five-room rented ranch home here on the edge of Dallas and spoke about these questions. She allowed PARADE to be the first publication to examine the 6,000 letters she has received since last November. And she talked about what these letters—and this reception—mean for her, and her children's, future.

To Marina, Americans are kind, generous, compassionate people—the kind she wants to live among for the rest of her life. It is not only the letters they have written, or the $70,000 they have spontaneously contributed. It is the thoughtfulness the letters have shown, the warmth, friendship and sympathy offered a frightened woman from a foreign land.

Take, for instance, the way American widows, themselves hardly the most fortunate of persons, have rallied to her aid. "These are women with many more problems than I have," she says. "They have known tragedy, too, but they have no one to help them. Most of them have not much money, and what they have they need. Yet they willingly offer it to me."

Or take the response from American children: "Children are always writing, and their letters have helped me very much," says Mrs. Oswald. "One Sunday school class wrote and told me how they all got together and baked a cake and sold it and sent me the money. Letters like this tell me I am doing right to bring up my June and my Rachel in this country. I know American children will be honest and nice and friendly with them when they are older."

ADVICE AND PROPOSALS

In the letters Mrs. Oswald has received, and which still arrive every day from all states of the Union and from abroad, writers have offered her all kinds of help and assistance—not to mention money. Some have offered their homes. Others have suggested adopting the children, and still others have proposed marriage. The writers have also been generous with advice—that she change her name, that she go abroad or move to another state, that she go into hiding.

But she declares, "I want to stay here, in Dallas. I like Dallas. People here in Texas are very friendly, especially with children. After what happened, people were more friendly than they had ever been before. I visit back and forth with my neighbor on the corner, and another neighbor takes me shopping in the car.

"The suggestions that I change my name or give up my children—I could not do that. I am not proud of my name and my position, but I am not ashamed of them. I did nothing guilty. As for the children, without them, I have no reason for living.

"I have not thought of another marriage. It is too serious a matter to be entered into the way some men have suggested in their letters—like picking me from a Sears, Roebuck catalog."

In dress and in manner, Marina Oswald, 23, today seems thoroughly American. She likes to dress in tight Capri pants and blouses and favors heavy eye make-up. She wears her dark blonde hair short and lightly teased and chain-smokes mentholated cigarettes. Even her home is thoroughly American. Interestingly, there is no photo of Lee Oswald to be seen in the house.

When Oswald was shot by Jack Ruby, two days after the assassination, his wife, who had been in the U.S. less than two years, spoke virtually no English. Today, however, she can make herself understood in the language, although in her interview with PARADE, a Russian friend helped with translation. But she insisted on reading, or having read to her, every one of the letters Americans have sent. She has sent thank-you cards to everyone who contributed money.

"These letters have given me courage and strength," she says. "I'm not really strong myself, but they have helped me. They give me courage and inspiration."

Many express regrets that her husband could not have lived to have a fair trial—"in the truly American way." Most are forgiving, and many are inspired by religious feeling.

Typical is one from a woman in Fort Worth, Tex.:

After the shot heard around the world: Marina scans letters of sympathy, advice and proposals of marriage.

"Bitterness and hatred have deprived you of a husband and your children of a father, even as they have Mrs. Kennedy . . . The days ahead will be difficult, and so a group of us who believe in Christian love wish to convey to you and your children our concern."

"The hearts of all Americans go out to you," a California woman wrote. "We sincerely hope that life in America will be worth-while for you and your children, and that the tragedy that touched so many lives will be completely erased from the memory of all."

Several women tried to give Mrs. Oswald moral courage from their own lives. "I am a widow 74 years old, and life has hit me on all sides, but nothing has ever happened to me which caused me to hang my head in shame," wrote one. Another wrote poignantly: "I know from personal experience what a wife suffers when her husband brings shame down upon her and her children."

"I feel sorry," Marina says. "I feel ashamed. It is a great loss to a country to lose its President. He had much more to give the nation. But first of all I feel sorry for poor Jackie because she lost her husband, the father of her children."

Twice Mrs. Oswald wrote letters of sympathy to the President's young widow. But she has never been able to summon up the courage to mail them. "I feel this would make too much pain for her," she says. "I don't believe she would want a letter from me."

"BECAUSE HE WAS A FATHER"

And when she was in Washington to appear before the Warren Commission, Mrs. Oswald wanted to visit the Kennedy grave in Arlington National Cemetery and place flowers—"not so much because he was President but because he was a father." But in the end she hung back. "I was afraid of how people would react, that they would say I did not belong there."

Yet she did not speak harshly of the wispy, strange young man who found her in the Soviet Union and brought her to the United States as his bride. "If Lee killed the President," she says in a quavering voice, "I am sorry. We have lost a husband and father. If he killed the President it was also his fate, his punishment from above, to get killed himself."

She plans to tell June and Rachel all about Lee Oswald as soon as they are old enough to understand. "I wonder how I will do it," she says, "but I do not want them to hear first from someone else. I will tell them the bad and the good things about Lee. I am glad that I have two little girls. It would be much harder with boys. Boys always want to make heroes of their fathers."

And Mrs. Oswald does not hope for the execution of Jack Ruby. She is opposed to capital punishment for anyone. "Besides," she notes, "he will execute himself every day as long as he lives." Nor does she feel any bitterness toward the Dallas police, in whose custody her husband was when he was fatally shot. "It could have happened anywhere, in any city," she says.

Mrs. Oswald has given a good deal of thought to her adopted land as opposed to her native one. She notes that Lee Oswald, when he was unemployed, drew more money from the government than he would have if he had been employed as a young engineer in the Soviet Union. She was also startled to find that she and June and Rachel were entitled to Social Security payments, in spite of the way Lee Oswald died.

"The United States government is so human; it does not deprive children of what they need," she says. "In Russia if my husband had killed Khrushchev, I do not know what would have happened. . . ."

She also has been startled by how few Americans have condemned her and her children for the alleged crimes of her husband. On the other hand, one woman sent her $1—"for the service your husband did for the country." Mrs. Oswald sent it back.

And, interestingly, she has never received a letter from a Communist country—even from her closest relative, an uncle who lives in Leningrad.

But to Americans, Mrs. Oswald is grateful—and she asked PARADE to convey her thanks to all America. Sitting down at a table, she wrote neatly in Russian:

"My children and I sincerely thank the American people for their moral support during such a difficult time. I wish there could always be understanding and good will between the American and the Russian people, and between all people in the world."

Then, in English, she concluded:

"Sincerely, Mrs. Marina Oswald and Children."

Have fun! You have extra hours of protection with Kotams tampon

You can wear Kotams hours longer than most women trust their tampon. Many, many women proved this. Their actual use tests of Kotams gave these astonishing results: this new tampon provided internal sanitary protection for an average of 3 hours more than most women had felt they could trust a tampon. Think what this safety can mean to you on many occasions!

Kotams has more absorbent material. Much more than in old-style tampons. Intensely compressed, Kotams are small and easy to insert. But, internally, they expand as your own individual needs require. And for more hours than most women have ever thought possible.

The slim inserter is easier and sure. Only Kotams has a slender inserter with a marked grip that makes it virtually impossible to place the tampon incorrectly. Its small size makes insertion so comfortable. Beginners prefer Kotams, too.

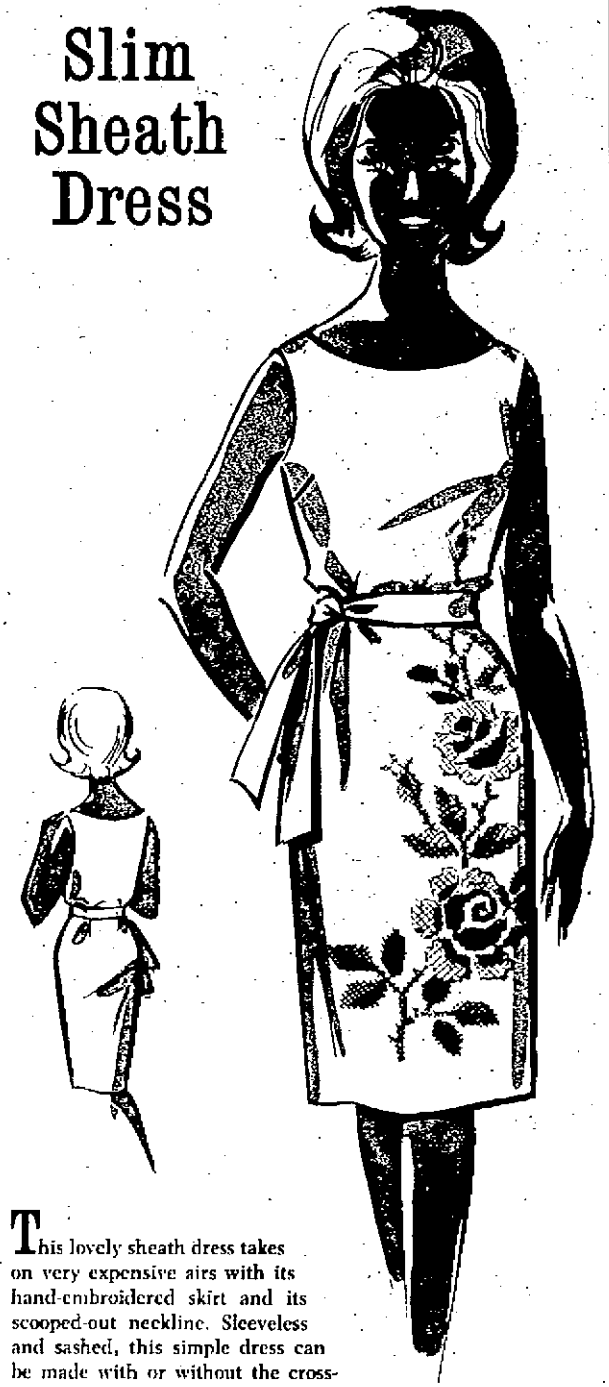

For more protection and comfort, try new Kotams. Smartly wrapped, individually, to carry in your purse.

my favorite jokes

by Tony Stevens

EDITOR'S NOTE: Born in Jersey City, N.J., in 1933, the youngest of 13 children, Tony Stevens—real name: Anthony Steven Morelli—is a young comedian who in the past few years has worked many of the big-time night spots in the East. Stevens got his show business start in the Army working as a Special Services master of ceremonies in Korea. When he isn't working in night clubs, the comic attends Rutgers University at night, toward a degree in accounting. Married and the father of two daughters, Tony has been signed to appear with Frank Sinatra, Jr., later this month in Jersey. Herewith some of his jokes:

I came home the other night, and my wife was crying. I said, "What are you crying about?" She answered, "The dog ate the cake I baked for your birthday party." "Well, don't be so upset," I told her. "I'll buy you a new dog tomorrow."

It's no wonder those Russian athletes are so strong. Eight hours a day they spend building up their muscles, and do you know how they do it? Tearing last year's history books in half!

What do you think of the new topless bathing suits the girls are wearing at the beaches? I bet they'll drive many a man to distraction this summer—and the rest to binoculars!

I understand that in Las Vegas, where new rooms are constantly being added to all the hotels, the hotel owners have thought up a novel kind of gambling game: They give you the key to your room, then bet you 5 to 1 you can't find it.

And speaking of hotels, we stayed at a very nice one in the Catskills for a week in June. I won't say the mattress was soft, but my wife disappeared for two days and she never even left the room.... It was a typical summer resort—two girls to every man. And brother, that's my kind of odds!

Did you hear about the conceited plumber who took one look at Niagara Falls and said, "Give me time and I could fix it"?

There's only one difference between a bachelor and a married man. When a bachelor sees a pretty girl, he turns around and whistles at her. When a married man sees a pretty girl, he... come to think of it, there's no difference at all between a bachelor and a married man.

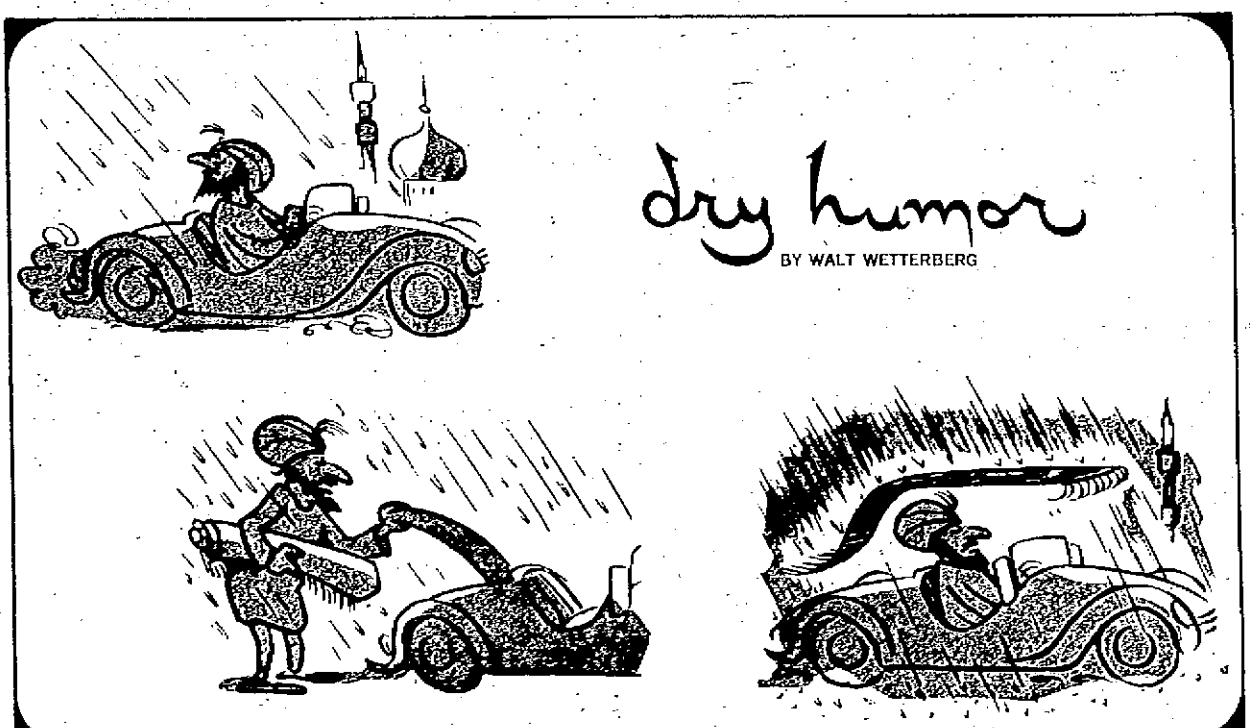

Two old maids were in an insane asylum. Said one: "I just wish a man were here to hug me and kiss me and squeeze me to death." The other looked at her and replied: "Now you're talking sense. You'll be out of here in no time!"

There is a lot of hoopla about the Academy Awards in Hollywood every year, but personally I think they are all a fake. Otherwise, how come Tommy Manville never won an Oscar for the best supporting performance?

I hear Liberace made out a new will: He plans to leave his brain to Harvard and his teeth to Colgate.

Did you hear about the race horse who made so much money he bought himself a string of people?

Have you seen the latest Italian singing rage of the teenagers, Rita Pavone? She's not even 5 feet tall and weighs less than 90 lbs.—kind of like Jayne Mansfield after taxes.

Keep your cotton-pickin' hands off the lint filter {IT CLEANS ITSELF!}

RCA Whirlpool WASHER

with exclusive MAGIC CLEAN lint filter, Super Wash cycle and 3 speeds!

Model LMA 992-0

No more lint pickin' from your clothes or the filter! With the exclusive MAGIC CLEAN filter, lint is captured then flushed away—automatically! It's reliable, silent and works efficiently at all water levels.

Ideal for heavily soiled play clothes, work clothes and diapers. It washes them thoroughly, lets them soak while heavy soil drains away, then refills for another washing. It's all automatic; no need to reset the controls.

The new LO SPEED is perfect for washable woolens and delicate items you'd normally wash by hand. MEDIUM SPEED is a normal speed for ordinary washings. HIGH SPEED is for garments that need a real scrubbing.
